Belleville, Trenton and Cobourg Are Represented With Provision Made for Inclusion of Port Hope

A triple schedule of 18 games was adopted by group No. 2 of the Junior O.H.A. when the delegates convened in Trenton before Convener Art Black over the week-end. Only three junior O.H.A. clubs, Belleville, Trenton and Cobourg were represented, the Port Hope club failing to attend the meeting. Provisions for the admission of the Port Hope club were agreed upon, however, in case that club desires to subsequently enter the group competition. Dartmouth's Delayed Victory Over Cornell Sports Oddity of Year

By BILL BONI
Associated Press Sports Writer.

New York, Dec. 16 (AP)—Dartmouth's delayed football victory over Cornell, already chosen the No. 1 upset of the year, was singled out again for special notice today as 1940's prize sports oddity in the United States.

The country's sports editors, while deeming some score other screwball episodes worthy of mention, were strong for the "fifth down" game with its manifold angles as the piece de resistance. Sixty of them had it somewhere on their list, and most of them put it right on top.

It was of course, distinctive from the rest as a three-day wonder. The first day the boys wondered how Dartmouth could have held Cornell to a 7-3 score, the second day they wondered how a college education could have missed teaching referee Red Firesell how to count beyond four, and the third day they wondered how Dartmouth could have managed to beat Cornell by 3-0.

From a fine supplementary selection of freak indicents, it was difficult to determine a definite second. The honors appeared divided fairly evenly among Ed Oliver's disqualification from the U.S. open golf championship for being too early, rather than too late, off the tee; Jimmy Wilson's theft of second base in the World Series, and the attempted tackle of Tommy Harmon made in the California-Michigan game by a misguided celebrant who, like many more sober and athletic citizens, missed his mark.

One oddity that might have won more support the more publicity was the five-under-par performance by a ladies' threesome playing the 130-yard 15th hole at the Milburn, C.C. in Kansas City. Mrs. H. H. Silverford shot first and scored a hole-in-one; Mrs. E. F. DeVilbiss followed with another, and Mrs. J. C. Fry hit a tee shot that stopped four inches from the cup for an easy deuce and a combined score of four shots where par was nine.

New York, Dec. 16—(AP)—Broadway melody: Brooklyn and the Yankees are the favorites in Jack Doyle's big league winter book. . . If you get up early enough, you can see Alice Marble (in shorts) alternately jogging and walking around the reservoir in Central Park. . . Max Baer left the cast of "H'ya Gentlemen" in Boston Saturday night and they're saying the show will never see Broadway. Max may sign for a Billy Conn fight any hour now.

On the cuff:

M.G.M.'s scouts have decided Billy Conn has plenty of oomph and will sign him up this week. . . Benny Leonard takes another flyer in the restaurant business when he opens a spot on Seventh Avenue tomorrow night. . . Tony Canzoneri, ex-lightweight king and idol of N. Y. fans, has gone into the refereeing biz. . . . Ken Overlin will decorate the family Christmas tree at Decatur, Ill., with $100 bills—one for each member of the family. . . . Mrs. Lew Jenkins (beautiful K-K-Katie) is in from Texas for the Zivic fight Friday night.

LOUIS FAVORED TO BEAT McCOY

Most of the Experts Believe Champion Will K. O. Challenger Early in Bout

Boston, Dec. 16 (AP)—Champion Joe Louis is an almost unanimous choice to win by an early knockout tonight in his scheduled 15-round battle with challenger Al McCoy in the 12th defense of his heavyweight crown.

One of the few dissenting opinions comes from the McCoy camp where the Maine-born battler and his entourage are promising to give Louis a tusale over the entire route in this first heavyweight title battle ever to be fought in Boston or New England.

But the fistic experts and the man in the street, who is expected to pack the garden to capacity tonight, are stringing along with the champion and, failing to find any McCoy money, are laying their bets on the round when the Bomber will administer the coup-de-grace. Most of the wagers, incidentally, are on the first few rounds. The main bout is scheduled for 11 p.m. EDT. Louis is expected to scale about 202 and McCoy probably will weigh in around 180.

Weights Favor Champion

The pull in the weights would appear to favor the champion, but Louis spikes that theory by recalling that most of his few ring troubles have been caused by smaller men.

Louis is following his customary practice of making no predictions, but the indications are that he will be looking for a quick kayo from the opening gong, for, as trainer Jack Blackburn observes, "the longer they linger, the more dangerous they get."

"I'm ready," is Joe's terse summation of the situation.

"I've waited a long time for this and I'll be in there pitching from the start," McCoy said. "I'll be in there to win and anyone that thinks I'll be an early knockout victim is dead wrong." The fight will be broadcast.

HOWIE MORENZ JR., WINS

Montreal, Dec. 16 (CP)—Showing flashes of the brilliant stick-handling which carried his late father to fame in professional ranks with Montreal Canadiens, Towie Morenz, Jr., Saturday marked up four goals and one assist to pace Catholic High School Bantams to a 6-4 victory over the town of Mount Royal Juniors in an exhibition hockey game.

SCHOOLS BENEFIT AS RESULT OF SLOT MACHINE RAID

Oregon, Ill., Dec. 16—(AP) Oregon Township schools benefited from a slot machine raid. Judge Philip Nye ordered that $242.76 taken from the machines be placed in the Ogle County treasury, the money to be used for school expenses.

Five Clubs Ready for Action In Senior "B" Group After Meeting Held in This City

Single Schedule Drawn With R.C.A.F. and Reliance Aircraft Opening Season in City on January 3rd.

PLAYOFFS ARRANGED

First and Fourth Team and Second and Third Will Meet With Winners Playing in Finals

Only one of the five clubs composing the senior "B" group No. 1 of the O.H.A. this season will be excluded from the group play-offs it was decided at the annual group meeting held at the Hume Arena over the week-end as the respective club delegates met with Convener S. R. "Sandy" Burrows to draft their season's schedule. A home-and-home schedule of twenty games was adopted at the conclusion of which the club finishing first shall meet the team finishing fourth in one section of the group semi-finals, with the second and third-placed teams playing a best two-in-three game series also. The ultimate winners of these two series will meet in the group finals in a best three-in-five series for the group honours and the right to continue into the senior "B" playdowns of the O.H.A.

Home Teams to Open Season

The schedule will open with the two clubs making the Hume Arena their home ice, Reliance Aircraft of Belleville and the R.C.A.F. "Flyers," prying off the official league lid on Jan. 3rd. The meeting voted to operate the group on the point system with two points for a win and one for a tie. In the event of postponed games, such games must be completed prior to Feb. 8, and failure to complete such games by that date will result in the clubs affected dividing points, each being credited with one point in the standing.

In the event of clubs being tied for positions at the termination of the regular group schedule the group standing shall be determined by the total scoring averages of the clubs concerned. However, if a tie results between the last two clubs seeking the fourth position, this ruling shall be void and a sudden death game shall be played to determine this vital play-off position; such a possible play-off must be completed within forty-eight hours of the conclusion of the group schedule.

In the event the odd game is necessary in the group playdowns, be it semi-final or final, the actual expenses of the game, i.e., rink rental, advertising and referee's expenses, shall be deducted and the remainder divided evenly between the clubs concerned.

Considerable discussion was heard relative to the referee angle, but after thought the delegation decided to leave such appointments in the hands of the Ontario Hockey Association, now that the group has launched upon a senior venture.

The accredited delegates present were: Peterborough—Frank Buckland and Fred Scates; Kingston—W. J. Watts and William Walshe; Reliance Aircraft, (Belleville)—W. Farrell and Hilliard St. Louis; Whitby—Wesley Heard and J. M. Read; R.C.A.F.—Squ.Ldr. Carling-Kelly.

The official schedule of senior "B" group, No. 1 in the O.H.A. for 1941 reads:
Fri. Jan. 3—Air Force at Belleville.
Fri. Jan. 3—Whitby at Peterboro
Mon. Jan. 6—Peterboro at Belleville
Fri. Jan. 10—Belleville at Peterboro

Play-offs commence Monday, Feb. 10.

PAIR OF ROOKIES WIN PLAUDITS OF NEW YORK CROWD

Thurier and Hunt Playing Their First N.H.L. Game Earn Five Points

JACKSON STARRED

Dutton Trying to Keep Pair but Eddie Shore Wants Them for His Indians

By ALLAN NICKELSON,
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

New York, Dec. 16 — (CP)—A couple of 23-year-olds playing their first National Hockey League game drew the plaudits of a hard-bitten Madison Square Garden crowd of 15,000 last night and established that master of the ice lanes, old Eddie Shore, as a first-class coach.

Fred Hunt and Alfred Thurier, up from Shore's Springfield Indians in an effort to bolster the old men of Manhattan, brought rejuvenation into the American camp although their intra-city rivals, the Rangers, trimmed them 6-3. The game didn't satisfy Manager Red Dutton but the kids did.

Thurier and Hunt, nervous at first in front of the biggest crowd they ever had performed before, gained confidence as the battle progressed and earned five points. Thurier scored two goals and Hunt, a Brantford, Ont., native, snared three assists. Pat Egan, another Shore product, scored the other goal. In the eyes of the crowd, the season's largest at the Garden, the rookies' display dulled the Ranger victory.

Jackson Played Well

The kids also inspired Harvey Jackson to play his best game of the season. He performed on the line centred by Thurier and said afterwards that it recalled memories of that Toronto Maple Leaf "kid line" on which he used to serve with Charley Conacher and Joe Primeau.

"Those kids sure looked good," Dutton said. "And they had only one goal scored against them."

Hunt belongs to the Amerks and will stay as long as he shows his present form. The Americans will try to buy Thurier from the Indians but that may be difficult since the Indians, tied with New Haven for the American League's eastern division lead, were whipped 6-2 last night by Providence.

Shore Missed Rookies

There's no doubt the Shoremen missed Thurier and Hunt, the two top point-getters of the American League.

Dutton disclosed that the Americans are dickering with a couple of other National League Clubs for re-inforcements. There have been no results as yet but Red wants a defenceman and a forward.

"Some of our boys aren't showing as well as expected," he said. "If I have to let them go I will. We've got to win a few games. After all, we're in last place."

When the senior "B" O.H.A. group meeting held forth at the Hume arena over the week end there was something missing. Sports Scribe Bill Walshe, of Kingston, was on hand and had things pretty much his own way, but the missing element was Sergeant Cec Perdue, now of the 4th Field Battery and former Sports Editor of the Peterborough sheet. Had Perdue been present Walshe would not have led his henchmen to the nicest little piece of committee room ingenuity we've witnessed in some years. The Kingston delegation, some half dozen strong, waltzed into the conclave announced they could not possibly play before the middle of January, sold the idea to all concerned, drafted a schedule that really was a honey for their purpose, and like the Arabs in the night—vanished before the so-called suckers realized they had been victimized by that old Limestone City salve.

Actually it was comical to sit aside and take a gander at the various accredited delegates jockeying for positions with the newcomers from Whitby really taking a trouncing. Of course that comes from the lack of experience. When the smoke of a three hour battle had subsided the group agreed upon a home and home game schedule so the fans will have to trot out early to see all of the clubs in action. Why? — Well there's one team in the quintette that will not return following the regular schedule as the meeting voted to include four of the five squads in the group play-offs, with the first meeting of the fourth-placed team and the second and third snatching at each others' throats at the same time in a best-in-three series. Then after this scramble is over the two ultimate winners will engage in a best three-in-five series to determine the group champions and all of the time the O.H.A. will be grabbing off five percent of the take.

There are several other angles which may prove interesting reading between now and the opening of the group schedule on Jan. 3rd when those two arch enemies of the O.H.A. ice lanes—Belleville and the Flyers—pry off the group league lid. We'll bring such points out for public consumption in the meantime, but at this point we wish to remind the fans the Reliance Aircraft Company is the sponsor of the local entry and the locals still have a couple of games in the Van Horne series in which we look for some surprises. We understand there are a couple of puckslers, who have been working on the Reliance company night crew for some considerable time, but have not been available for hockey to date. As these boys are engaged in Canada's war effort and are working towards that end, surely they'll not be denied the privilege of a little diversion on the ice later in the season simply because they realize their country's responsibility?

The senior pucksters weren't the only pebbles on the beach over the week end. After the big boys convened Convener Art Black called the district juniors together, but unfortunately Port Hope was not represented. We understand the Port Hope kids took such a shellacking at the hands of Oshawa and Peterboro last season they are a little dubious regarding another trial. However, Cobourg, Trenton and Belleville drafted an 18-game junior schedule and the teen-aged kids will be introduced locally on Dec. 30th when the smart Cobourg Kinsmen-sponsored juniors will appear at the Hume arena. With the group schedule completed Coach Holway called a practice for Tuesday night at six o'clock. The Belleville junior squad has to be built from the ground up, so here is the opportunity so many youthful pucksters have been awaiting—a tryout with the local junior O.H.A. squad with hopes of a hockey future.

Do you remember when Vancouver's Jimmy McLarnin and Billy Townsend scored knockouts at Boston eight years ago tonight. McLarnin, who later became world welterweight champion, put Sammy Fuller down for keeps in the eighth round after flooring him four times while Townsend, semi-finalist on the card, sprawled Andy Saviola to the mat in three rounds.

The scene is all set for the opening of the hockey season in Belleville this year and it takes the youth of Belleville to put on the show. Hockey fans will usher in the current season by watching the Juveniles on Tuesday night when a twin bill of hockey will be the morsel we've been awaiting. They're all local kids, it's Canada's national winter sport and these kids may be the stars of tomorrow.

Sport Slants — Toronto Maple Leafs continued to set their dizzy pace in the N.H.L. over the week end, as they took two from the Black Hawks .... Les Canadiens and the Rangers also picked up two points each....After slipping and sliding along city streets today, 'tis safe to say the kids will get some benefit as the entire city is a skating rink....If the Port Hope juniors finally decide to line-up in the district junior loop the schedule will be lowered to that of a double schedule, which will give each team six home games also... The skating public enjoyed a week end of skating on the large harbour-rink operated by the Belleville Yacht Club....Skiers wended their way into the countryside to enjoy their favourite diversion yesterday.. Splendid skiing facilities were seen over the Oak Hill sector....Tom Harmon, Michigan's All-American halfback, had to hire a secretary last week to attend his mail. Such is fame.

The Big Seven

(By The Canadian Press)

Bryan Hextall of New York Rangers scored three goals during the week-end to take second-place among the National Hockey League's individual point-getters, one point behind the idle Bill Cowley of Boston. Syl Apps, Toronto Maple Leafs, bagged a goal and two assists to move into third position, while Gordie Drillon of the Leafs also got a goal and two assists, moving into a fourth-place tie with Phil Watson, who helped in two Rangers' goals, and Syd Howe of Detroit Red Wings, who dropped from second position when he was held pointless. Roy Conacher of Boston holds the last Big Seven berth.

German Communique

Berlin, Dec. 16 (AP).—The German high command claimed today four persons were killed and twelve wounded in British air raids on Berlin last night, and acknowledged some damage.

A communique claimed some houses were damaged and two hospitals hit, while a suburban rail line was "temporarily disturbed."

At Herford, in eastern Germany, one bomb was said to have started a fire in a central German factory. The high command asserted the fire was extinguished quickly, entailing no production disturbance.

One raiding plane was declared shot down by a German ship. The communique claimed there were no Nazi plane losses during the night.

(In London the Press Association said it believed three German raiders had been destroyed.

CHRISTMAS TREE, BANQUET HELD

Quinte Circle 20, C.O.W. of W. Also Elects Officers for the Year

At the regular meeting of Quinte Circle No. 20 of C.O. W. of W. held in True Blue Hall December 12th, the following officers were re-elected to serve another year and are as follows: Past Con. Com. Sov. E. Adams; Con. Com., Sov. A. Dack; Adv. Lieut., Sov. E. Ellerby; Clerk, Sov. L. M. Lennox; Banker, Sov. A. Palmer; Sentry, Sov., E. D. Lloyd; Managers, Sov. A. Chapman, Sov. A. Hilton, Sov. L. Mifflin; Escort, Sov. T. Stewart; Watchman, Sov. L. Phalen; Pianist Sov. A. Storms.

After formal closing exercises were given, the Christmas festivities started. A very joyous call was sounded for the banquet. The table was a veritable picture of beauty, huge mums centred the decorative scheme and many good things graced a charming menu. The banquet committee, Sov. Adams, Fordyce and Storms had really excelled in every detail of this hot chicken supper. A merry time was spent and a hearty vote of thanks was given to those on committee for their untiring effort.

When all was cleared away, Santa Claus called the members together and from a mysterious looking box came some very useful and charming gifts for all. Then the fortunes were told and much fun created. Guessing competitions: Sov. Mifflin winning a pair of slippers and so the fun continued until midnight when good wishes were given and thanks and appreciation for all conveners of committees, not forgetting the children of members who were all remembered with gifts. Sov. Hilton was the lady of mystery who was much sought after and thus ended another happy event in the year of Quinte Circle No. 20.

TOKYO SAYS LINER QUEEN MARY AT SYDNEY

Tokyo, Dec. 16 (AP).—Domei, the Japanese News Agency, reported today from Kobe, Japan, that passengers arriving from Australia told of seeing the giant British liner Queen Mary at Sydney.

(The Queen Mary has been reported in service as a troop transport since leaving New York harbor in gray paint in September, 1939.)

Passengers were quoted by the Domei dispatch as saying they saw floating mines in waters near Australia.

Dog Himself Buys His Own Dog Food

Oklahoma City, Dec. 16 (AP) — Butch, a mongrel pup owned by Henry Van Buskirk, was permitted to carry home a can of dog food. Now he practically camps at the store. As soon as a customer opens the door, Butch dashes in, grabs a can of the same variety and runs home. The proprietor tried hiding that brand behind other cans but the pup dug through the pile and came up with his favorite. Chasing the dog did no good. So the store owner just adds each of Butch's "purchases" to the Van Buskirk account.

French Indo-China Hears New Hints Of Peace Moves

Hanoi, French Indo-China, Dec. 16 (AP). — New hints of possible peace moves reached here today simultaneously with reports of severe bombing raids by French and Thai (Siamese) planes along the disputed Indo-China-Thailand frontier.

Thai bombers were said to have swung closer to the Indo-Chinese southern city of Saigon with attacks last night on Cheomkhsan in northwestern Cambodia.

The French said they hit back with "heavy reprisal" bombings of the Thai towns of Lakhon, Kemmarat and Bmouk.

Three towns in Indo-China, Savannakhet, Vientiane and Saravane, were reported bombed the day before.

French officials said the French minister at Hangkok reported home to Hanoi that the situation with regard to possible peaceable consideration of the border difficulties seemed slightly better.

IN MEMORIAM

LLOYD—In loving memory of S. W. Lloyd, who passed away December 16, 1935.

The flowing stream of life rolls on
But still the vacant chair
Recalls the love, the voice, the smile
Of Father who once sat there.

His life was one long sacrifice,
His heart was true and tender,
He toiled so hard for those he loved,
Then left us to remember.

The Stars Say—

For Tuesday, December 17

By GENEVIEVE KEMBLE

THE ASTROLOGICAL auguries for this day may be interpreted as rather perplexing or conflicting. There is a most decided urge to engage in social cultural or other activities where the sentimental, sympathetic and humanitarian proclivities may desire complete and generous expression, particularly in connection with groups or bodies of kindred objectives. Yet there are signs of such efforts being carried too far either by over enthusiasm and impetuosity or superiors may be found wanting in "seeing eye to eye."

Those whose birthday it is may anticipate a year of much happiness, with prosperity and general gratification, but more readily if they confine their activities to the purely personal—social, domestic or emotional—rather than in seeking public attention or tokens of preferment from those in high places or in collective efforts along humanitarian, cultural or social welfare lines. In such there is danger of over expansive, idealistic or probably impractical plans and programs.

A child born on this day may be blessed with many and diverse talents having much creative ability either in scientific, inventive or organizing forms, while also social, artistic, altruistic and romantic.

MELVILLE LADIES' AID

The December meeting of Melville Ladies' Aid was held at the home of Mrs. Ross Cruickshank on Thursday afternoon. Several pairs of socks and other articles were brought in for the work of the Red Cross.

The meeting was in charge of the president, Mrs. M. S. French and opened with singing followed by prayer by Rev. Mr. Parsons. Mrs. Charles Kinnear was pianist. The Bible lesson was read by Mrs. Parsons who gave an inspiring message from Acts 3, reviewing the work of the past year. The secretary, Mrs. A. W. Kinnear, read the roll call which was responded to by an exchange of Christmas gifts.

Before the annual election of officers, Mrs. Parsons paid tribute to the efficient work of the officers during the past year, and Mrs. A. Carley voiced the appreciation of all when she thanked Mrs. Parsons for her inspiring messages of the meetings throughout the year. The officers for 1939 were re-elected. The sum of ten dollars was voted for the fund of the Toronto Telegram for the suffering people of England. The meeting closed with all joining heartily in singing, — "Hark the Herald Angels Sing" and the Mispah Benediction. A social hour followed when refreshments were served.

The snow-flecked cedars enhanced the beauty of the drive along the shore of Consecon Lake, but there was something lacking — the music of the "Bells Across the Snow".

Steal Chickens, Sell Them to Owner, Then Steal 'Em Again

Wilson, N.C., Dec. 16 (AP) —Two men were brought into court on a charge of stealing a dozen chickens, and this, according to the testimony, was what it was all about: They stole the chickens one night and the next day they took them back and sold them to the owner. Then, the next night, they stole the chickens again. Both defendants drew road sentences.

Mistakes Railway Right of Way for Street in Sleet Storm

Kansas City, Dec. 16 —(AP)— Fred J. Kiehl mistook a railroad right-of-way for a street during a sleet storm and turned down it. He rode 10 blocks, then heard a train whistle and saw the headlight of a locomotive behind him. He tried to outrun the engine but his automobile stalled between the rails. Trainmen saw his predicament. They were accommodating. They switched around the car.

AT THE BELLE

"Abe Lincoln in Illinois"

Notable in the annals of film production, Robert E. Sherwood's Pulitzer Prize Play, "Abe Lincoln in Illinois," which comes to the Belle screen, with the distinguished actor, Raymond Massey in the title role.

Some three-dozen outstanding players head the supporting cast, which numbers thousands in what accredited authorities have been pleased to term one of the greatest motion pictures ever made. Massey plays the role, the creation of which, in the Broadway stage version, brought him nation-wide acclaim and elevation to the top rank of the theatre's character delineators.

Faithfully following the stage play that took the nation by storm, "Abe Lincoln in Illinois" deals in absorbing fashion with Lincoln's amazing career between the ages of twenty-one, when he was a gangling young Backwoodsman, and of fifty-two, when he was elected to the Presidency in the face of the impending Civil War.

For the first time in screen annals Lincoln is revealed as he really was —a moody often gloomy and, for most of his life, an undecided, hesitant figure, bitterly aware of his lack of polish and of formal education—yet fired with a burning sense of justice and humanity! It is this realism that makes the film such a notable offering.

In 1830, when Illinois was still a frontier country, undeveloped and largely uninhabited save for the little settlements along the rivers, Lincoln was but a green frontiersman. The picture discloses his youthful development, his battles with the boys of Clary's Grove, his establishment as an unsuccessful storekeeper and later as the postmaster in the ill-fated town of New Salem, where he met and loved and lost Ann Rutledge, and where he made his first venture into politics, when he ran for and won election to the state legislature.

Later comes his law practice in Springfield, his meeting with the artistocratic Mary Todd, the much debated broken engagement, and eventually their marriage—after the lonely hegira in which Lincoln finds himself and crystallizes his ambitions.

Then comes the period of his growing political campaign against Stephen A. Douglas for the Senate, and finally the stress and excitement of his election to the Presidency, ending with his fateful departure from Springfield for Washington.

Through all this destiny-marked pattern of his career runs the temperamental thread of his contradictory nature, his struggles within himself, his doubts and worries, manifestations of what today would be termed an inferiority complex. All this animates the human drama of the tale, makes the man understandable and alive, so that instead of the super-heroic and completely unreal figure that previous films have portrayed, we have an unforgetable human portrait.

"Street of Memories"

Grand entertainment is offered in "Street of Memories", the new 20th Century-Fox film which is announced as the companion feature. With Lynne Roberts, Guy Kibbee and John McGuire heading a fine featured cast, the picture relates one of the screen's most unusual and absorbing love stories.

The Belle news of the day will be exhibited on the same program.

AT THE CAPITOL

"Son of the Navy"

The fleet sails into plenty of hilarious trouble in Monogram's sparkling comedy, "Son of the Navy," which opened Sunday Midnight at the Capitol theatre.

Laughs as well as complications arise when little Tommy Burns, runaway orphan, "adopts" Mike Malone, petty officer, for a father, and "Steve" Moore, commander's daughter, for a mother, especially as these two cordially hate each other.

To make matters worse, Steve won't believe that Mike isn't Tommy's real father, and tells his shipmates and her father that the sailor had walked out on his son. Eighty minutes of action-filled riotous comedy is devoted to the feud of Steve and Mike, which eventually involves the entire navy as well as the local authorities who are, of course, scouring the country for the runaway Tommy.

Jean Parker and James Dunn are both "tops" in the leading roles. Dunn is back in the kind of role he does best, and Miss Parker shows a rare talent for straight comedy. Twelve year old Martin Spellman gets his share of laughs too, as does his dog, played by camera-wise Toto, Cairn terrior.

Also outstanding in the cast are William Royle as Steve's father; Craig Reynolds as the erstwhile boy friend of Miss Parker; Selmer Jackson, the admiral; Dave O'Brien and Gene Morgan as Mike's shipmates; and Sarah Padden as a nosey landlady.

"Son of the Navy" is adapted from the Silver Theatre radio script by Grover Jones and True Boardman, with screenplay by Joseph West and Marion Orth.

William Nigh was the director, with Grant Withers the producer on the same programme.

"The Longest Night"

A mystery comedy with an all star cast including Robert Young, Florence Rice, Ted Healy, Julie Kaydon and Catherine Doucet. Action, thrills, suspense and laughter from start to finish. Don't miss it.

AT THE McCARTHY

"Three Sons"

A picture which will be thoroughly enjoyed by every son and daughter and parent living in Belleville, or surrounding district, entitled "Three Sons," is now showing at the McCarthy Theatre.

"Three Sons" is one of those entertaining pictures that tends to heighten one's faith in upright principles. Its background is old Chicago, the story commencing in 1871 when the city was in the throes of rehabilitation following the Great Fire, and transpiring over a 42-year period.

The theme is a composite of the lives of various Chicago merchant princes who took root in the ashes of the city's disastrous fire and rose from it with the metropolis growth. It is a fine tribute to the courage and ideals of those men who had the indomitable will and foresight to pioneer the great inland empire.

Edward Ellis, as Daniel Pardway, is the celluloid prototype of these mercantile titans. With his New England wife he goes to the Windy City hardly before the smoke has cleared. The man has but three interests: his wife, the store he founds and the children he plans to raise so that they may inherit the fruits of his toil and carry on in his stead.

After three sons and a daughter are born, his wife dies, and Pardway rests the whole foundation of his life upon his faith and hope in his off-spring. But as the store grows, building securely upon the solid foundation of his financial genius, the money and luxury he derives from it bring about the downfall of his children. Spoiled, pampered and irresponsible, they squander their heritage, bring scandal down upon their father's name and leave him a lonely old man with no one to carry on the dynasty. But the regeneration of the youngest son brings the story to a poignant finish.

It is a memorable role for Ellis who already has achieved renown for strong characterizations. The actor is ably supported by a fine cast. Among these are William Gargan, as Pardway's reckless brother; Kent Taylor as the oldest son; J. Edward Bromberg, as a faithful employee; Katharine Alexander, as the courageous wife and Dick Hogan and Robert Stanton as the remaining two sons. Virginia Vale plays the ill-advised daughter.

"Panama Lady"

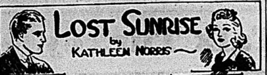
An excellent second feature of adventure in the South Sea tropics entitled "Panama Lady" and featuring Lucille Ball, Allan Lane, Steffi Duna and Evelyn Brent, is also now showing at the McCarthy in addition to latest Fox News events.

Grooved runners with wide bases have been invented by a resident of Saugus, Mass., to be fastened over skate blades to enable persons to skate on hard snow.

Lynne Roberts and John McGuire in the most unusual love story the screen has ever told, "Street of Memories," next at the Belle with Raymond Massey and Mary Howard in "Abe Lincoln in Illinois."

SWISS PRESIDENT

Dr. Ernst Wetter, 63-year-old candidate for the Swiss Liberal Radical party, who was elected president of the Swiss federation for one-year term. Dr. Philip Etter, 49, was named vice-president.



LOST SUNRISE

by KATHLEEN NORRIS

INSTALMENT 10

"Oh, perfectly. I've joined a bureau for better babies and I know just what to do," Sheila said. "It's all much easier than it used to be."

"You're happy, aren't you, darling?"

"Happy! Gwen, I tell you that marriage when it's right, is just heaven. Someone beside you all the time, sympathetic and interested — and—and funny, and solving all the problems, and never worrying about anything. It's wonderful."

Gwen, her heart soaring, meditated as to the wisdom of confiding to Sheila that her own affairs of the heart were moving along rather rapidly. But before she could decide, Sheila gave the conversation another turn.

"How do you like political work, Gwen?"

"Oh, I love it. I haven't had to go to Sacramento yet, and that's kind of disappointing, but they may send for me yet! I just stay here and handle propaganda in the office. It's fun, though, and election year will be fun, if our man gets in at the primaries. Mr. Bellamy says that Linherr will only use this as a stepping-stone, that he's going to run for something big two years from now. But I enjoy it all, and I make speeches, and I'm good!"

Copyright 1939, by Kathleen Norris

"It seems to me, Gwen," Sheila said, "that that's a thing you can do wonderfully. And you get extra pay for it?"

"Oh, yes, ten dollars a week, and I go to different places with Mr. Linherr and Mr. Bellamy. I've had a lot of fun! I wish it would last longer, but it may all stop at the primaries!"

"This Mr. Bellamy—is he nice?"

Gwen's face sobered; she looked away for a moment, biting her lower lip.

"He's the—awfullest person I ever knew," she said presently, in a low voice.

"Making love to you?" Sheila asked shrewdly.

"Well, in a way. Sort of taking it for granted, really."

"Taking what for granted?"

"Well——" Gwen's face reddened. "Sort of acting as if I was as crazy about him as he is about me" she said, gulping. "He brings me candy and things, and he talks — well, he's wild. He looks at me every second, and he'll say, 'Wonderful!' or 'My darling!' and he's —he makes me go gooseflesh!"

"How old is he? What's he look like?"

"He's—oh, nearly forty, I guess; a widower. He has a little girl about ten. He's sort of dark; black-haired, and a little gray, and nice-looking. You'd like him. Only I don't want him to like me!"

"Has he asked you to marry him, Gwen?"

"Oh no! He wouldn't. He'd take all that for granted. He adores me, and he doesn't care if I don't adore him. And I haven't done anything, Sheila," Gwen protested. "I've never flirted with him or brought him home here or given him the slightest encouragement! He seemed so much older to me that I never thought of it. And I just dread the scenes he makes, and his telephoning to ask if he can come down!"

"He's in Sacramento? But when the election's over, Gwen, I don't suppose he'll bother you much longer."

"But that's almost a year! He'll have me crazy before that! And the worst of it is, Sis, "Gwen said distressedly, "that he's sok jealous he makes me perfectly wretched. He just doesn't want anyone else to speak to me! He glares at people when I talk to them. But you see, Sheila," she went on, "when we're campaigning, going around to these little towns to talk at club dinners and things, he often takes me. At first I thought it was lots of fun. But I can tell you that before the third time I'd had enough of it! He just—takes possession of you. He watches every word I say, and then instead of answering he'll just say, 'Adorable! to himself. And he writes me—well, I couldn't dare show you the letters. I'd be ashamed."

"Does he say—he doesn't say anything about wanting to marry you, Gwen?"

"Oh, doesn't he! That's what he takes for granted! He was married before and his wife died. I'll tell you who she was; she was the Greens' cousin. One of those red-headed girls at Falls Hills."

"But they lived in Oakland," Sheila said.

"He's lived everywhere, apparently. But he's smart, Sheila. He's a terrific worker, and I know Linherr thinks he owes about half his chances to Van."

"Vandyke Bellamy, that's the name. I remember now. She was killed in an accident."

"About three years ago There's a little girl, June, about ten, I think. She lives with old Mrs. Green at Falls Hill."

"And you don't like him at all, Gwen?"

"Well, I'd like him well enough if he didn't take this—this proprietary attitude about me. He asks me what I was doing last weekend, and if I went out with anyone, and it—really it sort of frightens me, Sheila. Last time I went to San Francisco—"

"Ah," said Sheila, "now we are getting somewhere. Tell me about that. It seems to me that whenever Mother writes to me, you're up in San Francisco with the Latimers. What is all this?"

Gwen, flushing, but pleased, said, "I told you about Dick Latimer who was so cracked about you! Well it wasn't you. I hope that doesn't break your heart!"

"I can bear it, inasmuch as I'd hardly know him if I met him," smiled Sheila.

"Dick lives with his mother in a dreary little apartment right near the hospital," Gwen said. "She's got a job in the hospital, and she gets rent from the place they have over near River Lane. But of course Dick hasn't anything, and books cost a fortune, and he's got years of intern work to do."

"But you do really like each other, Gwen?" Sheila asked, surprised.

"Well—I'm beginning to, horribly. I have better time with him than I've ever had with any other man," Gwen confessed. "We're companionable. I admire him tremendously. He's like a rock, or an oak, or anything else people ever say when they mean strong," she broke off, laughing, a little embarrassed.

"Darling, you're head over heels," Sheila said, laughing, too. "But wouldn't you have to wait a long time, Gwen?" she added more seriously.

"No, not necessarily. I could get a job near the hospital. Lots of 'em marry while they're interns," Gwen answered. "But it hasn't come to that yet!" she went on. "It's just that we like each other, awfully. And that's what makes the attentions of this other— this other idiot so maddening! He'll say, 'You know that you're going to marry me, Gwen, don't you?' And the other day he showed me a little revolver and said, 'You know what I'm going to do with that if you play fast and loose with me, don't you?"

"Good heavens!" said Sheila. "He might shoot you, a man like that!"

"Me? No fear! No, it was suicide he was talking about. If he'd ever even kissed me!" the younger sister continued. "But he never has. And the way Van talks you'd think I'd been leading him on; Or if not that, at least he talks as if the whole thing was settled and just waiting for the date."

"Has he money, Gwen?"

"He talks as if he had. I imagine he's sort of free-lancer, now in funds and now out. He's smart."

"I'd certainly give him a wide berth until this cools off," observed Sheila. "He's really dangerous."

"I know he is! At least he is to my peace of mind. But you see, the worst of it is, he's quite chummy with Mr. Keane, and Mr. Keane gives advice and money for this primaries business, and Van is always coming in for a talk or a conference. I can't snub him."

"You could tell him you're interested in Doctor Latimer."

"Aha, no such luck! I've told him a thousand times that there's someone else, but he just smiles. He says women love to pique men by talking of other admirers. It doesn't worry him a bit!"

"It might worry him if you actually married your doctor."

"Yes, but I can't do that until I'm asked! I—I know it's Dick for me, Sheila, forever and forever, but meanwhile Van—you dont know how forceful Van can be!"

Sheila lay back on the bed thinking, her forehead wrinkled.

"Gwen, here's a suggestion: Why not look around in the city and see if you can get a job there? Mr. Keane would give you a letter. Your friend the doctor might help, or his mother. Then you'd be away from this pest, and you and your M.D. could plan with both your salaries to count on. Oh, but speaking of lawyers, Gwen," Sheila broke off to say suddenly. "Link is corresponding with a man who is near the Johnson-Polk Mills the firm that wanted to buy the Wallbestos patent."

"Oh, is he? Goody" said Gwen. "A little extra money now would probably straighten out a good many things."

Gwen had to report at the office as usual on Friday and Saturday, and early on Sunday Sheila and Link went away. Dick arrived for two-o'clock dinner with the family, then he and Gwen took his car up to the edge of the woods. He loved to walk on and up past vineyards and orchards and through belts of pine and juniper; the hills falling away in wooden canyons and mountain meadows and every turn of the deserted old roads showing a new aspect of the valleys and towns below. He told Gwen that he always came back feeling younger and freshened and readier for work.

But she knew it was not all the fresh, cool country air and the bland winter skies and the damp, rich forest odors that were like perfume; there was an exhilaration for them both in just being together, in the companionable silence in which they panted upward, side by side, in the laughter with which they reached the high ridges.

Today, on their return, they had reached the level valley and were making good time between the bare orchards whose upturned clods still shone from wet plowing. A cold sunset shone in yellow and steel against the west, the light hung so low that the pumpkins threw little shadows on the stained frostbitten leaves of the shriveled vines.

"Isn't it all Thanksgiving?" Gwen demanded, keeping gallant step with him, although the muscles of her legs were so tired now that they trembled.

"Gwen," he said suddenly, when they were in sight of home, "I've got a chance to go to Edinburgh. That's what I've been trying to tell you all day. I've been offered a three-year fellowship in the finest medical atmosphere in the world. I've got to take it. You know what it means. You know what it means!"

Gwen glanced at him once and met his miserable look. She felt herself swallow with a dry throat. Her heart turned to lead.

"What do you think?" Dick asked.

"They don't pay much?" she asked, forcing herself to speak.

"Nothing, practically. The letter didn't say, but one of the fellers told me sixty pounds a year."

"Sixty pounds." That would barely cover rent. And while an American woman might be reasonably sure of finding a job in Rochester or Baltimore or San Francisco, the situation might be entirely different in Scotland.

"What—what does your mother think, Dick?"

"She thinks—well, she knows what it would be worth to me. If I have three years of work with Doctor Muir, there isn't a hospital or a clinic in the world that can't use me. I'd be—I'd be an authority on my own subject before I was thirty-two."

"How'd he happen to offer it, Dick?"

Butter Prices Up—Offerings Few

Toronto, Dec. 16—Sellers found it difficult to get butter offerings Saturday as prices continued to advance in both sections of trading on the Toronto open produce market. Eggs registered new declines while cheese stayed at a standstill.

Demand for butter was fairly good and offerings remained light. The market was firm, with first grade Ontario creamery solids moving easily at 35 1-2c, up 1-4c from Friday. No. 1 creamery prints sold to retailers at 37c to 37 1-2c, up 1 1-2c. Sales of Western butter were made at 35 3-4c.

A slight accumulation of egg supplies was in evidence. There was little buying interest, buyers apparently having filled their requirements for the weekend on Friday.

A-large eggs slipped to 29c in the graded section and to 34c in trading to retailers.

Montreal Produce

Montreal, Dec. 16—Produce market prices here Saturday, as reported by the Dominion Department of Agriculture, follow:

Eggs: Graded shipments in used free cases, selling price, A-large, 31c-32c; A-medium, 29c; A-pullets, 28c. Receipts for the week 6,180 cases, compared with 3,891 a year ago.

DEER HUNTRESS SAVES HUSBAND

Breaks Wounded Deer's Neck With Butt of Her Gun When Animal Attacks Husband

Harrisburg, Pa., Dec. 16.—(AP)—Make way for the women deerslayers. It's their turn at story telling.

Around the camp fires after the chase, milady no longer has to sit back and listen. She's been on the trail, too, in the season just ended in Pennsylvania, and she's got plenty to tell.

Over in Warren county near Kinzua, a deer which Mrs. Waler Baughter had felled "came to life" and attempted to gore her husband.

She fired her last shot. The deer went down again, but quickly rose, chased Baughter from tree to tree and finally pinned him against the ground.

While he yelled for help, Mrs. Baughter struck the animal with the butt of her gun, breaking its neck.

Dogs chased a deer on to Philip Rowels' farm near Clearfield. When he came in from work he found that his wife and another woman had caught the deer and tied its legs with their aprons.

CREAM PRICES ADVANCE

2 CENTS AT MONTREAL

Montreal, Dec. 16 —(CP)—Cream prices were advanced two cents a pint today by leading Montreal dairy companies because, officials say, of recent increased increases in butter fat prices.

Retail prices for table cream were advanced from 19 to 21 cents a pint and 11 to 12 cents for half-pints. [illegible] prices for whipping cream were up to 36 cents from 34 while [illegible]-pints sold at 22 cents instead of 21.

U. S. RED CROSS WANTS TO SEND TWO FOOD SHIPS

State Department Seeks Permission for Ships to Go to Spain and Unoccupied France

Washington, Dec. 16—(AP)—The American Red Cross has made tentative arrangements to send food ships to hungry Europe — one to Spain and the other to unoccupied France—it was learned authoritatively today.

Actual departure of the ships depends on a successful outcome of negotiations in progress between the United States and British governments and the prospects there were considered good.

While unwilling to exert pressure on the beleaguered British government for a general lifting of the blockade the State Department, it was learned, is seeking permission for an American ship to proceed to Marseilles with a cargo of condensed milk and concentrated vitamin products for undernourished children in unoccupied France.

Some Food Shipments for Spain

The British Government has ruled out any relaxation of the blockade for food shipments to countries occupied or dominated by Germany, blocking proposals for a large scale American relief program in continental Europe.

Seeking a continuance of Spain's neutrality, however, Britain has granted permits for some food shipments from South America to Spain, where need already is acute and is understood to be willing to sanction the projected $1,000,000 shipload of foodstuffs from the United States.

Since the American Red Cross is a neutral, humanitarian organization Norman H. Davis, its chairman, is reported in informed quarters to be insisting that any Red Cross help must go "to all who are suffering in Europe."

The Red Cross therefore has taken the position, it is reported, that if and when it sends a shipload of food to Spain, it must also be allowed to send similar help to infants and children in unoccupied France, the other victims of the war who most urgently need food now.

British authorities have permitted medicines and medical supplies to pass through the blockade to unoccupied France, but have refused to grant permits for foodstuffs to enter the same area. A compromise of the American and British positions could be reached, it was said, if the British would liberalize their definition of medical supplies to include condensed milk and vitamin products, which are designed to ward-off malnutrition.

Canadian Officers Receive Honors for Conspicuous Gallantry

By SAM ROBERTSON
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

London, Dec 16 (CP Cable)—Two Canadian army officers today received high honors for conspicuous gallantry.

Lieut. John M. S. Patton of Hamilton, Ont., was awarded the George Cross and Capt. Douglas W. Cunningham of Calgary received the George Medal.

The honors were awarded the young Canadians—Patton is 25 and Cunningham a year younger—for bravery displayed while they were commanding a company of the Royal Canadian Engineers repairing bomb damage.

Details of their actions were not published, but it was recalled the George Cross—next in line to the Victoria Cross, Britain's highest decoration—was instituted by the King as a reward for acts of gallantry connected with enemy action. The George Medal is awarded for gallantry and distinguished conduct.

True to the tradition of brave men Patton and Cunningham declined to discuss their exploit.

Cool as Icebergs

It was learned from eye-witnesses, however, that they behaved "cool as icebergs in doing a red hot job" while Nazi bombers droned overhead.

"They risked their lives to remove a danger that threatened hundreds of people," one eye-witness said.

The winners of these first decorations awarded members of the Canadian army in this war are both graduates of Queen's University, Kingston, Ont.

Patton attended Trinity College School, Port Hope, Ont., and Westdale High School, Hamilton, before going to Queen's. He graduated in 1939 with a degree in Chemical Engineering. His wife lives in Kingston.

Cunningham went to High School in Calgary, graduated from a Royal Military College at Kingston in 1937 and from Queen's a year later with a Civil Engineering degree. He joined the Canadian Permanent Force as a lieutenant in the Royal Canadian Horse Artillery and served for a time at Victoria.

LONG CONFERENCE HELD

London, Dec. 16 (CP)—David Lloyd George, first Great War Prime Minister, had a long conference today with Prime Minister Churchill.

FEARS HEIGHTEN MISSING PLANES HAVE CRASHED

Planes Carried Four Men and Oil Found Will be Analyzed in Toronto

TRAPPERS REPORT

Toronto, Dec. 16 (CP)—A sample of the oil found during the weekend on Lake Muskoka during a search for two missing planes of the Royal Canadian Air Force is to be brought here to determine whether it is of the type used by the R.C.A.F., headquarters in Toronto said today.

Lost since Friday while engaged in a search for another plane, the missing planes carried four men—piloted by Flt.-Lt. P. Campbell of Sussex, Eng., and Sgt. L. Francis of Glamorgan, Wales, with Lac. T. S. Bates of Guelph, Ont., and Lac. W. R. Gosling of Edmonton as observers.

Headquarters here first reported Bates and Lac. M. L. O. Warren of Hampstead, London, Eng., were the observers, but corrected the identification of the observer with Sgt. Francis today as Gosling, and not Warren.

Trappers Saw Planes Collide

Fears that the planes had been lost over the lake district 100 miles north of Toronto were heightened by independent reports from trappers that they had seen two planes collide over Lake Muskoka, and the subsequent finding of a mile-long oil slick.

Rain and poor visibility over the Muskoka district slowed down search operations early today, but it was planned to begin dredging operations in the open water of Lake Muskoka as soon as possible.

Boats were having difficulty in reaching the spot where the oil was found because of treacherous ice conditions. The ice was thick and heavy near the shore, gradually becoming thinner and weaker until open water is reached far from shore.

Killed in First Crash

The planes were searching for the missing plane of Lac. C. P. Hopton of Cabri, Sask. The Hopton plane later was found wrecked five miles from the Camp Borden training centre. Hopton had been killed when his plane crashed Thursday.

Lac. J. D. Bilkey of Montreal, son of Paul Bilkey, Editor-in-Chief of the Montreal Gazette, was killed when his R.C.A.F. plane crashed near Dunnville, Ont., Saturday.

In the meantime an intensive search of the waters of Lake Erie near Port Stanley is taking place to discover whether a Fairey bomber which disappeared a week ago yesterday plunged into the lake there. Dragging operations have been unsuccessful but officials said that if the waters become calmer the missing plane may be located by observation from the air. Three men were in the plane when it disappeared: Fo. L. A. Hood of St. Joseph, Mo.; Ac. E. W. Ocurne of Oshawa, Ont., and Ac. J. H. McNally of Minaki, Ont.

BERLIN IS CENTRE

In the first reported activity of the new day, a German plane machine-gunned a town in East Anglia this morning.

Planes also were reported near Liverpool.

One twin-motored German bomber dropped a stick of high explosives on the outskirts of a southeast coastal town.

Possibly Three Nazis Shot Down

The Press Association reported without official confirmation that two, possibly three, German bombers were shot down in last night's attacks on the Sheffield area.

The Government minimized the effect of the Nazi attack, reporting casualties were "not very heavy." In one town in the area, a communique said, a number of fires were started but soon brought under control.

The raids on Britain, although widespread, tapered off about midnight.

Strengthening her forces on another front, the sea, Britain launched "a formidable addition" to the Royal Navy recently, the Press Association reported today. She was said to be a fast vessel but nothing else about her was made public.

Pressure Brought on Eire

Earlier, a Maritime source, estimating that the Axis blockade was costing Britain 62,000 tons of shipping a week, said an unspecified number of destroyers was being built for convoy duty and the effort to persuade Eire to let Britain use her seaports was continuing.

He added, however, that if these efforts did not meet the challenge posed by the blockade, then Britain simply would "put guns before butter."

Labor Minister Ernest Bevin speaking in Glasgow, Scotland, meanwhile made the sharpest public thrust at Russia by an official since the war began.

The British government, he declared after being interrupted on two previous nights by hecklers giving the Communist salute, has got "to reach Russia that that method of carrying on her foreign policy does not pay in this country."

In Sheffield, the great north England steel centre which was hard hit by a Nazi raid last Thursday, persons buried alive in wrecked homes and debris-covered Anderson air raid shelters still were being extricated today. The Press Association said a large casualty list was "feared."

Last night's raids on Britain followed a quiet day but the attackers roared in with the rising moon and fanned out to many parts of Britain, including London and Liverpool. The government's communique said there were few casualties and little damage.

School is Gutted

The Press Association reported that seven persons were trapped in the debris of houses wrecked by a high explosive bomb in London's outskirts and that two children were removed dead. The others were injured.

In an East Midlands town, large bombs fired and gutted a school and caused considerable damage to residential and business premises. There were only three minor casualties in the whole town however.

Meanwhile the Air Ministry listed effects of Royal Air Force bombing on German military objectives. In a summary covering operations including those of last Friday night it said Berlin had been bombed 35 times, while the great port of Hamburg had been left "practically useless" after 60 raids.

The Ministry reported extensive damage caused Friday night at the Bordeau U-boat base in occupied France and damage done to docks at Bremen the home of "Lord Haw-Haw's radio station, and naval shipyards at Kiel.

GREECE'S

regular docks.

Not a single piece of Italian fighting equipment is known to have been landed in the past few days, the Greeks declared.

Italian prisoners stream day and night through Ioannina, Greek lakeside industrial town 30 miles from the Albanian border. Last night's arrivals included an entire battalion and its chaplain. Some prisoners went to work cleaning Greek barracks.

Captured Italian trucks, motorcycles and bicycles now are doing duty for the Greeks, augmenting the kingdom's transport system over icy, rutted roads deep into Albania.

Although the Italian air force no longer menaces Ioannina, one of the early objectives of the Fascists, the townspeople are completing air raid shelters within the walls of a Turkish fortress, remnant of Ottoman rule existing here until the Balkan war of 1912.

Greek volunteers from Turkey have reached the southern sector and are keeping pace with Greece's mountain troops.

The news of British victories in Egypt has become a topic of discussion of greater interest in these parts even than the recent Greek gains.

Snow Slows Down Advance

Fresh snow storms in the Albanian mountains slowed down the Greek advance, but latest reports from the front told of the capture of important heights and prisoners.

In some places the fighting was raging in snow three to four feet deep. The task of keeping supply roads open became a problem, but so far Greek transportation was operating efficiently.

Captured Italian prisoners indicated the weather was seriously impeding Fascist supply trains. They were quoted as saying hundreds of Italians were out of action due to frost bite and pneumonia.

The Greeks said many of the prisoners told of going for several days without food and ammunition. So difficult had the going become, retreating Italians were said to have abandoned all heavy equipment and even their wounded.

The Greeks themselves sought relief from the cold in straw-covered pits.

Despite the weather, the Greek air force was declared to have kept active in reconnaissance and surprise attacks on Italian troop concentrations.

Dispatches from that battlefront said the offensive which had been held up by storms and zero temperatures was resumed over the week-end with greater gains than had been made there all last week.

The Greeks said Italians attempting to counter-attack were "repelled and dispersed in such a way as to lose contact with the bases from which they started."

There were indications that the Greek drive beyond Pogradetz, along the Albanian-Yugoslav frontier, included an effort to flank the Italians by smashing them back from their border forts and leaving their left wing "in the air."

A dispatch from the front last night said "Greek troops succeeded in making a general advance over a wide area in the mountainous region held by the enemy above Pogradetz where the Italians had concentrated all their reserves."

This report said Greek artillery smashed "permanent enemy fortifications along the Yugoslav-Albanian frontier" in a three-day bombardment, clearing the way for "stormy charges by Greek infantry."

Peasant Women Assist

An Associated Press correspondent in that region said Greek peasant women toiled in the cold to keep communications open and to spare men for actual fighting.

The women, their faces wrapped in shawls against the biting cold, were said to have shoveled the way for troops through four-foot snowdrifts in the passes.

One Greek cavalry sergeant said the women played a similar part in the Greek capture of Premet earlier in the push into Albania.

"There were times," he said, when every man was needed for fighting. Then it fell to the women to bring supplies and ammunition up the mountain sides. Many of them carried 70 and 80-pound packs on their backs up 3,000-foot peaks."

Positions Not Disclosed

In the southern sector, where the Greeks are driving up the Albanian coast toward the port of Valona by way of Chimara, Greek forces were said to be pushing forward "constantly," but positions of the advance units were not disclosed.

One battle area in the southern sector was said to have been "ablaze for days" as Greek and Ita- [illegible] dered at each other's positions.

The Royal Air Force in Greece reported that Italian stores, barracks and an airport were bombed in two raids on Valona yesterday.

OTTAWA

Announcement Expected

But Mr. King's advice and the London report, pieced together by anxious friends and co-workers, led to belief in the capital that the official news, when it came, would disclose that the entire government party was safe. There were rumors around the capital to that effect all week-end, but none could be confirmed.

Reason for delay in issuance of an official statement was disclosed last night by Navy Minister Macdonald in a statement outlining the "general policy" of naval headquarters in such cases.

"No announcement can be made until the ship or, in the case of a sinking, the survivors have reached harbor," he said.

Mr. Macdonald said the statement was issued "in view of the number of rumors, press reports, etc., which have been in circulation during the week-end," an obvious reference to the Western Prince incident.

The big Furness liner, carrying Mr. Howe and his colleagues toward the United Kingdom for wartime consultations with British officials, left New York Dec. 6. First word she had been attacked about 400 miles off the Irish coast came from Mackay Radio in New York, which picked up a message from a Scottish radio station.

Confirmation came from Mr. King's office Saturday night—a statement saying it had been learned that most of the ship's passengers had been saved.

It was stated in Ottawa yesterday that Lord Beaverbrook, British Minister of Aircraft Production, had sent information that Mr. Howe was safe. However, officials said later that no survivors had been named in any communications received, and in London Lord Beaverbrook's secretary denied that such a message had been sent.

Like the Prime Minister, Mrs. Howe received news today that the bulk of those aboard the liner were safe.

BRITISH AIRMEN

Operating in Rain

British military circles said their desert forces pushing forward in the Sollum, Fort Capuzzo, Bardia sector were operating today in a rain.

Yesterday they fought almost blindly through dust storms.

Italian troops, battered almost incessantly by the big guns of British warships ranging along the coast, were said to be fighting desperately in an effort to halt the British drive near the Libyan frontier.

A British spokesman declared last night that although "it is well nigh impossible to give an accurate idea where the front line is.... it can be assumed that some British forces already have crossed the border."

British headquarters did not disclose whether Marshal Graziani had reinforced his frontier stand from his large reservoir of Libyan reserves.

Italians May Try to Save Bardia

Belief was expressed, however, that the Italian Commander would make a determined effort to save his important eastern Libyan base at Bardia, less than 20 miles west of Sollum.

Sollum, military observers said, would be a valuable prize to the British. It offers a deep water port to which the British Mediterranean fleet could ferry troops and supplies, saving the long haul across the desert from Matruh.

These sources said if Sollum fell to the British they probably would consolidate their position there, to safeguard their gangplank to the sea, before attempting another major thrust to the west.

Italian Submarine Sunk

The British naval command reported last night that operations against Italian forces and bases along the coast were continuing without letup, and said destroyers sank the 590-ton Italian submarine Naiade.

The British air forces, meanwhile, carried the war into Libya ahead of the mechanized columns.

They bombed the Ba[illegible] military buildings at Ba[illegible] during a week-end attack [illegible] air bases all along the coast.

(The Italian communique said Naples was also bombed [illegible] week end, starting fires in [illegible] and hitting a medium sized [illegible] on which 50 crew members were reported killed and injured).

24 Italian Planes Downed

Pilots returning from Bardia [illegible]urday night said they had to [illegible] their way through at least 50 [illegible]ian fighter planes. A communi[illegible] yesterday said 24 Italian planes [illegible] been shot down and two destroy[illegible] on the ground. One British squadron alone was credited with downing 14 tri-motored Savoia bombers and four Fiat fighters.

Three British planes were reported missing, but one was believed to have landed behind the British lines.

Wooler Man Burned When Stove Explodes

Mr. Harold Smith, aged 25, of Wooler, Ontario, was rushed to the Belleville General Hospital early on Sunday evening in a serious condition as the result of burns suffered when a gasoline stove exploded. Mr. Smith was terribly burned about the face and hands as the burning gas from the exploding stove struck him.

Dr. G. S. Cronk who attended the burned man stated at noon on Monday that Mr. Smith's condition was still serious and that he would be confined to the hospital for some time.

The navy and their sweethearts are on the screen of the Capitol Theatre in "Son of the Navy." Jean Parker and Jimmy Dunn are the romantic duo, while Martin Spellman plays a supporting role. On the same program "The Longest Night," a comedy thriller, starring Robert Young and Florence Rice.

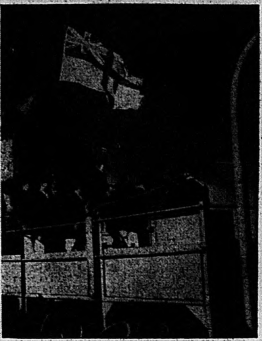
ROYAL CANADIAN NAVY ASSISTS IN MAINTAINING ATLANTIC LIFELINE



Royal Canadian Navy Volunteer Reserve officers-in-training at an eastern Canadian port shown aboard a Canadian destroyer during a long gunnery class getting first hand experience handling an H.A. gun, (H.A. means High Angle, navy equivalent of anti-aircraft.) Officers in training go through the same routine as recruits, and must be able to take the place of any man in a gun-crew.

This picture was taken from the deck of a destroyer of the Royal Canadian Navy, and shows a convoy steaming towards Great Britain in defiance of Hitler's piracy on the high seas. Canadian warships as well as armed vessels of the British navy escort these precious cargoes, always on the lookout for surface raiders or undersea enemy craft. For every ship the Nazis are able to cripple or sink, hundreds reach port safely and unscathed.

City Streets Sheathed in Armor Of Ice, Traffic Disrupted

Walking Out of the Question Until Sander Put to Work

HILLS VERY SLIPPERY

Sheathed in an armor of gleaming ice that for pure cussedness and slipperiness had the product which usually covers ponds and lakes, beaten a mile, the streets of the city today presented a surface that had pedestrian and motorist alike doing a series of calisthenics that made a circus acrobat look like an amateur.

Walking was out of the question, and those heroes and heroines who disdained the use of crawling taxis and other motors slipped, slithered, and sleued to their various des[illegible]s. [illegible]ou started, you didn't or [illegible]uldn't stop unless you [illegible]ntact with a tree of an[illegible]ionary object. Motors and [illegible]gines running at sixty [illegible] hour crawled along at a [illegible]ace and whirled and pir[illegible] like a Japanese firecracker. [illegible]e of the young ladies and [illegible]lemen delayed by the slow rate [illegible]progress due to the icy streets [illegible]d themselves in unfortunate [illegible]icament and tried to slide to [illegible]t on their backs or the oppo[illegible]. Many humourous incidents [illegible]e reported with silk-clad limbs [illegible]denly describing a parabola [illegible]rough a drizzle of freezing rain, and masculine heels endeavoring to make both ends meet.

The East Bridge Street hill was glassy on both pavement and road. Several cars was stalled in endeavoring to climb the gradient and were forced to slither back to Pinnacle Street in a hazardous manner.

It was the same all over the city. What little snow was apparent on boulevards afforded some relief to sliding pedestrians but these were only apparent in spots and the rest of the journey was made with two-point landings.

Faithful Dobbin, although he too did his bit of equine physical jerks on the icy surface neighed disdain at his mechanical counterparts, as hitched to milk-vehicles he slowly passed stalled cars and trucks while on his route.

The City Works Department came to the rescue however, and trucks and men sprinkled sand and ashes on the intersections and hills the treacherous surfaces of which constituted dangerous hazards to pedestrian and motorist alike.

A meeting of the University Women's Club was held in the Collegiate on Saturday afternoon. Mrs. W. J. Doyle, president, presided, and a brief discussion of business took place. Miss Jessie B. SANTA CLAUS PARADE ATTRACTS LARGE THRONGS

Nearly 900 Children Take Part in Procession on Saturday

SIDEWALKS LINED

Tweed, Dec. 16 (Special) — The annual Santa Claus parade was held in Tweed on Saturday afternoon with one of the largest crowds on record in attendance. Nearly nine hundred children were in the procession which moved along Victoria Street from the C.P.R. station to Kerr's Corner. Here under the community Christmas tree Santa Claus and his helpers distributed bags of candy among the children of Tweed and vicinity.

The jolly old St. Nicholas, riding in state on Don Porritt's express sleigh, proceeded through the streets greeting all his friends, young and old, who followed his "regal carriage," and who lined the sidewalks along the route. The youngsters were kept in line by Messrs. T. E. Moffat, F. W. Clark, S. H. Connor, W. LeSage, L. A. MacDougal and Chief J. C. Hayes. Arriving at the Christmas tree, Santa Claus, assisted by Messrs. W. S. Gordon, S. R. Curry and others, distributed candy among the children.

The committee in charge of the Santa Claus parade was composed of Messrs. T. E. Moffatt, T. J. Calnan, Robt. Sweetman, S. H. Connor, J. C. Hayes, F. Rashotte, Wilfred LeSage, D. H. Morrison, Tracy Quinn and L. D. Corcoran. This committee is grateful to Miss Catharine McQuarrie, teacher of Tweed Consolidated School and her Household Science of fifteen girls, who filled the nine hundred bags of candy distributed on Saturday. They were assisted by Mr. D. H. Morrison.

Italian Communique

Rome, Dec. 16 (CP).—The Italian high command claimed today that bitter fighting was in progress in Libya and Albania against British and Greek attacks.

(Greek and British sources reported advances on both fronts.)

The Italians claimed British attacks along the Egyptian-Libyan frontier were made under bombardment of Italian planes which caused heavy casualties.

The high command's communique also claimed Greek attacks along the Albanian battlefront were repulsed wth "considerable" losses on both sides.

Meanwhile the Italian people, told that their North African forces had been driven back into Libya, waited for word whether Marshal Graziani's reserves had been able to stem the British advance.

The high command told them yesterday that the battle, fiercest for Italian troops since the world war, "will last several days yet—maybe even more than a week."

That communique told of "bloody combat from dawn to sunset," acknowledged Italian withdrawal from Sidi Barrani in Egypt, and declared that the pressure of the British drive continued.

Observers were advised to reserve judgment on the final outcome. Speculation at this time, the high command said, "would seem premature".

The communique added, however: "Italian forces in Libya, aided by faithful Libyan troops, are fighting with extreme courage, contending the ground with the enemy hand-to-hand.

"It is believed that Italian forces actually engaged in fighting and those large numbers which are in reserve are more than enough to meet the situation."

(This was widely at variance with observations of neutral correspondents on the spot who reported that the Italians, except in rare instances were no match for their British adversaries, despite the fact they outnumbered them sometimes by as many as four to one.)

The high command said the fighting was centring in the district of Sollum, Fort Capuzzo and Bardia.

Gayda Boasts of Italy's Navy.

Virginia Gayda, editor of Il Giornale d'Italia, said yesterday that with growing naval forces the axis would carry the war against Britain to the sea in 1941.

He said the German navy would be enlarged soon with the addition of two powerful 35,000-ton battleships and added that "the Italian navy, too, remains strong and ready and on the increase."

He said Italy's two "great battleships" which Prime Minister Churchill "wanted to pass off as lost" soon would be "in perfect shape again".

An intensive campaign to reinforce civilian morale throughout northern Italy, including the country's industrial zones, in a winter "battle on the internal front" was under way following a conference held by Adelchi Serena, Fascist party secretary, and provincial Fascist chiefs at Mussolini's home city of Forli.

Serena reported to Mussolini "assurance that Blackshirts and the Italian people are unshakably decided to face any events", declaring that "absurd hopes of the enemy so far as the Italian people's resistance is concerned are and will be still more bitterly disappointed by facts."

Finally Serena expressed the belief that Blackshirts would break up any anti-Fascist movement.

British Victory May Change Whole Aspect of War

London, Dec. 16—(CP)—A broadcast commentary from Ankara, Turkey, said the British victory in the western desert "seems to have changed the whole aspect of the war," the British Broadcasting Corporation reported last night.

"The declaration of Gen. Wavell (Commander-in-Chief of the British Forces in the Middle East) that success in the campaign would greatly diminish the duration of the war is indeed true."

The BBC quoted the broadcast as saying: "It would not be too much to say that the British victory is already paving the way to political developments."

POOLS OF WATER FORM ON STREETS

On Dundas Street East, Trenton, Water in Places is 3 Inches Deep

Trenton, Dec. 16.—The heavy rain that has swept the district left pools of water on the already slippery streets in this town today. The downpour has been so great that the sewers which are partially clogged with ice and snow have been unable to carry away the water.

At one place on Dundas Street East, the water has gathered in a pool that stretches completely across the street and is about three inches deep. High banks of snow on each side of the street have prevented the water from escaping.

A number of fishing shacks made their appearance on the ice covering the mouth of the River Trent and the Bay of Quinte, over the week-end and already the fishermen have reported their catches as fair.

Many skaters took advantage of the ice to have their first skate of the year on the Bay. One iceboat also made an appearance but did not venture far from the River Mouth.

Two men were arrested in Smiths Falls yesterday on a charge of theft of a car from Trenton. They will be brought back to Trenton to stand trial tomorrow afternoon.

A car was stolen from a sales lot on Saturday night and police in the district were notified of its disappearance. The car was a Ford 1938 model, light green in color.

Howard Simmons of Carrying Place Road was placed under arrest on Saturday night charged with serious offences against two young girls. He is being held without bail in Trenton, while further investigations are being made.

Pierre Laval Failed To Influence Petain

New York, Dec. 16—(AP)—Max Jordan, National Broadcasting Corporation correspondent in a broadcast from Basel, Switzerland, said Saturday night that Pierre Laval was in jail at Vichy, France, and that his resignation as Vice-Premier resulted from an unsuccessful attempt to persuade Marshal Petain to give Germany the aid of the French fleet against Britain in return for liberal Nazi peace terms.

Petain was quoted as saying Germany's latest peace proposal as advocated by Laval came at too high a price, Jordan said.

Allege Coup Aimed At Making France Axis Partner No. 2

Free French News Agency Charges Plot Was to Get Petain to Paris And Have New Peace Negotiations Begun With Germany From Vichy

London, Dec. 17.— (CP-Reuters) —The Free French News Agency said yesterday that there had been a plot to stage a coup d'etat against Marshal Petain, premier of the Vichy government, by enticing him to Paris for the ceremonies connected with the moving of the remains of Napoleon's son from Vienna to the German-held French capital.

The News Agency said the plot against Petain was aimed at forming a government under Pierre Laval, ousted vice-Premier, and containing friends of Otto Abetz, Hitler's representative in Paris.

Says Plans to Replace Italy with France

The Agency claimed the aged Premier would have been persuaded to remain at Versailles instead of returning to Vichy, and as titular head of the Laval-controlled government, would have been used to pursue new peace negotiations with Germany, so France could replace Italy as No. 2 Axis partner.

The plot was said to have failed because the Minister of the Interior Marcel Peyrouton, was tipped and warned Petain in time. Laval, the News Agency said, was persuaded to go to Vichy, confronted with the evidence, and collapsed under its weight.

Why The Weather?

By Major A. H. Thiessen
Science Service Meteorologist

Halcyon days! The origin of these days of quiet and contentment dates back to Greek mythology. Ceyx, the husband of Alcyone, was drowned; and, when Alcyone found the body, the gods changed them both into kingfishers. Zeus then, out of compassion for them, ordered that during the brooding season of these birds (which lasts for two weeks after Dec. 15) no wind should blow. It was believed that they laid their eggs in nests on the water, and wind might blow eggs and nests out to sea. This is not the case, however, as kingfishers have nests in caves near the water. Another superstition regarding these birds is that if the bodies are hung freely in the air, their breasts turn into the wind, even in a closed room.

Last Remnants of Italian Army Now Driven From Egyptian Soil

By EDWARD KENNEDY
(Associated Press Staff Writer)

With the British Forces at Salum, Egypt, Dec. 16 —(Delayed)—(AP)— British armored units were sweeping over the desert west of Bardia today in an attempt to encircle that important Italian base in Libya following the capture of Salum and Fort Capuzzo.

The last remnants of the Italian army have been driven from Egyptian soil. Under heavy British fire the Italians abandoned Salum, seized early in their drive into Egypt, and retired across the frontier into Libya, five miles to the west.

British troops promptly occupied this western Egyptian port. Then they continued to carry the fight to the Italians, moving across the border to seize Fort Capuzzo, south of Bardia.

The Italians are reported to have large forces at Bardia, on the coast 15 miles from the border, including troops which have retreated from Egypt, and apparently are striving to make a stand there.

In the opinion of British officers how long they can hold out will depend largely on whether Italian troops could be rallied after the Egyptian rout.

Bardia already has been bombed heavily from the sea and air. British armored units west of the town reported that they had destroyed Italian trucks, tractors and tanks, but that it was uncertain yet whether they had wholly cut off communications between Bardia and Tobruk, farther west.

These armored units were subjected to dive-bombing attacks by Italian planes.

Italian General Berdi is in command at Bardia, and General Bergonzoli, whom the British soldiers have dubbed "General Electric Whiskers," also was reported there, issuing exhortations to the Fascist troops. Gen. Bergonzoli is said to be popular with his men and is known for his ability to rouse them with stirring words.

R. A. F. RAIDERS POUND MANNHEIM FOR SEVEN HOURS

"Many Important Targets Left in Flames" Informed Sources State

LONDON QUIET

Bad Flying Weather Holds German Attacks to a Minimum

London, Dec. 17 (CP)—Royal Air Force bombers attacked an aircraft factory, a dye plant and other targets in the Mannheim area of Germany, the Nazi submarine base at Bordeaux, France, and six merchantmen off the French coast in a broad series of raids last night, the Air Ministry announced today.

A communique said that Mannheim, "the chief industrial centre of the upper Rhine," was subjected to a sustained seven-hour assault. Four British planes failed to return.

An analine dye factory at Ludwigshaven, a suburb of Mannheim, "one of the largest in Germany, was set well alight, the fires being still visible half an hour after the attacking aircraft had left," the Ministry said.

It reported a "particularly violent" explosion at Neckarstadt, a suburb of Mannheim, and said that "by 3:30 a.m. the whole target area was a mass of flame."

Factories Hit

"At Steyer, a town south of Mannheim," it continued, "aircraft factory buildings were hit and targets at Heilbronn on the Neckar were set on fire."

Besides the attack at Bordeaux, British bombers made daylight forays on several airdromes.

Of the merchantmen bombed, the Air Ministry said, one was observed listing and another was afire.

The Air Ministry News Service, amplifying the communique, said that coastal command fliers "carrying out a heavy raid on the docks

Customs Officers Seize Cigarettes

Brockville, Ont., Dec. 17—(CP)— Canadian Customs officers have seized several cartons of American cigarettes from men at No. 30 military training centre here.

Customs officials said the cigarettes were brought into Canada illegally and that unauthorized use of Canadian funds in buying them might be contrary to Foreign Exchange Control Board regulations.

They said men from the camp took a ferry between Brockville and Morristown, N.Y., and bought cigarettes from American vendors who came aboard the vessel on the American side of the St. Lawrence River.

TARGET OF TORPEDO ATTACK

This photo of the S.S. Western Prince was made when the British liner brought 500 refugees to New York on Nov. 22. Now the 10,926-ton vessel is reported the target of a torpedo attack at a point some 300 miles off the coast of Ireland. Reports indicate that Hon. C. D. Howe and all passengers and crew members were landed safely.

Britain Formally Requests U.S. for Financial Assistance

Secretary Hull Said to Have Urged Speed-up in Production of Arms, Planes and to Have Said Britain Asks That Present Delivery Schedules From United States be Considerably Increased

Washington, Dec. 17 (AP).—Secretary of State Cordell Hull was reported to have told defence commissioners and other United States government officials that Britain probably faces a serious crisis next spring unless present delivery schedules of American war supplies were considerably increased.

Disclosure of the cabinet member's view followed an outright British request for financial assistance from the United States government. Details of the appeal were not made public.

Hull was understood to have urged all speed possible in producing arms, planes, and other supplies. Similarly, it was learned that the shipping situation is being examined to determine whether additional merchant ships might be made available for rushing supplies to Britain.

Greater Speed Urged.

Hull's statements were believed to be particularly responsible for the comments of William S. Knudsen and other defence officials that greater speed is necessary in the defence program.

Knudsen, a member of the defence commission, yesterday described the production situation as one of "terrible urgency". That declaration and the British request for financial help put two formidable problems on President Roosevelt's desk.

As Mr. Roosevelt returned after his two-week Caribbean trip, the belief grew in some quarters that some important action might be forthcoming.

"Something usually does happen when he comes back here," Commerce Secretary Jones said in explaining recently that decisions on financial help to Britain could not be reached because "the administration is away".

Of the two questions, however, the defence production was rated the most pressing by officials, particularly in view of William S. Knudsen's statement yesterday that the situation was one of "terrible urgency" which called for "the impossible" from American industry.

Since armament aid to Britain depends on the speed of domestic defence production, the expectation was that this field of assistance would receive executive attention before the matter of financial support.

The fact that Britain had made a formal request for financial aid was disclosed last night by an authoritative source.

TRADE MISSION RETURNING HOME

Tour is Interrupted by Illness of Trade Minister MacKinnon

Ottawa, Dec. 17—(CP)—Canada's trade mission to the West Indies and South America is returning to Ottawa because of the illness of Trade Minister MacKinnon, who headed the mission.

It was learned from his office today that his illness is not a serious one although it may keep him from his government duties for a week or two. Department officials emphasized that the tour has not been abandoned and may be resumed if the minister's condition improves.

The mission, designed to increase trade with countries in South America and the West Indies, left Ottawa Nov. 29. Mr. MacKinnon was accompanied by Deputy Minister L. D. Wilgress and two department officials, Yves Lamontagne and G. B. Smith.

The trade officials had visited Kingston in Jamaica and Nassau in the Bahamas. They then proceeded to Cristobal and Balboa in the Canal zone and it was here Mr. MacKinnon became ill and was forced to cancel the rest of the journey, at least temporarily.

Australia Stirred Over Victories

Sydney, Dec. 17—(CP Cable)— News that Australian troops are participating in the offensive against the Italians in North Africa has stirred national pride throughout the Commonwealth.

It is considered certain that news of the first major action of the Australian forces in the present war will result in a rush to the colors when recruiting for the overseas army is resumed early in 1941.

EX-CHAMPION RELEASED

London, Dec. 17—(CP)—The release of Joe Beckett, former British heavyweight boxing champion, and his wife, detained since last June 3 under defence regulations, was disclosed today. The date of the release, by order of the Home Office and the specific reason for the detention were not given.

Take Fort Capuzzo To Control Vital Highway Terminus

Salum, Last Italian Stronghold on Egyptian Soil, Recaptured by British

Cairo, Dec. 17 (AP).—Pressure on the important Libyan port of Bardia is "steadily increasing" and new British troops are arriving in the area to support those which captured Fort Capuzzo, giving the British forces their first foothold on Italian colonial soil, a general headquarters communique announced today.

The communique also said that two additional Italian forts had been captured in Libya—Musaid Sidi Omar and Shefferzan—and that offensive patrolling "on a considerable scale" had been renewed on the Kenya frontier in East Africa.

The two forts are just at the frontier south of Bardia.

The communique said Australian troops battled an Italian column by moonlight last night and captured trucks and a gun.

With the fall of Fort Capuzzo, British authorities announced recapture of Salum, last Italian

TO SAIL ABOARD SOUTHERN CROSS

Duke and Duchess of Windsor Plan to Leave Miami Early Tuesday Evening

Miami, Fla., Dec. 17.—(AP)— The Duke and Duchess of Windsor prepared to terminate today their first joint visit to the United States.

Happy over the cordial reception they received here, the Windsors planned to sail at 6 p.m. (E.D.T.) aboard the yacht Southern Cross on the return trip to Nassau, where the Duke will resume his duties as Governor of the Bahamas.

The Duchess appeared virtually recovered from the effects of a major dental operation that brought the Windsors to Miami a week ago. Dr. Horace L. Cartee said a "slight complication" that occurred after the Windsors moved from a Miami Beach hospital to a hotel had entirely cleared up.

Dr. Cartee removed an infected molar in an operation that necessitated scraping the jawbone.

In the Duchess' wardrobe on the return trip will be three or four dresses, ranging in price from $12.50 to $25 that she purchased here. She bought the dresses yesterday after selecting several for approval during a shipping trip last Saturday.

The Duke played golf yesterday with Gene Sarazen, former British and United States open champion, and Sam Snead of Hot Springs, Va.

SPEED BOATS IN SKIRMISH

Berlin, Dec. 17 (AP)—Nazi quarters reported today that German speed boats fought a short skirmish with British destroyers in the western waters of the English Channel Sunday night.

It was claimed the Nazi craft returned to their bases safely.

(There was no immediate comment from British sources.)

London, Dec. 17 (CP)—Herbert Morrison, Minister of Home Security, said today additional shelter accommodations for 105,000 persons had been provided since October, and the "worst of overcrowding in big shelters is now a thing of the past."

Mr. Morrison, speaking at the opening of an exhibition of pictures of London life under the air raids, said 206,000 bunks had been installed and 200,000 more had been delivered but were not yet installed because of a labor shortage.

SERVED IN CANADA

(By J. C. Satark)
(Associated Press Staff Writer)

Washington, Dec. 17.—(AP) — Norman Armour, ace career diplomat and now United States Ambassador to Argentina, was mentioned in informed circles today for the vacant post of Ambassador to Great Britain. Mr. Armour was at one time Minister to Canada.

With no British Ambassador in this country following the death of the Marquess of Lothian, President Roosevelt was expected to name a successor soon to Joseph P. Kennedy, who resigned the London Post November 6.

Armour was born in England of American parents, has held diplomatic posts in nearly every part of the world, including Japan, Russia and various European countries.

He was in the United States recently but has returned to Buenos Aires. His serivce in Argentina, which has important economic ties with Britain, was rated as a factor in his favor for the London appointment.

CITY AND DISTRICT NEWS

6 SHOPPING DAYS TILL Christmas

ALL TO ENJOY THE FESTIVITIES

Preparations are well under way, it was learned this morning, for the Christmas festivities of inmates of the various city organizations. Present indications point to the fact that all will enjoy the goodies of former years, thanks to the efforts of the various officials and the public in making donations and gifts of foodstuffs and other necessities.

BRITISH WAR GUESTS TO BE ENTERTAINED

Seventeen British war guests will get their first taste of a Canadian Christmas Tree, Santa Claus and all the holiday trimmings on Friday of this week, when the members and officials of the Imperial Veterans' Association will play hosts to them and children of their own Association at the annual Christmas party.

The little Britishers will be special guests of honor and nothing is being left undone to make their first Christmas in Canada a typical one. The party is being held in the Association club rooms on Front Street.

PELTS FORWARDED FOR IDENTIFICATION

Definite proof that the pack of animals committing depredations on the sheep and cattle herds of that district in the northern part of Huntingdon Township was received yesterday, when two pelts forwarded to Toronto for identification were said by experts to be those of bonafide timber wolves.

The animals were shot some time ago by George Palmateer of West Huntingdon, who stated the animals were members of a pack of animals which had attacked sheep and cattle. Palmateer shot the wolves which were fine specimens of male and female, near the northern boundary of the township. He received the government bounty of $15.00 for each pelt from County Treasurer James Haggerty.

FEW ACCIDENTS DESPITE CONDITIONS

Despite the condition of city streets yesterday resulting from a steady downpour of rain upon the ice-covered streets which made motorized traffic exceedingly hazardous, no serious motor accidents were reported in Belleville, police revealed Tuesday.

Gordon Dempsey told police he had run over a dog on South John Street when the animal ran out into the path of his motor car. The wet slippery ice made it impossible to avoid the accident and the dog was later destroyed.

Edward Leveque, Tweed, complained to police that a local taxi cab had forced him to swerve his motor car into the ditch at the intersection of Cannifton Road and College Street late Monday afternoon. The taxi cab turned south on the Cannifton Road and sped away leaving Leveque's car stranded in a snowbank.

The fact motorists proceeded with caution is doubtless the primary reason why no accidents occurred, although traction was exceedingly poor, bordering on the dangerous on some city streets.

Sporting Activities Planned for Personnel Of Trenton Airport

A full program of winter sporting activities are being planned for the personnel of the Trenton Airport according to Mr. A. Reekie, Y.M.C.A. secretary for the Trenton station. Starting this evening the basketball league with eight teams entered will begin a double schedule, playing on Tuesday and Thursday evenings, with contesting teams representing the various units of the station.

Inter-unit hockey competition will also be started, pending the opening of a hockey rink at the station. In order that hockey games will not interfere with skating for other members of the station, the rink will be constructed with a skating rink outside the hockey rink.

Enlarging on their efforts toward a more complete service to members of Canada's Fighting Forces and their families it is rumoured that the local Y.M.C.A. is planning to open the parlors at the "Y" on two afternoons each week for the wives of airport men living in the district. While the primary purpose of the movement will be to help establish social contacts between the Airport families, it will be left to those taking advantage of the gesture to work out their own program for sports or for social activities.

To conserve fuel during the coming winter the Swiss government has forbidden stores to open before 8.30 a.m. and they must close by 7 p.m. and remain closed on Sundays and holidays.

JUDGMENT GIVEN TO PLAINTIFF

Arthur C. Twiddy's Claim of $4,900 Sustained by Supreme Court

When the defendant in the first case listed for trial at the opening of the Non-Jury Sittings of the Supreme Court, held before the Honourable Mr. Justice Hope at the Court House yesterday, failed to respond to her name, the plaintiffs asked for full judgment, which was subsequently granted.

The case was that of Arthur C. Twiddy, former Trenton jeweller, versus Mrs. Maude Ethel Dean of this city. The action was a claim for $4,900, the balance of a purchase price of a business sold by the plaintiff to the defendant. Mr. Frank Cushing, solicitor for the plaintiff moved for judgment after Mrs. Dean failed to answer to her name when regularly called in court. Mr. Cushing proved his case and judgment for $4,900.00, plus interest, was awarded Mr. Twiddy. Mrs. Dean's solicitor was not even present.

The second case listed for trial was that of Bellinger versus Ostrom, a claim for $10,000.00 arising out of personal injuries sustained by Leo Bellinger of this city, when he alleges a motor car driven by George Ostrom Jr., collided with his car and resulted in injuries. George Ostrom, Sr. was named as co-defendant, the plaintiff alleging the younger Ostrom was driving his father's car at the time of the accident on Aug. 9th, 1939.

Mr. Frank Cushing, representing the defendant, moved for an adjournment. "One of the defendants, Mr. Ostrom, Jr., is connected with the Air Force at Regina and cannot be here," stated Mr. Cushing, although it was said he had been summonsed.

Robert Pringle, solicitor for Bellinger, strenuously objected to another postponement, as the case had been handed down from a recent Supreme Court. Mr. Pringle suggested that the evidence of the younger Ostrom taken in police court proceedings be admitted in the absence of one of the defendants.

"I know of no military regulations to stop a witness from being present. Proceed with the case, gentlemen," ordered His Lordship. The case continued today.

Cheese Production In Kingston Area Considerably Higher

Cheese production in the Kingston area was considerably higher during the current season than it was in 1939, it was revealed recently by Mr. H. R. Wartman, secretary-treasurer of the Kingston Cheese Board, who stated last week that 979 more boxes of cheese had been sold on the board during 1940.

This amount of cheese was not truly representative of the increased production, as a considerable quantity of cheese manufactured in the Kingston district had been sold off the board. The reason for this, he said, was attributable to war conditions. The number sold off the board would amount to approximately 1,000 boxes, he said.

The average price of cheese on the Kingston board was 13.6 cents for colored cheese, while white cheese sold at an average price of 13.4 cents. Production in the Belleville area also showed considerable increase during the past season, when up until November, Hastings County had produced approximately 1,200 more cheese than in 1939.

Mrs. Rose was born in England and came to Canada with her parents in a sailing vessel. The trip required six weeks and was an epic one. She was then twelve years of age.

She was one of a family of seven girls, and of these but three are now living, Mrs. John Hyatt, Picton, Mrs. Sally Benham, 93, West Lake, and Charlotte Gerow, Bloomfield.

Mr. Rose died in 1904. They had three children, of whom one, George E. Rose, Woodrous, is living. There are three grandchildren, Eugene Rose, Brantford, Mrs. Sam Dodds, Woodrous, Teddy Rose, Iroquois Falls and one great grandchild, Patricia Rose of Brantford.

The funeral was held at Vancouver with interment in Ocean Grove Cemetery.

JOHN BREAK.
(Picton)

Picton, Dec. 17—Death came with startling suddenness to John Break here yesterday. While standing in the lobby of the local post office he suffered a heart attack and passed away before medical aid could be given.

The passing of Mr. Break was a great shock as he had been in good health and down town each day. He had retired some years ago as a manager with the Toronto Transportation Commission and seven months ago came to Picton to reside with his son Howard, who is with the R.A.M.C. at Kingston. His hobby was gardening and he had a beautiful flower garden. He was a member of the United Church and while in Toronto was a member of the Beaches United Church. During his stay here he had made many friends who were shocked to learn of his sudden passing.

His wife died some years ago and he is survived by his son Howard. The remains are being taken to Toronto on Wednesday where the funeral service will be held with interment in Pine Hill cemetery.

The funeral announcement is made elsewhere in this paper.

Two Huts of Trainees Placed in Quarantine

Two huts of trainees at the Peterborough training centre were placed under precautionary quarantine on Monday following a mild outbreak of flu and four cases of measles. There are 125 men in the two huts and they are confined strictly to barracks for the next few days and will not be permitted to fraternize with any of the other men in camp.

Four men at the training centre have been taken to the Isolation Hospital in Peterborough City suffering from the measles. At the camp several trainees are confined to the camp hospital with the flu. Officers claim, however, that it is a mild type and that the men who have had it previously have not been laid up for more than three days.

On the 22nd of December the entire training staff of 70 men, all ranks, will be given six days' leave and on December 30th, they will report to Cornwall C.A.T.C. No. 30 for a special course of instruction which finished on January 8th. Also on the 22nd, half of the administration staff will get six days' Christmas leave and when they return the other half will get six days' New Year's leave. The training period for the 22-year-old men now in camp winds up on the 21st of December.

KINSMEN CLUB PLAYS SANTA TO FIFTY BOYS

Each Laden With Gifts as He Left Banquet Hall to Witness Show at Theatre

VARIED PROGRAM

The hearts of fifty teen-aged boys were gladdened and the true spirit of Christmas exemplified when the Kinsmen Club held their annual pre-Christmas banquet and entertainment at the New Queen's Hotel last evening. The youthful guests were treated to a real Christmas dinner with all the "trimmin's" with the conventional crepe paper hats, favours, ice cream and candies tossed in for good measure.

Mrs. Zita Ryan, proprietress of the Queen's Hotel, presented each boy present with a box of chocolates, while ice cream Revels were donated by the Ottawa Dairy.

Each club member was responsible for one guest, but apparently, the good word circulated far in advance, as upwards of fifteen boys gathered in front of the hotel and with longing eyes and wishful hearts finally realized there was a Santa Claus as they were invited to join the merry throng. High-class entertainment was provided young Belleville and one of the features of the evening was their singing community songs led by Kin. Jerry Hurley. The kids really put zest and zeal into their vocal efforts to add merriment to the auspicious occasion.

Treated to Show

Following the program each boy was given Christmas crackers, a hockey stick and puck and later escorted to the McCarthy theatre, where they were the guests of the management, a gesture appreciated by the club to round out a gala night's entertainment. Laden with gifts and tired from a full evening of fun and frivolity the boys were escorted home by the Kinsmen full of appreciation for a gala night's fun. "We'll be back next year" was their parting gesture to assure the club of the night's success.

The entertainment at the banquet hall was headed by Professor Gardini well known magician, who is now connected with the R.C.A.F. at Trenton. For fully 30 minutes Professor Gardini entertained the skeptical youths with his many tricks of magic and sleight-of-hand tricks, his performance being witnessed by a goodly number of the hotel adult guests, who crowded into the banquet hall to witness the splendid exhibition of "the hand is quicker than the eye."

Varied Program

Others to assist in the entertainment were George Sheppard and Jack Shaddock soloists, Bobbie Young with a saxaphone number and Johnnie Brian playing the trumpet. Kin. Phil Huddleston was busy the greater part of the night at the piano during the community singing.

President Jeff Marvell announced the annual Kinsmen Club Christmas turkey bingo would commence in the old Eaton groceteria building on Tuesday night and continue for one full week. The proceeds of the Kinsmen turkey bingo will go to the club's eye clinic and war charity funds.

Kin. Dick Arnott acted as sergeant-at-arms and Kin. Jerry Hurley as songleader.

Boys of Yesteryear And Boys of Today

A coincidence that marks one of life's many paradoxes was seen at the New Queen's Hotel last night when the boys of today and the "boys" of yesteryear were entertained at two different banquets with neither groups having previous knowledge of the other's meeting. Today's boyhood was being entertained at the annual Kinsmen Club's Christmas boys' banquet.

On the other side of the picture were sixteen veteran business men of Belleville, who as boys chummed together and enjoyed the fruits of boyhood in Belleville over half a century ago. These boys of yesteryear who have helped Belleville become this proud city, were the guests of W. B. "Billie" Deacon. Following their banquet the night was spent in reminiscing over the old days in Belleville and many humorous anecdotes were told of the "good old days" when the fathers of today were the boys and youth of yesterday.

Those present at the first meeting of this new Belleville club were W. B. "Billie" Deacon, host, Harry Bryant, Charlie Cochrane, George Ruttan, Hope McGinnis, Harry Greenleaf, Billie Rees, George Brown, Johnnie Gibson, George Campbell, Jack Frost, Oscar McCurdy, Ed. Cherry Jack Baker, Billie Lazier and Alf Symons.

LARGE OWL CAPTURED

Toronto, Dec. 17.—(CP)—A large owl dive-bombed its way down a chimney in the suburban Scarboro home on Frankland Frame yesterday and wound up as the property of a small boy who wanted the bird for a pet.

It was believed the owl dived at a bird, missed its mark in the chimney smoke and entered the chimney. It landed in an open-grate and was captured.

Italian Communique

Rome, Dec. 17 (AP)—The Italian high command claimed today that Italian torpedo-launching planes hit a 6,000-ton British cruiser with two torpedoes while the warship was shelling Bardia, on the Libyan coast.

The alleged effect of the claimed hits was not stated.

(There was no immediate comment from British sources on the Italian claim.)

The battle between British and Italian forces in the Libyan desert raged on yesterday with undiminished fury, the high command reported in its regular communique.

In Albania, sharp fighting was reported from the southern sector where the 11th army is operating. To the north, it was said there was quiet.

Bruce W. Powers Dies Aged 79, Prominent in Business Life

Established Coal Company 59 Years Ago, Member of Town Council and Justice

Trenton, Dec. 17.—One of Trenton's most prominent men Bruce Wilfrid Powers died here last night. In ill health for some time, he suffered a stroke two weeks ago from which he failed to recover.

Born near Bass Lake, in Limerick Township, in the year 1861 ,the late Mr. Powers was in his 80th year. He was the son of the late Mr. and Mrs. Robert Powers, descendants of the United Empire Loyalists and Irish stock.

Moving to Trenton in his early youth, he worked at various enterprises and established the present firm of B. W. Powers & Son Coal Company in the year 1881. The firm opened business on the same property it now occupies.

Served On Town Council

During his lifetime, the late Mr. Powers served many years on the town council and on various municipal boards in Trenton. He was member of the Toronto Board of Trade during the time, the Board had outside members attached to it. Prominent in Masonic Lodges in Trenton and district, he was one of the few members who have been presented with a lifetime membership.

For many years he was a Justice of the Peace in and for Trenton, receiving his appointment from a former Lieutenant Governor, Henry Cockshutt in the year 1926.

He was a member of the St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church.

His wife, the former Campbelline McClure, predeceased him some six years ago. Surviving him are one son, W. B. Powers of Toronto; and three daughters, Mrs. W. B. McClung, Trenton; Mrs. O. Alyea, wife of Buster Alyea, present Mayor of Trenton and Doris Powers, who is at home.

The family who survive the late Mr. Powers kindly request the public to refrain from sending flowers, with their sympathies. It is pointed out by the family that during these times of stress and strain, it would be better to give the money to the various funds to aid the prosecution of the war.

URGES "WARTIME BASIS"

William Knudsen, production chief of the U.S. National Defence commission, speaking before the National Association of Manufacturers at annual convention in the Waldorf-Astoria hotel, urges "wartime basis" for industry to speed production of vital defence needs. He told the manufacturers that neither industry nor labor has been "sufficiently sold" on defence, and he called for abandonment of the industrial "blackout" from Friday to Monday.

Sports Active at R.C.A.F. Station

Trenton, Dec. 17—Unable to get off the station due to cold weather airmen of the Royal Canadian Air Force are taking part in increasing numbers in the various sporting activities in the gymnasium and sporting rooms.

Station bowling alleys are kept hot these days as all units compete in the Christmas turkey competition. The high scores from each unit are chosen and the birds will be handed out to the winners. The officer in charge of the bowling, Flying Officer Stavely stated that the competition has gotten off to a splendid start and it is expected that a few records will be broken and new ones established during the coming week.

Officers on the station are also hustling to the gym more often now in order to keep up their condition for their strenuous tasks, they are now performing. Volleyball and basketball seem to be their favourite recreations.

Table tennis enthusiasts were treated to a real exhibition in the art when a team from Security Guard challenged any four men on the station to single and double matches. During the evening 16 round Robin matches were played and the pick-up aggregation from the station managed ten wins to the Security Guard's six. Individual honours for the evening went to Pierre Theriault who swept his four matches.

The teams were Security Guard—Pete Peterson (Capt.), Norman Baldwin, Laighton Exel and Mac Davies. Station All-Stars — Pierre Theriault (Capt.), FO. Tom Walker, Fernand Picard and Ed. Roy.

Judge and scorer were Andy Reekie and Ken McAdam both Y.M.C.A. directors.

PRIVATE FOUND DEAD

London, Dec. 17.—(CP Cable)—Scotland Yard and Canadian Military authorities are investigating the death of Private John Boyle of Toronto, attached to the Royal Canadian Engineers, who was found shot in Charing Cross Road.

Authorities said several persons, including a number of soldiers, heard a shot during the blackout before dawn.

TO CALL 28,750

Ottawa, Dec. 17.—(CP)— The National War Services Department announced today the number of men to be trained for thirty days under the compulsory military training scheme during January will be 28,750.

This is 1,000 less than the number required to fill Canada's thirty training centres and it was said the reduction was due to the fact the training centre at Woodstock, Ont., would not be used during the training period starting January tenth.

The War Today

By GUY RHOADES,
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

"From now on," the chairman of the British Trades Union Council broadcast last night, "our blows will grow heavier and the internal problem of the dictators will become more and more acute."

Almost as the chairman, George Gibson, was talking, British desert fighters drove Italian troops out of their last position in Egypt and crossed the border into the Italian colony of Libya.

Meanwhile more diplomatic scurrying was visible in France as Hitler's Paris envoy, Otto Abetz, rushed to Vichy and met aged Marshal Petain, French Chief of State, in what was interpreted as an effort to find out why pro-German Pierre Laval was dropped from the French cabinet.

May Take Whole Country

There were hints in nearby Switzerland that German troops, already occupying a considerable portion of France, might take over the whole country, but observers saw one possible obstacle to any such move.

One of the men Abetz would like to see is not in Vichy, nor, for that matter, in France. He is Gen. Maxime Weygand, in North Africa at the head of a huge and dangerous French colonial army which has not been touched so far by the war.

What Weygand is doing has puzzled observers for some weeks, but what he apparently has no intention of doing is going back to European France.

Weygand, former Commander-in-Chief of the Allied forces in France was sent to Africa—his old stamping ground—at the conclusion of the Franco-German truce.

Movements Obscure

Since then his movements and deeds have been obscure, but it was reported a few weeks ago that the Vichy government sent an airplane to bring him home, only to have him refuse to get into it.

There never has been any indication of collaboration between Weygand's forces and those of General Charles De Gaulle, leader of the Free French forces. In fact it never has been suggested that the two met when De Gaulle was in Africa recently. Consequently, it never has been denied.

Italy, in deference to Mussolini's mood of a Caesar, has attempted two invasions since she entered the war. She got into Egypt three months ago when British forces were too weak numerically to stop her and into Greece before the Greeks realized what was happening.

It is some weeks since the enraged Greeks threw Italian forces back into Albania and it took British troops exactly a week to drive them out of Egypt, once they started their carefully prepared offensive.

Italian Position Bad

The Italian position is most unhappy. In Africa Mussolini's legions might well wind up running into the Mediterranean. In Albania they may end by jumping into the Adriatic. The effect of their defeat is redundant.

It constitutes a tax on German resources, a tax on home morale—already it has become necessary to suggest the death penalty for food hoarders, a temptation to timid neighbors who previously did not like Mussolini but were afraid to fight his 5,000,000 bayonets". It constitutes a general smack in the eye for Axis ambitions.

It has probably intensified Hitler's worries over the ousting of Laval and almost undoubtedly has made the German Fuehrer wonder what may be on Weygand's mind.

Explosion Shatters Three-Storey Brick Tenement in Cincinnati

Cincinnati, Dec. 17 (AP)— One person was reported killed and a score or more others were believed trapped today in the blast-shattered ruins of a three-storey brick tenement building in the northern end of Cincinnati's downtown area.

Cause of the explosion, which occurred soon after 3 a.m., was not immediately determined.

A woman residing two doors away told Walter Wahl, a Cincinnati Enquirer printer:-

"There are 26 people living in one side of the building. I don't know of anyone who escaped."

Every available policeman and piece of fire apparatus in the city was rushed to the scene.

General hospital reported soon after 5 a.m. that eight persons had been brought there for treatment, most of them suffering from cuts and burns. They were not immediately identified as residents of the blasted structure.

Only a pile of brick and dust remained where the twin-apartment building stood. Police and firemen dug into the ruins, aided by beams of utility truck searchlights.

MAGISTRATE OF WINDSOR DIES

William Albert Smith Had Been Member of Essex County Bar for 50 Years

Windsor, Ont., Dec. 17.—(CP)—Magistrate William Albert Smith, 78, member of the Essex County bar for 50 years and police magistrate here for 17 years, died last night following a three months' illness.

Magistrate Smith spent most of his life in Kingsville, Ont., where he was the first town clerk in 1901, and mayor from 1910 to 1912. He was prominent in Anglican church work and took an active interest in sports. In 1907 he won the Dominion trap-shooting competition.

Surviving are his widow and two sons, Austin B. Smith, Kingsville, former member of the Ontario Legislature for Essex South, and Rev. W. Lyndon Smith, former Rhodes scholar and now dean of residence at Trinity College, University of Toronto.

Police Blotter

Stalled in the very centre of Station Street, near the Bleecker Ave. intersection and blocking traffic, an automobile was found abandoned by the police early today. Detective Fred Isard investigated and found a flat tire had forced the leaving of the vehicle. "It was a silly place to leave the car, right in the centre of the street," commented the oficer as he ordered it towed away to the nearest garage.

Sergeant J. Walmsley of the R.C. A.F., reported the theft of three parcels which were stolen out of his parked motor car on Albion Street, late Monday. A candlewick lady's housecoat, one gold tie pin and a black wallet were the articles reported stolen.

Provincial Police are in possession of a large quantity of steel drill bits, sets of wrenches, builders' hardware and other articles too numerous to mention, all of which was found cached in a building west of the city. Sergeant H. E. Thompson and Constable Patterson have the case under investigation but the only information given out this morning was that the finding of the goods might solve some robberies of many years standing around this vicinity. "I might say petty thefts that go back well over a decade may now be cleared up," was the startling statement of Sergeant Thompson as he refused further comment until subsequent check-ups of the goods now in the possession of the authorities is made.

Toronto police reported the theft of two Persian lamb coats, while the Picton authorities broadcast the theft of a 1933 model Buick coach, bearing licence plates number 4-N-143. Belleville police were also asked to seek the whereabouts of two teen-aged Picton girls who came to this city yesterday but failed to return home last night. Local authorities believe the lassies are "seeing the sights" and will return home of their own accord, without

Mexico City Hears Canada Negotiating For 60 Wasp Motors

Mexico City, Dec. 17 (AP)—It was learned today that the Canadian government is negotiating for the purchase of 60 wasp 1,100-horsepower airplane motors stored the last two years in a workshop of the Mexican air force.

The negotiations are understood to be in progress with Indalecio Prieto, representing the interests here of the defunct Spanish Republican government. The motors originally were sent from the United States en route to Spain, but before the trans-shipment was effected the Spanish Civil War came to an end.

"Germany Preparing for Invasion Of England Before Springtime" Beaverbrook Says in Broadcast

London, Dec. 17 (CP)—Lord Beaverbrook, Minister of Aircraft production, declared in a broadcast tonight that Germany "is making preparations for invasion of England before springtime—by land and sea, but principally by air."

Hitler is making an "immense attempt" to bring out a huge air force in the early months of next year, Lord Beaverbrook said, and there are "sure and certain signs" of a feverish development of production.

"These vast preparations," he added, "are directed at one objective—the invasion of Britain

"So we are warned. We know that some measure of preparation was carried out in Germany last winter. Tanks and dive-bombers to destroy the French; the same thoroughness will be employed against us when the time comes."

Lord Beaverbrook told Britons they were "much too confident" and added "there is no justification for over-confidence now."

"It must be acknowledged that Hitler is still military master of Europe, but not quite so much the master he was," he added.

Plan to Insure British Property, Worth 26 to 35 Billion Dollars, Against Damage By Air Raid

London, Dec. 17 (CP)—Sir Kingsley Wood, Chancellor of the Exchequer, moving second reading of a bill to insure British property worth between £6,000,000,000 and £8,000,000,000 ($26,700,000,000 and $35,600,000,000) against air raid damage, told the House of Commons today:—

"No country, unless it were confident of victory and particularly of defeat of the enemy in the air, would proceed with these proposals."

PRICE REDUCTION OF CANADIAN BACON DEFENDED

Hon. J. G. Gardiner Speaks at Farm Conference at Saskatoon

FUTURE PURCHASES

Saskatoon, Dec. 17—(CP)—Hon. J. G. Gardiner, Federal Minister of Agriculture defended reduction in the price for Canadian bacon under the new British food agreement when he addressed a farm conference here yesterday.

Mr. Gardiner said that when last year's agreement was negotiated a rise in the price of grain during that year had been anticipated. But the price of grain did not go up during the year and Britain called attention to that fact, he said.

"We replied that since the higher price for grain had not developed and was not likely to develop this year we were prepared to consider a reduction in the price we were getting."

Future Purchases

British officials had indicated that if Canada was prepared to sell all her bacon surplus at a lower price Britain would take it. Britain indicated she had $10,000,000 more to spend for bacon this year.

The conference called by Mr. Gardiner to discuss food agreements with the British government and problems of farmers in the three prairie provinces, was attended by representatives of the Provincial Agricultural Departments, farm organizations and packing firms. Discussions continue today.

425,000,000 Pounds of Bacon

Hon. J. G. Taggart, Saskatchewan Agriculture Minister and chairman of the Canadian Bacon Board, said the British Government will take 425,000,000 pounds of bacon this year compared to 291,000,000 pounds last year. The new prices were $15.82 for 100 pounds of grade "A" and $15.05 for the same quantity of grade "B" sides. The old prices were $18.01 and $17.22 for these grades, respectively.

Mr. Taggart revealed that 73 per cent of the money received by the Bacon Board under the agreement went to producers. The other 27 per cent went to handlers, including railroads, truckers and abattoirs. He said he is satisfied that the packing companies "are not making an inordinate profit." He placed the packing companies' percentage at 14 per cent.

OFFICIAL WORD IS STILL AWAITED

General Feeling in Government Circles is One of Confidence That Howe Party is Safe

Ottawa, Dec. 17 (CP).—No news had been received in Ottawa up to noon today of the fate of Supply Minister Howe and his three departmental assistants who were passengers on the British vessel Western Prince, reported torpedoed 550 miles off the Irish coast last Saturday morning.

Some anxiety was expressed by government officials at the absence of information from official quarters so long after the torpedoing was reported.

It had been confidently expected at Mr. Howe's office here that definite news of the Western Prince survivors would have reached Ottawa last night or at least early this morning.

The possibility was raised that if the Western Prince was sunk by a torpedo her passengers and crew might have been rescued by a westbound vessel.

Wireless Restricted.

Wartime safety restrictions on the use of wireless at sea would prevent notification of such a rescue reaching shore. But this was just conjecture on the part of those awaiting news.

Normally, according to the belief of officials here, if the survivors were placed on another convoy ship or a naval craft, bound for the British Isles, they would have reached port some time yesterday.

Mr. Howe sailed from New York Dec. 6 on an official government mission to the United Kingdom. He was accompanied by three executive assistants, Col. W. C. Woodward, Vancouver; Hon. Gordon Scott, Montreal, and E. P. Taylor, Toronto.

Late last night the highest authorities said they were without any new information, and that they did not know where the rescued passengers and crew men were being taken. The navy policy in such cases as described by Navy Minister Macdonald in a Sunday statement is this: "No announcement can be made until the ship or, in the case of a sinking, the survivors have reached harbor."

May Be On Slow Vessels

One navy official said considerable time might have elapsed between the time the first report of the torpedoing was received and all survivors were picked up. If they were aboard a slow vessel it was possible they might not have reached a British port yet.

Another suggestion was that if the Western Prince were still afloat—there has been no definite word that she sank after the torpedo hit her—she might be under tow, and it might be some time yet before she is docked.

It is established in communications received by the government last Sunday that more of the passengers and crew of the liner were taken off safely, but no specific information has become available since then.

Nothing to Add

Last night officials in London said they had nothing to add to Sunday night's information that Mr. Howe is believed to be safe. They described reports published in North America that Mr. Howe and all other passengers had arrived safely in England as "entirely unconfirmed," but said there was reason to hope that the Munitions Minister and party had been rescued.

If Meetings Public Anyone Can Attend Says Atty.-General

Toronto, Dec. 17 (CP). — Hon. Gordon Conant, Attorney-General of Ontario, said last night he had received a letter from Bert E. Leavens, general secretary of the Co-Operative Commonwealth Federation, complaining that policemen had been present at two recent C. C. F. meetings here and were seen taking notes.

Mr. Conant said he could see neither discourtesy nor unfairness to the C.C.F. if such was the case.

Mr. Leavens wrote that officers had attended meetings addressed by C. H. Millard, Ontario president of the C.C.F. and regional director of the Congress of Industrial Organizations. "We had no means of finding out whether they were city or provincial officers but we do wish to protest to your department at the presence of the officers at our meeting, which in our opinion constitutes both discrimination and intimidation."

The Attorney-General said that if the meetings were public, any citizen could attend.

THREE BURNED BY STEAM

Toronto, Dec. 17 (CP)—Three men were burned by steam and water when a tube in a boiler burst at an east Toronto soap factory here today.

The men were working on a catwalk when the tube burst and sprayed them.

WATCH RELATIONS OF WAGES, PRICES

Wartime Prices Board Believes Wages Up From 5 to 15 Per Cent Over Year

Ottawa, Dec. 17 (CP)—The Wartime Prices and Trade Board and other Government agencies are keeping a sharp eye on the relationship between wages and prices in the Dominion.

The Board believes wages are up sporadically over the period of a year anywhere from five to 15 per cent. The cost of living, according to latest indices of the Bureau of Statistics, was up 3.5 points last October, standing at 107 compared with 103.5 for October of last year.

Government officials are watching the relationship between the two because of developments in the last war, when prices rose as the purchasing power of the people increased. For a time there seemed no end to the upward trend.

A Trade Board spokesman today used the plywood and veneer industry as an illustration of what conceivably could happen generally in the present war.

More Money in Circulation

Because of improvement in the general business situation, more money was in circulation and many persons had sufficient funds to buy new furniture. The manufacturer, knowing this and naturally wishing to take advantage of the enlarged market, was prepared to offer higher wages in order to satisfy the demand.

But plywood and veneer workers were needed by airplane manufacturers.

Airplane factories, operating on government "cost-plus" contracts under which the manufacturer figures his costs and then adds a fair profit, were prepared to offer wages high enough to lure plywood and veneer workers to new jobs.

The Labor Department admonition against enticing workers from one industry to another does not apply to enticing of workers from the furniture industry to the essential wartime industry of making planes and competition for workers between the airplane and furniture plants might boost wages for such workers to extravagant heights.

Method of Price Control

One method of controlling wages was worked out between the Board and coal miners in Alberta and British Columbia. These workers agreed to base increases in wages upon the increase in the cost of living. Until the cost of living rose five per cent. they agreed not to ask increased wages, the agreement to continue for the duration of the war and for a year afterward.

Bureau of statistics figures show that most items in the cost of living index increased during the year ending last October. However, food cost decreased, the October, 1940, index being 106.1 compared with 106.3 in October, 1939.

Fuel cost rose from 104.4 to 108 in the index; rent from 104.4 to 107.7 and clothing from 99.6 to 113.5.

Nazis Minimize Mediterranean Events

Berlin, Dec. 17 — (AP) — Nazi quarters today described as "foolish" what they called British "propaganda" about developments of the war in Greece and northern Africa.

They asserted British accounts were completely out of proportion to the "limited military importance of local successes over Italian troops."

(The Nazi propaganda is at odds with the Italian, which has been picturing the North Africa fighting as a great battle with the Italians fighting heroically in their retreat."

FASCISM FAILS TO CREATE VIRTUES

Sixteen years of Fascist glory in bluster and boast of the military strength of Fascism and now six weeks of defeat upon defeat of the Italian forces in Albania and Egypt.

Six or seven months ago Duce fearful of having waited too long lined up with the Hun and started to war.

Today Fascist armies are being defeated by smaller bodies of men in Albania and in Egypt. The Italian equipment is said to have been modern and immense in quantity. The lost equipment is of great importance. Tens of thousands of Italian prisoners have been taken. Italy today is far worse off than when she entered the war, her prestige is gone, the weaknesses of her armies, her air force and her fleet have been revealed to the world. Now there are suggestions that Germany may not strain herself to help her Fascist partner. What Germany's reaction will be yet remains to be seen.

Dictatorship has not developed the virtues in Italy and Germany. Fascism has not made Italian armies invincible as were those of Alexander the Great or Julius Caesar and the British and Greek armies. Fascism has failed to develop the very thing it stood for, power so great that nothing could approach it according to the Mussolini ideal. In Germany Nazism has produced not a single virtue. Everywhere the result is one of subjection of an empire to the whims and mad dreams of a hater of civilization. Those black-rots of civilization, Fascism and Nazism, have caused cancers which have eaten into the normal virtues. Hitler wanted power, forgetting that his threat strengthens the resolve of a people who will not be servile and bow to the Hun. The two selfish ideologies of the Nazi-Fascists have not created anything worth while but a blight for their own people and for a large share of mankind. But whatever they have failed to do they have strengthened the people of Britain and they have cut the gad which is to whip the two powers of Italy and Germany and bring their insensate selfish leaders to naught.

CHRISTMAS SPIRIT IN VICTORIES

Christmas is coming and with it the expression of warm fellowship with which the old but ever-new feast has been honored throughout the ages. War, it is true, is upon the world but British subjects and their Allies are giving so heroic a demonstration of their strength morally, economically and materially as to create the conviction that the things for which we stand shall certainly endure because they foster the spirit. Events in Egypt and Greece show the strength of democracy as not only material but also in the realm of the spirit. The British and the Greeks have given evidence of their initiative and courage which have stimulated the democratic nations. Operations in the Mediterranean are a series of victories. British soldiers have spoken of the victories in Egypt as a Christmas present for the Allied nations. By their unselfish devotion to the democratic ideals, the soldiers of the British and Greek armies have given the pledge that the world is to be rid of the foul excrescences which have grown up on the fair continent of Europe. And the peoples themselves have given such a demonstration of their loyalty and willingness to sacrifice for the maintenance of freedom. The soldiers at home in Britain, the civilians, the workers and the countless numbers who serve in the work of rescue and other agencies, all deserve the encouragement due those who have sacrificed for the world's good. If ever men who fought in the clouds and served on the seas deserved victories it is the men of the Royal Air Force and of the British navy and the merchant marine.

The world is thankful at this time that the democracies of the world are in high spirit as to the outcome—victory, though it will come through sacrifice. The World is grateful that United States aid has been given and there are indications of greater assistance to come, which will make possible the earlier defeat of the enemy.

During this year the British Empire passed through a great crisis when she was left practically alone with the collapse of France though men of the other democratic nations are in her armies fighting for their ideal of democracy. Britain has faced the lightning war of the Hun and survived the nights and days of enemy air raids and has come through it with courage undaunted. Her people are thankful and so are the people of the Empire nations and the people of the democracies see a great light of hope because of what Britain has done with the Hun's invasion plans and with the attempt of a former ally, Italy, to break down Britain in the Mediterranean.

It is good to see that Britain more and more is creating hope in the subjugated lands under the enemy's heel.

Today through the Empire the people are co-operating to win the victory and will continue to expand their effort to the fullest extent. Their courage will make this possible.

This Christmas must be celebrated with gratitude that the institutions and the ideals of Britain are stronger while those of the Hun and the Fascist have been discredited in every field.

Trade Brisk On Shrapnel Bourse

When I offered the small boy two conkers which I had brought from the country, he looked at them carefully. "Got any shrapnel, guv'nor?" he asked.

One loses track with boy fashions, and I slunk away ashamed, for I had no shrapnel.

Subsequently I was able to attend (unofficially) a shrapnel exchange and mart.

Business was brisk. It went something like this:

"Give you these two bits for yourn."

"What, when mine's twice as long as what yours is!"

"Yus, but mine's 'igh explosive."

"It's all H. E. ain't it?"

"Course it ain't. You can tell mine's H. E. Look at the way it's been burnt up."

"Let's have a look. Don't believe it is shrap. You got that orf of a salvage dump."

"A'l right, then. Give you a bit of Jerry bomb for yourn."

"Let's 'ave a look. Garn, that ain't Jerry. It's a Mills from the last do."

A lad was offering some samples to a man. He looked them over, and then asked: "Got any shell caps?"

"'Ow much?" asked the juvenile.

"A bob if it's a good 'un."

Whereupon a shell cap was produced and the transaction completed.

I spoke to the boy. "What are you going to do with that money?" I inquired.

"Buy some fireworks, guv'nor", he answered heartily.—London Weekly Star.

Duce Faces Last Stand In Albania

By KIRKE L. SIMPSON

Washington, Dec. 17.—Fresh omens of disaster dog the retreating footsteps of Italian forces in Albania. Further Greek advances either in the northern sector where Elbasani is threatened, or in the south about Tepeleni could greatly increase the gravity of the Fascist Army's position.

The fall of Tepeleni is reported imminent in both Athens and London. Even a casual glance at a topographical map of Albania shows why collapse of the Italian defense there would mean not only loss of the port of Valona but possible Fascist evacuation of all Southern and South-Central Albania, if not all Albania.

Censorship withholds a detailed picture of the 100-odd-mile battle front in Albania. It cannot obscure however, the vital importance to Il Duce's defeat-shaken armies of retaining control of the ten-mile Tepeleni-Kilsure (Kelcyure) defensive bastion.

If they are not to be driven down into the low, rolling country of Central-Western Albania, the Tepeleni-Kilsure east-west gorge and its coastal offshoot in the heights about Chimara (Himara) must be held. If that line is cracked at Tepeleni, the collapse of the entire Italian right flank must follow. It seems doubtful the Fascist forces could escape northward from the Chimara-Valona pocket, which would be outflanked.

Peril in Evacuation

Evacuation by sea to rejoin Italian forces north of Valona might precipitate for the Italians a more bitter experience than the Franco-British escape from Dunkirk. There is no vast flotilla of Italian small craft to rush to its rescue as British boats went to Dunkirk. Anglo-Greek bombers have already rendered the Valona roadstead all but unusable for disembarking Italian reinforcements. Embarking a retreating army there would mean abandoning virtually all its fighting equipment but rifles and light machine guns.

Neutral eyewitness accounts say the Italians have been forced to anchor troopships several miles off shore at Valona and ferry men ashore in small boats. It is reported that no artillery or heavy mechanized equipment has been set ashore by that route since the first Greek-British bomb attacks.

Sea evacuation of the Italian right-flank forces, once the Chimara-Tepeleni-Kilsure line was broken, would be an invitation to disaster. With the Greeks knifing through the Tepeleni gap and sweeping behind them, Italian forces on that end of the battle line would be in a desperate plight.

It seems unquestionable that the Italian High Command has picked on the Tepeleni-Kilsure bastion as the logical pivot for a final defensive stand. It is naturally the strongest position available.

Face Difficult Task

That ten-mile stretch of narrow, rough country seems to be the key to defense against attack from the south on Central Albania and the approaches to the only major Albanian port, Durazzo. It stands athwart the path, dominating south-to-north interior roads.

Relief maps make clear the strength of the Italian position and the dificulties the Greeks must overcome to crack it. Unquestionably, however, a break through at Tepeleni would place the Greeks in position to outflank the Italians on both sides and would compel a hasty Fascist retreat on a wide front. It might even force Italy out of Albania entirely, fantastic as that still seems in view of the odds.

COUNTER-ATTACK

knowledged that freezing cold and snow-clogged passes had reduced the scale of Greek operations, but said the Greeks still were pushing the Fascist forces toward the sea.

A government spokesman made the only specific mention of points involved in the advanced fighting. He said Italians had been forced to retreat in the Dvinos Valley and failed in repeated attempts to oust Greek troops from newly-won positions on the Skivovik Heights.

26 Miles From Valona

(The Dvinos Valley extends along the road up which the Greeks have been advancing toward Tepeleni from Argirocastro. At Tepeleni, the road veers northwest and winds down through the foothills to Valona on the coastal plain, 26 miles away.

(The Skivovik Heights, among the highest peaks mid-way between Tepeleini and the coastal town of Chimara, dominate the flank of this advance and of a second Greek push up the coast toward Valona by way of Chimara.)

Sustain Heavy Losses

Testifying to the ferocity of the fighting, the spokesman said last night the Italians hurled seven counter-attacks against Greek positions on the heights.

In the Dvinos Valley, Italians fell back after suffering heavy losses and leaving 200 soldiers and one senior officer captives of the Greeks, he said.

On the northern front, where the Greeks are driving toward the mid-Albanian base of Elbasani from the Mountains near Lake Ochrida on the Yugoslav frontier, Italian positions were being shelled with ammunition taken from captured Italian supplies.

Man With a Time Bomb Hasn't Any Friends

There was a whistle somewhere off in the distance, then a thump, and the guest of honor looked up from his chop first, in eager interest, then, in puzzled embarrassment. His cheery tablemate instantly caught and appreciated his predicament—which amounts to this:

If any more crumps come tumbling down into Jermyn street, Mr. F. G. Leighton-Morris isn't going to be able to do anything more about them than any other bystander. London's only one-man bomb disposal squad is permanently out of business.

Mr. Leighton-Morris' friends and neighbors gave him a party to show their appreciation for his bravery in removing a time bomb that might have wrecked the apartment block in which he lives. They had taken up a collection for him and raised enough to pay his fine and to replace the clothes he had ruined while struggling down a steep stairway with the 250-pound crump. And he was pleased and happy about it all, though a bit bewildered, as who wouldn't be, after listening to the paradoxical comment of judges, lawyers and journalists and vacillating between a cot in a jail and a pedestal in a park.

Of course it's hardly necessary to repeat the story of Mr. Leighton-Morris. Some days ago a delayed action bomb fell on top of the flat building next to that which Mr. Leighton-Morris occupies. He crawled up onto the roof, let himself down into the hole, found the bomb, steered it to the attic door and manoeuvred it down into the street. There he was arrested for having interfered with a time bomb or some such thing.

He was taken before Magistrate Fry in Bow Street Court where he stood by modestly and heard himself fined £100.

You may recall the comment of the judge, but if you weren't there you'll have no memory of the amazed look on his face as he reviewed the evidence.

"You picked it up and carried it out," he repeated almost to himself. "You picked it up, and those things are quite dangerous—well, you acted with extraordinary coolness and courage. Your deed was magnificent and, of course, intolerable."

Incident Cited in Commons.

And Mr. Leighton-Morris had to let it go at that until Prime Minister Winston Churchill mentioned the incident in the House of Commons and the Home Secretary recommended to the magistrate that the fine be shaved down to £5, which amount his pleased neighbors raised as a "testimonial in gratitude to him for having risked his life."

Mr. Leighton-Morris came to the party modestly, almost shyly, and indicated that he would like to forget time bombs, police courts and similar horrors of war.

"It was all done on the spur of the moment," he said in a sort of cleanup statement about the whole affair. "I heard the thing come down and hit, and waited for it to go off. It was like the story of the man who sat waiting for the wooden legged man in the flat above to drop his second shoe. I got tired of waiting and went up to look. There it was—a pretty big one—lying right there on the attic floor.

"I had never had anything to do with time bombs before. But it seemed to me that the best procedure would be to get it out in the open some place where it wouldn't blow the house down if it went off. I knew there was a fuse on it somewhere. looked and found it. But that didn't mean anything either. I just left it as it was.

"So I picked it up. It never occurred to me that maybe the thing might belong to somebody, that anybody'd be sore because I took it. I couldn't figure anybody wanting it, I just juggled it a bit 'til I got it up in my arms and then carried it downstairs.

"I began to find out that when you're carrying a time bomb you haven't got many friends. I called to lots of able-bodied men to help me, but everybody I saw ran off and I was left there in the middle of the street.

"I knew I couldn't stay there. If the bomb went off in the street it might smash through the pavement and break up water mains and gas pipes. I figured I'd better take it out into the park somewhere. But it was a long walk to the park and the bomb weighed something like 250 pounds.

"I flagged a bus, but when the conductor saw me he pushed me off. He was very gentle about it but even so I almost let the thing fall on my foot.

"I signalled a couple of taxi-cabs. But the drivers were finicky too. One said, "what the hell!" Another just looked at me and drove away in a hurry. So I got both arms hooked around the thing again and leaned back to balance it and started for the park on foot. I hadn't gone more than a few steps when I ran into a policeman who made me lay the thing down in a sort of garden plot across the street. Then he made me run around the corner and after that he took me to jail.

"I'm glad it's all over and grateful to everybody who was kind to me and helped reduce my fine and everything, but I still can't see the reason for all the excitement. After all, somebody's got to remove the time bombs."

He was roundly applauded and the party was voted the best the neighborhood had seen in years. Everybody was present except the people who used to live in the flat that used to stand behind the garden plot where Mr. Leighton-Morris left the bomb.—Chicago News.

Food Into Munitions

There is a short answer to the plea which Mr. Hoover, former American President, has been making for the admittance of food as relief to occupied Europe. It is first that food and raw materials for munitions are interchangeable and second that the real benefit of relief shipments to Europe would accrue not to the occupied territories but to the Axis Powers.

It may be fanciful to suggest that London might one day be bombed by an airplane made out of milk and driven by potatoes, while the bombs themselves were filled with butter.

Yet our blockade has greatly intensified the pre-war German development of substitute materials, and milk today means plastics, potatoes provide power alcohol, and butter, like other fats is a well-known source of explosives.

While Germany might not appropriate the actual food which arrived in Mr. Hoover's relief ships she might well seize an equivalent quantity of other food, leaving the occupied territories no better off than before.

Ten shiploads of wheat would replace in food value 187,500 tons of potatoes. These could be converted into 16,875 tons of alcohol. This could be used for a number of purposes, thereby releasing about 11,000 tons of petrol. This would enable 500 airplanes to raid London every night for two months.

Ten shiploads of meat would yield 6,250 tons of fats and 600 tons of glycerine, which is important for blasting explosive, and for many industrial uses such as treating cloth and making plastics.

Ten shiploads of milk would make enough butter to replace 2,126 tons of margarine. This would release enough fats to make 1,850 tons of lubricating oil, or enough to lubricate fifty submarines on twelve journeys across the Atlantic.

The residue from the milk could be made into 1,500 tons of casein for plastics, and plastics can be used for making anything from ash trays to airplane parts.— London Times.

Method of Treatment of Varicose Ulcers

One of the mean ailments often found in hospital clinics is varicose ulcer. These patients are given complete rest for a time ,are strapped up from ankle to knee, require much time for dressings, and even when ulcer is healed, in a great percentage of cases it breaks down again and the time of the patient, physicians and nurses is again taken up in trying to get the ulcer healed.

What causes varicose ulcer? Varicose ulcer is due to weak veins. Just as one can inherit strong blood vessels—arteries and veins— so can one inherit weak vessels. Certain work, such as standing, causes varicose veins and ulcers, but Dr. Josephus C. Luke, Royal Victoria Hospital, Montreal, in the Canadian Medical Association Journal, points out that the tendency toward varicose veins is always present in these cases.

In order to save time of patients, nurses and physicians, Dr. Luke reports upon a method of treatment which combines most of the good points of other methods of treatment. This treatment consists of tying off of the great surface vein of the leg high up near the groin and then injecting hardening solution down the vein in lowest part of leg.

Dr. Luke had performed 146 such operations upon 128 patients during the previous sixteen months, 88 being for uncomplicated varicose veins and 58 in which a varicose ulcer was also present. These operations were performed under a local anaesthetic—patient not put to sleep—in the outpatient operating room, the patient returning home immediately after the operation. Dr. Luke describes the tying of the large vein and the injection of the hardening solution in detail.

What were the results following this method? "The healing of the long standing ulcers following this method is phenomenal. The pain is relieved immediately. Recent ulcers heal in a week and long standing ulcers in about six weeks". The patient is allowed to walk about at home for about a week and a strapping, applied following operation, is worn for about one month after ulcer is healed.

This method means that these varicose ulcer cases do not need hospital or clinic treatment which is a great saving in time and expense for all concerned.

Stewart Says—

Dies and Hoover Clashing Again On Spy Theories

By CHARLES P. STEWART

Central Press Canadian Columnist

J. Edgar Hoover

Washington—That Congressman Martin Dies' committee on investigation of un-American activities throughout the United States isn't overly popular with Chief J. Edgar Hoover's federal bureau of investigation is no secret in Washington. In strict confidence some state department officials also leak the information that they, too, regard Dies' revelations as a pest, from their standpoint.

It isn't that either the FBI or the state department objects to having the Texas congressman and his associated committeemen and assistants dig up all available facts relating to German, Italian, Japanese and other propaganda and espionage operations in this country. Contrariwise, the FBI, in particular, is appreciative of tips along these lines. Chief Hoover's preference, however, is to have such tips turned into his own headquarters, to be used as he deems desirable. He doesn't like having them broadcast promiscuously.

State Department Frowns

It's the typical detective's complex. The state department does not enjoy having its hand forced, either. It was getting along fairly well with German Charge d'Affaires Hans Thomsen. Now the Dies' committee turns its spotlight on Hans and all the German consuls general and consuls under him, as a bunch of Nazi espionage agents in our midst. It's hard to see how the department can continue treating them as diplomatically persona grata.

It appears to be the FBI's policy, when it locates a foreign propagandist or spy, not necessarily to swoop down on him, but rather to keep him under surveillance, unknown to himself, crabbing his game and finding out, through the unsuspecting chap himself, all about his organization.

Dies' theory is that the fullest possible publicity is the best possible anti-espionage and anti-propaganda weapon.

The proposition has its argumentative merits. It should be hard for a spy to go on spying or for a propagandist to go on propagandizing effectively after being widely advertised as a spy for a propagandist.

Clash of Policies

But Dies doesn't stop at reasoning, merely, that his publicity policy is better, practically, than the FBI's policy of mystery. He likewise intimates that the FBI is mysterious, in large part, because it doesn't know as much as his committee has found out—that it's mysterious concerning what's a mystery to itself, too. Naturally, this implication makes the FBI hot under the collar.

Furthermore, Dies insinuates that the state department ought to have known all about Hans Thomsen and his satellites long before now. Hence the state department's resentment.

The Dies committee hasn't mentioned it yet, but it's the general impression that German spying and propagandizing have been carried on (not only here but in Latin America likewise) far more energetically and openly than by the Italians.

The Germans, it's said, have proceeded on the assumption that boldness, in a fashion, was secretive. That is to say, their thesis has been that they could be so brassy that nobody would believe it.

Italians Less Bold

The Italians, by nature, aren't so intensive or so efficient. Anyway, they're not so distinctly on the pan as the Germans are.

Russian communism originally was more talked about in the United States than either nazism or fascism. That doubtless was because it got an earlier start in Europe than either of the other two. Years before Duce Mussolini and Fuehrer Hitler were invented, communism was under investigation by Washington's lawmakers.

Congressman Ham Fish probed the subject so far back that I've forgotten the date. He said that American Communists ought to be quarantined on an island I asked him, "Why an island?" "Oh, I've no especial brief," he said, "for an island, except that it would be convenient. Quarantined on the mainland. Quarantined on the mainland, they'd be oozing out everlastingly." "But why not kill 'em?" I queried. "Why, that would be brutal," Ham exclaimed. "If a man has a violently contagious disease, like smallpox, you have to quarantine him, but you don't kill him."

Communism still is a live subject but nazism is more so. Fascism is a bit less emphasized.

REV. T. H. H. HALL DIES SUDDENLY AT MAITLAND

Was Formerly in Charge of Herchimer Mission, Belleville, for Years Chaplain of H. & P. E. Regiment and One Time Chaplain of Trenton Airport

Brockville, Dec. 17—Suffering a heart attack at his residence at Maitland early on Sunday, Major the Rev. Thomas H. H. Hall, priest-in-charge of the Anglican mission of Augusta and a gentleman widely known throughout the diocese of Ontario for his earnest and devoted labors, passed away before it was possible for his wife, who was alone with him at the time, to summon medical assistance. Mr. Hall awakened his wife shortly after 2 o'clock, complaining of distress, and suggested certain remedies which she strove to apply, but before this could be done or a physician summoned, he had expired. News of his sudden passing brought grief to his parishioners throughout the mission, with whom he was most popular and in whose welfare he worked untiringly, as well as to many friends in Brockville, Prescott and in other parts of the diocese of Ontario. The Rt. Rev. John Lyons, Bishop of the diocese, was a caller at the mission house during Sunday afternoon.

The late Rev. Thomas Henry Hetherington Hall was a native of St. John's, Newfoundland, the date of his birth being February 19, 1875. He was a son of the late Rev. Dr. Thomas Hall, a leading clergyman of the former Congregational Church of Canada who became well known for his work in Newfoundland, eastern Canada and the United States, and his mother's maiden name was Martha Buchanan. Early in life he accompanied his parents to Canada and to Clayton, N.Y., where his father was stationed for some time, and his education was obtained in Toronto and Kingston, being designed to fit him for a business career. For some years he was engaged in commercial pursuits at Arden, Ont., where he reached a decision to enter the ministry of the Church of England in Canada, with which he had been identified since young manhood, and, accordingly, he entered Trinity College, Toronto, and in 1908 he was ordained to the diaconate of the Church of England at the same time as the late Rev. Rural Dean S. E. Morton, late of Brockville. In the following year he was advanced to the priesthood. His first station was the Bancroft mission, where he remained for five years, and thereafter he was successively in charge of the parishes of Bonarlaw, Newboro, Madoc and Merrickville, serving in the last-named parish for 11 years and becoming rural dean of Grenville. From Merrickville he was transferred to the Herchimer mission at Belleville, where he was also chaplain of the Trenton airport, and thence he went to Maitland four years ago.

Wherever the late Mr. Hall was stationed in the course of his ministry, he made many and firm friends and the church made progress, and this was fully as true of the Augusta mission as it was of his earlier charges. Notwithstanding the fact that he was not in the most robust health, he devoted himself untiringly to the advancement of his mission, which under his leadership almost reached a position of self-support, and to the welfare of his parishioners, the number of which visibly increased under his direction. During his incumbency at Maitland, the golden jubilee of St. George's Church, South Augusta, was observed in memorable services, and the parent St. James' Church at Maitland, one of the historic old buildings of the diocese, underwent extensive renovation and modernization.

His last official act was to perform a marriage ceremony at the mission house on Saturday evening, at which time he appeared to be in the best of health and in the most buoyant spirits.

In military life, Mr. Hall was known for years as the chaplain of the Hastings and Prince Edward Regiment of militia, holding the honorary rank of major, and it was his privilege to conduct a drumhead service for the members of that unit's 1st (Active Service) Battalion not long before its departure for overseas service last year. He had also officiated more recently at services at No. 30 military training centre here. He was a life member of Merrickville lodge, A.F. & A.M. and also a member of the Orange order.

Besides his wife, formerly Miss Mary Gertrude Williams, of Arden, Ont., he is survived by a family of four daughters and two sons. Mrs. Colin Finlayson, Ottawa; Mrs. J. C. Anderson, Almonte; Mrs. W. W. Baker, Hanover, Ont.; Miss Helen Hall, Reg. N., Toronto; Crawford Hall, Windsor; John Hall, attending the aircraft school at Galt, Ont. Not long since Mr. Hall visited the various members of his family throughout western and central Ontario. He is also survived by two sisters, Mrs. Charles MacCartney, Montreal, and Mrs. C. E. Southard, Rockland, Mass., and one brother, Charles Hall, Hong Kong.

The funeral service was held in St. James' Church, Maitland, on Tuesday afternoon at 2 o'clock (D.S.T.) with burial being made in the plot in the adjoining churchyard which Mr. Hall selected some time ago. Bishop Lyons was in charge of the service.

Victor Nicholson Dies at Kingston

Victor Nicholson, son of Thomas Nicholson, Kingston, and brother of Rt. Rev. J. F. Nicholson, V.G., pastor of St. Michael's Church, passed away early Sunday morning in the Hotel Dieu Hospital, to which he had been removed Saturday morning. Pneumonia was the cause of death.

Deceased was born in Kingston and had always lived there. He attended St. Mary's School and Regiopolis College and in the latter institution had taken a prominent part in athletics. He was a star hockey player in his school days and played on the famous 1914 Regiopolis team which went through to the junior finals. He had also been a baseball player of considerable ability with local teams.

The late Mr. Nicholson had been associated in business with his father, established many years ago in Kingston. He was one of the best known young men in the city and the news of his death Sunday was received with deep regret by his large number of friends. He was a member of Frontenac Council, Knights of Columbus, and was a member of the Fourth Degree.

He is survived by his wife, formerly Beatrice Brady, his father, Thomas Nicholson, two brothers, Rt. Rev. Monsignor J. F. Nicholson, M.C., V.G., of Belleville and Cleary of Kingston.

The funeral was from the residence of his aunt, Miss Corrigan, 188 Johnson Street, Tuesday morning to St. Mary's Cathedral where solemn Requiem Mass was sung at 9 o'clock. Interment was in St. Mary's Cemetery.

Lighthouse Tenders Taken From Posts

Point Traverse, Dec. 17.—Duck Islands lighthouse tenders have been removed from their posts and have arrived at their respective homes. Navigation for the season of 1940 has terminated.

The sturdy lighthouse tender Grenville under Captain Mathew Barry, who is experiencing his 37th season at bringing in the lights and "picking up" lighthousemen from their isolated station, experienced no difficulty in removing the light keepers from the Ducks the weather favorable and the lake tranquil.

Those to be taken off the Main Duck were —Keeper Wesley E. Thomas, Picton, Wm. Brooker, Assistant Keeper and Mrs. Brooker, Milford, and wireless operator Austin Smith. From the False Duck were Keeper K. A. McConnell and Assistant Keeper Everett Lancaster Black Creek.

Tenders from the Pigeon Island light were also removed by the Grenville and taken to Kingston.

SUCCEEDS LAVAL

In a surprise move Marshal Henri Philippe Petain, head of the French government, removed Vice-Premier Pierre Laval from his cabinet and replaced him with Pierre Etienne Flandin, ABOVE, former finance minister. Laval was the prime mover in the attempt to bring France into closer accord with the Rome-Berlin axis. Flandin is also believed to favor collaboration with Germany, and no change in France's foreign policy is expected immediately.

SPY FOR GERMANY IS EXECUTED

Was Tried at Same Time as Two Others Executed as German Agents on December 10th

London, Dec. 17—(CP)—A citizen of The Netherlands was executed at Pentonville Prison as a spy for Germany, the Home Office announced today.

His name was Charles Albert Van Den Kieboom, said to have been born at Takarumuka, Japan, Sept. 6, 1914.

The announcement said he was tried at the same time as two others executed as German agents Dec. 10, and had been associated with them.

Those executed Dec. 10, were identified at that time as Jose Waldberg, 25, German citizen and Karl Meier, 24, a Netherlands subject.

Their execution was the first for espionage to be announced in England since the start of the war.

British authorities said Waldberg and Meier apparently entered Britain under German instructions to pose as refugees.

They were said to have erected a special, German-assembled radio transmitter in the secluded countryside to send messages to Germany. The whole apparatus was described as so light it could be dismantled and carried in two black bags similar to camera cases.

The announcement of the execution of Van Den Kieboom said he, too, had a portable radio transmitting set.

His execution was delayed after his conviction, along with Waldberg and Meier last Nov. 22, because he gave notice of intent to appeal. He withdrew his application later.

BOMBS DROPPED

The government sought to determine from examination of the bomb fragments the nationality of the fliers responsible. The government reported 12 bombs fell in various parts of the city, several of them along the railway line.

Basel has been called the "turntable" of Switzerland because it is one of the main rail links between German, Alsatian and Swiss rail systems.

Bomb Strikes R. R. Tracks

One bomb smashed directly on the railway tracks after striking a corner of the main railway station. Long lines of cars were damaged and service was interrupted. A restaurant inside the station was wrecked.

Bombs also fell near the freight yard of Basel's second railway station on the northern side of the Rhine—the terminus for Southwestern German railway systems.

Pending the findings, Swiss asserted they believed British raiders had mistaken the black-out city on the German border for one of their Nazi objectives. In months past they pointed out, British planes had flown over Switzerland enroute to and from Italy, and several Swiss protests were sent to London. Bombs previously had been dropped in the vicinity of Geneva and on a railway near Lake Constance.

Tears Through Station

One bomb in the raids last night tore through the Central Railway Station, but there were no casualties.

A woman was killed as she ran across Winkelried Square toward an air raid shelter. Three other persons were killed in the suburb of Dininger.

An alarm sounded after airplane motors were heard. The all-clear did not come for more than an hour.

German anti-aircraft fire from across the Rhine joined in the din.

REPORTED INTERNED

According to a Reuters news agency dispatch, Crown Prince Humbert has been interned by Fascists in northern Italy. Prince Humbert has long been known to oppose Mussolini's policy, and has been named as a possible successor to Il Duce in ruling Italy.

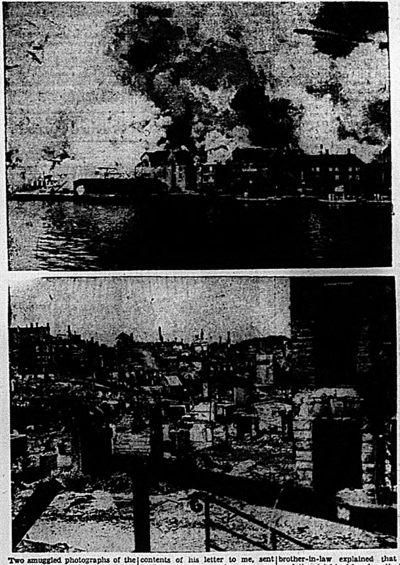
Smuggled Pictures Reveal How Nazis Blasted Kristiansund in Effort to Kill Haakon



Two smuggled photographs of the bomb destruction of Kristiansund (Fosna), a city of 17,000 population on the northwest coast of Norway, were brought to Los Angeles by Odd Jansen, seaman aboard a freighter. "My brother-in-law, whose name I cannot reveal for obvious reasons, took the photographs and smuggled them past the censor," Jansen explained. "He did it by sleight-of-hand. After the censor inspected the contents of his letter to me, sent to Poston three weeks ago, my brother-in-law was given the envelope back for sealing and stamping. It was then that he slyly placed the pictures in the envelope." The first letter from his brother-in-law contained a friendly note and the two photographs, Jansen explained. He said he was puzzled about the pictures until several days later when a second letter arrived. In this was another note and a second sheet of paper, on which the brother-in-law explained that he used the sleight-of-hand method to smuggle the pictures in, and that he was using it again to smuggle the explanation. The photographs show, LEFT, the entire city aflame, and RIGHT, the ruins 18 hours after the three-day bombing. Jansen said Kristiansund was made a wrathful target because the invading Nazis believed King Haakon was hiding somewhere in the city, although he had fled several days before.

The condition of the road's surface was the cause of the accident as each driver was unable to leave the icy ruts to avoid each other and saw that a crash was inevitable. Mr. Gordon's car didn't seem to suffer much damage but smashed both front fenders, headlights, radiator grill and radiator of Mr. Bonting's vehicle.

By GENEVIEVE KEMBLE

ALTHOUGH the planetary aspects make for a particularly lively and interesting state of affairs, there is also a most decided configuration making for cross purposes, perplexities and uncertainties. Things may pull two ways, one with expansion, promise and gratification and the other with stress, inhibitions and delays with elders and superiors opposing.

Those whose birthday it is may find themselves in a year in which their own cleverness, subtlety or strategem may avert some rather conflicting and dubious situations. Publication and all similar vocations flourish while secret avocations of confidential matters intellectual, dramatic and emotional facilities seek expression.

A child born on this day may have many talents of a creative quality leaning to art, music, literature or drama, which may have a subtle, distinctive or even sensational form. However, it will be practical and dignified.

BIG FISH FLOPS INTO BOAT

Kankakee, Ill., Dec. 17—(AP)—Duck hunters Fred Shea and Peter Verhage didn't bag any ducks, but a 25-pound Buffalo fish saw to it that they didn't return empty handed. The huntsmen said they saw the fish wedged between two cakes of ice in a river and, when they rowed out to investigate, the fish flopped into their boat.

GOOD MANNERS

MRS. CORNELIUS BEECKMAN

No Gift Required For Guest of Honor at Reception

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

I received the following invitation:

Mrs. John Harry Brown
Miss Mary Brown
honoring Mrs. James Gilman Brown on Tuesday afternoon, January the tenth from six until seven o'clock

1. As this will be my first attendance at such an affair, please advise me if this requires a gift.

2. I will, of course, wear my formal day dress. Must I keep my hat on?

3. What should I say to the hostess on entering? Also when leaving?

4. Must I remain the full hour?

L.

1. From the wording of this invitation, I see no reason for taking a gift. If it were to be a shower, it would mention the word and tell what type of shower. Apparently it is merely a party with a guest of honor.

2. Yes, you should keep your hat on.

3. When you enter you will undoubtedly find the hostesses standing near each other to receive the guests. Mrs. John Henry Brown will probably stand first in the receiving line and will greet you and shake hands with you. To her you might say something like this, "How do you do, Mrs. Brown. I am so happy to be here, and it was so nice of you to ask me to come to meet Mrs. James Brown." Then you greet Mrs. James Brown, if you know her, or Mrs. John Brown will introduce you if you don't. You tell her what a pleasure it is to meet her, and follow this up by any other pleasant comment.

When you leave you say goodbye to the hostesses and then to the guest of honor. Tell them what a happy time you have had, thank Mrs. John Brown for the invitation, and again tell the guest of honor what a pleasure it was to meet her.

4. You need not stay the full hour unless you so wish. But on the other hand, don't seem in such a hurry that you won't register your friendliness and enthusiasm for the party.

Addressing Envelopes

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

Is it proper to address an envelope being mailed to a baby of one years as "Miss', or is it better form to omit the title. Would you suggest that the envelope be addressed to the mother, and enclose another envelope addressed to the child? There is a street address, and the name is uncommon in this particular instance. I know that it is not customary to address young girls in person as "Miss" until they are sixteen years of age, but I do not know if this applies to writing.

2. What age must boys be to change from addressing them as "Masters" to "Mr." when sending gifts or greetings by mail?

V.

You may either enclose in an envelope addressed to the mother an envelope addressed with the baby's first name, or if you address an outer envelope to the baby, use the title Miss before her name. An envelope addressed to a Miss of any age, should carry the title before the name.

When a boy is fifteen or sixteen we should address letters to him as Mr. John Young.

Advice to the Lovelorn

Make Somebody Happy for Christmas

At the risk of being called a platitude-monger, I'd like to call your attention to the fact that the best way to forget one's own troubles is to try to make someone else happy.

You've all the world to choose from. Perhaps the person who isn't going to have any Christmas is the underprivileged child you see gazing into the window of a five-and-ten. There are all sorts of Christmas joyousness which may be bought for a dime or a nickle.

Or, again, the person you can make happy, by taking a little thought, may be some connection of your own family—some taken-for granted grandmother, old aunt, uncle or in-law whom no one bothers very much about as long as this family leftover has a roof and enough to eat. But a little inexpensive gift is going to make December 25 a really joyous Christmas for him or her.

As to your own family, please don't be like the lady of tradition who gave her husband a Persian lamb muff for a Christmas present. Give father something that he really wants, something that his care and forethought for his family has prevented him from buying. Please give mother something that will make her realize you think of her as still attractive, even if she shows her age.

It was my privilege once to see an aged lady open her Christmas parcels. She had once been a beauty, but the tooth of time had left her only a wreck of the loveliness that had made passersby stop and look.

Her granddaughter's Christmas gift was a box of beautifiers. It was probably not the most sensible of presents but the old lady looked at the creams, the lotions, the lipstick and sniffed the perfume. The old light of battle came into her eyes. She hardly glanced at the bureau silver and dressing sacques that the other grandchildren gave. But she made off to her room with her box of beautifiers and looked ten years younger for using them.

On a bitter Christmas Day, it was my experience to drive across the plains of Laramie in Wyoming. Never have I felt such marrow-searching cold. Suddenly our party was confronted with what seemed to be a mirracle. A tree in full-bloom, covered with red blossoms. We begged our driver to make a detour so we could have a closer look at the tree, blooming so bravely outside a little shack.

When we got there is was some sort of an evergreen, the branches of which bloomed with little snippets of turkey-red cotton, from the tree dangled several suet balls. My friend was for driving on, but my curiosity was aroused and I rapped on the door of the log cabin.

A very old woman welcomed us in, saying, "I just knew the Lord was going to send me someone to talk to on Christmas Day." Then she explained the tree. Of her seven children, five were living, but scattered the world over. And here was the old lady, full of the spirit of Christmas, determined to make the day happier. Her nearest neighbors were miles away. So the birds were to be her Christmas guests. She made the suet balls, tied the bits of cotton on the tree, and was happy in the thought she had at least made the birds happy.

She was happier too, when we decided to lift in our well-packed hamper and invite her to share our Christmas feast with us. Her contribution was coffee, good, hot and strong. I think all of us had a happier Christmas for stopping at the cabin and giving the old lady a chance to talk.

Mrs. A. McMullen Winner of Doll

The life-size doll, so kindly donated by Miss Annabel Docter, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Bertrum Docter, to the St. Julien Chapter I.O.D.E. netted the Chapter $118.20 from the sale of tickets on a draw. The entire proceeds realized from the sale of tickets will be used for the purchase of much needed clothing for unfortunate children in the bombed areas of Great Britain.

The draw was made by His Worship, the Mayor, Glencoe E. Thompson, who was especially invited by the Regent, Mrs. John Neate, to attend the regular weekly meeting of the Chapter last evening. The lucky ticket drawn was No. 378 and was held by Mrs. A. McMullen, 57 Bridge Street West.

The officers and members of the St. Julien Chapter I.O.D.E. wish to once more thank the public-spirited men, women and children who so generously helped toward the splendid results achieved for this very necessary work. Thanks are especially extended to Mr. Martin, Manager of F. W. Woolworth Stores' local branch, to Mel Book, Assistant Mgr. of Canadian Department Stores, and to Mr. George Forhan, Mgr. Belle theatre, who so generously co-operated with the Chapter.

CLAIM MOTORIST DRIVING 45 M. P. H. IN DEEP SNOW

AT THE McCARTHY

"Three Sons," Also "Panama Lady"

Two swell features, Edward Ellis of "A Man to Remember" fame, Kent Taylor, William Gargan, J. Edward Bromberg and Katherine Alexander, head a brilliant cast in the dramatic hit "Three Sons," now playing at the McCarthy Theatre in addition to the adventure hit "Panama Lady" co-starring Lucille Ball and Allan Lane. Latest Fox News events complete the program.

"Hot Steel"

Richard Arlen and Andy Devine in their newest comedy drama entitled "Hot Steel," also George O'Brien in "Racketeers of the Range" will be presented next at the McCarthy Theatre and during the Christmas holidays the super screen production "The Long Voyage Home," starring Thomas Mitchell, Ian Hunter and John Wayne is scheduled for showing at the McCarthy Theatre.

AT THE CAPITOL

"Son of the Navy"

One of the season's brightest comedies now showing at the Capitol theatre, with Jean Parker and James Dunn in the starring roles. It is Monogram's "Son of the Navy" and features young Martin Spellman in the title role.

The main situation is one that calls for an abundance of laughs, and they certainly are forthcoming. Young Tommy Burns runs away from the orphanage so he can "adopt" a mother and father. His choice falls on Mike Malone (Dunn) and Steve Moore (Jean Parker), but the catch is that these two hate each other thoroughly. Mike, a navy officer, is in wrong with his shipmates because they won't believe him when he says Tommy is not his son, and refuses to have anything to do with the boy. Every time the situation shows signs of clearing up, Steve steps in and spoils it for Mike.

Laughs result every time Mike and Steve meet, and to add to this fun fest, there is Tommy, and his efforts to make the navy believe that Mike is his father without actually lying about it.

Jean Parker, who has been afflicted with sweet, girly-girly roles since the beginning of her screen career, takes to comedy like a duck to water. She has never been better than in this role of a girl who hates sailors and winds up marrying one.

James Dunn is excellent in his part of the frustrated Mike Malone, to whom troubles never come singly.

"The Longest Night"

A mystery comedy the added attraction with an all star cast including Robert Young, Florence Rice, Ted Healy, Julie Haydon and Catherine Doucet. Action, thrills, suspense and laughter from start to finish. Don't miss it.

AT THE BELLE

"Abe Lincoln in Illinois"

Local theatre-goers are presented the opportunity of studying a portrait of America's famous "martyred President" as he truly may have existed in flesh and blood, in the screen version of Robert E. Sherwood's celebrated Pulitzer Prize play, "Abe Lincoln in Illinois," which is now on the Belle Theatre screen. And they may see Raymond Massey's masterful creation of the Lincoln figure, a portrayal which won him nation-wide recognition during the Broadway run of the successful stage play presented by Max Gordon and Harry M. Goetz.

Here at last, one feels, is the real Lincoln!

Instead of the calm individual, presented as a demigod, far above ordinary human emotions, we are shown a fascinating picture of a truly human figure, a shy, lonely, irresolute figure, often afraid to trust his own judgment, sorrowfully aware of his lack of formal education, alternating between high ambition and fits of despondency, yet always burning with a hatred of hypocrisy and a love of justice.

This innately contradictory character makes a fascinating dramatic study, and Mr. Sherwood's own adaptation of the material of his great play has brought it into the major proportions permitted by the screen's fuller scope.

The story covers more than thirty years of Lincoln's life, from his awkward adolescence in the Illinois backwoods to the fateful time when, about to be inaugurated as President, he leaves Springfield for the Capital. And in that span it crowds a lifetime of gripping, absorbing entertainment that makes it easily one of the finest pictures ever produced anywhere, and a picture every American should see.

Contributing to the success of this notable film must be counted, first after Mr. Sherwood's splendid play material, the remarkably sympathetic performance of Mr. Massey—a performance which has been cited as in the front rank of contemporary character portrayals.

Contributing greatly, too, is the generous scope of the production for RKO Radio made by Max Gordon, and the noteworthy supporting cast which numbers thousands and counts some thirty-odd principals in its leading roles. Featured among these are Gene Lockhart, Ruth Gordon, Mary Howard, Dorothy Tree, Harvey Stephens, Minor Watson and Alan Baxter.

"Street of Memories"

One of the screen's most unusual love stories is told in "Street of Memories" with Lynne Roberts, Guy Kibbee and John McGuire. Others in the fine featured cast of the new 20th Century-Fox film announced as the companion feature attraction, include Ed Gargan, Hobart Cavanaugh and Jerome Cowan.

Highlight of the Belle News of the Day are the first pictures of the Bombing of Coventry, and British Warships battle Italian bombers at sea, filmed at the height of the fray, and other World News Events.

Lucille Ball and Allan Lane in a scene from "Panama Lady," which is now playing at the McCarthy Theatre in addition to Edward Ellis and an all-star cast in the dramatic hit "Three Sons."

GIVE HER GOTHAM GOLD STRIPE

PAGEANT GIVEN BY O.S.D. PUPILS

Presented With Great Beauty and Reverence in School Auditorium

The annual Christmas pageant of Ontario School for the Deaf was presented with great beauty and reverence last evening by the senior pupils of the school in the auditorium, before an appreciative audience of Belleville and Trenton residents.

The entertainment was wholly in keeping with the season of Christmas being the Nativity Pageant which portrayed in tableau form the great events in the coming of the Infant Jesus. The lighting effects, the costumes, the devout attitude of the children taking part and the beautiful carols sung by the teachers made the pageant one of deep and touching significance, bringing to mind the real spirit and true meaning of Christmas.

Two little girls, dressed in medieval costume, accompanied by a lantern bearer, represented Christmas waiting on the stage before the opening of the pageant. The girls sang carols, keeping the melody in perfect style. This was possible through the fact that both these singers once had their speech before losing their hearing and were thus able to sing on key.

Story of Pageant Read

The story of the pageant was read by Mr. Clifford Ellis, while the fifty-five senior academic pupils presented the Nativity Pageant. This was in five scenes, the Annunciation, the Hills of Judea, No Room at the Inn, King Herod's Court and the Nativity scene. The lighting effects were supervised by Mr. Alec Gordon, who also acted as pianist for the music which played an important part in the pageant. Use was made of the centre aisle of the auditorium, the people who came to pay their taxes at Bethlehem, the Wise Men visiting King Herod, the shepherds seeking the Saviour and finally the angels, coming in procession to the stage.

Final Scene Lovely

The final scene depicting the Nativity was very lovely, the stage being in tones of blue and purple with purple lights playing on the tableau. For this and other scenes the choir of teachers made a perfect musical setting, while the music of the shepherd's pipe was an interesting innovation. The group about the crib with Mary, beautiful in her lovely blue draperies, and the four tiny cherubs, who with two others composed the group of six juniors who took part in the pageant, the shepherds, the Kings, striking in their colorful raiment, made an unforgettable picture. A choir of angels, with twenty-six girls taking part, entered from the back of the hall for the "Adeste Fidelis" chorus and the final tableau of the program.

A Ten-Minute Hand Beautifier

Try a ten-minute home manicure.

By HELEN FOLLETT

SUPPOSE that new number you met at the party last week calls you up late in the afternoon, wants to take you out to dinner and a dance, and you haven't time for a manicure. Been fussing around with closet shelves maybe or doing other work that has put your hands completely out of form.

Here are directions for a ten minute clean up of the pink sheaths on your pretty fingers:

File them before you soak them; they won't be as soft then You will need a long, flexible, finely cut file of first quality steel. Work from sides to center. Run the orangewood stick under the nail eave, use a beveling file of emery board to remove shags.

Good Nail Brush

Into the wash bowl for a good scrubbing with soap suds and a brush. Dry, apply oil or cuticle cream to the nails, work up the cuticle, so it is detached from the nail substance. If a hangnail shows up get busy with the curved, needle point scissors. Don't press the cuticle back at the base; there is a chance of injuring the matrix, and a deformed nail may result.

Clean the eaves with a nail white pencil or use peroxide with the orangewood stick. Wash the hands again. Lay on the ruby polish or whatever color strikes your fancy.

Beauticians are always offering new ideas to the cash customer. A famous specialist is using an electric mask. A plaster cast is made of the face, the electrician gets in his mechanical work and there you are.

The complexion is anointed with fragrant, skin-smoothing oils. The mask is placed and adjusted, the current turned on. The lubricant is fairly cooked into the skin.

It is claimed that the results are most satisfactory. Pore deposits are softened, circulation stimulated coloring improved.

Fashion Flashes

NO MATTER what the current evening silhouette may be, the princesse line is always smart. It is used for a lovely frock of grey stain, high-waisted, the skirt falling in graceful folds. There is an enormous bow-knot of rose sequins appliqued on the skirt. The low-cut bodice is folded over and edged with the sequins. Shoulder-length mitts of matching grey satin.

THERE'S FLATTERY galore in the new hats. Consider the charms of a tiny, forward-titled sailor made of pale pink feathers, its tiny brim faced with black velvet. A sweep of black coq feathers over the hair in back.

ITS EASY to spot the winners in the southern resort clothes field. Score a triumph for an ensemble with fitted full-length coat of shepherd's check fine woolen in green and gold. Cuffs and notched revers, the latter edged with the coat fabric, are of gold crepe to match the simple shirt-waist frock. Gold crepe covered buttons at the snug waist of the coat.

YOU'LL BE SEEING plenty new different evening coats this season. To wear with simple black evening things, one house shows a coat of white woolen, cut on Cossack tunic lines, snug at the waist, full and rippled in the knee-length skirt.

NEVER TOO MANY of those casual little daytime frocks for southern wear. A smart shirt-waist model is of fine white wool crepe spattered with navy blue coin dots. The knife-pleated skirt is banded in dark blue. The bodice revers are edged with dark blue bands.

JUST REACHED to the edge of a pair of short shorts is a fitted coat of white flannel bound with two narrow rows of blue flannel. The binding edges, the notched revers, the hem, the cuffs and the slanting pocket flaps.

When a contestant throwing a ball hits a target mounted on the tail of a mechanical donkey invented by a Philadelphian for amusement parks the donkey kicks a prize into the thrower's hands.

Feels Like Different Person Since Syntona Built Her Up

Was Subject to Severe Nervous Disorders, Lightheaded, Dizzy Spells and Headaches. Suffered with Stomach Pains, Gastritis and Acidity After Every Meal.

Nervousness and sleeplessness are among the most distressing of all symptoms of a rundown condition of the system. The causes are often so elusive that it is hard to get any one to understand that there is any real reason for complaint. To make matters more irksome, the sufferer must often listen to much useless advice from others who were never really sick in their whole lives, while some will even say that the condition is just imagination. But those who have experienced this condition know that it is very real, indeed. Syntona has proved to be a real blessing in many such cases. Here, for example, is the interesting experience of Mrs. Mary Cage, 5 Elgin St. Hamilton, as reported only recently:

"Four years ago I had a nervous breakdown and ever since that I was subject to such nervous spells that I didn't know what I would do. I could not get my proper sleep. I frequently felt lightheaded and dizzy and I was always having headaches. Although I would have hunger pains, the least bit of food I ate soured in my stomach and caused gas, cramps and belching.

MRS. MARY CAGE

More often I couldnt' keep food on my stomach at all. My tongue was coated and my skin was rough and sallow.

More often I couldn't keep food on I didn't have a single one of those nervous or dizzy spells up to the present time. By the time I had taken seven bottles I was feeling like a new woman. I was able to eat regular meals without all that stomach trouble. I slept well and my whole system was improved. It is certainly a great relief and I will be glad to have others know. Whenever I feel that trouble coming on again I will surely try Syntona first."

Syntona is now being introduced in Belleville at DOLAN THE DRUGGIST. Go there today and find out how this new Herbal Compound can help you, too.

Caring for First Baby A Real Job

By Garry Cleveland Myers, Ph.D.

I often think about the young mother who gets nervous about bringing up her first baby. It is so precious and she is so eager to care for this infant and guide it, and so fearful that she might make serious mistakes and "mar the tender little thing forever," that she may suffer a vast deal of anxiety.

She knows that her relatives and friends are watching her, and are probably over-generous with advice. They assume she doesn't know anything about a baby, and she feels that they are very critical for her. Even her husband may be critical.

Then she probably has read much and heard many lectures about the training of the baby, some of which are conflicting and confusing, even terrifying.

Endless Work

In addition to the care of the infant she has her household obligations. Sometimes she hardly knows how she will get through with all her work. If she does not keep everything about the house in order there will be some one to criticize her housekeeping; and she never knows when some of her most fastidious friends might drop in and find everything a mess.

Then she may have her sleep broken at night, looking after the baby, hearing every stir he makes, even in her sleep. The more her sleep is shortened or impaired at night, the more impossible her job by day appears to her to be. She grows still more nervous. As a result, it grows harder for her to fall asleep at night, especially when awakened several times in the same night. All too often it may happen that before she is able to master herself and calmly meet the problems with the first baby another will be coming!

Get Husband's Help

Now to be objective, let me entreat the young mother to keep her head. Try first to win your husband's confidence and cooperation. When he helps you with things about the house show real appreciation; so also when he helps in the infant's care. Be sympathetic with his blunders. He will learn. Set the stage so he will do more and more in the baby's care, by night and day.

Go on reading and hearing lectures, accepting only what seems sensible and workable. Listen courteously to the advice of your relatives and friends but use only what you choose to use. Plan what you are going to do and stick to it

Do make up your mind that you and your baby are many times more important than the house or how it looks. Grow calloused to what others might say or think of your housekeeping. Choose rather that they will discover that you are a good mother of a healthy, happy, well-trained child and do take care of yourself.

Solving Parent Problems

G. Do you think 40 minutes of piano practice a day too long for a child 11 years old?

A. I do. Twenty minutes without fail at the same time every day would be safer and more effective for most children.

Q. My daughter eight years old bolts her food and hurries out to play.

A. Eat leisurely yourself. Have interesting conversation the child will enjoy. Let your child know she may not leave the table till the end of twenty minutes. Say nothing about her eating fast.

PRESENTATION

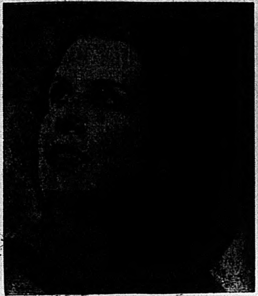
On Monday night, Dec. 9th, a large gathering of friends and neighbors met at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Herbert Howes, Carmel, to honor their daughter Ruby (who was recently married) with a miscellaneous shower. Ruby will be greatly missed in the community, where she has always lived. She was a faithful attendant at Sunday School and Y. P. S. meetings and was ever ready to help in the work. At the time of her marriage, she was pianist for the church

After the guests had spent an hour or more in social intercourse, Mr. Seldon Homans was called on to act as chairman. The program consisted of community singing led by Mrs. B. Clarke of which the final number was "There'll Always be an England"; piano solos by Miss Bernice Robinson, Mrs. Don Williams and Miss Ruth Brintnell; guitar duet by the Misses Evelyn and Ethel Fox; violin and piano, Mr. and Mrs. Merle Robinson; song by Miss Marion Sills, while Mr. Merle Robinson favored with two songs; a humorous reading was given by Mrs. Ben. Clarke which caused much laughter. The numbers were all thoroughly enjoyed. Then Miss Hazel Hicks read an address signed on behalf of the community by Mrs. Percy Reynolds, Miss Ruth Brintnell and Miss Hazel Hicks, to which Ruby and Harold responded. All joined in singing—"For they are Jolly Good Fellows" after which they unwrapped the presents which were brought in a large clothes basket. There were so many gifts the young ladies had to make a number of trips before they were all brought in.

Afterwards lunch was served and about midnight all left for their homes after wishing Ruby and Harold every success in their new home.

PRESENTATION

On Thursday, December 5th, about one hundred friends and neighbors gathered at the home of Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Preston in honour of their son Fred and his bride who were recently married. At twelve o'clock an address was read by Helen Cox, signed by Warren Arbuckle and Harry Cronk.



To brown-haired, blue-eyed Mary Howard, fell one of the prize screen roles of the season, when she was chosen to play Ann Rutledge in the screen version of the drama "Abe Lincoln in Illinois," with which the author, Robert Sherwood, won the Pulitzer prize for plays. Raymond Massey, distinguished Canadian actor, plays the title role, now at the Belle Theatre.

Dr. Dafoe's Column on the Quintuplets and the Care of Your Children

Meat and Blood Pressure

A question I am often asked is whether eating meat is a cause of high blood pressure. Salt is another food often connected in the lay mind with high blood pressure. One often hears that both salt and meat are bad for kidneys and that men have given up eating meat because they believed it was bad for rheumatism.

It's my observation that these ideas, at least as far as most of us are concerned, are more superstitions than truths. The superstitions stem from the fact that high blood pressure isn't properly understood by the public at large.

High blood pressure isn't a disease in itself, although it may be a symptom. I have known men to go for years with a high blood pressure and not realize it. Then, one day they were examined, they learned they had an abnormally high blood pressure. With the result they became panicky and, worried, proceeded to do everything to make the blood pressure higher, and really dangerous.

If meat eating gave mankind high blood pressures, then the Eskimos would be the highest in the world. If meat gave you rheumatism, then every Eskimo would have it. Yet examinations at medical stations in the Arctic regions show they are singularly free from these ailments, although they eat meat almost exclusively.

When a person eats a lot of meat, his kidneys are called upon to take care of a lot of nitrogen waste. If the kidneys are healthy and functioning well, there won't be any trouble about this. If they aren't, then something may go wrong because those nitrogen products must be gotten rid of or the person won't be healthy. If they go wrong, the meat can't properly be considered the basic cause of the trouble.

Once when I told a man who wrote to ask if meat would cause high blood pressure about the all-meat diet of most Eskimos, he wrote back to ask me if it were not possible that the Eskimos all had high blood pressure. I had to reply that it was possible that they have. But that if they have, they don't know it, and if they don't know it, they are just as well off as if their blood pressure was normal.

The point is, high blood pressure alone isn't serious. It is only when the condition occurs in an adult or youth with a weak heart or diseased kidneys or some similar ailment that there is any cause for alarm.

I doubt if the quantity of salt used in the ordinary diet is enough to do any harm to the blood pressure. As far as meat and rheumatism are concerned, the term rheumatism is too general for one to give an opinion. Sometimes people speak of arthritis as rheumatism, and meat is often valuable in the treatment of arthritis. Of course, meat isn't prescribed in gout, which may also be known as rheumatism. But I haven't seen an honest goodness case of gout in years.

COLLEGE HILL GROUP

The College Hill Group held their last meeting of the year Tuesday afternoon with Mr. Burley, the president in charge. The meeting was opened with a hymn and prayer by Rev. E. Farnsworth. The secretary's and treasurer's reports were given, and it was moved and seconded that they be accepted.

Mrs. Thompson reported on Red Cross work.

The following officers were elected for the year 1941:—

President, Mrs. Burley; Vice president, Mrs. Thompson; Secretary, Mrs. Cooke; Treasurer, Mrs. Bird.

The various committees were then chosen. Twelve members responded to the roll call. After a dainty lunch had been served the meeting closed with the Mizpah Benediction.

Injection Treatment of Hernia in Old People

All physicians have patients consult them regarding a hernia or rupture. In nearly all cases the patient being well and strong, operation means getting rid of a truss. Even though the truss has been comfortable and has held the rupture safely it is nevertheless a mental hazard with a great many patients.

Fortunately, with the discovery of safe and effective solutions for injecting hernias, this method makes operation unnecessary in about one-third of all cases.

Some older patients with hernia who have perhaps worn a truss for 30 to 40 years and have never liked the idea of operation may be wondering whether the injection method is suitable in old cases or in old individuals.

Dr. L. Manoil, New York, in Archives of Surgery, Chicago, presents some figures regarding the injection method. During the period between February 1936 and February 1939, 158 hernias in 123 patients (some with hernia on both sides) were treated by the injection method in Dr. Manoil's clinic. Ninety-two percent of these cases were between 41 and 90 years of age. The hernia returned in 26 patients or about 16 per cent of this group and five patients were operated on after injection, making total failures about 20 per cent. In the fifteen patients between 11 and 40 years of age, no hernias returned. There were no infections and no deaths.

From the above figures showing that four of every five older patients were cured by the injection method, Dr. Manoil believes the injection method should be used in older patients who are considered poor surgical risks, and because of their state of nutrition, or other condition present. It should also be used in younger patients who refuse operation but are willing to undergo the injection method even though it takes weeks and months to bring about a cure.

The above cases included every form of hernia, most of which had existed for many years. All of these cases can be helped provided the hernia can be easily put back into the abdomen.

In addition to the hardening solution injected, a well fitting truss must be worn day and night till the complete number of injections have been given. The injections last from 6 to 8 weeks, two to three being given weekly.

Picton and District

Picton, Dec. 17 (Special)—The Sailing Division of Prince Edward Yacht Club held a banquet at the Globe Hotel to mark the end of the season and present several trophies. Reports given indicated that the past season had been the best in the club's history. Included among the successful events staged was the Eastern Yachting Circuit regatta, an international event.

During the evening Rear Commodore Herb Daubney presented the William A. Rogers trophy to Arthur Goodwin and the Mayor Nesbitt McKibbon trophy to Lloyd Van Dusen. The Merton Gibson Memorial trophy was presented to Clifford Seeley by Ralph Warren. A presentation was made to the youngest sailor, Billy Cooper, by Bert Tully.

Short addresses were given by Charles McGibbon, Harold Knapman and Elmer Huff. Fred Walden sang a much appreciated solo and Clifford Abraham baffled the guests with feats of magic.

Warden James Rutter, who has been Q.M.S. of 'D' Company at Wellington and Orderly Room Sgt. T. A. Sills of the same Company, are retiring to civilian life as a result of changes announced in the plan of training. Both have been popular members and have done much to enable the Company to reach a high standard of efficiency. Following the regular drill, the non-commissioned officers, twenty in all, paraded to the home of Warden Rutter and enjoyed a social time. During the evening they presented the guests of honor with cigarette cases with the regimental crest. An address was read by L.C. Grant, while the presentations made by L.C. J. Hitchings and L.C. J. McNeill. Capt. W. A. Davern, O.C. of the Company, spoke in appreciation of the work of the two men. Community singing was enjoyed and refreshments served.

Quite a number of men at the local Bombing and Gunnery School are being entertained in local homes each Sunday. Members of the various churches are inviting men to enjoy their hospitality. A number have already made arrangements to entertain men at Christmas.

Good King Wenceslas

Good King Wenceslas look'd out
On the Feast of Stephen,
When the snow lay round about,
Deep and crisp and even;
Brightly shown the moon that night,
Tho' the frost was cruel,
When a poor man came in sight,
Gath'ring winter fuel.

"Hither, page, and stand by me,
If thou know'st it telling,
Yonder peasant, who is he?
Where and what his dwelling?"
"Sire, he lives a good league hence,
Underneath the mountain;
Right against the forest fence,
By St. Agnes' fountain."

"Sire, the night is darker now,
And the wind blows stronger;
Fails my heart, I know not how,
I can go no longer."
"Mark my footsteps, my good page,
Tread thou in them boldly:
Thou shalt find the winter's rage
Freeze thy blood less coldly."

In his master's steps he trod,
Where the snow lay dinted,
Heat was in the very sod
Which the saint had printed:
"Therefore, Christian men, be sure,
Wealth or rank possessing,
Ye who now will bless the poor,
Shall yourselves find blessing."

Detroit's Brown Bomber Blasts Al McCoy Out of His Path With Technical Knockout In Sixth

Long Layoff for Champion Causes Him to Miss With Both Hands

McCOY OUTWEIGHED

Louis Not Impressed With Challenger's Ability to Punch

By BILL KING
Associated Press Sports Writer.

Boston, Dec. 17 (AP)—Heavyweight champion Joe Louis appeared convinced that idleness breeds nothing but rustiness as he prepared today to undertake the long series of monthly title defenses mapped out for him for the remainder of the indoor boxing season.

The Brown Bomber, just back from the fourth lengthy vacation he has given himself since he gained his title from Jimmy Braddock in 1937, renewed his fistic operations against the much smaller Al McCoy, of Boston, last night before a 13,334 crowd at the Boston Garden.

It took the iron-fisted champion, who had a weight advantage of more than 21 pounds, five rounds to damage McCoy, an overstuffed light heavyweight, to the point where the challenger's handlers decided he had taken enough punishment thereby giving Louis a technical knockout verdict.

Twice during the abbreviated engagement, originally listed for 15 rounds the champion, who weighed 202 1-4 to McCoy's 180 3-4, did land his famed right fist in bone-crushing fashion.

Both of those blows were decidedly effective. The first one, in the opening round, gave McCoy a severe shaking up and the other, unleashed in the fifth, put the challenger's left optic out of commission for the time being.

"That McCoy gave me plenty of trouble with his bobbing and weaving," Louis continued. "He moved around so much that I had trouble landing my right. Then I had to try to left jab him and I know I missed plenty of those blows, as anyone would after a long absence. McCoy may not be able to punch, but he sure can make you look bad."

WINS AGAIN

Joe Louis, who easily defeated Al McCoy by technical knockout in sixth round of 15-round bout at Boston last night.

THURIER IS BEST N. H. L. ROOKIE TO SHOW THIS YEAR

Instructed in Finer Points of the Game When a Kid by Aurel Joliat

SMASHING DEBUT

Started With Americans and Scored Two Goals in His First Start

(By The Canadian Press)

One night a half-dozen years ago a little fellow wearing a black peak-cap took aside a youngster on the ice at the Montreal Forum, home of the National Hockey League Canadiens, and started to explain to him a few of the finer points of the game.

The little fellow was Aurel Joliat who has been out of N.H.L. play for a couple of seasons now but who came to be known as one of hockey's greats in his long years of service with the Flying Frenchmen. The youngster was Alf Thurier, one of large group of 'teen age players attending a Canadiens' "school".

Joliet took a liking to the way Thurier handled himself under the watchful eyes of a number of Canadiens' officials and went out of his way after that to give the youngster tips. The "school" idea didn't prove much of a success for it was dropped the next season but Canadiens placed Thurier with an amateur team in Montreal.

Somehow or other Thurier slipped away from Canadiens, which is something they likely regret now. For the slender youngster from Granby, Que., bobbed up in the National Hockey League the other night and made a smashing debut.

Scored Two in First Start

Playing with New York Americans in his first big league start Thurier scored two goals against the Rangers as his team lost 6-3. Another youngster, Freddie Hunt, who had been brought up with Thurier from Springfield Indians of the American League, assisted in all three goals.

They made a big hit with the fans at Madison Square Garden and they'll be on hand again tonight as the Americans seeking to get out of the cellar, play Detroit Red Wings. If they do as well against the Wings as they did against Rangers it's a safe bet that Manager Red Dutton will be satisfied.

One other game is scheduled for tonight, with the league-leading Toronto Maple Leafs taking on Boston Bruins in Boston. The Leafs will be seeking to stretch their winning streak to nine straight games.

Grandma, at 80 Is Good Bowler

Toronto, Dec. 17—(CP) — Mrs. Charlotte Faragher, of Toronto, white-haired, slight, 80 years young is an enthusiastic exponent of bowling. And she's no mean trundler herself, either.

Disproving that old bromide about youth being full of sport and age's breath being short, writes Bobby Rosenfeld in The Globe and Mail, Mrs. Faragher didn't take a bead on the headpin until she was 65. Since there has been no more devoted player on the alleys.

Every Tuesday she can be found at a local bowling club trying for strikes and spares with fellow members of the North Toronto Business Ladies' Club. Since taking to the pastime, she has missed but one meeting and that because of an injured ankle.

Turned 80 Dec. 4 this year, she laughed when asked if her years did not warn her away from exercise.

"Some of the other girls complain that they can hardly walk upstairs after the season's first day's bowling, but I don't find it any trouble at all."

What's more she's not a "stiffy" old lady, but delights in being in the midst of the tumult and shouting that surrounds her Tesday afternoon club.

Right now, Mrs. Faragher is busily engaged knitting socks for the Canadian Red Cross.

HERBIE MORTIMER GREAT IN GOAL FOR MARLBOROS

Takes Team to Top of Standings in Senior O.H.A. Race

OSHAWA LOSES

G-Men in Fourth Place After Being Defeated by Port Colborne 7-6

(By The Canadian Press)

Herbie Mortimer has gone a little short on publicity this season, but today Toronto Marlboros are riding along on top of the Ontario Hockey Association Senior "A" series and net-minder Mortimer is one of the most tangible reasons for their success.

Herbie had a trifle of trouble late in the game as Marlboros took over the lead last night with a 5-3 victory over Brights at Niagara Falls, but his work throughout the contest was brilliant, as it has been all season. In the other game, Port Colborne Sailors upset Oshawa Generals 7-6.

Before the Marlboros started actual workouts this season, Goalie Baz Bastien was setting the Toronto Maple Leaf training camp on fire. But he can't nudge Mortimer out of his position, which may be an illustration of just how good Herbie really is. Bastien has played a few games for Marlboros this year, but Mortimer has got the call for most of them. Marlboros goal average is second in the league only to that of St. Catharines. Marlboros made no mistake about the way they beat the Brights. Three goals in the first period and two in the second gave the Toronto club a 5-0 lead before Niagara Falls scored their first goal.

Johnny Inglis scored twice for Marlboros, with Ed Shamlock, Eddie King and Drummond getting the others. Bobby Walter, Obs Heximer and Cooper got the Niagara Falls goals, two of them in the final period.

There were three three-goal men in the hectic contest at Port Colborne. McLeod and Concessi bagged three each for Port Colborne, with McKelvie getting the other. Tisdale scored a trio for Oshawa. Cooper, Durling and Daniels got one each.

Hamilton and Niagara Falls now are tied in second place, one point behind Marlboros. Oshawa is fourth, St. Catharines fifth, Port Colborne sixth and London trailing. Four points separate the first five teams.

LONGEST HITTING STREAK OF YEAR GOES 23 GAMES

Joe DiMaggio of Yankees Earns Award and Also Hitting Title With .352

APPLING SECOND

Boston and Detroit Tied for Club Batting Title With .286

Chicago, Dec. 17—(AP)—Baseball fans have known since the season's close that jolting Joe DiMaggio of New York Yankees won the 1940 American League batting championship—but the official circuit hitting averages released today, provide some interesting data on how the big outfielder won his second straight hitting title.

He took the championship with an average of .352 in 132 games after a fine September performance which saw him pass both Rip Radcliff of St. Louis, who held the lead most of the season and Luke Appling, Chicago White Sox shortstop. Appling finished with a mark of .348, good for second place, while Ted Williams of Boston slipped in ahead of Radcliff with a mark of 344 to Radcliff's .342.

DiMaggio, hitting brilliantly in the late season when pitchers normally are the toughest, also had the longest hitting streak of the year for the league, going through 23 games without getting the "horsecollar."

Among DiMaggio's 179 hits for the year were 31 home runs, one more than his 1939 total. He also had a total base figure of 318 and made 28 doubles and nine triples. His batting mark of .352, however, was 29 points under the brilliant .381 which gave him the 1939 batting crown.

Boston and the pennant-winning Detroit Tigers tied for the club batting title at .286. Two of Detroit's big guns were well up front in the individual race, Henry Greenberg and Barney McCosky each averaging .340 to tie for fifth place.

Greenberg, voted the league's most valuable player through a season in which he played the outfield after years at first base, took the honors for home runs, making 41.

Williams led in runs, scored 134. McCosky led in triples, getting 19, while another high was the 50 doubles knocked by Greenberg. Radcliff, McCosky and Roger Cramer, traded last week by Boston to Washington, each had the most hits, 200.

George Case of Washington again led in stolen bases, pilfering 35, with Mike Kreevich of Chicago making a leading total of 31 sacrifices.

SOLD TO BOSTON

Ervine "Pete" Fox, of the Detroit Tigers, has been sold to Boston Red Sox for an undisclosed amount of cash.

PACKING FOR THEIR $50,000 TOUR

Miss Alice Marble, RIGHT, of California, is shown with friend and coach, Eleanor Tennant, as the two packed for the professional tennis tour which will take the former American amateur champ and her mentor to 50 American cities in the company of Don Budge and others. The versatile Miss Marble probably will earn upwards of $50,000 on this tour. She then will turn to singing and lecturing for a living. She is equally skilled at all three activities, and has impressed night club and lecture hall audiences of the fact several times.

We received a letter from Pte. Frank Sedore, former mentor of Point Anne softball activities who is stationed with the C.A.S.F. somewhere in England. At the time of writing, Nov. 14th, Frank had just learned of the elimination of the Shell Oilers and comes to bat with this crack—"what you fellows need is some of that Sedore luck." (Could be, Frank, could be.) In his letter Frank told us of his first experience in an air raid and frankly admits it is more thrilling than softball bedlam at Coleman Flats. "I watched a fleet of Jerry's planes swoop down from a great height, but when a bomb exploded about 150 yards away, believe me I dove into an air raid shelter in nothing flat," admits Frank as he adds it was no swan dive but a horizontal leap that landed him right at the bottom of the steps. Apparently Frank thought he was sliding into home plate. Frank says he would appreciate letters from his old sport cronies. His address is—Pte. F. M. Sedore, No. C5199; No. 1 Cdn. Inf. Holding Unit; Base Post Office, Canada.

It's hockey at the Hume arena tonight, the earliest Canada's National winter pastime has been played in Belleville since the artificial ice plant vanquished into the thin air. Two games of Juvenile hockey are scheduled commencing about seven-thirty o'clock with the Americans meeting the Canadiens and the Black Hawks clashing with the Maple Leafs, we hear. The Belleville Juvenile Hockey Association set-up provides hockey for about 60 boys under 18 years of age. They are all local kids and anxious to become more proficient at their chosen sport and a little moral support on the part of the fans will doubtless work wonders, as it takes the crowd to make the game. There are several changes in the playing rules this season and by taking in these early Juvenile games the hockey fans can become acquainted with the playing regulations prior to the opening of the O.H.A. campaign.

Basketball moved into the higher brackets of sporting circles in the district last week when it was learned that Cobourg would be keenly interested in playing the cage game in a district loop. FO. Brian Casey of the R.C.A.F. and former Western University hoopster is heading a strong team from the Air Force, which doubtless will include several Yankee cagers, who are now training at Trenton. Picton wants to try a fling at provincial basketball for an experiment. Joe Shortt has been making a survey of local cage talent and although the response has not exactly been encouraging the consensus of opinion leads one to believe the hoopsters will get around to the seriousness of practice after the holiday season.

Do you remember when New York Yankees went to the Pacific Coast League 15 years ago today to pluck Tony Lazzeri for the second-base position. He was with the Yankees until released in October 1937 so that he could "dicker" for a managerial job. He spent the past two seasons managing the Toronto Maple Leafs.

Lovers of outdoor exercise and recreation are availing themselves of the skating facilities on the rink provided by the Belleville Yacht Club on the Belleville harbour. The Yacht Club provides a heated dressing room and also lighting for the skaters at the rink. President Maurice Callaghan approached us yesterday and pointed out the additional cost the club was being put to in offering these comforts. "We are burning a ton of coal a month and our electric light bill for the rink amounted to $17.00 for one month last year. Therefore we are asking all skaters over 12 years of age to pay the small sum of a nickle for skating privileges on the rink we keep flooded, cleaned and lighted in order to help defray the expenses of heat and lighting only," explained President Callaghan as he added the Yacht Club rink was originally opened for the kiddies of the community, but adults enjoy the outdoor skating as much as the kiddies. It might be a better idea to confine the five cent fee to adults only, however.

Praise from managers of National Hockey league clubs for a player of another team is praise indeed. Last season, Jack Adams, of Detroit Red Wings, rated Sylvanus Apps, of Toronto Leafs, as the greatest all-time centre. Recently Paul Thompson manager of Chicago Blackhawks, appraised the Leaf star at $35,000 to $50,000 in cash or players, and called him the best "all-round hockey player in the game today."

Champion Joe Louis added another scalp to his belt last night when Al McCoy failed to answer to the bell in the sixth in the Boston Gardens. Louis out-weighed McCoy some 20 pounds and after boxing around in the early stages, drove through with some devastating punches in the fifth, that left McCoy helpless and unable to return.

Sport Slants — It was just fifteen years ago this week that professional hockey was introduced into Madison Square Gardens by the New York Americans....Billy Burch, who had played junior hockey with Aura Lee here in the old Arnott arena, was a member of the Americans, who were backed by the late Tex Rickard and William Dwyer....The Green brothers from Sudbury and Ken Randall (believe he played here in Belleville once upon a time also) were others with the Amerks that memorable night... The Picton juveniles are seeking exhibition games—(Trenton-Art Black please note)....Like father like son—Howie Morenz Jr., son of the immortal "Stratford Flash" chalked up four goals and one assist in a school hockey game in Montreal recently....To expect "Junior" to duplicate the memorable ice-lane feats of his father would be a large order to expect in this day, and age....The Reliance Aircraft seniors hope to clean up their remaining games in the Van Horne schedule this week and start the play-offs some time next week....Wonder what Queen's will do regarding the Van Horne finals if they fall during the Christmas vacation period — surely the league heads won't postpone them until after the seasonal holiday. Or would they?

Royal Navy Eager To Meet Duce's

London, Dec. 17—British naval circles, commenting on Saturday night's Royal Air Force raid on Italian warships at Naples, acknowledged that the Italian fleet "remains a not inconsiderable force" capable of doing great damage if properly handled.

This summing up of the enemy's sea strength was made as the Air Ministry and Admiralty listed at least forty-five Italian ships sunk or damaged in attacks up to, but not including the Naples foray when five direct hits were scored on a concentration of the Italian destroyers and cruisers with resultant explosions and two battleships were attacked.

The joint Air Ministry-Admiralty list of Italian "casualties" prior to the Naples raid was:

Four battleships damaged;
One cruiser sunk, four damaged;
10 destroyers sunk, four damaged;
24 submarines sunk, others probably damaged.

This leaves, British authorities said, a "not inconsiderable" and presumably undamaged fleet as follows:

Two battleships;
16 cruisers;
119 destroyers;
80 submarines.

Although the British respect the strength of this fleet, they are eager to bring it into action, naval circles added, but the Italians "have proved experts at keeping out of corners."

Indians Find Fawn Asleep in Tree, Wolf Marks on Bark

Sudbury, Ont., Dec. 17—(CP)—Albert Beaucage, an Ojibway Indian, said today he and his son, Moses, found a fawn asleep in a tree and on the trunk were marks made by the sharp claws of wolves. He said they found the tracks of a deer and wolves leading to the tree and had expected to find the deer's carcass.

He maintained that the young deer had climbed the tree, which had partly fallen, to escape the wolves. When he and his son arrived the fawn was asleep 10 feet above the ground.

British Cities Urged to Prove For Communal Feeding

Government Has Provided Food in City Centres and Asks Local Authorities to Arrange to Cook it in Case of Heavy Bombing

London, Dec. 17. —(CP) —Food Minister Lord Woolton said today only ten cities and towns in Britain had provided for communal feeding in event of heavy bombing, and urged others to speed preparations to care for civilians forced to leave damaged homes

"We have the food in the areas", he said. "We have gone to infinite trouble to see that no place shall starve. All I am asking local authorities to do is to arrange to cook it. They want only the necessary premises with two sorts of fuel—coal and oil. They cannot rely on gas and electricity".

There should be no hesitation on financial grounds, Lord Woolton added, because the government has promised help.

"The experiences of Sheffield, Southampton, Coventry and Birmingham have been unanimous in indicating the need for community feeding centres", the Minister said.

INSTALMENT 11

"I wrote a little article, and the 'Lancet' used it, and he saw it and wrote me a long letter. I'd taken it for granted that certain spine shocks usually work one way. He thought I was middle-aged, evidently, because he said that if my family was of age to leave, and it would interest Mrs. Latimer, he would be very glad to have me come over and work with him for a few months. Well, that was weeks ago, and I just answered that I was only finishing my first-year internship in June, and that there wasn't a prayer of my getting to Scotland, because I had no means whatever, and must take whatever offered here. And his answer came yesterday. He offers me the Muir Fellowship."

Gwen spoke steadily:

"You ought to go."

"I'd have to borrow money for the trip. But not much," the man said, delaying her for a moment on the porch before they entered the warm, lighted house. "I'd go tourist all the way, and live in the hospital when I got there."

"You'd love it," she said, an ache as old as womanhood itself in her voice.

"Well, lord—" he said simply, in a tone of acknowledgment. "It boosts me right over the bad time," he said; "it gives me three years of security. It means—"

As Dick was still speaking there was an interruption. The porch door opened, close beside them, the light rushed out.

"Gwen," her mother said, in an elegant tone that covered deeps of embittered significance, "Mr. Bellamy is here, dear. He's been here quite a little while, darling, waiting for you! Dad's asked him for supper," she added in a savage whisper.

"Oh, how nice!" Gwen said, with a face of despair. "I'll just say hello and then run upstairs. I won't be a minute. Open some of the peaches," she added under her breath.

"Don't be long!" her mother said cheerfully. "Nothing done about supper!" she murmured darkly. "Except I started the potatoes."

"I'll be out to help in two minutes!" Gwen murmured, taking off mud-clotted shoes in the doorway. Dick caught at her arm.

"Think it over, will you, Gwen? I'll not write Doctor Muir until we talk about it."

"Well, Mr. Bellamy!" Gwen said, going into the parlor with her shoes in her left hand. "Excuse the stocking feet, but we were mud in to the bone. May I present Doctor Latimer, also in his stocking feet? Rush upstairs, Dick, and change. Mr. Bellamy," she went on with a nervous laugh, "I understand that my father has asked you to stay for the sort of American Sunday supper that puts the uninitiated into the emergency ward. Remember that anything you eat may be used against you! I'm all mud. Well you excuse me for about ten seconds while I leap into dry things?"

The visitor was a well-groomed man of forty, with black hair touched becomingly on the temples with silver, and a clipped black mustache. He wore glasses over keen gray eyes; his skin, naturally sallow, was healthily browned, and he was dressed in browns that matched his color. He was not tall, but he held himself erect, and displayed, by a tremendous eagerness of manner and emphasis in speech, the overflowing vitality that possessed him.

"Am I really talking to you again, and not imagining it?" he said in the hall. You are the most wonderful person alive."

Gwen and the four dirty shoes disappeared in the direction of the kitchen. "Mother, why did he have to come today of all days, and what possessed Dad to ask him to stay?" she whispered. She felt dazed and shaken. She had to be alone to think, and now the most distracting of interruptions had arrived! Scotland! It seemed as far away as the poles.

Gwen flashed upstairs, got herself into a comfortable old blue gown and a pair of worn slippers, and was back in time to set the table.

"Come out here into the dining-room while I'm busy here Mr. Bellamy," she said. There was nothing else to do; her mother had disappeared, and the men were not yet downstairs. She was conscious that she was tired out, indeed trembling with fatigue.

He came willingly. "What a darling you are!" he said. "I've been thinking of you every minute of the time. I'm hungry for just a few minutes alone with you! Is that so surprising?"

"What's surprising is?" Gwen said, determinedly unsentimental, "that this is turning into a real supper. My sister brought down some apple fruitcake that some old woman up there in the mountains—"

"Don't talk about food; talk about yourself. You're adorable!" the man said under his breath from time to time as she went to and fro, making the table attractive, returning flushed from the kitchen. "Where do you sit?"

"I'll not tell you! You'll sit next to my mother, of course, as guest of honor. Here's Mother now. Everything's ready except that the eggs—" She disappeared kitchenward, returned with a large smoking platter. The three men were in the room now, and Mrs. Washburton was already seated at the table.

Immediately they were all eating and talking. Van Bellamy, seeing himself temporarily separated from his adored one, devoted himself to Gwen's mother, with such success that presently Peter was also listening to him in fascinated attention. Dick, on the other hand, was tired and worried. Van's attitude toward Gwen was too openly expressed to be ignored. If Gwen spoke, Van listened with a very exaggeration of pleasure and admiration. "She's marvelous!" he would say under his breath, when Gwen finished speaking. All the older man's conversation was directed, whether he actually used her name or not, toward Gwen. He watched her with sparkling, appreciative eyes. His personality easily dominated the supper table.

At quarter to eight Gwen walked with Dick to the car. He was still silent and troubled, his opening remark being a somewhat discouraged statement that he might just as well go to Scotland, as far as he could see.

"Why do you say that, Dick?" she asked, in quick hurt.

"Well, because — because — Oh, damn it!" Dick muttered, interrupting the unfinished sentence, unable to find words. "You never told me he was crazy about you!" he said restlessly.

"I didn't think it mattered," Gwen answered serenely.

Dick laughed wretchedly. "I don't know what to do about this Muir thing!" he said.

"Dick, can it wait?"

"Oh, sure it can wait. That is, he said he knew I would want to talk this over with my mother, and think it over, and he would not expect my decision before Christmas."

"Well, then. I'm coming to town next Saturday. You think about it and I will. And we'll talk about it then. Ah, Dick, stop glowering about Van! I'm just one his clerks."

"I suppose he'd take you in a box, if you went with him," Dick said.

"Who'd take me in a what?"

"I was thinking of the opera, Saturday night. Our seats are up in the balcony."

"As if that mattered! It's my first grand opera."

"Lord!" Dick said, under his breath, seated at the wheel of the car now, with Gwen's face close to his own.

"Lord what?" Gwen asked teasingly, yet with understanding and sympathy in her voice too.

"Oh, nothing!" he said. "Except that I always thought money didn't count!"

"It doesn't." She was distressed to have him merely shrug at this and say only, "Well, good-bye, see you Saturday!" as he drove away. She went slowly back into the house.

Van was at the old piano playing various rambling familiar bits of music. Gwen's father had disappeared. Gwen leaned on the piano, her chin in her cupped hands.

The man was playing softly, rambling through a dozen familiar lovely airs; sometimes he looked down at the keys for a moment as he fitted one intricate bit of melody to another; sometimes he looked dreamily, abstractedly into Gwen's eyes and smiled.

"I didn't know you could play," she said in a silence when for a moment he stopped.

"You don't—" Without moving his eyes from her he played a soft little flight of chords. "You don't really know anything about me, do you?"

"Not much," Gwen conceded, with an apologetic little laugh.

"That's funny, isn't it?" He seemed to be asking the question of his own thoughts. "When I think of nothing but you," he finished simply.

Smiling, she listened to some little familiar melody as it poured from the keys, presently asking, "Seriously, do you talk this way to many women?"

His look flashed to hers, returned to the piano. "Not to any," he answered quietly, after a moment. Then, carelessly; "Who is our young friend, the doctor?"

"Dick? He's an interne at the City and County."

"Graduate?"

"Oh yes. They kept him on, which was quite a compliment."

"Not much pay, though."

"No. But great experience. And now he's had—he was just telling me he's had an invitation to go to a famous Edinburgh hospital. They've offered him a fellowship."

"Bravo!" the man said softly, fingering chords, his eyes on her face.

"Three years, with the great spine man, Muir. He's all upset about it."

"Upset, naturally," he agreed with a nod. "Has he private means?"

"Oh no. His mother works in the hospital, in the linen room. She has a house here that she rents, but they're—they're—no, he has nothing except what he earns," Gwen said, somewhat confusedly.

"That's the history of the biggest men, after all."

"That's what I tell him," Gwen said, grateful for sympathy.

"But it's a long road," Bellamy went on. "It's not an engagement between you?" he added quietly.

Gwen answered as naturally as she could, "Oh no!"

"Then I ask you first," Van said steadily.

Her throat thickened and her color rushed up. She could not speak.

"I ask you to marry me first," the man went on. His fine hands did not stop their delicate fingering of the keys. "You needn't answer me now. The only life I can think of is with you as my wife. I know what you're thinking now. You're thinking that you are resigned to years of waiting, waiting for a start somewhere as the wife of a doctor beginning at the beginning—without means, without a practice—"

Gwen was shaken, frightened a little, yet somehow deliciously thrilled, too. "With a reputation," she put in, as he paused.

"Oh yes, with a reputation," he conceded. "And after a while, when he's fifty, and you're past forty, the consolation of knowing that you have made him a success. But somehow I see a different life for you—

"I see you," he went on as Gwen did not speak, "taking your place in the world as the very remarkable woman you are. I would want you to know London, to know New York, and to find yourself. Find out what you're capable of, and how much you have to give! Good heavens, how much you have to give! What is it? Poetry, fiction, lectures, essays—my dear child, how should I know? I don't know. I just know that it's there — the immortal fire. Something I felt the first instant I met you. Something that came out of me, making me know—"

He interrupted himself. His fingers began very softly the first movement of the "Moonlight."

"Making me know that it wasn't just youth — just sunrise — that makes you what you are," he said. "But lightning. A woman who is going to strike through this world, sooner or later, like a lightning flash."

"But why not as the wife of a doctor? To help a man, to be his inspiration and companion and helper, is a pretty big job." Gwen felt that she was playing a frightening, a fascinating, part in an emotional play. But the man was not play-acting.

"But not your life," he said, with a delicate stress on the pronoun.

"Certainly my life! My home, my husband, my children."

Bellamy did not answer. He continued to watch her thoughtfully for a moment, then he asked suddenly, "Will you go with me to the opera Saturday night? I have to be in the city."

"Funny," Gwen said youthfully. "I've never been asked to the opera at all before! Now two men ask me for the same night."

WALL STREET

New York, Dec. 17 —(AP)— The stock market attempted to dig in for a modest rally today but was unable to accomplish much in the face of persistent trading indifference.

Dealings were slow throughout and, while scattered leaders managed to tack on plus signs, a wide assortment was unchanged or down a trifle near the fourth hour.

Resistant at times were U. S. Steel, American Can, General Electric, American Telephone, Great Northern, North American and U.S. Gypsum. American Agricultural Chemical Preferred pushed up to a new year's top.

On the offside occasionally were Johns-Manville, Crucible Steel, Douglas Aircraft, American Smelting, Consolidated Edison, Goodyear and Du Pont.

Fractional losses predominated among Canadian stocks. Dome and Lake Shore Mines each lost ⅜ of a point while McIntyre lost a smaller fraction. Canada 4s, among bonds, advanced ⅜ point.

TORONTO STOCKS

Price of Butter Highest in Years

Toronto, Dec. 17—Butter touched its highest wholesale price since 1930 yesterday on the Toronto produce market. For the second successive trading day sellers had trouble finding enough butter to offer for sale.

Early in the day the odd sale of first-grade Ontario creamery solids was reported at 35 3-4c, but at the close the general price was 36c, up 1-2c from Saturday. Demand was fair and the market was firm. Sales of Western butter were made at 36c and 36 1-2c. Churning cream prices gained 1c.

After steadily declining for a week, top-grade egg prices registered a 1-2c increase. Demand was fairly good and receipts were ample to meet buyers' wants. The market was steady in tone all day. A premium of 1-2c to 1c per dozen was obtainable on Government inspected lots. In the graded section, A-large eggs sold at 29c to 29 1-2c, A-medium at 27c to 27 1-2c, A-pullet and Grade C eggs at 25c. No quotations were available on Grade B eggs in this section of trading.

Undressed Turkey Prices Set in U.K.

London, Dec. 17— (CP) — The Food Ministry today fixed the price of undressed Christmas turkeys at two shillings, 10 pence a pound (63 cents) because butchers were raising their prices.

The Ministry's order indicated a change of heart on what was to be regarded as a necessity. Lord Woolton, Food Minister, in reply Nov. 26 to a question whether turkey prices would be controlled, asserted it was not his business to control luxuries.

INT. NICKEL CO. CREATES RECORD IN 1940 OUTPUT

Increased War Demands and Peace-Time Requirements Cause Consistent Operation

DUTY TO EMPIRE

Copper Cliff, Ont., Dec. 17.—"Year end figures will show that more nickel was sold in 1940 than in any previous year in the life of the industry," Robert C. Stanley, chairman and president of The International Nickel Company of Canada, Limited, stated today.

"Increased war demands in 1940 have been met by the nickel industry as to quantity and quality and, in addition, peace-time requirements have been fully supplied," he continued. "To this end all of the company's mines and refineries operated continuously. Since the outbreak of war there have been no exports of any of the company's nickel, copper or platinum metals to any destination outside the British Empire without sanction by the Canadian and British governments.

"The increase in consumption over 1939 occurred principally in the United States, where the heavy industries, nickel's most important market, were more active due to the British government war requirements and to the United States defense program.

"The price of nickel in Canada and the United States remained unchanged in the past year, at a figure which has held since 1926. No change is anticipated at this time.

"In keeping with our company's desire to do all in its power to assist His Majesty's government in meeting war-time requirements, we renewed for another year our agreement with the British Ministry of Supply to deliver to the British government approximately 80 per cent. of our output of electrolytic copper. The metal is being delivered f.a.s. Canadian port, and the price is substantially below prevailing world prices. All of the balance of our copper output is being consumed in Canada.

"The steel industry in 1940 accounted for over 50 per cent. of nickel consumption. The second largest market for nickel was nickel-copper alloys, nickel silvers, monel, malleable nickel and Inconel. Electroplating was the next geratest consumer. Nickel was also used in cast iron, heat resisting and electrical resistance alloys and numerous other alloys.

"The nickel industry continued its well established policy of research and technical sales development during the past year. As in the last world war, discoveries resulting from technical experiments connected with the speeding up of war industries will prove valuable in the post-war periods.

"The year 1941 will bring many problems to industry in general. The Canadian nickel industry's first duty is to continue to serve the needs of His Majesty's Governments in Canada and Great Britain during the present emergency. The requirements of peace-time industry will be supplied from surplus production, thus anticipating a future in which the industrial application of nickel can be further extended."

NORMAN ARMOUR

Kennedy in Washington

Kennedy, who returned to the United States six weeks ago and has been resting in Florida, came to Washington Sunday to attend the funeral for Lord Lothian. He called at the State Department on routine business yesterday but declined to discuss his future plans.

When he announced his resignation, Kennedy said he planned to devote his efforts to the "greatest cause in the world today . . . to help the President keep the United States out of war". He has not explained whether he would do this in an official or unofficial capacity.

Armour was described by persons familiar with his record as one of the best qualified diplomats now in the service for the difficult London post.

In more than a quarter of a century of service, he has been Minister to Canada and Haiti and Ambassador to Chile and Argentina, in addition to holding subordinate assignments in Rome, Paris, Tokyo and in Russia before the First Great War. He married Princess Myra Kaudacheff of Russia in 1919.

He was born at Brighton, England, 57 years ago and was educated at Princeton and Harvard.

BRITAIN

The request was understood to look toward assurances of future financial help in obtaining war supplies here. Britain, it was indicated, seeks a "line of credit", probably involving her security holdings and gold assets, rather than a straight loan. The word "loan" was not accurate for the request, official source said.

Speed-up Urged.

Knudsen, defence commission production chief who has been dinning the need for speed-up in recent utterances, reiterated in letters made public that a faster around-the-clock pace was "desperately needed" for "the welfare of our country".

Senator Warren Austin of Vermont, acting Republican leader, followed up Knudsen's comments today by advocating a readjustment of government contracts to finance a six-day week for defence industries.

A consistent supporter of the British aid policy, Austin told newsmen it seemed obvious that industries would have to work longer than the prevailing 40-hour week if they were to overcome certain "bottlenecks" hampering defence production.

Suggestions that President Roosevelt proclaim a complete national emergency found no favor with Austin or Senator Robert Taft (Rep.-Ohio) as a means of accelerating production.

Taft said if the President needed any specific new powers in the defence field, they should be granted. Pointing out that a "limited" emergency has been in effect more than a year, he asserted that increasing it to a "full" emergency "wouldn't mean anything."

Opposes "Full Emergency"

Senator Patrick McCarran (Dem. Nevada) spoke against a full emergency for different reasons, saying its proclamation would be "an emphatic, definite step leading this country to war."

Members of the Pennsylvania delegation in Congress meanwhile received a request from the American legion in their state for a congressional investigation of the "lag," "slow-down," and "necessity of industrial conflict" in defence preparations.

President William Green of the American Federation of Labor in a speech last night rejected any charges that his organization had not been co-operating to the fullest, "giving service, patriotic serice of the highest order, industrial service the like of which this country has never before seen."

British Interest in News

London, Dec. 17—(CP)—Diplomatic negotiations on the subject of United States war aid for Britain received almost as much attention in the London Press today as news of the drive of British armed forces into Libya.

Newspapers featured Washington accounts of the British request for American help and filled editorial columns with comment.

The Daily Sketch painted the situation in a satiric fable labelled "The Careful Eagle" and drew the moral that "it is a strange kind of help that must be called for each time like a furniture van."

The Daily Telegraph, in a long article headed "The Awakening of America," assured its readers that "realization is growing there (in the United States) that the issue of this war is a vital interest not only of this country, but of America. . . ."

HITLER'S ENVOY

Silent, scattered groups of French saw him leave the hotel and watched as his escort passed through the streets.

Foreign Minister Pierre-Etienne Flandin, who succeeded Pierre Laval in the Petain government, was reported ill with a slight attack of grippe, but it was considered probable he would take part in the discussions.

Policy Not Changed

Since Petain already had made clear that Laval's resignation Saturday did not change the government's policy of collaboration with Germany, French sources said it remained for Abetz to indicate the German attitude toward Flandin.

With a guard of three carloads of tall German soldiers, all conspicuously bearing automatic rifles, Abetz arrived last night for the conversations.

French police, mobile guards and plainclothes men also stood guard at his hotel.

Laval, ousted vice-premier and foreign minister of the Vichy government, lunched with Abetz and Petain.

It was the first time he had been seen in Vichy since he was taken away under guard Friday night.

Rumors immediately spread there that the Germans want Laval back in his job, but reports reaching diplomatic quarters here said it was more likely that Abetz merely wanted to hear Laval's side of the story before making any report to Hitler.

Nazi Explanation

Berlin, Dec. 17.— (AP) — Nazi sources declared today that Germany's interest in changes in the government at Vichy centres on the question "does France intend to continue advancing the European policy which recognizes the principle of German victory or not".

These sources said Germany was not interested in who supplanted Foreign Minister Pierre Laval, "but whether any change in French policy has taken place".

Until Otto Abetz, Hitler's Ambassador, reports from Vichy no information will be divulged concerning Germany's official attitude they said, adding:—

"We are continuing our efforts to fathom the motives which led the French government, while still in a state of war supplanted by an armistice with us, to bring about a change in that post which for the purposes of French-German relations is the most important in the French cabinet, namely that of Foreign Minister".

When asked whether Premier Petain, in a recent message to Hitler, had explained the reason for Pierre-Etienne Flandin's appointment to succeed Laval, these sources said: "Apparently not".

Total German occupation of France might be foreshadowed in the Abetz visit, some observers said.

Abetz arrived last night in Vichy and visited Petain today.

Almost immediately after his arrival, it was said here, he asked to see former Vice-Premier Pierre Laval who, since his ouster from the government Saturday, has been reported under guard at his estate at Wauvergne, or at Pellevoisin near Clermont-Ferrand.

Abetz was to talk with several members of the French Cabinet, including Interior Minister Marcel Peyrouton—reported here as being Laval's principal enemy in the Cabinet—and Pierre-Etienne Flandin, who succeeded Laval as Foreign Minister.

But Gen. Maxine Weygand, who sources here said, was the man Abetz wanted to talk to most, was not in Vichy. He was in North Africa and showed every intention of remaining there.

Weygand Holds Whip Hand

Weygand, former Allied Commander-in-Chief and now Commander of French forces in North Africa, was in constant touch with Petain, as diplomatic reports said, there was little external sign of it at Vichy.

Many observers have been comparing Weygand's present position in North Africa with that of Italy's position of potential menace when France was fighting for her life in Flanders.

The tables, they said, now are turned. Italy's troops are hard-pressed by Greek forces in Albania and by the British along the Egyptian-Libyan border. At Italy's back in Africa stands Weygand with a strong-well-armed force of French Colonial troops.

Military and diplomatic observers, however, considered it unlikely that Weygand intends to do more than hold tight in France's North African possessions for the present—particularly so long as Petain rules in Vichy.

Nonetheless, diplomatic reports indicated Weygand looms large among the reasons why Berlin may think twice before occupying the rest of France, or forcing Petain to step down from the post of Chief of State.

The big question in Vichy during the Abetz talks was reported here as whether the German government could get Petain's promise to back up Flandin's policies.

Churchill Enlivens House With Reply, 'People Seem Pleased'

London, Dec. 17 —(CP)— Prime Minister Churchill enlivened a session of the House of Commons today with a laughter-provoking answer to a question as to whether he would order flags flown after any signal victory.

"I do not recollect that we had any important occasion for rejoicing in the last war," Mr. Churchill replied, "but the people seemed quite pleased at the way it ended.

"I think we had better see how we get on. The battle of Libya is still in progress."

TAKE FORT

stronghold on Egyptian soil.

Fort Capuzzo's capitulation left British forces in control of a vital highway terminus 12 miles due south of Bardia and apparently in position for an attempt to outflank that base.

Bardia holds the key to the coastal road leading westward to the big Italian base at Tobruk, approximately 70 miles inside the Libyan border and the springboard from which Marshal Graziani's armies launched their drive into Egypt last September.

Softening Resistance

The British Navy and Air Force were reported to be keeping Bardia under heavy bombardment, apparently to soften Italian resistance to attack on the land side.

Military sources here said there was little opposition to the British Navy's control of the entire Libyan coast from the Egyptian border to Tripoli, 700 miles to the west.

Military men here pointed out the capture of Salum, on the coast about five miles from the Libyan border, would enable Britain to move troops and supplies to the front by sea, thereby eliminating a long haul across the desert.

These sources believed it unlikely that lengthening lines of communication would prove enough of an obstacle to prevent Gen. Sir Archibald P. Wavell, British Middle East commander, from continuing his westward drive.

Reports from the front indicated sharp fighting had preceded the fall of Salum and Fort Capuzzo, which is about three miles inside the Libyan frontier.

While the battle surged around these two key points, British armored units were reported to have made a series of swift thrusts into the surrounding territory, harassing Italian lines of communication.

The fact that the British reported capturing a number of grounded Italian aircraft at Salum was taken here as an indication that Graziani's forces were disorganized badly under steady pounding the past week.

Although the Italians were reported to have about 250,000 men ready for action in Libya, the British believe not more than 100,000 have been involved directly in the current fighting.

LAST REMNANTS

Moved on Splendid Road

In their advance toward Libya, British columns moved along a splendid road the Italians built from the Libyan frontier to Sidi Barrani during their three months of occupation of the region.

The Italians named it via Vittoria —"Victory Way"—and over it they had hoped to march into all of Egypt. They erected along it several monuments to Mussolini and the triumph of their occupation.

A marker at Sidi Barrani, where the new road joins the road to Alexandria, bears the inscription: "Despite sand and winds and the insidiousness of the enemy, this road linking the sands of Egypt with those of Libya has been constructed".

The road is straight and wide and has an excellent bed of crushed stones, but the Italians did not get around to the top surfacing. With a top surface it probably would be the best highway ever constructed over any desert.

The armored brigade which intercepted the Cantzaro division here came across the desert on the escarpment to the south, then cut northward to Buqbuq on the coast.

It encountered considerable opposition from Italian outposts on the way, but reduced them and got there in two days.

Inland Desert Not Marked

Italian military maps of Egypt, found here, charted the topography only ten miles inland from the coast. Apparently the Fascists did not consider the more difficult inland desert as a potential battlefield, which may explain their surprise when the British forces came from there.

In almost every encounter of the offensive up to now, the British forces were outnumbered at least four to one.

But in no case British officers said, have the Italians successfully resisted. Of the five divisions which invaded Egypt, it appears now that only one escaped completely, while another got many of its men out but lost most of its material.

Completely shattered with most of the Black shirts in the Sidi Barrani region, the Cantzaro division and the crack Maletti group, all at Nibelwa—in all, perhaps a force of 40,000 with all its equipment. The deserted Italian camps indicated the troops fled.

In their confusion clothing, trinkets, jewelry, razors, blankets and letters were left behind, strewn over dugouts and in tents.

Desert is Littered

The desert is littered with abandoned sun helmets knapsacks and rifles.

As we approached Buqbuq three days ago we saw an odd dust cloud in the distance brightened by the rays of the desert sun and moving slowly nearer.

On passing the crest of a hill we saw what was raising the dust—the tramping feet of two columns of men well over a mile long. They were Italian prisoners, about half of the 14,000 taken at Buqbuq, and they were being marched to Sidi Barrani, 30 miles away, for embarkation.

They were mainly members of Gen. Giuseppe Amico's Catanzaro division of the regular Italian army intercepted by a British armored unit.

and U-boats at Bordeaux early today" did not sight land from the time they left their base until they were near their target on the Bay of Biscay.

Lifted Buildings in Air

"Effects of the heavy bombs were such that observers in the aircraft had the impression of large buildings being lifted in their entirety into the air before they disintegrated," it said.

"When one raider came over the docks and let go a salvo of large-calibre bombs a wide column of flame rose to a height of 300 feet. Other bombs fell on a corner of the U-boats' dock basis, followed by an immense flash which produced a bright glow in the sky over Bordeaux."

London, Dec. 17 (CP)—Royal Air Force raiders pounded Mannheim, important chemical manufacturing centre in southwest Germany, for more than four hours last night and early today, it was reported authoritatively today.

"Many important targest were left in flames," informed sources said.

The attacks on Mannheim followed extensive raids over Berlin, the Kiel shipyards and the port of Bremen the preceding night.

Five days ago, Royal Air Force fliers bombed Mannheim and reported the city's petroleum tanks, her Rhine River docks and her extensive railroad yards were hit.

Bad flying weather held the German attacks on the British Isles to a minumum last night, and London had only two short alarms.

Bomb Strikes Theatre

An undetermined number of persons was killed or injured when a bomb struck a theatre in a north-west English town. Several persons were believed trapped in one western Midlands town in the wreckage of six houses shattered by explosives.

Two bombs fell in London, one near a nurses' home, but slight damage was reported.

"In other parts of the country, little damage was done and very few casualties were caused," a joint communique of the Air Ministry and Ministry of Home Security said.

King George yesterday toured parts of the devastated areas of Bristol and saw how bombs had destroyed nearly every building in a one-quarter mile area.

Crowds shouted as he drove by:—"We're not downhearted!"

WM. F .O'CONNOR DIES SUDDENLY

Constitutional Lawyer, Law Officer and Counsel to Canadian Senate Was 67 Years Old

Ottawa, Dec. 17 —(CP)—William Francis O'Connor, one of Canada's recognized experts on the British North America Act and the legal relationship between the Dominion and the provinces, died suddenly late yesterday as he slept.

Mr. O'Connor, law officer and parliamentary counsel to the Senate, was 67 years old. On Saturday he complained he was not feeling well and stayed at home. Yesterday he fell asleep before dinner and died before he awakened.

Native of Halifax and a graduate of Dalhousie University where he lectured for a time in international law, he gained a high repjutation as a constitutional lawyer.

Drafted Wartime Legislation

During the first Great War he was called from Dalhousie to Ottawa to advise on legal problems facing the government for the first time. He helped draft much wartime legislation, including the Wartime Elections Act under which, in 1917, the votes of soldiers overseas were first recorded in a Canadian election.

Mr. O'Connor also gave the government advice on other new problems such as expropriation of property for military use, seizure of ships and enemy property, and internment of enemy aliens.

Wrote Constitutional Work

Recently he was instructed to make a complete study of the jurisprydence which has grown up since Confederation on the interpretation of the British North America Act. This study was published in book form and is considered an authoritative work on the constitutional position of the provincial and federal authorities in the Dominion.

The work is expected to be used as legal background for the Dominion-Provincial conference to convene here Jan. 14.

Subsequently he practised law in Ottawa, and later in Toronto. In 1934 he was appointed law officer and parliamentary counsel to the Upper House. Senate committees relied heavily on Mr. O'Connor's knowledge in drafting legislation.

Mr. O'Connor is survived by his widow and two daughters, Mrs. J. McDougall of Montreal and Frances, who acted as his secretary.

GAS EXPLOSION CAUSE OF DEATH

House Near Montreal Shattered by Force of Blast

Montreal, Dec. 17.—(CP)— One person was killed and three others were injured seriously today when a one-storey house was shattered by an explosion of escaping gas at Tetraultville east of Montreal.

Dead is Mrs. Ferdinand Menetta. Rushed to hospital with severe burns and injuries were her husband and two daughters, Lily Menetta and Mrs. Margaret Proulx.

Earlier, police had reported three persons were killed in the blast, caused apparently when escaping gas gathered in the cellar of the house on Bernard Boulevard.

So forceful was the blast that only portions of the walls of the house were left standing. Bricks and debris were scattered over the boulevard and adjoining streets. Windows of neighboring houses were shattered by the blast.

It was not known immediately what caused the gas to explode.

Tetraultville is a small municipality on the eastern outskirts of Montreal.

CANADIANS DO TUNNELLING WORK AT GIBRALTAR

Detachment of Royal Canadian Engineers Under Major Campbell Has Been on Rock for Some Time

ALL ARE MINERS

By ROSS MUNRO

(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Somewhere in England, Dec. 17 (CP Cable)—A detachment of a Tunnelling Company of the Royal Canadian Engineers, composed of hard rock miners from every province in Canada, is now engaged in tunnelling work on the Rock of Gibraltar.

First Canadian unit ever sent to Gibraltar for duty there, the engineers are doing a vital job in connection with the defence of the stronghold guarding the entrance to the Mediterranean.

The unit went to Gibraltar some time ago under Maj. Colin Campbell, former Ontario Public Works Minister, now Commander of the Tunnelling Company. He has returned to the Canadian army in England now that operations are under way, along with Capt. Perry Hall of Vancouver, who was working at Port Arthur, Ont., up to the time he joined the army.

"Our men down there are miners from Nova Scotia and every mining camp in Quebec and Ontario," Maj. Campbell said today. "We have others from Manitoba, from the Northwest Territories, two from British Columbia and a scattering from the remaining provinces. All we are doing is simply putting in operation for the army the regular mining practices followed in Canada and adapted from civil occupations.

Glad to be There

"This is one thing we can do well and the British are glad to have us there."

It is the biggest individual job undertaken by the company which for many months past has been doing special work in the defence lines of Britain. The Canadians are the first to use diamond drills in tunnelling on Gibraltar and 24 hours a day, seven days a week, the sappers keep at work.

Everybody on the Rock was looking for the Canadians to arrive and a Pipe Band of the Scottish Regiment greeted them on the Rock. The welcome was spontaneous and full-hearted, Maj. Campbell said.

According to superstitions of the Rock the Canadians are going to have plenty of luck. The myth is that if the wild apes of Gibraltar don't visit your camp for a fortnight after arrival you'll be plagued with misfortune.

Four days after the sappers settled down in their barracks the apes came to the area and visited the mdaily thereafter.

Soon Wear Tropical Uniforms

At present the Canadians are wearing their regular winter battle dress but in a few weeks the weahtem will be hot and they will change to sun helmets, shorts and the tropical uniforms they took with them.

Lt.-Gen. Sir Clive Liddell, governor and Commander-in-Chief of Gibraltar, inspected the sappers while they were at work and said he was happy to have the Canadians there. Sir Clive is an old friend of Lt.-Gen. A. G. L. McNaughton, Canadian Corps Commander.

All the tunnels in the Rock bear names and one of the first to be carved out by the hard rock miners, along with a large chamber, was named Maple.

Other tunnels will be named for Canadian provinces.

101,190 Tons Shipping Sunk by Enemy in Week Ending Dec. 8

London, Dec. 17—(CP)—The Admiralty announced today 101,190 tons of British, Allied and neutral merchant shipping was sunk during the week ending Dec. 8.

Nineteen British vessels totalling 86,740 tons, three Allied ships of 12,937 and one neutral vessel of 1,513 tons were lost during the period.

An authoritative source said "One bad day accounted for a good proportion" of the losses.

These losses made the average weekly loss since the beginning of the war 63,192 tons, exclusive of vessels lost in the removal of troops from Dunkerque.

The losses announced today were due to submarines, mines, bombs and surface raiders. Winter weather, with long night, and the concentration of many British warships in the Mediterranean were favorable to the attackers.

The total was roughly double the figure for the previous week and was the highest since the week of Oct. 14-21 when 198,000 tons of merchant shipping went to the bottom.

23 PLANES TO HIS CREDIT

Calgary, Dec. 17.—(CP)—Toll of enemy planes bagged by a Calgary member of the Royal Air Force, Pilot Officer William Lidstone McKnight, D.F.C. and bar, has reached 23, according to word received here by his father.

The young pilot last summer was awarded the Distinguished Flying Cross after shooting down four enemy planes in two days.

Derringer Figures Opposition Will Be Tougher Next Year

Miami, Fla., Dec. 17—(AP)—Big Paul Derringer, a pitching hero of the last World Series, figures the National League opposition will be even tougher next season but "there's no reason the Reds should not win their third straight pennant."

"We'll be stronger next season, too," remarked Paul.

"Beating Detroit in the series, after our loss to the Yankees the year before, gave us a world of confidence. We'll have Jim Ripple for the entire season, and we have added some more good ball players."

Derringer, now 33 years old, feels confident he will have another good year.

"You lose some of your swiftness as years pass," he said, "but you make up for that by what you learn about pitching. Look at Mose Grove, for example."

"Would Derringer like another crack at the Yankees?"

"Oh, sure, but I'd rather see the Red Sox get in the series. That fellow Yawkey has spent a lot of money in Boston and deserves a pennant."

Companion of the Prime Minister on his birthday, as he has been constantly for the past 17 years, will be his Irish terrier, Pat.

Pat, past a normal dog's age, is crippled and grey, but he is a carefully tended and beloved companion of the bachelor prime minister.

Mr. King was born Dec. 17, 1874, in Berlin, Ont., now Kitchener. When he had reached his 26th birthday he was Deputy Minister of Labor.

Monday a large number of communications arrived from friends. His birth day always brings a flood of such messages from all parts of the world.

Mr. King is apparently in robust heatlh. While the war has brought burdens and much worry, he appears calm and optimistic of the ultimate success of British arms.

Distribution of Food May Be Placed in Hands of American

By PAT USSHER

(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

London, Dec. 17 (CP Cable)—There is no indication that Britain will lift her blockade to permit shipments of food to reach France and Spain.

(A Washington dispatch Monday said the American Red Cross had made "tentative arrangements" to send food ships to Spain and unoccupied France. The dispatch said that negotiations between Washington and London are under way and that the prospects for their successful outcome are considered "good.")

There was no comment immediately from official sources on the reported request of the American Red Cross for permission to send two food ships through the blockade to these countries.

It was explained, however, that the British Government is seeking to distinguish between Red Cross medical supplies and foodstuffs. If a satisfactory distinction can be evolved, it is understood that medical supplies, consigned to neutrals, may be allowed through the blockade. But foodstuffs can be converted into war materials and Britain is not prepared to run the risk of Germany obtaining hold of them for that purpose.

The problem confronting the government is to devise a method to ensure that whatever supplies are brought within the reach of the German claws will not increase the Nazis' war potential.

One solution, it is pointed out here, might be the placing of control and distribution in Europe in the hands of a United States official.

Little Benny's Note Book

Ma was sewing on her electric sewing machine and I was watching the rain out her window and wishing I could go out anyways, and I said, G, ma, I've seen it rain much harder than this.

My goodness so have I, ma said. Why, one time before you were born I was coming home from a party with your father and it was raining so hard we were litterly up to our ankles in water, I remember it as though it were yestidday, and your father's umberella blew inside out to make matters worse, she said, and I said, Well G, ma, that must of been the wind.

Yes, that's what we thought at the time, ma said.

And she kept on sewing to herself and I kept on looking at it raining, and pretty soon I said, Well gosh ma, even if I went out in it and wore my rubbers why my feet wouldn't get wet, and they're the most important part of you when it comes to getting wet, and anyways none of me would get so wet if I didn't stay out very long.

I quite agree with you, the longer you stayed out the wetter you would get, that's only naturel, ma said, and I said, Well jimminy, ma, why dont you leave me go out a while just to prove you're not making a sissy out of me?

Well now that's quite a good thought, ma said. In the olden days of Greece, or perhaps Rome, there used to be little Spartan boys who were made to endure all sorts of hardships and it seems they were all the healthier for it. So suppose you run out and dont even bother to put on your rubbers, and when you feel thoroughly chilled you can come back and jump under a cold shower, and then you can go to bed without your supper, and in the morning we'll see if you wake up hail and harty like a little Spartan boy, she said, and I said, Aw heck, ma, I'm going to read.

Proving it's not always a good sine when people agree with everything you say.

Why The Weather?

By Major A. H. Thiessen
Science Service Meteorologist

Climate of the Nile Delta!

All of this part of Egypt is north of the Tropic of Cancer, Alexandria being at the same latitude as Savannah, Ga. Cairo at the southern point of the Delta, is 100 miles farther south. The temperature on the Mediterranean coast varies from a mean of 57 degrees in January to 81 in July; while at Cairo it is 4 degrees cooler in winter and 4 degrees warmer in summer. The average highest temperature on the coast is only 99 degrees, but is 110 at Cairo. Rainfall on the coast is most abundant in winter, but averages only 8 inches for the year; at Cairo only 1.5 inches. The great moderating influence to what otherwise would be a trying climate is the "Etesian" wind which blows from the north practically all the year round.

Death of Mr. Scott Comes As a Shock To Government Officials At Ottawa

Ottawa, Dec. 18. —(CP)— The Prime Minister's office announced today receipt of word from Munitions Minister Howe that Hon. Gordon Scott, finanical adviser to the Minister was lost at sea following the torpedoing of the British liner, Western Prince, last Saturday.

The message, sent from a British port said:

"Government priority. Now have definite advice that Gordon Scott was lost at sea. Lifeboat occupied was overturned in attempting to transfer occupants to rescue ship in heavy sea".

Immediately on receiving this message Prime Minister Mackenzie King telephoned to Gordon Hyde of Montreal who with Mrs. Hyde, a close personal friend of Mrs. Gordon Scott, communicated the news to Mrs. Scott.

The Prime Minister said he was "deeply pained to learn of Mr. Scott's death".

Dollar-a-Year Man

Mr. King and the former Provincial Treasurer of Quebec who had been acting as $1 a-year-man and financial adviser to the Munitions and Supply Department were close personal friends.

"He was a man of exceptional ability and character who had worked unselfishly for many months in the work of the department", said the Prime Minister. "His loss is a very serious one to Canada".

HITLER SPEAKS TO 5,000 CADETS

Unannounced Closed Meeting is Held in Berlin Sports Palace

Berlin, Dec. 18 (AP)—Hitler made an unannounced address at noon today in the Berlin Sports Palace to 5,000 cadets about to receive commissions.

The meeting was closed and Hitler's remarks were not published but D.N.B. Nazi News Agency, said he gave the cadets "An inspiring address to prepare them for the task as leaders of the National Socialist army."

Field Marshal Walter Von Brauchitsch, Commander in Chief of the Army, also spoke.

MANNHEIM GIVEN HEAVY POUNDING DURING THE NIGHT

Industrial Targets on Rhine and Nazi-Held Channel Ports Attacked

ARMY NECESSARY

Blockade and Bombing Will Weaken Enemy but Invasion of Germany by Army Will Bring Victory

London, Dec. 18 (CP)—The Royal Air Force for the second successive night attacked industrial targets at Mannheim, Germany, on the Rhine and bombed German-held channel ports and airdromes, the Air Ministry announced today.

The attacks were carried out despite bad weather.

Britain passed apparently her quietest night in weeks, after a bombless day. The Air Ministry and Ministry of Home Security communique said tersely: "There is nothing to report."

Southwest German cities have been targets of British planes three times in the past six nights and heavy damage has been reported at Mannheim.

Meanwhile Britain said officially she could not win the war until the British army had "struck and struck deep into the Axis countries."

The blockade, a Ministry of Information statement said, will weaken Germany and Italy, and fleet and air actions will shake their confidence, but the weapon "which ultimately will enforce submission of the enemy" is the army.

The statement said Britain had about 2,000,000 men in the army and another 1,000,000 in the home guard.

Warning that there "is no closed season for invasion" the Ministry said neither the defence units nor anti-aircraft crews could be reduced safely.

"Apart from set invasion, raiding parties flung ashore suddenly out of long dark winter nights might do much damage before an equal force could be brought from distant bases to drive them back," it added. "...Substantial mobile forces must be kept in readiness to crush any invaders who might succeed in landing."

Question of Aid 'On Realistic Basis' Feeling of Britons

London, Dec. 18 (CP)—Authoritative circles said today Britons felt that President Roosevelt's statement yesterday on the subject of aid to this country had "put the whole question on a realistic basis."

These sources said they considered the President cleared the ground by removing the issue from the realm of dollars and cents, and that it was to the interest of the United States to find ways of putting into Britain's hands "means of hastening the end of the war."

Report 50,000 Nazis Reach Italy For Libya, Albania; Nazis Deny

New York, Dec. 18.—(AP)—The Columbia Broadcasting Company's correspondent in Belgrade declared in a broadcast last night from that Balkan capital that more than 50,000 German troops have moved quietly into Italy presumably to embark for Libya and Albania to aid Italian forces, according to information reaching highly reliable sources in Yugoslavia.

Winston Burdett, the correspondent, said the major part of the Nazi forces were reported at Bari and Naples, Southern Italian ports, but some also were reported to be in Genoa and Milan.

Some were expected to perform "police duties" in Italy in exchange for Italian labor in German factories, he said.

The German movement southward, according to Burdett's sources, began immediately after the resignation December 6, of Marshal Pietro Badoglio, Italian Chief of Staff

Berlin, Dec. 18. — (AP)—Nazi sources denied today reports that 50,000 German troops had reached an Italian port bound for Libya.

(The Columbia Broadcasting system's correspondent in Belgrade, Yugoslavia, said in a broadcast last night that, according to reliable sources in Yugoslavia; more than 50,000 German troops had moved quietly into Italy, presumably to embark for Libya and Albania to aid the Italians.)

Greek Machine Guns Dominate Klisura, Fires Break Out

Athens, Dec. 18 (AP)—Fires have broken out in Klisura, it was officially reported today, leading to belief that Italian forces were burning supplies in preparation to abandon that mountain town on the middle Albanian front.

Greeks said such fires were observed before the Italians relinquished Argirocastro and Porto Eddo.

Both Klisura and Telepeni, farther west, were reported within the range of Greek machine guns.

Heavy fighting was reported continuing both in the Klisura-Tepeleni sector and in the coastal region to the southwest and the Greeks already called the contest in the former sector a "brilliant victory", likely to have a decisive influence on future operations.

Bars Route to Tepeleni

Klisura, about mid-way between Premet and Tepeleni on a cross-mountain road, bars an important route to Tepeleni and the lower valley of the Viousa River.

On the coast the Greeks were said to be well within range of Chimara, which the Italians were reported defending with reinforcements. Greeks said they were flanking the port of Palermo. In the northern sector fighting had been slowed down by bad weather, but nevertheless the Greeks continued to report local successes.

A motor transport column apparently headed for the coastal front to supply the Italians was bomber yesterday by the Royal Air Force, according to its communique.

The bombers found the column on a coastal road between Aghisaranda and Valona and a number of bombs were seen to burst on the roadside. The trucks also were machine-gunned but, the communique said, a "fierce snowstorm" which hampered the operations prevented observation of the full effect of the attack.

Britain's Policy to Aid Ethiopia In Fight for Recovery of Freedom

London, Dec. 18 (CP)—Revolt in Ethiopia against the Italian forces of occupation "appears to be making progress," Richard Butler, Under-Secretary for Foreign Affairs, informed the House of Commons today.

"Information as to conditions in Abyssinia (Ethiopia) is naturally difficult to obtain," Mr. Butler said, "but the movement of revolt against the Italians appears to be making progress.

"It is the policy of His Majesty's government to extend to Emperor Haile Selassie, as well as to all elements within Abyssinia willing to bear arms against the enemy, all possible assistance in their fight for freedom."

VICIOUS SPIRAL OF WAGES, PRICES TO BE CONTROLLED

Federal Government Passes Order - in - Council Involving 'Cost - of - Living' Bonuses

HELP WAR EFFORT

Ottawa, Dec. 18 (CP)—The Government has taken action by order-in-council to "stop the vicious spiral of wages and prices which is detrimental during the war and disastrous afterward."

Labor Minister McLarty announced passage of the order last night. It involves a system of "cost-of-living" bonuses instead of wage increases as a means of protecting workers from any sharp rise in the cost of essentials.

"It is confidently expected that the principles and measures embodied in the order will be accepted by employees and employers in a co-operative spirit.... and that such acceptance and co-operation should have a full measure of public support," Mr. McLarty said in a statement. "This should have a distinctly helpful effect on the national war effort."

LEASE AND LEND PLAN ADVOCATED BY ROOSEVELT

President Would Lease or Lend All Material Aid and Settlement to be Made After War

COMMENT GUARDED

Washington, Dec. 18—(AP)—An unprecedented plan for backing Britain to the limit, without considering the dollar signs on the bill, went to the United States today with President Roosevelt's pronouncement that the best immediate defence of the United States was the success of Great Britain in defending herself.

Should a "short-of-war" program of this broad character be adopted, an authoritative source predicted, the United States would buy and send to Britain at least $2,500,000,000 worth of tanks, airplanes and other munitions before the end of the war.

With victory, arrangements would be made for repayment of this help "in kind" under a gentleman's agreement between the two countries.

President Roosevelt devoted most of a 50-minute Press conference yesterday to describing the plan—a brand new idea, he termed it—and made it clear that it was one of several now being explored.

The President, in response to questions, said the plan would not carry the United States closer to war from a legalistic viewpoint. He pointed out that the United States was doing all it could at present and asserted that the new method merely would facilitate making aid available.

EXPLOSION BLOWS DEBRIS OF HOUSES TWO BLOCKS AWAY

Homes of Ten Families in Montreal Gutted by Explosion - Started Fire

ONE WOMAN BURNED

Firemen Arrive to Find Flames Shooting Hundred Feet in Air

Montreal, Dec. 18—(CP) — The body of Mrs. T. G. Roy, 63, was found today in the smouldering wreckage of a building destroyed by fire which followed a mysterious explosion.

Police said Mrs. Roy, who apparently was suffocated by smoke, was the only person unaccounted for after the early-morning fire which gutted ten dwellings in three buildings in Montreal's east end. The checking of survivors had been hampered when they scattered for shelter in near-zero weather.

Five other persons, one a fireman were in hospital with burns and injuries suffered in the blaze, which was brought under control four hours after the explosion.

The blast, which apparently originated in the centre of three buildings, blew debris two blocks away, and awakened residents for blocks around. When firemen arrived, flames were shooting 100 feet into the air. The second and third alarms brought half Montreal's fire-fighting equipment to the scene as well as practically every ambulance in the city.

A gallery door was blown across the street and through a stout wooden fence by the initial blast, which police believed came from the home of Mrs. B. Demers. She and four other persons in another flat in the same building somehow managed to escape.

Flames soon spread to adjoining buildings. Two flats made up one of the buildings while the other contained six flats. Several other houses were damaged by the blaze.

Netherlands Tanker Reports She Has Been Torpedoed by Sub

New York, Dec. 18 (AP)—The 10,746-ton Netherlands tanker Pendrecht radioed today that she had been torpedoed by a submarine apparently 850 miles west of the northern tip of Scotland.

Mackay Radio said the tanker sent this message at 10.40 a.m. EDT: "Torpedoed by sub, position 59.07 north, 17.39 west."

The tanker traded between United States gulf ports, Rotterdam and Germany before the war. She was completed last year and was tied up temporarily in Los Angeles when Germany invaded Holland.

Narrow Escapes From Death by Bombs Helped By Unexplainable Impulses

When Hitler promised Britain a "blood bath" and followed with his war from the air in his efforts to terrorize the people he failed to reckon with the British spirit of "carry on." This is strikingly evidenced in Milo M. Thompson's stories of life in England today of which this is the third.

By MILO M. THOMPSON
Associated Press Staff Writer

New York, Dec. 18 (AP)—The present and eternity are no farther apart in London than a snap of the fingers.

Nevertheless close escapes are only something to be discussed lazily with the walnuts and the wine, not such a shuddering horror as many North Americans suppose.

Only the bores bother you with stories of their own private and particular bombs, now that most of us have had our own bomb experience.

A bombing becomes interesting only when there is some definite freak. And some escapes which have an element of the super-natural and unexplainable about them also are worth mentioning.

For instance:

There's one manager of a company in London who rose up from bed in the dead of night, shook his wife and cried: "We must get out of here."

He dragged the protesting woman through the door and down the corridor, she supposing that he was the victim of a nightmare. At the corridor's turning he threw her down and threw himself across her protectively.

There came a terrific explosion. His body became inert.

Ever-Tightening Pincer Movement At Bardia Noted

Thousands of Fresh British Troops Roll Across Egyptian Frontier into Libya

(By Edward Kennedy)
(Associated Press Staff Writer)

With the British Forces in the Libyan Offensive, Dec. 18.—(AP)—The British offensive entered its 10th day today with Italian forces swept from Egypt and several more divisions imperiled by an ever-tightening pincer movement around Bardia, Italy's main Libyan border base.

Armored units, many of which had been in combat almost incessantly since the campaign opened with a surprise attack on the Egyptian outpost of Nibeiwa, dominated desert stretches west of Bardia and thousands of fresh troops drawn from Egyptian desert camps rolled across the Libyan frontier to occupy positions near Bardia on the East.

Three Forces Contribute

The British forces attribute their success thus far in routing Italian forces to three things:—

1.—Complete surprise

2.—The thoroughness with which the campaign was planned.

3.—Superiority of British soldiers in fighting at close quarters.

The importance of surprise cannot be overestimated. The Italians were not only surprised the first day but also the second and third when the Fascists, although by that time knowing that the British forces were on the offensive, believed they were forty miles away, only to have tanks charge suddenly upon them.

Did Not Know Movements

Various armored units, coming from the desolate, wind-swept escarpment to the south of the Italian salient into Egypt, severed the narrow coastal strip which the Fascists had held almost before the Italian soldiers realized what was happening.

Italian Somaliland Raided by British Who Cross Border

Nairobi, Kenya Colony, Dec. 18 (CP)—A "successful" British raid across the border into Italian Somaliland was reported today in a British communique.

Fifty Italians were killed and at least 25 Italians, including several officers, and 50 Colonial infantrymen were taken prisoners, the announcement said.

Guns, machine-guns and large quantities of stores and ammunition also were seized, it added.

British casualties were described as "slight."

Problem of Defence Base Site Awaits Duke of Windsor

Nassau, Bahamas, Dec. 18 —(AP)—Selecting a seaplane base satisfactory to the United States will be one of the problems facing the Duke of Windsor when he picks up his duties as governor of the Bahamas after a cordial reception at Miami.

The Duke and Duchess, who recovered quickly from the major dental operation which necessitated a Florida visit of eight days, were en route here today aboard Axel Wennergren's yacht Southern Cross.

Their arrival time was indefinite because of a planned stop-over at West End, settlement on Great Baham Island.

A mission which looked over available sites soon after the United States traded 50 destroyers to Great Britain in return for air and naval bases recommended Mayaguana Island for the seaplane station planned for the Bahamas.

But when President Roosevelt saw the selection last week he found it not suitable because of a lack of good anchorages.

CHIMNEY FIRE GIVES BRIGADE RUN

Answering their first alarm since the latter part of last week, the local fire brigade were called to 60 1-2 Catherine Street on Tuesday, the home of Mr. Lewis Romp, where a chimney fire was in progress. Only a few cans of water were required to extinguish the flames and no damage was reported.

FURRS' INQUEST FURTHER ADJOURNED

A further adjournment in the inquest looking into the death of Percival Furrs of Napanee, was ordered by Chief Coroner Dr. J. J. Robertson today. The adjourned inquest was scheduled for this evening, but owing to Frank Correll still being incapacitated and a patient in the Belleville General Hospital the inquest scheduled for this evening was adjourned until Jan. 17th, 1941, Mr. Correll being one of the chief witnesses concerned. The inquest was made necessary following a fatal motor accident, which occurred on October 18th last when motor vehicles driven by Furrs and Correll collided near Marysville resulting in the death of Furrs and serious injuries to Mr. Correll.

ICE CUT IN BAY USED LOCALLY

Ice cutting has already commenced in the Bay of Quinte by several of the local ice companies, it was revealed by a visit to the waterfront this morning. Ice being cut at this time, however, was only for immediate use by local residents, it was stated, and not intended for storage. Between nine and ten inches of ice now covers the bay, although much of this is snow ice, it was learned.

LITTLE SHOPLIFTING NOTICED SO FAR

Shoplifting, the bane of city merchants during the Christmas season, has not as yet shown itself in any remarkable proportions according to Front Street merchants today. "While there is no doubt that it is going on to a certain extent, no great depredations on the part of the light-fingered Christmas fraternity has been noticeable as yet," one merchant stated.

Of course, merchants gave this information with their figurative fingers crossed as the forthcoming Saturday, which is expected to be productive of the heaviest day's business of the season, and Monday and Tuesday, have yet to roll around.

COUNTY SIDE ROADS IN POOR CONDITION

Residents of the city who are contemplating driving to the northern parts of the district are fully warned that the roads are in anything but safe driving conditions, County Road Superintendent W. L. Langlois warned today.

"The recent cold weather has transformed the majority of the county roads into dangerous ruts and hillocks, and the greatest driving care is urged," he said. The main highways are in fairly good shape but the township roads are one-track dangerous pathways.

Had the rain of a few days ago continued a little longer Mr. Langlois pointed out, the condition of the roads would have improved greatly, but the frost came and consolidated the slush into deep ruts and mounds of ice.

Walter E. Dobbs Given Important Post at Winnipeg

Former Belleville Boy Appointed General Passenger Agent of C.N.R. at Western Centre

BROTHER GARN DOBBS

Montreal, Dec. 18—Walter Dobbs, Special Passenger Representative at Montreal for the Canadian National Railways, has been appointed General Passenger Agent at Winnipeg. This appointment follows changes and promotions caused by the retirement of Robert Creelman, Passenger Traffic Manager, Western Region, who retires from active service today, December 18.

W. E. DOBBS

This announcement was officially made today by C. W. Johnston, General Passenger Traffic Manager. Mr. Dobbs commenced his railroad career in Montreal in 1904, with the Car Service Department. In 1907 he joined the Passenger Department and in 1910 was transferred to Winnipeg where he remained for ten years. Later Mr. Dobbs was located in Vancouver and in 1924 returned to Montreal as office assistant to the General Passenger Traffic Manager. In 1932 he was appointed Special Passenger Representative.

Mr. Dobbs, is a son of the late Mr. and Mrs. Edward Dobbs, of Belleville, and a brother of Garn Dobbs, head of a prominent city plumbing firm. He was born in Belleville and received his early education at the old No. 2 Public School. The lure of the railroad appealed to him at an early age, and he chose it as his life's vocation.

OBITUARY

LATE MAYNARD SHARPE
(Wooler)

Wooler (Special)—The friends and relatives were shocked at the sudden passing of Mr. Maynard (Mike) Sharpe on Thursday evening, Dec. 12th.

The late Mr. Sharpe was born in Wooler, where he lived during his whole life. His natural disposition in youth was very amiable and as such, he grew to young manhood. For a time he followed the occupation of his late father, Mr. Sanford Sharpe, that of a prominent agriculturist and later became travelling salesman for the International Stockfood Co. At this business, he became well known throughout the townships of Murray and Brighton, also Hastings County. His quiet but cheery and friendly manner won for him many lasting friendships and his passing will bring many regrets.

Deepest sympathy is extended to his mother, who very recently was bereaved of her sister, the late Mrs. Edward McMaster. Sympathy is also extended to the sorrowing wife, who prior to her marriage was Miss Margaret Terrill, the daughter, Lois and son, Malcolm (Mack). Two sisters, Mrs. H. Gerow, Smithfield, Mrs. Hugh Gainforth, Wooler; others surviving to mourn are, two uncles, Messrs. G. S. Sharpe, of Belleville and W. J. Bell, Wooler; two aunts, Mrs. A. B. Sharpe and Mrs. A. Masters, Wooler, besides many cousins.

Relatives and friends from a distance who came to pay their last respects were: Mr. and Mrs. Wesley Terrill, Mr. Howard Terrill, Mrs. Esli Terrill, Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Tamblyn, Mr. and Mrs. Grant Terrill, Mrs. J. D. Stewart and Miss Helen Terrill, all of Lindsay; Mr. and Mrs. Fred Curry, Mrs. Robert Cummings and Mr. and Mrs. A. C. Anderson of Madoc; Mr. S. Curry of Madoc; Mrs. Wm. Curry, Mr. Harry Stock, Mr. and Mrs. Fred Sprung, Mr. and Mrs. Jim Cowan, Mr. and Mrs. Herbert McIlwaith of Belleville; Rev. A. J. Terrill and daughter of Colbourne; Mr. and Mrs. John Nesbitt, Mr. Wm. Ross, Mr. and Mrs. James Ross of Campbellford.

The funeral took place from the family residence to the United Church on Sunday afternoon, Dec. 15th, and the service was conducted by the pastor, Rev. W. T. R. Delve.

The floral tributes were many and beautiful, showing the esteem in which the deceased was held. Floral bearers were Messrs. Terrance Read, Karl Austin and Billy Mitchell.

The pall bearers were, Messrs. John Hennessey, Elmo Dunn, Ervon Scott, Robert Read, Nesbitt Haggarty and Herman Anderson.

Interment was made in the Friends' cemetery.

PETER BABCOCK
(Picton)

Peter Babcock, the seven-months-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Elmer Babcock, Picton, died in the Belleville General Hospital early this Wednesday morning. The child was a patient in the hospital since Aug. 10th. last.

LATE VICTOR NICHOLSON

The funeral of Victor Nicholson was held from the residence of his aunt, Miss Corrigan, 188 Johnson Street, Kingston, Tuesday morning to St. Mary's Cathedral where solemn requiem high mass was sung by a brother of deceased, Rt. Rev. Monsignor J. F. Nicholson, M.C., V.G., assisted by Rev. F. A. Agnew as deacon, Rev. J. P. Sullivan as sub-deacon and Rev. J. A. Welsh as master of ceremonies. His Grace Most Rev. M. J. O'Brien, archbishop of Kingston, was present and was assisted by Rev. S. A. Corrigan of Westport and Rev. E. J. Bartlett, S.J., Regiopolis College. Other clergy present were Rev. J. A. Only About One-Fifth Of 1941 Licence Plates Sold Here

Approximately twenty per cent. of the allotment of 1941 motor vehicle licence plates for this district have been sold since they went on sale in November, according to Mr. E. Vermilyea, local issuer of motor licences. Officially there has been no word of an extension of the deadline for 1940 markers and unless official word to the contrary comes through, the 31st of December will be the last date upon which 1940 plates may be displayed on cars. It is expected, however, that the usual 15-day extension of the deadline will come through before the new year.

To date rural residents are far in the majority of those purchasing new licences it was stated, with their city brothers lagging behind somewhat in this respect. The new order making it essential that the motor number be included in the application for new markers is causing a little inconvenience to purchasers, it being necessary in some cases for owners to return to their cars to ascertain the correct number, stated Mr. Vermilyea.

In answer to the appeal of the Red Cross for old markers to be used as scrap metal for melting, a number of applicants for new markers have brought their old ones along and deposited them with Mr. Vermilyea to be forwarded. Mr. Vermilyea promises that any markers left with him will be forwarded to the Imperial Oil distributors in the district who are collecting old markers for the Red Cross.

Police Blotter

Complaints from Foster Ward took the city police post haste to Victoria Park last night, where two teen-aged girls were found loitering around the park pavilion in company with two older boys. Constables Thomson and Evans escorted the children to the police station for questioning as the hour was exceedingly late for children of such a tender age to be found loitering in such an isolated spot. The quartette were later liberated with instructions to report to the Chief Constable's office after school hours today.

Dogs Terrify Community

Residents on Bleecker Avenue complained to police that two dogs were terrifying the community by chasing pedestrians as they proceeded along the sidewalks on Bleecker Avenue and Lingham Streets. Police are endeavoring to ascertain the owners of the canines and have them secured, if not destroyed.

Automobile Stolen

The Bowmanville police reported the theft of a 1940 model Dodge sedan on Tuesday night. The vehicle was equipped with Ontario licence plates number 1-C-407 when taken.

Bicycle Abandoned

A bicycle, which was found abandoned by police some time ago, is still awaiting identification and ownership at the police station.

The largest number of transients to seek shelter at the police station since winter set in nearly a month ago was seen last night when 15 cold and weary knights of the road were afforded shelter.

LEASE AND LEND

Postpone Settlement

In brief, the idea called for leasing or lending Britain all the material and supplies she would need in the future, and postponing the account's settlement until peace came.

Mr. Roosevelt said he intended to ask the new Congress, convening Jan. 3, for legislation and appropriations to put this tentative program or a similar one into effect.

Details would have to be worked out with London, he said. The understanding was that any such plan probably would apply only to such equipment and munitions as Britain might need over and above the $2,000,000,000 worth of "cash-and-carry" orders she has placed here.

Congressional comment on the revolutionary proposal was slow and, for the most part, guarded. Some ardent aid-to-Britain advocates endorsed it at once, but many legislators preferred to withhold opinions until they had studied the idea.

The need for a tremendous speed-up in defence production—something key defence officials and Congressmen have been urging with unusual emphasis recently—figured only incidentally in Mr. Roosevelt's long Press conference yesterday. There were indications, however, that the problem was receiving his serious consideration as the paramount factor in the whole great effort to arm America quickly and to provide simultaneous aid for Britain.

Trying to Eliminate Dollar Sign

On the subject of aid for Britain, Mr. Roosevelt said he was trying to eliminate the dollar sign. It was banal, he asserted, to argue about financial assistance or outright financial gifts, because no war in memory had ever been lost or won because of a lack of money.

Before giving an informal exposition of the tentative lease-and-lend plan, the President declared that in the present world situation there was absolutely no doubt in the minds of an overwhelming number of Americans that the best immediate defence of the United States was the success of Great Britain in defending herself.

The President used an illustration to describe the principle behind his plan.

Mr. Roosevelt then said that if the United States should lend munitions to Britain, it would get either the munitions back or replacements for them, in the event they were damaged.

Would Take Tin, Rubber

This statement made it appear that Mr. Roosevelt was talking in terms of ultimate repayment might be made just as acceptable in rubber, tin or other raw materials from parts of the British Empire.

Comment in London political circles tended to support the latter view. Britain's large supplies of rubber and tin were mentioned there as important empire assets in any arrangement for "economic co-operation," as British authorities styled it.

One of several methods, but not necessarily the final one, President Roosevelt outlined as follows:—

That the United States, which has enough money to do it, take over British orders for supplies and munitions in this country and turn them into American orders since both countries were ordering essentially the same things.

Take Over British Orders

Then, such supplies as Britain needed because of military events could be either leased or sold subject to mortgage, on the theory that they would be more useful in service in Britain than in storage in the United States.

This would get rid of what he called that silly, foolish, old dollar sign.

With the legal details under study, the chief executive said his broad thought was for this country to take over a large number of British orders. When the supplies came off the line, he added, this country would enter into an arrangement for their use by the British. When the war is over repayment would be in kind.

Orders from Great Britain, he went on, were a tremendous asset to our defence because we increase our own facilities. Therefore from a selfish point of view, he said, the United States should encourage such production.

Favorite Christmas Carols

God Rest You Merry Gentlemen

God rest you merry gentlemen,
Let nothing you dismay,
Remember Christ our Saviour
Was born on Christmas Day;
To save us all from Satan's pow'r
When we were gone astray.

From God our heav'nly Father
A blessed angel came;
And unto certain shepherds
Brought tidings of the same;
How that in Bethlehem was born
The Son of God by name.

Chorus:
Oh, tidings of comfort and joy,
comfort and joy,
Oh, tidings of comfort and joy.

This carol certainly dates back to the 17th century, at least, and is a traditional English melody. In its present form it was harmonized by John Stainer in 1867. The carol tells the story of the birth of Christ.

LEO BELLINGER AWARDED $7,225

Decision Given Against George F. Ostrom, Sr., and George F. Ostrom, Jr., in Supreme Court

For damages claimed and expenses incurred through being incapacitated Mr. Jistice Hope of the Supreme Court awarded Leo Bellinger, of this city, $7,225.00 at the conclusion of an action which was heard in the Non Jury Sittings of the Supreme Court here Tuesday. The action was brought jointly against George F. Ostrom, Sr., and Geo. F. Ostrom Jr., as the result of an accident, which occurred on the Foxboro Road on the night of Aug. 9th, 1939 at which time a motor car driven by the younger Ostrom was in a rear end collision with an automobile driven by Bellinger.

Medical testimony disclosed that the plaintiff had lost nine percent of the flexibility of his neck after sustaining a fractured and dislocated vertebrae, Dr. F. R. Ross stated. Contradictory evidence was heard relative as to whether the rear light of Bellinger's car was lighted or not, but in his findings His Lordship stated it made no difference as the chief point to be discussed was the ownership of the vehicle.

The transcribed police court evidence of Geo. Ostrom Jr., who is now in the Air Force at Regina, and of Aircraftsman Keegan, R.C.A.F. and who was a passenger in the Ostrom car on the night of the accident, were admitted owing to the unavoidable absence of these witnesses.

Borrowed Money on Car Claim

George Ostrom Sr., contended, that the automobile was registered under the name of G. F. Ostrom Jr., and Mr. Frank Cushing, appearing for the defendants, produced a Government registration certificate to this effect. In rebuttal of final argument Mr. Robert Pringle, who appeared for Bellinger, stated — "The car may have been purchased by Ostrom Jr., but it was with the Senior Ostrom's money and for the latter. This can be proven by the fact that Mr. Ostrom Sr., later borrowed money from a finance company on the car, which proves an act of ownership," contended Mr. Pringle.

In summing up the case Mr. Justice Hope stated he was satisfied that the responsibility of the motor crash rested on the shoulders of Ostrom Jr., and that the sole cause of the accident had been due to his negligent operation of the motor car.

Finds Joint Ownership

"Despite the rather unsatisfactory evidence of Mr. Ostrom Sr., I find there was a joint ownership at least and it is only a miracle that Mr. Bellinger is alive and here today," stated His Lordship as he assessed total damages of $7,225.00 in favour of the plaintiff, Bellinger. This included $100. for loss of motor car; $500.00 physician's fees, $325.00 hospital bills and $300.00 loss of earnings, the balance to take care of future loss of earning power, disability and pain and suffering endured.

Lieut. Sam Ervine, former traffic officer, gave evidence as to the measurements taken at the scene of the accident. He added in his opinion, there were indications of excessive speed on the part of Ostrom.

The War Today

By GUY RHOADES,
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

British forces, storming across the desert into Italian Libya found tacked on a wall this order of the day, issued by General Nerdi, Commander of the Bardia defences: "Surprise is always master of the battlefields."

The General not only was right, he was surprised, too.

An Italian Colonel told an Associated Press war correspondent yesterday that his forces who stood in the road of the British counter-invasion of Libya "thought the front was 40 miles away" when the tanks suddenly charged them.

The scope of the African campaign became slightly clearer today with the announcement from Nairobi, Kenya Colony, that a successful action had been fought on the Somaliland front against Italian troops. It began to look as if British forces will concentrate, for the time being at least, on getting the Italians out of Africa.

Must Strike Deep

The attitude of the British High Command was reflected by a statement from the Ministry of Information in London which said Britain could not win the war until the army had "struck deep into the Axis countries."

In Britain itself the army of about 2,000,000 men, including an unstated number of Canadian and other Dominions' troops, was determined not to be surprised by any invasion attempt the enemy might make, despite his first failure to get started last September.

The Ministry also drew attention to the fact that raiding parties, thrown quickly ashore on long dark nights might do considerable damage before being confronted by British forces of sufficient numbers to cope with them.

Enemy Suffers Surprise

Among the surprises the enemy suffered in the last 24 hours was one produced by President Roosevelt who suggested the United States might lend Britain not money, but the weapons she needs to help her fight the enemy.

The President suggested it might be a good idea to remove the dollar sign from aid to Britain, thereby hurdling such obstacles as the Johnson Act, which bars loans to countries defaulting First Great War loans. His scheme would wark as a gentlemen's agreement under which Britain would pay in kind rather than money for the assistance she received.

There was nothing in the President's suggestions to indicate whether he wished the United States to be repaid in weapons for its vast armament plan or in some strategic materials such as, perhaps, rubber, tin or some other products which are not available in commercial quantities in the United States.

Unable to Pay

However, the idea of repayment in kind appeared likely to overcome any such difficulty as occurred at the end of the First Great War when Britain, unpaid indemnities or loans by other countries, found herself unable to repay the United States the money she had borrowed to buy American products.

Under the President's plan no such situation could arise. His scheme for repayment in kind, furthermore, would do much to prevent the kind of employment slump which generally occurs at the end of a war when a country's economy is shifted suddenly from belligerency to peace.

There still would be a demand for large-scale production in the heavy industries and the change-over could be made without disruptive shock.

R. C. A. F. Members Must Have Perfect Vision

By GLADYS ARNOLD,
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Ottawa, Dec. 18—(CP)—Men with defective vision who manage to enlist in the Royal Canadian Air Force can take it for granted they will spend their time on the ground, Group Capt. R. W. Ryan said today.

Group Capt. Ryan, brought to Canada from England to organize the R.C.A.F.'s new medical service, said perfect vision is one of the prime requisites to air service.

He didn't think much of the reports that tests at Fort Sill, Okla., have proven color blind men can see through camouflage better than men with normal vision. He said he had sufficient authentic evidence to convince him that wasn't so.

And as far as the Air Force is concerned, 'color receptivity is vitally important to a pilot or air observer."

"He must be able to distinguish colors perfectly," Group Capt. Ryan said. "He has to be able to pick out the different signals and lighting arrangements on landing fields."

That's the reason color-blindness doesn't do above the ground in the R.C.A.F. But anyway, even if the Fort Sill tests were accurate, the Air Force has an even better way to distinguish camouflaged objects.

Picton and District

Picton, Dec. 18.—Picton War Emergency Committee is planning a Christmas treat for the men at Picton Bombing and Gunnery School. They will send a large quantity of homemade cookies, candy, nuts and apples.

A blizzard for a few hours Tuesday brought enough snow to cover roads and make them less slippery. There was a big crowd of shoppers in town. Christmas shopping is later this year due to condition of roads for several weeks past.

Alarm System Installed

An automatic fire alarm system has been installed in Prince Edward County hospital here. Thermostat devices have been placed throughout the building and when a certain temperature is reached an alarm sounds at the fire hall. A demonstration showed an alarm to be rung two minutes after a fire of alcohol in a jar was started.

With the Bay of Quinte frozen over as far as Glenora skaters are taking advantage of the clear ice and crowds of young folks are enjoying the fun. Many of the R.C.A.F. students are seen enjoying the sport.

Plan Christmas Party

Sir Thomas Picton Chapter I.O.D.E. is planning a Christmas party on Christmas night for the R.C.A.F. men who will not be able to go home for the holiday. It will be a private affair with invited guests, but all airmen are welcome.

The accommodation of Prince Edward County hospital has been increased to forty-four beds. This has been accomplished by taking over rooms formerly occupied by the nurses and making them available to patients. The nurses have new quarters in the nearby house of J. H. Carter. The hospital has found lack of room a pressing matter on many occasions and the four new rooms will do much to relieve this situation. Carson Hubbs is president of the Hospital Board.

Miss Olga Cook of the Ontario College of Education is home for the holidays with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. George Cook. Misses Zilda and Louise Cook of Toronto University are expected home later.

Mrs. Charles Gordon is spending several weeks in Brantford with her sister, Mrs. E. Wheeler.

Miss Belle Shannon of Holy Name School, Toronto, arrives Friday to spend the holidays with her sister, Miss Ella Shannon.

Miss Beatrice Huff of Warkworth Collegiate is spending the holidays with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Hanson Huff.

Mrs. Malcolm Rorabeck is progressing favorably in Prince Edward County hospital where she underwent an operation for appendicitis.

The many friends of Harry Doyle will be pleased to learn he is recovering from his lengthy illness. He has been prominent in promoting baseball here for years.

Mrs. James Walmsley, Miss Bessie Walmsley and Mrs. D. Goodwin visited in Belleville this week.

Mr. and Mrs. R. A. Wyatt, Belleville, were visitors of Mr. and Mrs. James Livingstone.

RUMANIA OUTLAWS UNIONS

Bucharest, Dec. 18.— (AP)— All Workers' Association have been outlawed in Rumania under a government decree. Trade unionism, 400 years old, was abolishd in 1938 and the present associations or syndicates patterned on the Italian Corporative plan then were founded.

EXPLOSION BLOWS

Feared Woman Trapped

Police said that they had been unable to find any trace of Mrs. T. G. Roy, 63, a resident of one of the buildings adjoining the Demers home. They feared that she had been trapped in the flaming structure.

When firemen first arrived, they found a chesterfield burning in the middle of the road on Berri Street. It had been blown there by the blast.

"I woke up with the explosion," said 17-year-old Jacques Demers. "I saw burning boards and pieces of brick all over my bed. I thought I was dreaming until I tried to move and felt the heat.

"I heard my father shouting, and I went towards the door of my room, but the flames were shooting in. I turned toward the wall, and there wasn't any wall. The whole side of the house had blown out.

"I was getting very hot. I ran over and jumped without looking and landed in a pile of burning beams and hot debris."

The blast was described as "terrific" by Fred Gravel, a Tramways Company bus driver on his way to work at the time.

"The ground shook with the blast, and rocked me on my feet and then flames shot out from two buildings," he said. "Pieces of brick and lumber were blown right across the street into the fence and broke the fence."

The blast, origin of which was still unknown, was the second in as many days in the Montreal district. Yesterday, a woman was killed and four injured in a gas explosion at suburban Tetraultville.

VICIOUS SPIRAL

(In Montreal, Alfred Charpentier, president of the Canadian Federation of Catholic Workers, said he approved a system of cost-of-living bonuses instead of wage increases.)

Mr. McLarty's statement said "the most striking feature of the new order-in-council is its recognition that, in general, present wage scales are reasonably adequate in the current situation—provided the cost of living..... remains approximately where it is at present.

Exceptional Cases Recognized

"The possibility for exceptional cases is recognized and provided for.

"The intention is to establish a reasonable standard of wage rates in terms of wage rates which have been demonstrated to be reasonable in the past."

That standard is to be the general wage levels established from 1926-29 inclusive, or any higher levels established since. There will be two exceptions: (1) "When it can be shown that when such level was established the wages of the workers in question were depressed or subnormal"; and (2) "Where it can be shown that in particular instances wages....have been unduly enhanced and are out of line with the general level in the particular trade or calling."

These principles are recommended as the basis for recommendations by boards set up under the Industrial Disputes Investigation Act, and for inclusion "in all agreements negotiated during the war."

The order-in-council states specifically that "wages rates established and in effect . . . ought not to be reduced by reason of any principle herein set out."

Nothing Compulsory

There is nothing compulsory in the order. Parties to a dispute still have the right to accept or reject the recommendations of any board of conciliation.

Such board shall be guided by the recommendations contained in the order, and their reports shall be subject to review by the minister. If he considers they are not in accord with the recommendations he may order a revision, or set up a new board.

To ensure workers that their basic standard of living is not impaired by any undue rise in the cost of living, conciliation boards are directed to recommend cost-of-living bonuses, based on the Dominion Bureau of Statistics cost of living index.

The bonus, a flat payment to all workers, not based on the rate of earnings, shall be determined not oftener than quarterly, and paid only if the cost of living has risen five per cent or more since August, 1939, or since the time of any wage increase subsequent to that date.

Similar Agreements

This feature of the recommendations is similar to agreements under which Alberta and British Columbia coal miners are working. They have agreed to base wage increases upon increases in the cost of living.

The order-in-council says that if the 1926-29 wage levels, if restored, would be out of alignment with the present wage situation, it would be accepted as reasonable that increases in wage rates granted in any calendar year should be limited to five per cent of the prevailing rates.

In industries operating on a three - shift basis, arrangements should be made to allow workers at least one day off each week, and such additional days off as might be necessary to ensure sufficient rest. Payment of overtime in such cases should be adjusted to meet the conditions "in a manner reasonable to both the employers and the employees."

MUSSOLINI BUILT A DESERT HIGHWAY

Mussolini was too much in a hurry. He seized time by the forelock and built "the road to victory," the "Via Victoria," from the border of Libya into Egypt to Sidi Barrani. Along its side he erected monuments to the fame of Mussolini. But Duce's men did not get the top put on.

That highway over the desert was meant for conquering Fascists to march through to take up all Egypt into the modern Italian Empire. But the events of the past week have given the Fascists so much to do that the road is now safely in the hands of the British and the successful defenders of Egypt are marching over Duce's highway on the sands of the desert against Libya, which has already felt the tramp of British troops.

Mussolini "counted his chickens before they were hatched" and the building of that road is typical of his preparations for the invasion of Greece, wholly ineffective against the unyielding Greeks.

That Via Victoria is one of the memorials to Fascist greed. Thirsting for loot the Fascists built the road to bolster up their plans for the complete subjection of Egypt and the march on to the Suez Canal, never thinking they could not hold it in the face of a determined foe, whom they outnumbered four to one. Now the British will see that Duce will have no further use for that highway.

BATTLES NAMED AFTER COUNTRIES

The "Battle of Egypt" has been fought and won by the British forces and now the "Battle of Libya" is on with the British nearing Bardia port. Across the Mediterranean there has been fought the "Battle of Greece" and the "Battle of Albania" is proceeding apace, Italy having lost a large share of her ill-gotten gains seized not long before the war broke out.

The war is one dealing in great masses of territory and populations. It began with the "Battle of Poland," and then came to the "Battle of the Lowlands" and the "Battle of France." Then came the "Battle of Britain."

Such names indicate on what a vast scale the war is being waged, with struggles named after nations and races rather than after places, cities, ports or mountains.

And the name of battle seems particularly appropriate under these conditions when so much has been associated and tied up with the result of the conflict. With long range guns, with planes, war is all-extensive and the front line is not what a front line was in other wars when the front was definitely marked. Today the front for the army is far ahead of the army, for the airplane knows a wide range. In the sense of the absorption of all interests in the war, the front is even where the civilians dwell and labor as in the case of the munitions industries which are in very truth part of the front line. Non-combatants in their homes or going about their business are in the front line of the gigantic battle. No village or town is big enough to name a battle for the battle line ranges for perhaps hundreds of miles farther on on either side.

One city has won the name of a battle for it, London, which has seen the enemy planes come almost nightly for months and it defies the foe. The raids on London were the greatest attempt of the Hun and it failed.

AT VICHY

Germany is reported to have looked with great concern over the ousting of Pierre Laval, vice premier of France as the result of recent events and it is said that the Nazis may occupy the whole of France as a result. Yet it is pointed out that there are serious disadvantages in the way of Hitler occupying all of France, among them the fact that there is still plenty of potential opposition to Germany left in France which not even the Nazi war machine or the Gestapo can hold in check forever. There is also the French Empire in North Africa where General Waygand is to be considered, while Italy is taking a terrific pounding, having been routed out of Egypt and now being called upon to defend Libya if she can.

Whatever has happened, Laval is ousted and is reported held near Vichy to the manifest disappointment of Germany, though yesterday he was able to see the German envoy, Otto Abetz. Yesterday's papers carried a story of a plot, alleged by the Free French News Agency to have aimed at bringing Premier Petain to Paris for the ceremony over the entombment of the remains of Napoleon's son, brought from Vienna, by the side of his father, the great Napoleon, and to lure him to stay in Paris and to have planned to have Laval, being then virtually in charge of the government, endeavor to open new peace negotiations on behalf of France with Germany and with the possibility of France taking the place of Italy as Axis partner No. 2. This story said that the alleged plot was foiled by the tipping off of a member of the Vichy cabinet who informed Petain who acted at once and absented himself from the ceremony at Paris.

WINTER WALKING

Winter is the time for careful walking. This week people have had occasion to exercise caution on the walks and particularly at the crossings where the unevenness of the snow or ice surface on the roadways or pavements made walking rather a slow procedure.

Such an occasion provides an opportunity to advise against jay walking on the streets or crossing between intersections. In the winter months it is especially dangerous as there is the great danger in coming out from between cars of not noticing an approaching car or the danger that the driver will not have an opportunity of seeing the pedestrian or of being able to halt his car even if he should catch a glimpse of the walker.

Pedestrians are called upon at all times and more so in these days to be careful to avoid accidents when crossing streets and roads. That is only fair to the vehicular traffic.

Expect 500,000 Of New Workers To Be Women

From the Manchester Guardian

A million new workpeople are expected to swell the ranks of the industrial army for the battle on the home front in the coming year. At least half of the recruits should be women. Volunteers, especially women, are urgently needed to train for work in the engineering industries and to help to bring war production to the record heights needed to beat Germany.

The new workpeople, men and women, boys and girls, who will come fresh to the workshops, need intensified technical training, and a big expansion in institution and workshop facilities is being provided by the Government and by private industry. In the past six months the number of people undergoing special training has increased three-fold

Now nine new Government training centres are to be opened, bringing the total number for civilian industrial workers up to 28, and in addition there are four centres for army tradesmen. Special appeals have been directed to private industry and agreements concluded between the Labor Ministry, engineering employers, and the trade unions. One of these provides for training industrial recruits on actual production work within the factories.

'Give Hitler Hell for This' His Majesty Told on Coventry Visit

City Clears Up After the Luftwaffe —'Blood and Toil and Tears' Of Which Churchill Spoke

From the Yorkshire Post

Loudspeaker vans ordered the civilian population to evacuate several streets of Coventry while troops dynamited the smouldering shell of bombed buildings.

Bugle calls rang out and then there was a succession of shattering explosions. The city goes stolidly on with its work of clearing up after the Luftwaffe.

The horror that befell Coventry demands simple objective reporting —no labels, no "Wonder Hero" headlines. What the King saw during his heartening visit was a city that was a compound of the "blood and toil and tears" a realist Prime Minister offered to the nation as the price of victory.

I have the authority of the town clerk (Mr. Frederick Smith) for saying that the casualties were in the region of 11,000.

The dead were buried together under the Union Jack in a cemetery set apart by the town council for air raid victims—a cemetery which, after the war, will be laid out on the simple lines of the war cemeteries of Flanders.

"We feel that as they perished together they should be laid to rest together", said the town clerk.

Under the Ruins

Some of the dead were unidentified. Others lay under the ruins. Among the latter were three policemen who heard cries for help coming from a cellar, which had been reduced to rubble by a high explosive bomb.

They fought their way in—and while they were in incendiary bombs rained down upon the ruins and set them ablaze.

The train which brought me here carried anxious men, women, and children who were coming in search of relatives. In my compartment was a man who had come from Cardiff to find his sister; a man from Wolverhampton who was setting out in search of his mother.

At the control centre a woman was saying in a low voice to the policeman at the door: "Are they digging there?" The policeman nodded.

"It's my old father in there", said the woman.

The casualty offices in the Council House were besieged by anxious relatives. I saw women come away in tears. One man was saying to another as they passed me on the staircase: "There's nothing we can do—nothing".

Sacrificed His Life

One woman who came was saying brokenly: "He needn't have done it. He needn't have done it". She was talking about her husband. He had left the safety of their shelter to go and put out an incendiary bomb at a neighbor's house, and he was killed.

Part of the central area was a chaos of wreckage, out of which soldiers were creating order. All day they were hauling on ropes, digging, dynamiting.

The Cathedral, the old palace yard, churches, cinemas, hotels, public houses, clubs, a newspaper office, stores and banks were all destroyed.

The lines of some streets had vanished. Hundreds of people had been rendered homeless and were being cared for at rest centres and in neighboring towns and villages. A number sleep every night in a parish hall just outside the city.

Even in London I saw nothing to equal the concentrated viciousness of this scene of destruction.

The King in Tears

Those who were near enough to see say that Coventry moved a King to tears.

I heard a workman still in his overalls who had come in from a neighboring town to see the damage say to a friend: "I wish I hadn't come—I wish I hadn't come". I know what he means. I wish I hadn't come, too.

The King ate a simple lunch in a room lit by a candle whose flame flickered in the draught blowing through shattered windows.

A responsible official said to me, "The German bombs were undoubtedly aimed at Coventry's morale. They missed".

But to paint these people in heroic, glowing colors would be to miss the point. And they would resent it. They are simple, ordinary people, like you and me. They are appalled and still somewhat dazed by the terrific indiscriminate bombardment of their city. They look on ruins and what they say is: "We are lucky to be alive".

A number of them still go out at night seeking security in neighboring villages.

The ruins of Coventry looked less terrifying when a young mother decided to walk through them to give her two children an airing in their prams; a little less awe-inspiring also when three nurses from a bombed hospital walked over the piles of broken glass, each eating an apple.

They Want to Hit Back

But uppermost in Coventry's mind is a passionate desire to hit back at the Germans—"to fight them with their own weapons" as one of them put it. This sullen anger is the dominant mood of Coventry.

"Give Hitler hell for this", was one cry which greeted the King.

Then, braced by the tonic of the King's visit, they shouted, "Are we downhearted?" There was an answering shout, "No"!

During his tour of the city, the King was seen more than once to wave his car away, preferring to walk rather than ride through the streets.

"I'll bet Hitler daren't do that", a woman shouted.

He went to see the mayor (Alderman J. A. Mosley) at his home. The mayor is a retired locomotive fireman.

When the King returned to the Council House, the tattered Royal Standard was flying from one of the windows. He mounted the steps and then turned to look at the crowd. They gave him a tremendous cheer and then began to sing, "God Save the King". He stood at the salute, moved beyond words.

Herbert Morrison, Home Secretary and Minister of Home Security, accompanied the King and said afterwards, "His visit has been of the highest value. It is typical of his instant and spontaneous sympathy with the trouble of his people. It is something that Hitler cannot do and does not do— it is the difference between our free constitution and Nazi terrorism. I think that is a tribute to the people of Coventry and to the British monarchy".

The King had said to Mr. Morrison: "I am glad that things have gone so well as they have in these dreadful circumstances".

No Red Tape

Red tape was cut everywhere. Many old people lost their old-age pension books, but the authorities paid them just the same. Measures were taken to bring in supplies of bread and milk and a house-to-house distribution was attempted. Mobile canteens ply the streets.

I saw this notice: "If you are homeless and without food go to the rest centres. They are at—"

These people were being evacuated yesterday. Another notice I saw read, "If you need money go to the Assistance Officer in—"

Two other notices perhaps summarize the spirit of the new Coventry. One said, "Dance tonight. Opposite A.R.P. Shelter".

The other was in front of a bethel which has been battered almost out of recognition. It said, "Bruised but not broken. Services 11 a.m. and 4 p.m. Don't let the devil get victory".

Germans Pay For Cars That Never Were Built

From the News Review (London)

For years after the last war needy Germans sighed in vain for possession of that outward badge of prosperity—the motor car. But no Austin Seven or Morris Minor existed for the Herrenvolk.

Brilliant caterer for the lower mental yearnings of the Teuton masses, Adolf Hitler soon changed all that. He gave his Stormtroopers lovely Mercedes roadsters, paid for out of party subscriptions. Later came 100 m.p.h. autobahnen over which party paladins could scorch to their heart's content.

When he had been five years in power, the beneficent Fuehrer announced a great project for supplying his entire nation with cars. Author of the volkswagen scheme was cunning, beery Dr. Robert Ley, leader of the "Labor Front".

o o o

In the spring of 1938 Ley was asked by an official of the Economics Ministry to raise 30,000,000 marks weekly from German workers for the Treasury.

Bitterly sarcastic at first, the good Doctor mellowed after a few steins of lager beer.

Slapping his fat thigh he reputedly yelled: "We'll sell cars to the workmen. Paid for by five marks a week, delivered at the millennium."

Soon the whole Nazi Press burst out with Hitler's wonderful offer. There were pictures of him examining plans, not of the car, but at least of the enormous factory at Fallersleben where it would be produced.

The Fuehrer wanted everyone to have a volkswagen, so all earning 200 to 500 marks a month were expected to subscribe.

ooo

Salesmanship in the regimented Reich is not difficult. Before long 6,000,000 subscribers were giving the Treasury the requisite 30,000,000 marks a week.

His voice trembling with suppressed emotion, Robert Ley announced that the car would cost 990 marks, but neither this sum nor any other appeared in the "Contract of Purchase" worked out by his Assistant Selzner and handed to workers making their first payment.

Among the 14 clauses was one stipulating that there could be no retirement from an application save in exceptional cases where a payment of 20 per cent would be deducted as "escape-fee". Another delicate point was that the card recording payment and the sole evidence of the contract was not transferable. No interest could be paid on the amounts saved for reasons of "technical development and cheapening of the car".

Every machine on leaving the works would be insured at the owner's cost, which added another 200 marks to Dr. Ley's estimate.

"After production had begun" the applicant's district was to give him an order number, which meant, though it was not suggested, that a mythical number of subscribers could be issued with a mythical number of cars before the first actual model was handed over.

ooo

Thus did 6,000,000 workers who received this proud document begin paying for an unspecified car, at an unspecified price, to be delivered at an unspecified time.

Taking Labor Leader Ley's figure of 990 marks, plus the cost of insurance, as being correct, subscribers reckoned that they would have their volkswagen after four years seven months of steady payment.

But when war broke out they were informed that production would have to be suspended until the end of the war.

Slowly the dreadful truth leaked out. No volkswagen had the factory produced, but hordes of tanks and warplanes for the overrunning of Europe.

Nor was this all. Last week it was reported that Germany's gullible millions were still subscribing for their cars.

Treatment of Deafness Due to Hardening of Bones of Middle Ear

I have written before of the use of extract of ovary in the treatment of the hard of hearing, and particularly those cases due to catarrh. I have also written about the use of the Xrays in the treatment of catarrhal forms of deafness. Still later I wrote of the use of prostigmin, a proprietary or patent preparation, which has helped many cases due, to a considerable extent, to its effect upon the eustachian tube which carries the air from the throat to the inner side of the ear drum.

One form of hard of hearing is where the three little bones of the middle ear which carry the sound vibrations from the drum to the beginning of the auditory (hearing) nerve, get fastened together. This is called otosclerosis .That this type of deafness can likewise be helped by sex extracts or hormones is reported in the British Lancet by Drs. J. Bernstein, Leeds, and Leon Gillis, Liverpool. In a series of 56 unselected cases of otosclerosis, they noted definite improvement in 31 following the administration of sex hormones. A study of these patients suggests that there is some intimate relation between the extracts of the sex organs and otosclerosis.

In otosclerosis the degree of deafness gradually increases so that any improvement is a considerable advance.

These physicians were led to the belief that there was a relation between the sex glands and hearing because of the following facts, (a) this type of hard of hearing is hereditary or runs in families, (b) it is much more common in females than in males; (c) it often begins at puberty —as boys and girls emerge into manhood and womanhood, (d) it tends to reach a standstill—grows no worse—at the menopause or change of life and (e) it is made worse at each pregnancy.

It is believed that improvement in this type of hard of hearing by use of sex hormones is that these hormones cause a dilatation or opening up of the blood vessels supplying middle ear. This gives an increased supply of blood which causes an absorption of the bony tissue which is causing these little bones to stick together.

The sex hormones were given by injection and hearing was tested by tuning fork, spoken and whispered voice.

A Word For the Onion

Lately there was celebrated in Florida an onion festival, a fiesta in praise of the onion, and, though this doubtless was commercial and industrial in its inspirations, the aptness of it, none the less, moved not a few of the pilgrims of the onion to responsive tears. These Florida laurels for the faithful onion were no more than its belated due. If we hold festival for the fruit of the vine and the orchard, why not for the onion, the zestful, authoritative fruit of the kindly earth herself?

We ought to realize, and rather humbly, as we flavor our soups and our salads with onions, or eat them with salt when they are tender and "green", or slice them boldly for our sandwiches, that it would be well for us were the virtues of the opinion ours. For when the time came for strength, dear friends, we should be strong with the strength of ten, and resolute as Roland at the pass of Roncesvalles; yet withal we should be kindly though rugged of heart, and courteous and comforting to the forlorn, and not without a certain admirable blandness — persistent, pervasive and genuine.

And when the time came for memory our friends should recall us with fondness—and the suggestion of tears. We say of one of ourselves that he is a good egg. It is an impulsive and deserved tribute to his excellence. Yet it would be even higher praise to say of him that he has so borne himself, in the lists of friendship and the usages of life, that beyond all dispute he is a good onion.—Portland Oregonian.

MEDALS FOR A MYTH

(London Times)

—Rome officially published, and Germany repeated, the story of a "very smart action" by an Italian submarine commander. In this version the intrepid sailor sighted two English vessels in an "extraordinarily rough sea" One of these, "the auxiliary cruiser Baron Erskine, of 10,000 tons", he sank by gunfire in 18 minutes, eluding counter-attack by the other ship. Our naval correspondent supplies a correct version of the glorious incident.

The Baron Erskine is an ordinary merchant vessel of 3,675 tons, armed with a small gun for self-defence. When attacked by the gunfire from the submarine she replied with her own gun. The action did not last 18 minutes, but was broken off, when the submarine had fired five shots without hitting, the assailant diving. The Baron Erskine continued her voyage and reached harbor safely. No doubt it was the "extraordinarily rough sea" which caused the submarine commander to see two ships where there was only one.

The Rome account ends with the statement that "in recognition of this splendid action the commander and crew have been awarded a silver medal, two bronze medals, and nine military crosses."

Stewart Says—

Expert Says Defence Program Can Pay Its Way

By CHARLES P. STEWART

Central Press Canadian Columnist

Washington—President Harold G. Moulton of the Brookings Institution advance the novel proposition that the U.S. national defence programs can be made to pay for itself without increasing Uncle Sam's already enormous load of indebtedness.

Chas. P. Stewart

Of course preparation, with a view of keeping the U.S. out of war, isn't as expensive as war itself. However, it does run into a lot of money, and it doesn't buy anything of any intrinsic value to us in an economic sense. It may scare off potential enemies, safeguarding us against possible future attacks, which would cost us still more than preparedness does. Nevertheless, military, naval and aviation equipment provides us with nothing of current utility. It's a product that yields no return and benefits nobody directly, like the food we eat, the clothes we wear or the houses that shelter us. What we pay for it is cash 100 per cent out of pocket.

If we hadn't any national debt, but were just breaking even, and then we piled the cost of a defence program on top of our financial output, without adding anything to our income, why wouldn't we run into debt? Well, we're not so much as breaking even. We're billions in the hole. Why then, won't defence run us still farther into it? Certainly it must.

That's the reasoning of all of a great many economists I've talked with, up to Dr. Moulton.

And Dr. Moulton himself doesn't say we shan't have a larger bill to foot.

Increased Income

What he does argue is that we'll have an increased income to foot it with.

It's his thesis that defence orders will boost industries' revenues from about 70 billions annually to 85 or 90 billions. That'll give the government 15 or 20 billions extra to tax. He agrees, too, that the tax rate will have to be higher — probably on the initial 70 billions and assuredly on the 15 or 20 additional billions.

Industry won't like the tax hike, but consummerdom will absorb more of its goods, for unemployment will be wiped out and we'll be larger buyers generally. Industry's profits will be cut into, on a percentage basis, by increased taxation, but the volume of sales will be increased also. It'll profit by an expanding volume of sales, though there'll be a reduction in its rake-off on each individual transaction.

This isn't my contention. It's Dr. Moulton's.

As to what the national debt is to date is a somewhat controversial question. During the last presidential campaign the Democrats figured it at one or two billions under a total of 50 billions; the Republicans put it at about 60 billions. A few digits like ten or a dozen billions don't signify particularly. At any rate Secretary of the Treasury Morgenthau now wants to raise the national debt limits to 65 billions.

Dr. Moulton doesn't argue that defensive preparations will go far toward reducing the already outstanding indebtedness. He limits his forecast to a judgment that preparation will pay for itself as it progresses.

The present half hundred or so of billions will be left on our hands to be attended to later. They're not included in the doc's reckoning.

Economic Authority

The Brookings Institution head is widely recognized as an exceptionally capable economist. Others of his group conceded that his dope is well worth listening to. In fact, it's regarded as cheering.

There are authorities who prophesy our national debt never will be paid off—by degrees, even.

Their theory is that it always will remain as a good thing for capital to invest itself in — that is to say, in federal bonds, which everlastingly will pay itself, like English consols, and remain as a safe source of income.

Others, to be sure, hint at prospects of inflation—the same money that we have now, but with less buying power; higher prices, but stationary bankrolls.

Dr. Moultan is one of the hopeful ones.

Irishman Bernard Shaw Advises De Valera 'Call in Britain'

Dare Not Give Up Ports But Should Ask Churchill To Take Them

An Irishman who has never minced his words, and has courted the brickbats, Bernard Shaw here tells Eire and Great Britain that De Valera dare not give up his ports, but, for the love of Eire, must (privately) beg Mr. Churchill to take them.

By GEORGE BERNARD SHAW
in an interview in the London
Sunday Graphic

You ask me if Mr. De Valera is acting a reasonable man in refusing to let Britain have the ports.

If Mr. De Valera were a reasonable man he would not be in his present position.

As a reasonable man he should call upon Britain to fulfill her obligation under the treaty by defending Ireland against foreign invasion and blockade, as Ireland is quite unable to defend itself against Germany and Italy combined.

Four millions of extremely disunited Irish cannot fight 123,970,758 Germans and Italians; and any talk that ignores this glaring fact is mere waste of breath.

As an Irish politician, Mr. De Valera should inform Mr. Churchill privately that he cannot give him the naval bases without comprising Ireland's neutrality and perhaps losing his job and his power for good, but that he cannot prevent him from taking them.

Therefore he will kindly do it with a tactful speech explaining the necessity and assuring Ireland that the ports shall be given back when the common enemies of England and Ireland are settled with.

Please bear in mind that if Mr. De Valera provoked a German invasion from the west he would make Ireland the cockpit of the war.

In that case his formal duty would be to fight Germany and Italy on the west, Ulster on the north, Britain on the east, and the British navy on the south, without the support of Rooseveltian America. What would you do in his place?

It is suggested that Mr. De Valera, being a ruler of what is called nowadays "a democracy" must remember his gallery and that if he leased the ports and other bases to us there would be a rumpus. Well, there will be a rumpus anyhow. Does a rumpus matter much with a European war on?

Before the war began I said, as you recall, that the British Isles are one military unit, and that it was out of the question for one fraction of the unit to maintain effective neutrality when the other fractions are at war. And you ask if the event enforces my opinion.

Of course it does. The event always confirms my opinions. I wish it would take the governments of Europe a little less than 20 years to find that out.

As to command of the seas, which is what is in question, how many battleships, submarines and Fulmar torpedo 'planes has Mr. De Valera, or Lord Craigavon? There are no German naval bases in Ireland; but there may be some German money in the pockets of young Irishmen humbugged by Nazi propaganda, and even some German guns in their hands.

Italian Communique

Rome, Dec. 18—(AP)—The Italian High Command claimed today that British troops in Libya have eased their pressure on Marshal Rodolfo Graziani's army under steady bombardment by Italian artillery and planes.

The High Command also claimed a British cruiser reported hit by two torpedoes from Italian planes was seen afterward to sink. Yesterday's communique claimed the cruiser, a 6,000-ton vessel, was shelling the Libyan base at Bardia when attacked.

(There has been no official comment in London on the Italian claim.)

The High Command reported that Colonel Aramu, who twice flew the Atlantic with the late Marshal Italo Balbo, was missing in one of the Italian bombing planes lost in North African fighting two days ago.

BASIC REALITIES RECOGNIZED SAYS HERALD TRIBUNE

Editorially Praises Aid to Britain on Lease or Mortgage Business

LIFE OR DEATH

New York, Dec. 18 (CP)—The New York Herald Tribune said editorially today that whether President Roosevelt's proposals for extending material aid to Britain on a lease or mortgage basis, to be repaid in kind after the war, is "practical or impractical, it is a welcome step in the direction of recognizing the basic realities in this whole question of financing American aid to Britain."

"The United States is dedicated to the policy of all aid to Britain, not because of the cash profit in the business, not because of any commercial considerations, but for the single reason that the safety of this country depends upon British survival. If their house goes down, the fire will lodge in our roof and walls, and the one reason why we are falling over ourselves to dig up planes and guns and tanks and ships for them lies in the hope that they will put out the fire before it reaches us.

Charging Cash on Barrel Head

"But so far we have been charging them cash on the barrel head, and at a handsome profit, for every item of fire-fighting equipment we have sent. The British, for whom it is a matter of life and death, have not complained; they have scrimped and gone short, sent us their luxury woollens or Scotch whiskies, denied themselves American purchases, in order to raise the dollars. But they are running short of dollars. This constitutes, certainly, a serious problem for the British; it is just as much an American problem, however, and its solution is only less vital to our own safety than to theirs....

"We must, for our own safety's sake, go on supplying Great Britain, whether Great Britain can pay or not.... It's our problem; it's not just something for the British to worry about, but something for us to worry about, for our own sake. Here is the fire. Here is the fire hose (it ought to be here, but we've been fearfully slow in getting it up out of the cellar). The critical thing for us is to get it trained on the blaze."

WAKE UP YOUR LIVER BILE—
And You'll Jump Out of Bed in the Morning Rarin' to Go

The liver should pour out two pounds of liquid bile into your bowels daily. If this bile is not flowing freely, your food doesn't digest. It just decays in the bowels. Gas bloats up your stomach. You get constipated. Harmful poisons go into the body, and you feel sour, sunk and the world looks punk.

A mere bowel movement doesn't always get at the cause. You need something that works on the liver as well. It takes those good, old Carter's Little Liver Pills to get these two pounds of bile flowing freely and make you feel "up and up". Harmless and gentle, they make the bile flow freely. They do the work of calomel but have no calomel or mercury in them. Ask for Carter's Little Liver Pills by name! Stubbornly refuse anything else. 25c.

Mr. and Mrs. Allen Insley and Miss Alice Insley of Trenton spent Saturday evening with their parents, Mr. and Mrs. William Insley.

Mrs. Edith Wilson and son, Mr. Arthur Wilson, Miss Elsie Ryan and Miss Doris Ellis spent Sunday in Tweed with Mr. and Mrs. Roy Woodcock.

Mr. Jack Dempster, Safety First expert for the Portland Cement Co., spent Friday in Point Anne and showed a very fine collection of movies on Safety First at work and at home. He gave two showings at the plant and one in the Club House in the evening. These were much enjoyed by all.

F.D.R. MAKES MONEY ON CHRISTMAS TREES

Hyde Park, N.Y., Dec. 18—(AP)— President Roosevelt's private evergreen plantation has produced 800 Christmas trees and some 200 yule logs for the market this year for a total revenue of approximately $900. Russell W. Linaka, superintendent of the President's acres, said production this year doubled that of 1939.

Little Benny's Note Book

After supper ma said to pop, Willyum, it's still quite a little while till your berthday, and yet it's getting nearer every day. What would you like me to give you this year, Willyum? Now think of something you wouldn't buy for yourself, because I want it to be a real everyday thing that you'd get yourself anyway, she said.

A meersham pipe is a joy forever as long as you dont drop it, pop said. I've gone through 2 meersham pipes in my career, and now I'm afraid I've passed the reckless age where I'll ever buy myself another one, so apparently a meersham pipe is the answer to your question, he said, and ma said, But Willyum, if you've broken 2 what makes you think you wont break another one? What would you say to a nice pair of pattern leather shoes to round out your dress clothes? she said.

Coloring a meersham pipe awakens all a man's artistic instincts, and the finished product is always the crowning jewel in his private museum, pop said. I saw some beauties downtown at 15 and 20 dollers apiece, he said, and ma said, Now Willyum, 15 and 20 dollers for a handfull of expensive clay. If you're so intent on something in the pipe line, how about a nice piperack so you're pipes would always be in one comparatively paneless place instead of an eyesore here and an eyesore there? she said.

Yee gods get me a set of embroidered dollies tastefully inland with your initials, pop said, and ma said, Now Willyum you dont need to wax sourcastic, I was only trying to find out what you really want.

I'll give you 50 guesses, pop said. Still being sourcastic.

Lest We Forget

WHILE we celebrate this Season of Goodwill in comfort, our brothers, sisters and comrades across the sea live 'neath the shadow of death . . . death let loose from the skies by the monstrous hordes of Nazidom and Paganism.

At this season we are particularly reminded of the debt we owe to those whose service and sacrifice make it possible for us to enjoy our Christmas midst the carefree happiness of children and fond parents . . . those valiant men who patrol the skies, man the ships, stand by the guns, and place their all — even unto life itself, between us and the enemy.

How can we pay our debt to them?

The least we can do is to Save every dollar that we can and lend it to Canada, so that Canada can provide everything in munitions and equipment to fortify these men for the defence of our country and our civilization.

Our savings should be invested in War Savings Certificates, and we should continue to save and invest in War Savings Certificates until Victory is won.

The widow's mite counts as much as the more fortunate ones' plenty, as evidence of service, sacrifice and determination.

So then, whatever else you do at this Christmas season, save and invest in War Savings Certificates. The very consciousness of your service in the Defence of your homeland will make greater your personal enjoyment of Christmas.

W. H. Somerville and de Gaspé Beaubien, Joint National Chairmen, War Savings Committee, Ottawa.

Young Women's Guild Discuss Speeches of Mrs. Neilsen, M. P.

The speeches of Mrs. Neilsen, M.P., formed the topic for study and discussion at the regular meeting of the Young Women's Guild held on Monday evening at the home of Mrs. Ted Gibson, Albert Street.

After considerable club business was disposed of and the singing of Christmas carols replaced the usual worship service the subject of the evening was very ably handled by Miss Irene Grills assisted by Mrs. Scripture, Mrs. Archibald and Miss Elson.

A biographical sketch of this "new defender of the democratic principles in Canada" was followed by a study of her speeches as relating to

(1) The civil liberties, that is freedom of speech, of assembly and discussion, of the press and of religion.

(2) Taxation.

It was explained that the vast amount necessary for war purposes are to be raised by five groups of taxes (a) on excess profits; (b) on income; (c) import duties; (d) a special defence tax, (e) on food.

Mrs. Neilsen's persistent opinion is that the great wealth in the hands of a few should be conscripted for this purpose.

Industrial corporations can increase their capital and set aside money for re-investment and so evade the tax.

Sixty-two new millionaires were created in Canada during the last war. What is to prevent this again?

Excess profits to the extent of 24 1-2 per cent are still allowable.

(3) Economic conditions.

Mrs. Neilson has drawn attention to facts such as this:— That $10 a month is being spent to keep a prisoner in an interment camp while relief in Western Canada has been cut to $4 per month.

So great was the interest and discussion of the members in these topics that the subject had to be closed at a late hour before it was formally finished.

FOXBORO Y.P.S.

The President of Foxboro Y.P.S. opened the meeting with a poem after which the Apostles' Creed was read in unison. The minutes of the last meeting were read and adopted. Business was then discussed.

Grant Longwell then took charge. Quiet music was played by Myrtle Hubble. A hymn was then sung "O Master Let Me Walk with Thee". The Scripture Lesson Luke 4, verses 4-18, was read by Leon Wilson. Gordon Priest then led in prayer. The offering was taken by Jackie Stewart. An inspiring topic "The Good Samaritan" was then given by Grant Longwell. For example, he used our own village. Mr. Cooke then gave lantern slides with explanations on Missionary work in India. The meeting closed with a hymn and the Mizpah Benediction.

Clifford Cooke then took charge of the recreation period.

Dr. Dafoe's Column on the Quintuplets and the Care of Your Children

The Right Toys

I don't know of anything that is more fun than buying toys for children. The experience makes you feel young again and lets you recapture some of the joys you have always felt you missed in your youth. And in the back of your mind as you select this or that is an image of the recipient as he or she unwraps your gift and discovers its wonder and also, probably, a delightful vision of yourself as a benefactor creating happiness. Dickens' Scrooge has left an impress upon all of us.

Of course, some of us have to experience disillusionment when we see the reception our gifts get from children. The elaborate, expensive toy that we thought would be so entrancing, may be quickly tossed aside in favor of a simple little gadget among the hastily chosen trifles placed in the stocking. When that happens we have only ourselves to blame. It simply shows the child has more sense than we used when we went shopping.

The child likes a toy he can do something with in preference to one the he can only watch. That's why old things, like dolls, balls, blocks, wagons, construction sets, trains, pull-toys, soldiers, drawing sets and such continue to be favorites despite the yearly introduction of hundreds of ingenuous new ideas that catch the eye of adults and seem to them to be just the thing to enrapture little Willie or Marie. The appeal of too many of the latter is simply visual. Willie and Marie are more interested in making or building or imitating than in just looking on.

That's what we want to encourage in Willie and Marie: the desire to do things. The toys we give them should be implements or materials for the exercise of their imagination and curiosity, and the development of their skills.

The best game: for the child is one at which he can get better the more he plays—that is, skill instead of luck determines the winner. The mechanical toy he'll like best is one that he can safely take apart and reassemble when he has found out how it works. The most elaborate doll won't hold his sister's interest long unless its clothes can be changed easily and in accordance with the little owner's ideas.

I recommend toys that encourage vigorous play in the open air—such as tricycles, wagons big enough to ride in, sleds, skates. And toys that make playtime indoors learning time.

Blackboards, modeling clay, pictures to be cut out with blunt scissors and colored, sand boxes, scrapbooks. Carpentry sets and a place to use them where the child won't be harried about saw dust and planings. Housekeeping toys that develop the "little mother". Phonographs with good records. Simple cameras. These are only a few suggestions.

The adult too often mistakes play for wasted time. Play is the child's way of discovering the world about him. We can direct the steps on the right roads of discovery with the toys we give the boy or girl.

PRINCESS JULIANA TO VISIT CAPITAL

Will be Guest of President and Mrs. Roosevelt for Three Days

(By Ruth Cowan)

Washington, Dec. 18.—(AP) — An exiled princess from the land of tulips, wooden shoes and windmills travelled to the capital today on her first visit to the United States.

Juliana, Crown Princess of the Netherlands, was invited to spend three days at the White House as the guest of the President and Mrs. Roosevelt.

The Princess, accompanied by her Chamberlain, Baron de Vos, and his wife, who is her lady-in-waiting was making the trip by rail from Ottawa. Undersecretary of State Sumner Welles and other officials arranged a welcome for the royal party upon arrival of the train (at 1.50 p.m. E.D.T.)

Left behind in Ottawa were Juliana's two daughters —Beatrix, the heir apparent, who will be three next month, and Irene, nine months old.

When the Germans invaded Holland last May, Queen Wilhelmina, the Crown Princess and her husband, Prince Bernhard of Lippe, and their two children sought refuge in Britain. Juliana brought her daughters to Canada in June.

White House Luncheon

A White House luncheon was planned for the Crown Princess and her party directly after their arrival at the Union Station. Then Mrs. Roosevelt was to take Juliana on a short sightseeing trip, including a visit to Mount Vernon. After dinner, the Princess was invited to be the First Lady's guest at a symphony concert.

Tomorrow morning the Crown Princess will do something out of the ordinary for Royalty. She will receive the members of Mrs. Roosevelt's all-feminine Press Conference. But it was announced she would make no statement and could not be interviewed.

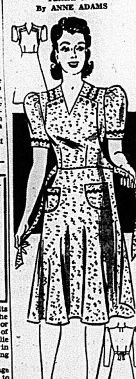
Mrs. Roosevelt will be beside her, and the First Lady, who is used to reporters' queries ranging from hats to diets, said it would be all right to ask her questions.

About midday Friday the Crown Princess will leave for New York. After a quick look at the skyscrapers she will hurry to Ottawa to be on hand when her daughters hang up their Christmas stockings.

A Youthful Wraparound Frock . . . . .

Pattern 4626

By ANNE ADAMS



First vote of every housewife goes to the wraparound dress! In Pattern 4626, Anne Adams shows an unusually well-designed version of this favorite. The trim basque with V-neckline is young and attractive; the wraparound style is easy to get into, simple to make and fine for flat-spread ironing. That quickly adjusted over-front gives almost full-length double protection. You simply cross it over the under-front, button it on the left shoulder, slip the belt through at the right side seam and tie firmly in back. Attractively dressed you are still ready for the splashiest kind of work — and the double lap of the skirt makes wearing a slip unnecessary. The sleeves are long or short.

Pattern 4626 is available in misses' and women's sizes 12 14, 16, 18, 20, 30, 32, 34, 36, 38 and 40. Size 16 takes 4 1-4 yards 35-inch fabric and 1 3-4 yards ric-rac.

Aching Pedals Cloud the Sun

Ginger Rogers is a great believer in wearing well-fitting shoes.

(By HELEN FOLLETT)

MORE today about the little footies, and that's a bit of a joke since women's pedals are getting bigger and better. High school girls, having taken to wearing modernized brogans, look as if they were perambulating along with their feet in small tanks.

Have your shoes fitted late in the afternoon. There's no laugh in that suggestion. At that time the foot is fully expanded after the day's activities. A morning fit may be too snug.

Selecting a Last

A narrow shoe means that the weight of the body is not evenly supported, the big toe is pushed inward against its neighbor, a condition that may set up an inflammation of the big joint and cause deformities. One cannot be too painstaking when selecting a last. The shoe should be flexible provide support for the arch. Pumps are not designed for everyday wear, but for the festive occasion.

High heels, especially spikes that have small bases, may have a weakening effect upon the spinal column. When wearing them one must throw the upper portion of the body forward which contracts the chest and is likely to make the breasts saggy. Sweet dispositions go sour when feet are uncomfortable, and if you aren't sweet you aren't pretty.

Have you heard about the "floue" coiffure? Young sweeties are affecting it. Instead of wearing their rolls smooth atop their pates they brush them out into a coxcomb that extends from the forehead to the back of the tete. You have to wear a high crowned hat or you'll smash down your rooster crest.

Locks fulff out at the sides, are free at the back. Freedom for every silky shaft. We warn the thin faced dollies that this style is not for them, the lifted effect in front will make their faces appear longer. To the moon-faced baby it is a blessing.

Fashion Flashes

A CASUAL DINNER needs as careful dressing as does a more formal event. A charming informal dinner suit is a street-length model of purple wool with high slanted revers and flaps of pockets trimmed with gold kidskin applique. Gold kidskin pillbox hat.

ALL READY for the races in Florida is a charming little frock of tissue thin wool jersey. The casual shirtwaist top is navy with gold buttons. The skirt which is pleated, the pleats stitched to the hips, is banded at the waist in white, has the hip section of red, while the rest of it is in blue to match the bodice.

If you have young children at home, try setting an alarm clock at the time when it is time for their playmates to go home. Their mothers will be pleased to see the youngsters come home promptly.

Assign the Children to Home Task

By Garry Cleveland Myers, Ph.D.

"Dear Dr. Myers: My health has not been good and I am so nervous. I find myself scolding my children. My husband is always telling me what they should be doing to help me. I was thinking last night in bed. 'What do they do?' and it came to me with a shock, 'Practically nothing.' I have always done everything myself as that was the most easy way.

"I have two girls 11 and 7 and a boy 9. Please send me a brief outline of what they should be expected to do."

How I answered her:

"Dad is right in thinking that those children should be helping you but wrong in merely nagging you about it. What has he been doing these years to teach them to help you? Why has he not helped you train them in sharing home responsibilities?

"As you say it does seem easier right now to do everything yourself than to train them. But in the long run it won't be easier. If you work out a plan and stick to it, especially if Dad does his part, their training right now should not be so hard as your doing everything yourself.

Don't Expect Too Much

"Since they have not helped you all these years, don't expect them to do much right away. Cultivate such responsibility in them gradually.

"Check up on their self-reliance first and train them to do for themselves what they can do, such as washing and dressing themselves, tidying up their own rooms, cleaning up their own mess after making things, brushing their teeth, bringing themselves in from play at a regular automatic signal, sending themselves to bed at a regular designated hour, in accordance with their respective ages, and appearing promptly at meals washed and combed.

"Let each child at first have just a few regular jobs assigned, suitable to his age and experience. This job should come not only at a regular time each day but should be such that the child can do it well and know when it is finished. Don't expect the child to hang around just 'to help Mother'. Budget each child's time for play as well as work. Although the eldest child will be able to do some things better than the younger ones, there is no reason to take account of sex difference. The boy can do practically anything the girls can do. While you should alternate jobs at certain intervals, don't assign two children at the same time on the same job, if you don't want to encourage quarreling.

"As each child volunteers to help at other things, express warm appreciation, so he will be more disposed to volunteer again. But don't make this volunteered job a regular assignment, else there hardly will be such co-operation henceforth. Also let each do some things that will make him feel grown-up, such as preparing a certain food, planning a menu, or doing the shopping alone.

"Gradually you will have more time to relax and to plan, as they do more of the work at home and you do less. Right now, let more things go and try to have more rest and relaxation".

Solving Parent Problems

Q.—What is a good way to encourage a boy or girl in Scouting who already is a Scout?

A.—Prove to the child you believe Scouting is worth while: Encourage him in regular attendance and don't fail to attend every Scout function to which parents are invited.

Use Christmas Candles To Cast a Holiday Glow About the House

As if trying to add a "lovely light" to this darkened world this Christmas, candlemakers have dipped their art into wonders of design and have come up with countless treasures to make our homes fittingly festive for the approaching holiday season.

Santa Claus candles will undoubtedly be the most popular. And next in appeal will be candles shaped like Christmas trees, pert trees flecked with snow, trees in green or red or white.

Candles have gone architectural in design this year, and we can buy tall fluted candles that look like Greek columns. These are in red and white and blue, with the obvious hint that the three colors may be used most significantly together. There also are triple candles knotted into a single case. These rise like Neptune's trident, supporting three flames in one candle well. Splendid for table decoration.

Big candles have never been so big as this year. The huge, tall, broad-based candles will burn for 200 hours, can be lighted at the beginning of the season and twinkle in till after New Year's Day. The white ones, in my opinion, are the loveliest, but they also come in red and green.

Then there are the designs gleaned from the world of flowers and vegetables. A lovely water lily designed to float serenely in a shallow bowl, and in its centre gleams a tiny plume of flame. Rosy apples and small tawny pumpkins and brilliant oranges. Such a variety of candles!

It is truthfully said that candlelight is the most flattering light of all. And Christmas, a time so hallowed by heart-warming traditions, would seem empty without the gentle charm of candlelight. It's nice to have candles here, there and everywhere about the house. A pair of apples agleam on a console table, their happy beams reflected in a mirror. A huge candle on the coffee table in the living-room. Perhaps on our Christmas dinner table a ring of jolly Santas. There are slender wisps of candles that can be thrust into the heart of flower or greenery arrangements. This is quite effective.

There are pine-scented candles that throw off a woodsy fragrance. And there are those ever-appealing candles of gray-green bayberry wax, whose tangy scent his delighted every generation since the Pilgrim's mothers first hand-dipped them at their cozy hearths.

Light candles and give a holiday air to your house.

Christmas Behaviour-Tip for Children

"But jest 'fore Christmas I'm as good as I kin be!"

Advice to the Lovelorn

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

Better Loneliness Than Loss of Self-Respect

Hardly a day passes that I do not get a letter from a girl saying she isn't popular because she doesn't drink and pet with some young man who takes her out a couple of times and then drops her because she refuses to let him "set the pace." The following is an example

"Dear Miss Firfax:

"Must a 'good girl' wait until a man is ready to get married before she gets any attention? I am very discouraged with life. Am 17, medium height, fairly good-looking and dress well.

"I've been going with a young man for some time, and he now has a good job and a car of his own. He took me riding the other evening, and in the course of conversation mentioned that a 'good girl' is O.K. for marriage, but before marriage he prefers the opposite type.

"Anne."

I hope this girl, and all other girls who feel bitter when they see questionably popular girls getting into cars and speeding off for a date, will look at this thing straight and get a true sense of values.

Stop feeling neglected and sorry for yourself, feeling lost in life's shuffle. Look at this matter with the same keen vision with which you spend your money.

What are you throwing away for a few attentions? Are you losing anything when you're dropped by a boy who puts you on the same plane as he does the fallen sisterhood Is this type of man worth having?

How long do you think a cheap, bargain-hunting man would stand up under the stresses and adversities that come to the happiest marriages? Consider sickness, death, loss of employment, loss of savings, anxiety over children, their education, their friends the mistakes you are powerless to warn them against. Would this type of man be a tower of strength?

It's more likely you'd find him a millstone around your neck—a liability you would be ashamed of, one that, to save your own face at being such a "poor picker," you'd have to excuse and palliate.

What if you are lonely? Isn't it better to be lonely and have your own self-respect, than be lonely and have torturing regrets for companionship? The girls who barter everything for a "good time" are the ones who drink and take drugs to forget. Some get away with it, but they are few, compared with the multitudes who get burned by the bright lights.

Women are said to be keen bargain-hunters—but are they? When the bargain amounts to trading self-respect for a few cheap treats like movies, rides in rattle-trap cars, and drinks in comon roadhouses, what has become of their sense of values?

If lonely people would only snap out of it, force their way out of their unhappy shells, seek out others who are lonely? When they do, they are more likely to find friends among the quiet stayers-at-home than among the lively frequenters of dance halls.

The Stars Say—

For Thursday, December 19

By GENEVIEVE KEMBLE

A DAY in which the confidence and definite support of those in high places and of financial power seem vital to many worthy activities and major projects which are threatened by rash, hurried and probably tempestuous or over strenuous methods, is seen from the dominant astral aspects. Such impetuosity may cause commotion, upheaval, disorganized plans.

Those whose birthday it is may find themselves beset by a year in which success and fulfillment of cherished projects will depend on their individual manipulation of those of power and financial status by restraint, diplomacy and the sound and practical value of propositions.

A child born on this day may have contradictory traits, with much force and constructive ability, high ambitions and aggressiveness, which may challenge powerful antipathy.

DRIVE WITHOUT HORN

(Brandon Sun)

A Missouri motorist undertook as a matter of curiosity to keep count of the number of times he found it necessary to sound his horn for purposes of safety. Such occasions were so few that presently he disconnected the horn and operated his car for a year, under all conditions of city and country traffic, without putting himself or others in danger.

He found, however, that he was driving much more alertly and carefully than had been his previous habit. As a matter of fact traffic laws require that all motor vehicles be equipped with horns in good working condition. But if all drivers would cultivate that frame of mind most of the din of horn blowing could be eliminated by day as well as night.

Eight-Game Winning Streak Of Toronto Leafs Stopped by Bruins, Who Score 5-2 Victory

Win Places Boston Third, Three Points Behind Detroit Red Wings

AMERICANS WIN

Anderson Scores Winning Goal Against Detroit in Overtime

By JACK MITCHELL
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

It would probably be no word of a lie to term Art Ross, general of the Boston Bruins forces, the happiest man in the land today.

For Ross, the National Hockey League world was rosy. His Bruins finally appeared to be on the march; they were closing in on second place in the league standing and to complete the picture, there was a triumph in his long-standing "feud" with one Conny Smythe of Toronto to gloat over.

There could have been nothing sweeter on this earth for Ross than to watch his Bruins stop the eight-game winning streak of Smythe's Toronto Maple Leafs with a 5-2 victory in Boston last night.

The victory moved Boston within three points of the second-place Detroit Red Wings, who meanwhile were beaten 3-2 by New York Americans.

Bill Cowley Big Gun

Bill Cowley, veteran Boston centre, was the big gun in the triumph, scoring two goals and aiding in another to pace the Bruins. The other Bruin counters in a game which attracted 14,000 spectators to the Boston Gardens were scored by Woody Dumart, Eddie Wiseman and Roy Conacher, while Billy Taylor and Hank Goldup counted for the Leafs.

Leading point-getter in the League, Cowley got his first goal unassisted in the initial frame with Conacher also tallying on a solo effort in the second period after Taylor had evened the count. Cowley's second counter early in the final frame clinched the verdict, and Dumart and Wiseman both increased the lead before Goldup finished the scoring for Toronto.

Almost as surprising was Detroit's overtime loss to the lowly Americans before a crowd of 5,000 in New York. The Red Wings had been beaten by only Toronto Maple Leafs in league play before losing to Montreal Canadiens Sunday and the loss came as their second straight.

Amerks Earn Tie

Tommy Anderson bagged the winning goal after 5:12 minutes of overtime for the Americans, whose victory gave them a last-place tie with Montreal Canadiens in the standing. New York twice held the lead in the match before Detroit's Mud Bruneteau scored on a double relay from Gus Giesbrecht and Ebbie Goodfellow late in the third period to force an extra session.

It was veterans' night for the Amerks, with Charlie Conacher and Harvey Jackson counting their first two tallies. Giesbrecht took a pass from Bruneteau to square the count a minute after Conacher had scored in the second period, while Fred Hunt and Fred Thurier set up Jackson for the second New York goal which Bruneteau nullified.

CORNWALL FLYERS DEFEAT VERDUN

Win Puts Cornwall Within One Game of Third Place in League Standing

Verdun, Dec. 18 (CP)—Cornwall Flyers moved back to within a game of third place in the Quebec Senior Hockey League standings last night when they defeated Verdun 7-4. The loss left the Verdun squad in sixth place, a game ahead of the last-place Concordia Civics.

Two goals in the first period, three in the second and two in the third gave Cornwall their margin with Verdun scoring once in the first and second and twice in the third.

Hayes led the Cornwall attack with two third-period goals, with Kelly assisting on both.

Cornwall opened the scoring when Brown sank Simon's pass at the six minute mark. Verdun missed a chance to tie it up when J. L. Bourcier shot wide of the net on a penalty shot awarded when Dupuis held the puck. C. Bourcier got the equalizer half-way through the period while Maundrell was serving a penalty, only to have Forget shoot Flyers into the lead again before the period ended.

Flyers really hit their stride in the middle frame, with successive goals by Shaw, Maundrell and Forsey before Verdun could retaliate with a single marker by Morin.

Verdun showed their best form in the third, but the best they could do was gain a split in the period's four goals. Conny Dion, Cornwall goalie, was struck in the face by a flying puck late in the period, and his place taken by Craig McLellan, the Flyers' sub-goalie. LaForce scored the final goal of the night off McLellan.

Americans, Maple Leafs Win First Starts in Juvenile League

Leafs Score 3-2 Win Over Canadiens, While Americans Score 7-3 Victory Over Black Hawks

SMART HOCKEY

Americans and Maple Leafs drew first blood in the Belleville Juvenile Hockey Association opening at the Hume Arena last night when the Leafs came from behind to eke out a third period 3 to 2 win over the Canadiens as the Americans waltzed easily to a 7-3 win over the Black Hawks.

Belleville's opening of hockey was not exactly well received as only 21 adults passed through the turnstiles to see the future hockey players of the community display their wares. Regardless of the lack of attendance the contestants displayed a willingness to learn the game and entered into the pastime with vigor. In the future the Belleville Juvenile Hockey Association games will either be played as additional attractions prior to Junior O.H.A. attractions or as individual games.

Gain Early Lead

Ramming home four goals in the initial period Dick Beare's American's pried off the league lid with a 7 to 3 win over the Black Hawks although the losers finished stronger when Coach Herb Morris arrived on the scene in the third stanza, having been delayed owing to business. The players on both squads were extremely guilty of bunching too much and leaving their checks uncovered and deserting their positions with regularity.

Gannon with two goals and an assist paced the winners as Kellar bagged one and set-up two with nice assists, but mitigated his efforts with some rough play in the third stanza when he drew down three penalties. The game was productive of a little action in the last stanza when Kellar and R. Reid tangled in a fistic encounter that saw the officials having to pry the players apart as fists flew in general but no damage resulted. Kellar and Reid drew penalties.

Bruce Cronk was in on all the Black Hawks goals, scoring two, one on a solo effort and setting up the third for Carson.

The line-ups: Americans, goal, Cook; defence, Westlake and Gannon; centre Kellar; wings, Theobald and Davis; subs, Smith, Reid, Wagar, Thompson and Diamond.

Black Hawks, goal, McAlpine; defence, Young, Brown; centre, Carson; wings, Cronk, Graham; subs, Wright, R. Reid, Rose, McClelland, Locke and Symons.

Referees: Cliff Howie and Don Lee.

Summary:

1st Period
Americans, Theobald, (Kellar) 1.01
Americans, Davis (Kellar) ... 3.15
Americans, Gannon 7.50
Black Hawks, Cronk (Carson) 17.55
Americans, Gannon 18.45

2nd Period

3rd Period

Black Hawks, Carson, (Cronk) 12.35
Black Hawks, Cronk 14.55
Penalties — Kellar (3) and R. Reid.

Leafs Rally Late

The second game saw much better hockey played on the part of both squads as they marked their checks fairly well until the Maple Leafs moved five forward in the last stanza in a successful effort to come from behind and win.

To the wirey Billie Horwood went the honors of scoring all three goals of the victors, while Bernard Meagher sank the old "boot heel" for both of the Canadiens counters. The Cunningham-led Leafs moved into a first period lead on a three-man combination play, but Meagher rifled two past Mills in the second frame to put the Canadiens in front as his team-mates were clicking with some fine combination plays.

From the outset in the last frame Coach Frank Cunningham moved five forward and kept the offensive until victory had been obtained, with goalie Harry Lummis of the Canadiens, turning in a marvellous effort as he kicked and blocked the proverbial million rubbers.

The line-ups, 2nd game: Maple Leafs, goal, Mills; defence, Row and Holway; centre, Goyer; wings, McCabe and Horwood; subs, Quincey, Anderson, Juby, Lummis and Green.

Les Canadiens: goal, Lummis; defence, Hutchinson and McIntyre; centre, Alton; wings, Rogers and Hall; subs, Barnum, Mills and Hull.

Referee—Don Lee.

Summary:

1st Period
Maple Leafs, Horwood, (Goyer, McCabe) 18.00
Penalties—None.

VETERAN UMPIRE, GEORGE MORIARTY ON RETIRED LIST

Will Distribute League's Annual Movie in Michigan Area

Always Boss on Field and Had Many Run-ins With Players

By FELIX WOLD,
(Associated Press Sports Writer)

Detroit, Dec. 18—(AP)—Shed a tear for baseball's old school of rough and tumble. One of its last survivors has departed from the field of action.

Big, belligerent George Moriarty, veteran umpire and former player, has been placed on the public relations personnel of the American League and a million fans must be sad.

Wherever the impetuous Irishman worked as arbiter, there were possibilities of an exciting side attraction to the game. Moriarty, he was boss and he stood only for so much. Off the field, he was soft-spoken and gentle in manner, but nevertheless he figured in some of baseball's historic battles.

The American League has assigned Moriarty, who gained fame as the man who "wouldn't die on third" and who allegedly threatened to clean the entire Chicago Cubs bench in the 1935 World Series, to the duty of distributing the league's annual movie in Michigan and adjoining territory. He succeeds Roger Peckinpaugh, new Cleveland manager, on this job.

For his celebrated run-in with the Cubs, he was fined $250 by Commissioner K. M. Landis; so were four Cubs, among them Manager Charley Grimm. In 1932, Moriarty traded punches with several Chicago White Sox players at Cleveland. He was reprimanded; the Sox culprits drew fines.

Before he became an umpire, Moriarty played third base for the Detroit Tigers—on the same teams with Ty Cobb—and his top attribute was a fighting spirit.

In a 1909 game, Moriarty stole home with two out in the ninth to win for Detroit, and that theft, one of many, made him famous. William J. Cameron, now a motor company official, was then a newspaper man. Inspired by Moriarty's play, Cameron wrote an editorial "Don't Die on Third," which ultimately saw print all over the land and was read as a lesson for young and old.

ST. CATHARINES EASY WINNER

Defeat Hamilton Dofascos 9-2 to Pull Within Three Points of the Top

St. Catharines, Ont., Dec. 18 (CP) —St. Catharines Saints today are within three points of top place in the Ontario Hockey Association Senior "A" series and it's hard to say who is more surprised at the situation—Saints or Hamilton Dofascos.

Saints beat Dofascos 9-2 here last night in a game that was all the more surprising because of its decisiveness. Dofascos, tied in second place with Niagara Falls and considered among the top contenders for eastern Canada and Allan Cup honors this season, were never in a contending position during the game.

The locals ran in six goals in the first period without a reply, and scored again in the third after a scoreless second period before Hamilton finally beat Walt Coupland, St. Catharines goalie.

Kit Massey scored two of the Saints' counters—one on a penalty shot late in the third period. Geo. Hastie led scorers with three goals, Backor had two and Rossini and Reynolds one each. Fritz and Shillington counted the Hamilton goals.

Saints went into fourth place with the win, one point back of Hamilton and Niagara Falls—tied in second place—and two behind Toronto Marlboros, league leaders.

The Big Seven

(By The Canadian Press)

Bill Cowley, veteran Boston centre, extended his lead over the National Hockey League's individual point-getters by scoring two goals and getting an assist as the Bruins beat Toronto, 5-2, last night. The second-place Bryan Hextall of New York Rangers was idle, while Syl Apps of the Maple Leafs failed to improve his third position when held pointless. Roy Conacher of the Bruins bagged a goal to move into a tie for the final Big Seven berth with three other players, Gordie Drillon, Toronto, Syd Howe of Detroit and Phil Watson, Rangers.

Between the Lines

Ken J. Colling

When the Senior "B" hockey moguls of group No. 1 met at the Hume Arena to draft their campaign schedule the boys really put a premium on goals. Considerable time was spent in the matter of what type of play-off system would be employed during which time Frank (we thought he'd retired) Buckland of Peterborough, prophesied the day wasn't too far distant when hockey clubs would revert back to the old winner take all method of years ago. "It's still the best system and now that the O.H.A. is taking the cream off the top it will eventually force these play-offs into the discard. And the sooner the better," were Frank's opinions, which although are only one man's ideas, they read logical.

Four of the five clubs in the district Senior "B" loop will qualify for the group play-offs, the squad finishing in the cellar slot passing out of the moneyed picture. However, if there is a tie created between the last two clubs in the standing a sudden death game must be played on Feb. 8th., but nothing was provided for in case three clubs might be in that position. In case of ties in the first three spots in the standing another system of determining which clubs shall take the higher position in the final standing will be employed. This solution will be determined by the respective total goal-scoring averages of the two teams concerned, which in turn makes the matter of goals scored for and against a rather important item throughout the entire schedule, as the odd goal or so just might prove the factor between one position and another in the final standing.

The manner in which to determine the total scoring average of a club is to divide the total number of goals scored FOR and AGAINST an individual club into the total number of goals scored FOR. An example of a club's scoring average would be determined as follows: If the team scored 25 goals and had 15 scored against it, the league statistician would merely have to divide the total, which is 40 in this case, into the number of goals scored by the club—25—and the scoring average would be listed as .625.

Kingston Scribe Bill Walshe is chuckling over the fact that the Limestone City team does not commence its senior O.H.A. schedule in the group before Jan. 15th., thus assuring them of the return of Queens students and soldiers on leave. However, maybe the Kingston board of strategy didn't know that most of the clubs in the group were endeavouring to avoid their club in competition just as long as possible. The other clubs realize full well the Kingston players have been on ice for over a month and in good physical condition, the coveted attributes of artificial ice facilities. "No Willie, the boys from the sticks aren't exactly the stooges Kingston might believe."

Do you remember when—Harold (Jug) McSpaden of Winchester Mass., won the $10,000 open golf tournament at Miami two years ago today. He had a 72-hole score of 275, five under par, one stroke ahead of Henry Picard of Hershey, Pa.

Juvenile hockey ushered the puck season into Belleville at the Hume Arena last night. Actually from the viewpoint of the sponsors it was pitiful—the large sum of $5.25 was realized at the gate. If the parents and relations of the youthful participants, who showed zest and zeal on the ice, had taken a pointed interest in their youthful relatives, the future of the up-bringing and tutoring of Belleville's hockey talent might have been assured. This corner is not interested in the winning of the games by the Americans and the Maple Leafs, but along with the sponsors had hoped that the public of Belleville would relinquish their selfish attitude towards minor sports and encourage the youth of the city in building a foundation for years to come. We notice, in the Great Family Journal of yesterday, many business men met to talk of the greatness of the past. Reminiscing is a pleasure, but—"The mill does not grind with water that has passed." On the fields of Eton arose the greatness of Britain, BUT it would appear as though Belleville has missed the mail in both.

They tell us our lowly "inksling-ing" bowlers humbled the league leading Houston trundlers at the Recreation Alleys last night. Of course the only time the "printers" bowlers evade the sports department is when they win a major event, but they took three points from the Houstons and feel rather elevated today, so we're the victims to relate their score of 2886. (You'se in the composing room—let's know when you win again, it ain't often we can crow.)

Although Trenton-Fred Collins claims the Ottawa Rough Riders are only "committee room champions" we observed where the Bytown squad was declared Dominion champions and holders of the Grey Cup. A civic banquet is being planned for the Rough Riders to celebrate the occasion. However, the 1940 Dominion title was won in a rather hollow victory at that.

SPORT SLANTS—There will be no night baseball played at Briggs Stadium, the home of the Detroit Tigers in 1941, says Owner Walter O. Briggs..... The Boston Bruins snapped the Maple Leafs' string of road victories with a 5 to 1 reverse last night and now the New York Rangers' 1939-40 list of unbeaten games remains unscathed...... The Rangers went for 19 consecutive games last year without defeat, the record extended from Nov. 23rd, 1939 until Jan. 13th, 1940...... Looks as though Paul Derringer hasn't been reading the sport pages recently; he says the Cincinnati Reds are certain to repeat, but Larry McPhail has different ideas with his Brooklyn Dodgers.... Incidentally the fondest hope of McPhail is to knock the Reds off, after all, Paul Crosley let McPhail go, didn't he?

Transfers Ratified By Quebec League

Montreal, Dec. 18—(CP)—Transfers of Gordon Poirier from Montreal Canadiens to Ottawa Senators of the Quebec Senior Hockey League and W. E. Nicholson to Quebec Royal Rifles from the Ontario Hockey Association were ratified last night at a meeting of the Quebec Amateur Hockey Association executive.

The association decided to send a delegate to the semi-annual meeting of the Canadian Amateur Hockey Association at Port Arthur, Ont., next month. It is understood the Quebec branch will attempt to obtain a vote for the delegate in an effort to get more satisfactory play-off dates next spring.

Tries to Evolve Plan To Send Christmas Greetings to Prisoners

Vatican City, Dec. 18—(AP)—A Vatican News Agency said Tuesday Pope Pius is trying to evolve a plan to send Christmas greetings and gifts to prisoners of war in Italy and Italian prisoners of war held by British and Greek forces.

The announcement modified Italian reports the Pope would send gifts to all war prisoners through the Nuncios and Apostolic delegates in various countries. The Agency said it was evident such gifts could not be sent to the vast numbers of prisoners throughout Europe and added the plan still awaited a definite decision.

AS BRITISH ROUTED ITALIANS

A British mortar crew is pictured loading their mortar as they go into action in the desert in northern Egypt, recently, during manoeuvres. Today these troops are reported to have smashed the invading Italian north African army and forced them to retreat across their own border in Libya. Meanwhile, guns of the British Mediterranean fleet are continuously pounding at the narrow bottleneck road near the Libyan border, along which the Italians must retreat and bring up supplies and reinforcements.

AIR WAR IN ENGLAND

BELOW, British soldiers examine wreckage of Heinkel bomber of the Nazis which crashed after mid-air crash with pursuing British Spitfire plane. The collision set off the Heinkel's bombs, blasting both planes to bits. This "bit" of the Heinkel contains one of the motors.

Italian Disasters May Cause Hitler To Risk His All

(By KIRKE L. SIMPSON)

Washington, Dec. 18.—(AP) — A warning by a British spokesman that an all-out German air attack on Britain is coming before spring suggests a belief in London that Italians disasters have made Hitler ready to risk his all before United States aid becomes fully effective.

It also suggests that the real bone of contention between France and Germany, growing out of the ousting from the Vichy Cabinet of Vice-Premier Laval, might involve French warships, rather than Nazi troops movements through France to help Italy. There have been rumors from Berne that the split was caused by Laval's acceptance and Marshal Petain's rejection of a German demand to use French Mediterranean ports to send Nazi legions to Egypt or Libya.

Those rumors have never seemed realistic, however. Hauling a German army from French ports to any trans-Mediterranean destination through the British blockade would be a considerable task. The distance would be double that from ports in Southern Italy. That the Nazi High Command actually contemplated helping Mussolini by either route seems incredible.

But acquisition of the remnants of France's once mighty fleet could be an important asset for the Nazis if they attempt to invade Britain. Lord Beaverbrook, British Air Production Minister, predicted that such an attempt would be made before spring, "by land and sea, but principally by air".

If that prediction is based on accurate knowledge of German plans, it means that Nazi war efforts must be concentrated in the West and not dissipated in Albania or across the Mediterranean in Italian Libya. German air power, U-boats or surface warships could not be spared from the main job of attempting to smash Britain at home.

Neither can Britain spare ships of air or sea for major offensive operations in the Middle East if she is facing such an attack as Lord Beaverbrook pictures. She already has risked much to assemble the given Italy in Egypt. The recent rising toll of British tonnage losses strength for the smashing blow in the North Atlantic can be attributed in part to the shifting of British naval tonnage to the Middle East.

Italian striking power from Libya, back into which her army has been thrown in disorder, is now crippled. It may never be regained through even a diminished British sea blockade. It seems quite likely, if Lord Beaverbrook spoke the expectation of his Government, that orders recalling much British naval tonnage home from the Mediterranean already have been formulated.

Putting the French fleet into German and Italian hands for potential action in the Mediterranean would be a grave complication for Britain. It would force her to keep a substantial part of her sea power in the Middle East.

AT THE BELLE

"Brigham Young"

Darryl F. Zanuck's production of "Brigham Young," written for the screen by Louis Bromfield, which comes next to the Belle Theatre has been heralded as the biggest production 20th Century-Fox ever has undertaken.

The stirring epic of the Mormons depicts their courageous trek across 1800 miles of trackless, blistered waste into hostile frontier country. It is a dramatic portrayal of the battle of 20,000 persons against almost overwhelming odds, to win the right to live as they believed.

The cast of "Brigham Young" is studded with outstanding names, headed by Tyrone Power, who is starred. Linda Darnell has the leading feminine role while rugged, two-fisted Dean Jagger is cast as Brigham Young.

Others featured in the spectacle are Brian Donlevy, Jane Darwell, John Carradine, Mary Astor, Vincent Price, Jean Rogers and Ann Todd. Henry Hathaway directed and Kenneth MacGowan was associate producer.

"Jennie," Unusual Film

"I'm one wife who dared fight back, stand up to my in-laws and hold the man I love."

That's an apt description of Virginia Gilmore in the title role of "Jennie," 20th Century-Fox film which is announced as the companion feature attraction. And how she wins her woman's battle against a family tyrant promises exciting entertainment.

The trouble starts when "Jennie" marries into a family dominated by a tyrannical father, portrayed by Ludwig Stossel, who scored a tremendous hit in "The Man I Married." In the course of her fight to make a human being out of him, she also teaches the rest of his large and unhappy family what fun living can be.

In addition to Virginia Gilmore and Ludwig Stossel, executive-producer Sol. M. Wurtzel assigned featured roles to William Henry, George Montgomery, Dorris Bowdon, Rand Brooks, Joan Valerie and Rita Quigley.

"Mexico" is the title of the latest issue of The March of Time to be presented on the same program.

What role will Mexico's twenty million play in Western hemisphere? What are the reasons behind Mexico's re-born friendship for the United States? Mexico, long resentful of the might and power of the U.S., has frequently expressed its feeling during recent years, by her own sympathy for Soviet Russia and her economic co-operation with Nazi Germany and Japan in the sale of oil and other materials vital to the war machines of those countries. This issue is exceptionally thrilling and of timely interest.

Excellent Show

"Abe Lincoln in Illinois," sensational stage hit by Robert Sherwood, is now closing its engagement at the Belle with Raymond Massey playing the title role which he originated in the Pulitzer prize play. Sixty noted players of stage and screen have other important roles.

One of the most unusual love stories ever told on the screen, "Street of Memories" is the co-feature with Lynne Roberts, Guy Kibbee and John McGuire in the leading roles. The Belle News of the Day reveals the bombing of Coventry and British warships battle Italian bombers at sea; sensational pictures filmed at the height of the fray.

AT THE McCARTHY

"Hot Steel"

Telling a graphic story of the lives and loves of men who work in America's giant steel industry, Universal's dramatic production "Hot Steel" comes next to the McCarthy Theatre, with Richard Arlen and Andy Devine in co-starring roles.

Said to combine action with a powerful human story as two men fight for control of a new steel process, the picture offers a vivid, behind-the-scenes glimpse into one of the country's greatest and most colorful occupations.

In addition to the stars, Arlen and Devine, the picture features Anne Nagel as the flirtatious wife of a steel worker, and Peggy Moran, pretty film newcomer, as the girl with whom Arlen falls in love. Wade Boteler, popular character actor, portrays the "big boss" of the vast steel plant, and Donald Briggs has the role of a ruthless promoter, Joe Besser, former vaudeville favorite, makes his film debut in comedy scenes with Devine.

"Racketeers of the Range"

George O'Brien's newest western, a picture that will keep you smiling as you eat up the thrills, "Racketeers of the Range" is the second feature on the week-end program presentation at the McCarthy in addition to the latest Three Stooges comedy, "Nutty But Nice" and Richard Arlen and Andy Devine in "Hot Steel."

"Three Sons"

Edward Ellis, Kent Taylor, William Gargan and Katharine Alexander head the brilliant cast of "Three Sons" which is now playing at the McCarthy Theatre in addition to Lucille Ball and Allan Lane in "Panama Lady" and the extra added Latest Fox News Events.

Ruth Gordon as Mary Todd Lincoln and Raymond Massey as Abraham Lincoln, in Robert E. Sherwood's prize-winning stage play, "Abe Lincoln in Illinois," now on the Belle screen.

Roy Barcroft and William Boyd as straight-shooting Hopalong Cassidy, in a scene from the new Paramount picture, "Hidden Gold," which comes next to the Capitol Theatre. On the same program "Bad Guy," starring Bruce Cabot, Virginia Grey and Edward Morris.

INSTALMENT 12

"Oh no, Van no! Thank you, but I'm all—all wrung out; I couldn't bear it—lights and people. To hear it, to have heard it just beginning, you know, being hinted—the 'Wedding March', I mean—to realize that—" She was standing still, under the awning, unconscious of time and place, her eyes stars. "To realize, Van, that one day it wasn't in the world, and the next day—simply, it was!" she said, breathless.

The man laughed in pleasure at her excitement. "That was a great performance", he said. "They were all in great form".

Long before the appointed Saturday came Gwen had told practically everyone in Kenthill that she was to go to the opera, and she packed her best clothes, her cold creams and brushes and slippers and evening stockings in a high state of elated expectation. Dick had the tickets; he had shown them to her.

It was a little daunting to find San Francisco looking dark and wintry under a light rain, and to reach the Latimer flat before either of the legitimate occupants did. But Gwen knew the family secrets now. She could put her hand up to the doorway lintel in perfect expectation of finding the key.

When Mrs. Latimer came in, Gwen helped her with her bundles. Liver and bacon and rolls and a can of hominy and three jelly doughnuts, large and spongy and plentifully sugared, were rapidly prepared for dinner. Gwen set the table, and they talked of Dick as they worked. The girl could not hear enough of him.

"It seems a shame that you are not going to the opera, too, Mrs. Latimer. I know Dick would have."

"Oh, my dear, I get all the music I want on the radio!" Dick's mother said. "It'd simply finish me to think that I had to get into my good clothes when I'm as tired as I am tonight. Besides, I'm on duty tonight. We always have to have one woman on the linen room at night in case of emergency. So I'm going back right after supper".

"Has Dick made up his mind about Edinburgh"?

"Why, I don't know as there's anything to decide. He's not apt to get a chance like that again. Some of the boys met me in the hall the other day, and you'd think it was the moon they were offering Dick. If he's going to specialize on spines, this is just the one thing he'll have to have".

Gwen felt a little chill. Dick had not told his mother anything of his agonies at parting with his girl. Perhaps men did not feel them as girls did.

"When would he go?"

"He ought to go right away. The letter said the sooner the better".

Gwen poured hot water into the teapot to warm it. She had forgotten about the opera. She crouched at the oven door to watch the toast, suddenly subdued, thinking that three years was a long time. And she couldn't go! She couldn't go!

The door slammed and Dick came in, tired and chilled, in his rumpled hospital white. A stethoscope was in his pocket; he smelled of iodoform and carbolic. He kissed his mother, put his dark head down for a moment on the slight little woman's shoulder.

"Gosh, I am tired"! he muttered, and looking up, smiled at Gwen. "I'm sorry", he said immediately, "I can't take you tonight. Isn't it hell? Filmore wants me, and I've got to stay. I tried to get Mitchell to take it; he can't and we're shorthanded anyway."

Gwen felt her pulses stop. No opera! She couldn't for a moment face the bitter blow of it, although she did her best, and managed a strained smile and a husky, "Oh that's all right!"

"No, it's low-down!" Dick said wearily, at the table now, waiting for his dinner. "Coffee ready, Mom? I think I'll have mine now. It's low-down," he repeated briefly, "but there's no help for it. I'll put you on the car that goes within a block of the door. Damn, what luck"

"Oh, I'll not go, Dick!"

He was evidently too tired and too despondent to argue. His shadowed eyes met hers. Gwen looked at him for a moment and then said gently, "I'll go, of course, if you'd like me to. And tomorrow I'll tell you all about it".

She was rewarded by his grateful look. "I wish you would," he said. "As far as I'm concerned, I don't mind missing the music. I don't know anything about Wagner. But I hoped that we'd have some fun."

"I believe it's very heavy and slow and nothing ever happens", Gwen said cheerfully. "Have you ever heard 'Lohengrin', Mrs. Latimer?"

"Good gracious, no!" Dick's mother said in hasty disclaim. "I went to 'The Chocolate Soldier' once with Dick's father, and it was real good. But that's the only time I ever went, and I don't believe that was grand opera".

"I'll get a great thrill out of it whatever it is," Gwen said, determining not to be disappointed. "What will I do with the extra ticket, Dick?"

"Give it to some kid who's standing around".

"I'll give it to some old woman," Gwen decided. 'Or I could go to the box office and get my money back fo it, couldn't I?"

"Lord, I'd like to be going," Dick said, eyes on her glowing face. "I hate to have you go alone!"

When they had finished dinner she disappeared into the bedroom returning in a few minutes dressed in white, with silver sequins flashing at her belt and outlining the square-cut throat of her gown. Over her arm she carried a veteran evening wrap of blue brocade and white fur, and in her hand were new gloves.

"Well, if you don't look pretty!" Dick's mother exclaimed involuntarily.

"You're beautiful", Dick said as they walked to the street car. "I never saw you look this way!"

The compliment, rare from him, gave her confidence, and she was pleasantly conscious that the other persons in the car knew at once that the young lady was opera-bound.

The short two blocks she had to walk to the civic auditorium were a part of the general charm of the evening, for the sidewalks were filled with men in evening dress and bare-headed women beautifully gowned, in elaborate wraps, hurrying along toward the great lighted doorways. Cars were pouring along the streets—taxis honking—and when she finally reached the wide, shallow steps she found awnings out and a staff of police watching the ingoing throngs. There was a great foyer milling with laughing and murmuring folk. Gwen watched for a moment, looking about for someone to whom to give her extra ticket, and found herself facing Van Bellamy. His face was radiant.

"Here you are! And how wonderful you look. My darling", he said, adding the last two words under his breath. "Tell me, where are your seats?"

"I'm alone", she said, conscious of his devouring happy gaze as she hurriedly explained the situation.

"Latimer couldn't come!" His face looked as if he could not believe it.

"It's a long story. An accident, and emergency work. No. He —he had to be there".

"And you're—you're —But then—my dear, my dear, I can't believe this at all!" he said, stammering. "Let me see them".

He took her tickets, looked at them, glanced about.

"Wait here just a minute. It's early", he said. He was gone, and Gwen, glad to have met a friend among all these strangers, and well amused by what was going on about her, watched him only long enough to see him draw aside a man who was at the ticket gate. They both looked at the tickets and then went away together, and she waited. It would have been much more fun to be with Dick, of course. But Van was much better than nobody. He had made quite an impression on her in his evening attire, and what was even more valuable here, he was evidently entirely at home.

Van reappeared, looking pleased, and gripped her firmly under the elbow. "Come with me", he said, steering her through the crowd. Gwen allowed herself to be guided, hardly believing her senses when she realized that they were not mounting stairs, that they were going through an archway and up a short flight of steps to a sort of low balcony roped off into open boxes. "These are the general director's seats, and it seems they weren't wanted tonight", Van said.

There were a man and woman in a comfortable space that had seats for eight. They sat unobtrusively in the background. Van put Gwen in a front chair and sat immediately behind her, leaving two front seats vacant. But nobody came to fill them, and the lights fanned down, and a hush came over the house.

The violins, which had been softly whining, were still; there was the crisp tap-tap of the conductor's baton, and the enchantment began.

In the wide semi-circle of packed seats there were at the extreme left, and so nearest the stage. She could look down on the players in the orchestra. She saw the curtain tremble, saw it gather into thick folds and rise upon a scene of splendor. Consciousness of her own being was swept away; great spaces seemed to be opening all about her, and through these spaces echoed and re-echoed magical music. And as the chords were woven and interwoven and the themes were braided into a stronger and stronger strand, and Elsa, standing alone and unbefriended, began her appeal, Gwen's cheeks were wet, and she leaned forward, her lips parted, her breath coming swift and shallow, her hands knotted together.

When the act ended she was exhausted. Her hands were wet and cold; unashamed she dried her eyes and blew her nose. When Van turned toward her, she answered him with only a whispered monosyllable.

"We'll stay here", he said, "we don't have to walk around". And he began to talk of the operas: "The Ring and its story, and of "Tristan and Isolde". Gwen's cheeks dried and her heart stopped its hammer beat, but she was still shaken and grateful to him for his easy talk. And she was impressed, too, by his knowledge of German opera; he had heard it in Europe, he told her.

"How did you happen to be in Europe?"

"My mother was a Frenchwoman, you know. She and my father were divorced when I was about eight, and I was with her for years. We lived in Paris; she, took me to Germany once or twice. She was cracked about music."

"Are these seats terribly expensive?"

"Not me", he said with a laugh. 'I gave old McMasters your tickets—he said he could have sold five hundred more tonight!—and he gave me a card and told me to try the box office and, if it had nothing, to come back and he'd see what he could do".

"Imagine, in the director's seats!"

"And your first opera, is it?"

"Oh yes. And imagine beginning with 'Lohengrin!' It ought to be done by easy stages."

She liked Van tonight. He was gentle and friendly, rather than too devoted, and everything he had to say of the opera, and of the great world to which the opera belonged—the world of singers and capital cities and diamonds and furs—was wonderful to her. She was still listening to him in absorbed attention when the lights went down again, and when he reached in the darkness for her hand she did not withdraw it, but sat with her shoulder almost touching his shoulder just behind her, and their fingers locked.

When it was all over they came out into the cool winter night, and Gwen said that if Van would show her where the right car was she would be eternally grateful, because she was so turned around—

"I'm taking you home", he said with quiet authority "You want a sandwich somewhere?"

WALL STREET

New York, Dec. 18—(AP) — A straggling upturn in the stock market soon met opposition today and prices resumed an indecisive drift.

Steels and motors, leaders of an early gesture toward higher prices, lost most of the gains. Minor ups and downs were about evenly distributed near the fourth hour of trading.

Clinging to small advances were Bethlehem, Chrysler, American Telephone, Sperry, U.S. Steel and General Motors.

Down a shade most of the time were United Aircraft, American Can, New York Central, U. S. Rubber, Union Carbide, Standard Oil of New Jersey and Woolworth.

Canadian Stocks were easy. Dome Mines, Canadian Pacific and Hiram Walker dipped small fractions while distillers Seagram held unchanged. Canada 4s, in the Bond Market, lost 1-8 point.

TORONTO STOCKS

Toronto, Dec. 18—(CP)—Moderate realizing gave golds and industrials a narrow set back in early session of Toronto Exchange today. Base Metals improved slightly and Western Oils held unchanged. Turnover of 268,000 shares in the first three hours was about 40 per cent. Fernland stock. That penny issue firmed from 3 7-8 to 5 1-2c on a report that the company's treasury stock had been optioned to finance a new drilling campaign.

In Senior Oils Imperial was a bit stronger and British American was lower. Foods were irregularly lower, banks higher and other industrial groups steady.

Several golds, including Preston, Upper Canada, Pickle Crow and Pioneer weakened 8 to 10 cents. Royalite and Anglo-Canadian traded at unchanged prices.

'Road to Triumph' Used by British To Complete Drive

Offensive Gaining Momentum Instead Of Bogging Down For Breathing Spell

Cairo, Dec. 18 (AP)—Fast British tank units are sweeping in a semicircle around Italy's eastern Libyan base at Bardia, battering at its outer ring of defences and threatening to cut off the escape of Italian troops who retreated there from Egypt, advices from the front said today.

While the mechanized spearheads raced for positions dominating escape roads west toward Tobruk, British infantry reinforced by eager Australians marched up for a direct assault along the Roman "Via Vittoria"—the "road to triumph" the Italians built for their frustrated drive toward Alexandria.

Thus, military observers said, the counter drive which Gen. Sir Archibald Wavell launched out of the desert dawn nine days ago appeared to be gaining momentum instead of bogging down for a breathing spell at the frontier.

At the same time, there were hints that the British might be switching to the offensive along the Kenya-Ethiopian frontier as well as in North Africa. British forces on the Kenya front were reported yesterday to have undertaken "offensive patrolling."

Came Without Pause

The British push toward Bardia came without pause after announcement of quick mopping up operations along the frontier near the recaptured port of Salum and the storming of four Libyan border posts, Musaid, Sidi Omar, Sheferzen and Fort Capuzzo.

Bolstered by reserve forces including bronzed Australians whose officers said "we can't hold them back" the British pushed straight for Bardia, little more than 10 miles within Libya.

Tank units were reported to have cut around the coastal city from the south and reached positions west of the base where large Fascist forces were believed to be concentrated.

In Precarious Position

Observers said the Italian positions would be precarious if British forces were able to cut and hold the coastal road to the west which links Bardia with Tobruk, nearly 70 miles away, the strongest Italian base in Libya.

British sources said they were uncertain whether the tanks had reached the road.

From prisoners came repeated sorties of being taken by surprise by the British attack.

"We did not dream any English offensive was coming," one officer told an Associated Press correspondent with the British army. "Then we heard there was action, but we thought the front was still 40 miles away. Imagine our surprise when enemy tanks suddenly charged us."

At Bly Buq, where the officer was captured, the British found an Italian order of the day which read:

"Surprise is always master of the battlefront."

Butter Continues Upward Move

Toronto, Dec. 18—Butter added another fraction to its already record-setting high price yesterday on the Toronto open produce market. Retailers' prices on top-grade eggs declined.

Offerings of butter were very light and moved easily under a good demand. Early in the day sales of first-grade Ontario creamery solids were made at 36c, but later the price advanced to 36 1-4c.

Egg prices to the wholesale trade were steady. "A" large sold at 29c to 29 1-2c, unchanged from Monday. Demand was fairly good and supplies were ample. A premium of 1-2c to 1c per dozen was obtainable on shipments of Government inspected eggs. Top-grades sold to retailers at slightly lower prices than on Monday.

Montreal Produce

Montreal, Dec. 18—(CP)—Produce market prices here as reported by the Dominion Department of Agriculture, follow:

Butter — First grade creamery prints, jobbing price 37c; first grade solids, jobbing price, 36 1-2.

SEVERAL FISH HUTS SEEN ON THE BAY ICE

That very little time is wasted by local fishermen in the autumn months between the time they lay up their boats and store their nets until they are plying their trade again is proven by the fact that already fishing through the ice has commenced at the Belleville waterfront. Several fishing houses, with smoke rising from the slender chimney in the roof, were noticed on the ice of the Belleville harbor this morning, attesting to the fact that their occupants had started the winter fishing season and were trying for perch and other members of the finny tribe in the bay.

SENTINELS ALONG ROADS LEADING TO TIRANA CITY

Italians Also Being Driven Back Toward Town of Klisura

SUFFER FROM COLD

75 Per Cent of Italians Taken in One Sector Severely Frost-Bitten

Athens, Dec. 18—(AP) — Greek advance columns were reported flanking Palermo and Tepeleni on the southern Albanian front today, while other troops mopped up snowbound Italian strongpoints in the mountains above Pogradetz in the north.

Palermo and Tepeleni guard roads leading north along the coast to the important supply port of Valona, and forts north and west of Pogradetz are sentinels along the road to the Albanian capital, Tirana, from the Yugoslav frontier.

The Greek High Command said today the Italians were being driven back toward the town of Klisura, 10 miles east of Tepeleni, in what apparently was a Greek encircling movement while other Greek troops thrust at Tepeleni from the south.

Fifteen miles southwest, where a second road runs along the coast, Greeks apparently were attempting a similar "detour" around the town of Palermo, at the same time battering the town with artillery fire.

Drive Out Italians

A spokesman declared the Greeks had driven Italian defence forces from heights northeast of the town.

At the opposite end of the battlefront, where three days of snow have packed down on last week's drifts and temperatures have fallen each day, Italian and Greek forces alike were said to be suffering intensely from the cold.

A Greek army doctor said 75 per cent of the Italian prisoners taken in that sector were severely frost-bitten.

It was from this hardship-ridden front, however that the Greeks reported "one of the major successes of recent days"—capture of a camouflaged fortified position in which the Italians had held out for days. The captured strongpoint was understood to have been near the Yugoslav frontier.

EVER-TIGHTENING

A British Intelligence officer charged with examining tons of military documents left behind by the Italians said: "The papers show their intelligence was good. They knew most of our movements all along until the offensive. They were completely in the dark about that".

Keeping careful plans for an offensive secret in a country where 550,000 Italian soldiers were at large with extensive espionage was itself a baffling task. Leaves of British soldiers in the desert were cancelled a week in advance with the explanation that the men were needed for "manoeuvres".

Shipped by Night

Many truckloads of medical supplies and other last minute requisites for the offensive were shipped out by night.

In summoning correspondents to tell them of the drive just opened, Gen. Sir Archibald P. Wavell, Middle East commander, said that not more than six of his staff officers knew anything about it.

Soldiers who lay concealed in the desert outside Nibeiwa before the dawn attack spent the cold night on the sands without even a cigarette for fear of being spotted by the Italians.

The Italians fought valiantly at many places—some remaining behind machine guns after all hope of repulsing the British troops had gone. In these cases it was almost suicide. Often, however, this resistance broke at the last minute.

Greek Machine Guns

All British planes returned safely.

Tepeleni Under Fire

London, Dec. 18—(CP)—Military circles reported today the Italian-defended Albanian town of Tepeleni, north of Argirocastro on the road to Valona, is under Greek artillery fire.

These circles said information received here indicated also that the Port of Palermo, southwest of Tepeleni, already might be in Greek hands.

The Greeks were said to have occupied two more hamlets at the northern end of the Albanian battlefront, in the Pogradetz region, despite severe cold and continued snow.

NARROW ESCAPES

Liquid Was Blood

She felt liquid and supposed the explosion had burst a pipe. Suddenly she realized it was his blood and struggled out, screaming. She dragged him to the street and help came. He was taken to hospital where they attended a slashed artery and saved him from bleeding to death.

He is recovering. But he cannot explain what happened. He heard no sound. He says he awoke with a suffocating feeling and the urge to get away. That was all.

The bomb demolished their bedroom.

One accepts these things as a gift from Providence.

My own case is one in point. My wife and I, with Hugh Wagnon and Joe Wurzel, of The Associated Press, were returning to the centre of the city from a bit of suburban business. We were in an AP car with our own driver.

Gunfire was loud and rapid. Shells were bursting overhead. Naturally the driver was "stepping on it" to get the trip over.

At an intersection ahead of us the green traffic light winked out as we approached. The intermediate orange came on. It was a toss-up whether to race to beat the red or stop for it. The driver elected to go through. He doesn't know why.

A block away the red light caught us and, as we slowed to a stop, two screaming bombs came down with that swelling effect which says, "I'm coming right to you."

Bombs Fall In Same Place

One of the bombs took away three-quarters of the roadway at the very spot where we should have been waiting for the light to change.

What does one do? One tries to quiet the racing blood, ease the momentarily upset stomach and tease the heart back from the throat. Then one pushes on.

We tell ourselves that a direct hit is a 1,000,000 to one chance and recall that bombs can come amazingly close without destroying you.

Bob Bunnelle of our staff and his wife were in their penthouse apartment when three bombs came down.

One exploded at the front door of the apartment house, playing hob with the lobby. One put its crater at the street corner.

The third whistled down right beside their window and exploded under it where they could look down later into the yawning crater.

The building trembled and rocked a little, but, far up above the blasts (10 storeys is high in London) they themselves didn't lose a window or suffer a scratch.

There's probably no moral to all this except that, in Blitzkrieg as elsewhere, a miss is still as good as a mile.

HOWE'S ASSISTANT

(Amaron's story reporting that Mr. Scott lost his life came only two hours after an official announcement in London that all members of the Howe party were safe. In Ottawa last night, Prime Minister Mackenzie King's office said the Prime Minister had been informed that all members of the party were safe.)

Mr. Howe and his two executive assistants were unshaven when they stepped ashore here today. They said they were "fine" and wanted only a rest and new clothing.

Other rescued Canadians included W. G. Robertson of Toronto, and W. A. Sharp of Prince Albert, Sask.

There was no official count of casualties but it was unofficially estimated that about 15 lives were lost. It was possible, however, that other survivors were picked up by a warship.

The Minister said: "Our rescue was a remarkable piece of seamanship. They did a remarkable job. We're very glad to be here and we're feeling fine."

Braving a downpour of rain, Mr. Howe stood on the bridge of the rescue ship with his companions while a tender with officials and newspapermen pulled alongside. They waved to the tender and shouted in a chorus, "We're fine." They did not appear to show any signs of serious effects of their experience."

Variety of Clothes Worn

The Minister had on a worn windbreaker, navy blue trousers, a white and purple toque and rough seaman's boots. Col. Woodward was clothed similarly but a windbreaker hood covered his head. Mr. Taylor had on a blue denim outfit and a sailor's cap.

Mr. Howe shook hands with almost everyone aboard the tender and chatted a couple of minutes with newspapermen. It was only later that it was learned that Mr. Scott was lost.

Crewman G. Kirkham, a former resident of Canada, told of the Montrealer's disappearance. He said Mr. Scott fell into the water while trying to shove the capsized lifeboat from the side of the rescue ship.

(Previous London dispatches, citing an official announcement, had said all members of the Howe party were safe. Later Canada House confirmed reports that Mr. Scott is missing.)

The 10,926-ton Western Prince which sailed from New York Dec. 6, was torpedoed 550 miles off Ireland.

Those lost in the capsized lifeboat were in addition to a small number of casualties, including Capt. John Reed, when the ship sank.

Mr. Howe had no time to relate his experiences fully before he was whisked away for a rest and new clothes. He was expected to receive the press and visitors later.

Survivors were all seasick after the rescue but nobody suffered from exposure. There was not even a cold among the passengers.

200 Passengers Aboard

A chef on the torpedoed ship, George Hanna, of Toronto, helped with the cooking on the rescue ship, aboard which there were 200 persons including the crew and rescued.

The small lounge was so packed that it was impossible for all to be seated at once, so accommodations were shared periodically. The rescuers gave up their bunks to the 15 women saved.

A Mr. and Mrs. Allen who returned to pick up their belongings after the torpedoing are believed among the lost. She was from Cincinnati. Her husband was English.

Capt. Read remained on the bridge directing rescue operations with a megaphone. He was last seen standing on the bridge shouting, "Give my best to the folks back home." With him was Steward Jimmy Franks of London. Franks refused to leave and wisecracked: "We'll stay behind. We've a little looting to do."

Pretty Grim in Lifeboats

Basil Glass, who had been living in Montreal a few months, said it was pretty grim in the lifeboats. There was no singing and no whistling.

"There was no choice except to be sick," he smiled.

Mrs. James (Sara) Tamblyn of Norfolk, Va., wife of a food ministry employee, said the people on board were "as brave as lions" and that she was glad to be aboard the ship because her experience was "something that does not happen to everyone."

This was her third wartime crossing. When she boarded the lifeboat she had a water-proof bag containing a book. She said, "I took this in case I should be bored in the lifeboat."

When she disembarked she kissed all the sailors.

Percy Linden, London advertising man returned from an eastern Canadian trip, spent most of his time aboard the rescue ship pacifying three babies, the eldest 18 months, who were hauled aboard in coal baskets. They were all fine.

Aboard the ship survivors were fed bully beef, potatoes, soup, hard tack and curried rice. Before disembarking they took up a collection and presented to the skipper and crew £400 ($1,780).

DEATH OF SCOTT

The sad news tempered the joy at word the Munitions Minister and his other companions, Col. W. C. Woodward of Vancouver and E. P. Taylor of Toronto and Ottawa, had reached the safety of a British port aboard a rescue vessel.

Came as a Shock

The message from Mr. Howe reached the Prime Minister's office shortly after ten o'clock. It came as a shock because yesterday Defence Minister Ralston telephoned the Prime Minister from the United Kingdom to inform him the word from the British Admiralty was to the effect that all members of the party were safe.

Later yesterday the Dominions Office in London confirmed this message to the Prime Minister.

Mr. Howe's message to the Prime Minister reached Ottawa a few minutes after a Canadian Press Cable from the port of arrival of the rescue ship reporting Mr. Scott's death.

At first spokesmen for the government departments expressed doubt the report could be true because of the previous information that all the Howe party were safe.

Last night the Prime Minister's office announced that Mr. Mackenzie King had received definite word from London that Mr. Howe and his companions were safe.

Dollar-a-Year Man

Mr. Scott had been with the Department of Munitions and Supply and its predecessors off and on as a financial adviser since early in the war.

Fifty-three years old, he was one of the many $1-a-year-men summoned to take part in direction of the war effort in the Munitions Department.

He helped to organize the War Supply Board which later became the Munitions and Supply Department.

Mr. Scott was born in Montreal Oct. 1, 1887 and educated at Montreal High School. He was married in 1914 to Mary Edith Anderson of Montreal and had one daughter, Helen Marjorie.

After leaving High School he joined the accounting firm of P. S. Ross and Sons and later became a senior partner in the organization. His financial interests were widespread and at one time he was a director of more than 40 companies.

Notified of Safety

Mrs. Howe was notified by government officials last night of her husband's safety.

"I am glad he is all right," Mrs. Howe said gratefully. "The uncertainty was hard on me."

When Mrs. Woodward heard the news, she said:

"I have been waiting to hear such news as that. How about the others"

When told all in the party were safe, she said: "I am so very glad."

Mrs. P. B. Taylor, mother of Mr. Taylor, said she had believed from the first that the party had been rescued and added: "I am happy that my faith has been justified. Now that my son is safe I expect to hear from him before long."

Two Charges Abduction Face Howard Simmons

Trenton, (Special)—Facing two charges of abduction, Howard Simmons of Carrying Place Road was remanded in custody in the County Gaol at Belleville, by Magistrate E. J. Butler. He will appear in court on December 24.

Simmons was arrested early this week on a serious charge against the two girls but it was not until Tuesday that the charges were changed to abduction. The charges read "Howard Simmons did harbour a child under the age of 14 years, well knowing that the said child to have been taken away from its mother with intent to deprive her of possession of the said child.

Chief W. Bain stated that Simmons had taken the two young girls to a cottage on the bay shore where they stayed for the night. The parents reported them missing to the police the next morning and they were picked up in Trenton. On Sunday, Simmons was arrested.

Remanded on Theft Charge

Thomas Richard Stribbell of Hamilton, and James Franklin Galvin of Turner Valley, Alberta, appeared before Magistrate E. J. Butler and were remanded for one week on charges of automobile thefts. The two men were picked up at Smith's Falls on Monday and were brought to Trenton yesterday.

It is alleged that these two men who are A.W.O.L. from their regiment at Petawawa traded a car which they had stolen at some other place for another car in the town of Trenton last week.

Eight Teams Play

Eight teams took part in a basketball interunit series at the Royal Canadian Air Force Station here last night.

In the first game of the night, the Officers of Central Flying School showed their supremacy over the men of the same unit by handing them a 50 to 20 defeat. The officers took an early lead in the first half over their oponents, outscoring the airmen 20 to 8. In the second half they turned on the pressure to collect 30 points to 12 of the Airmen.

The officers were led by Flt. Lt. J. Stephenson, Flying Officer Smith and Flying Officer Patterson.

Security Guard won the second game over Headquarters team by a score of 38 to 28. The Headquarters team had an edge over the S. G.'s in the first half, outscoring them 17 to 14 but in the second quarter came back strongly to score 24 points to 11 points of the H. Q. boys. Campbell and McIntyre were the best for the Security Guard while Thompson and Muirhead were the best for Headquarters.

Two teams from the Aircraft Repair Depot turned in the closest game of the evening, with the Battlers having a slight edge over the Ansons with a score of 27 to 22. Both teams were evenly matched throughout the game. The first half ended with the Battlers leading 17 to 13. In the second half the Ansons tried hard to even the score but were unable to do so as McVeigh for the Battlers dropped three baskets in quick succession near the end of the game.

Air Armament School won an easy victory over the Workshops team by a score of 41 to 19, in the fourth game of the night. Taking a lead of 18 to 12 in the first half the A.A.S. team returned to the game in the second half and led by Verkerk they ran up the lead to 22 points.

The teams:

OIL COMPANY BUILDS NEW STEEL FENCE AROUND PROPERTY

Following the lead of other gasoline storage companies in the city that have fenced their properties as a guard against unwelcome prowlers, the McColl Frontenac wholesalers are building a modern steel fence around their gasoline storage tanks and warehouse on South Front Street. Steel posts are being set in concrete, to which heavy steel netting will be attached, with strands of barbed wire to be stretched along the top of the posts.

Kent Taylor, Edward Ellis, Robert Stanton and Dick Hogan, principals in the dramatic hit "Three Sons," now showing at the McCarthy Theatre in addition to Lucille Ball in "Panama Lady."

CANADIAN-MADE MECHANICAL UNITS PLAY PART IN BRITISH VICTORY

It is now learned that mechanical transport units produced in Canadian factories played an important part in the great British victory against the Italians in Egypt. These Canadian plants are turning out approximately 400 vehicles a day for British and Canadian consumption. An army vehicle is pictured here receiving part of its sturdy body as it moves along the assembly line of one of the Dominion's largest automobile factories.

Each vehicle is given rigid tests after it leaves the assembly line to ensure that nothing will go wrong on the field of battle. A gun tractor is shown here as it goes bouncing across the testing ground.

HER DADDY ARRIVED SAFELY

Three-year-old Anita Borradaile, war guest at the home of Zoltan Korda in Hollywood, said good-bye to her daddy two months ago in Canada before he sailed for England on a Canadian destroyer. Cameraman Borradaile had finished shooting Canadian scenes for anti-Nazi "49th Parallel," travelled via destroyer on return trip to England so he could get actual war-at-sea scenes for film. Cables report he arrived safely.

NOTHING DAUNTS THIS POPPY SELLER

Intent on gathering the shillings, this charming London poppy seller was protographed on the anniversary of the signing of the armistice of the first world war, making a sale to a member of the pioneer corps, amidst the ruins of a bombed building.

HUSBAND IS SAFE

Halifax, Dec. 18—(CP)—Mrs. A. E. Macrae received a cable from her husband, Maj.-Gen. Macrae, today saying he was "well and cheerful but lost everything" in the sinking of the torpedoed liner Western Prince. Maj.-Gen. Macrae, who did special work in Ottawa for the British Government, was in Supply Minister Howe's party.

Two Canadians Decorated by King For Removing Unexploded Bomb

(By ROSS MUNRO)

London, Dec. 18 (CP) The Official Gazette last night revealed that two Canadian officers decorated by the King received the honors for removing a huge unexploded bomb which endangered a British munitions plant and the lives of hundreds of workers.

The officers were Lieut. John M. S. Patton of Hamilton, who received the George Cross, and Capt. Douglas W. Cunnington of Calgary, who received the George Medal. The awards were announced Monday but the citations were not published until last night.

Risking their lives every second they wrestled with the bomb, the young officers of the Royal Canadian Engineers at first tried to tow it away with a truck. But the rope they attached to it kept sliding from the slippery sides of the high explosive missile.

They then improvised a sled from a piece of corrugated iron and Lieutenant Patton rolled the missile on to it "as cooly as if he had been rolling a log into a stream," as a witness put it.

The Canadians then drove a considerable distance in the truck, towing the "package of certain death" behind them. It exploded harmlessly soon after they had dumped it into an old crater.

Work "Very Gallant"

Commenting upon these first decorations awarded to members of the Canadian Army, Lieut.-Gen. A. G. L. McNaughton, Corps Commander, said:

"The awards are the result of a piece of work which was not only very gallant, but most important in its consequences. Had the bomb been allowed to remain where it fell until it exploded, a position of vital importance to munitions production would have been destroyed.

"All members of the Canadian Army in England are naturally most pleased over this recognition of the gallantry and initiative of their comrades."

The brigadier, who is chief of the Engineer Corps, expressed pride "that these officers have earned such an outstanding award."

The bomb which Lieutenant Patton and Captain Cunnington heroically tackled was laid by a German bomber while they and a company of the Royal Canadian Engineers were helping to repair damage wrought in the vicinity by a previous Nazi raid.

Both Queen's Graduates

The bomb struck the plant at an angle, crashed through the floor and slithered along until it smashed through a wall into the yard outside. When plant officials called for aid Lieutenant Patton responded immediately, although he had been in England only a few days and had not previous experience with bombs.

Captain Cunnington joined him and the wrestle with death went on for some time before the heavy missile was lodged on the makeshift sled and carted away.

The official citation said Lieutenant Patton "displayed conspicuous gallantry in carrying out hazardous work in a very brave manner," while Captain Cunnington's award was in recognition of "most conspicuous gallantry."

The young officers — Lieutenant Patton is 25 and Captain Cunnington 24 — are graduates of Queen's University, Kingston. Lieutenant Patton graduated in 1939 with a degree in chemical engineering. His wife lives in Kingston.

Captain Cunnington, a graduate of Royal Military College at Kingston as well as Queen's, joined the Royal Canadian Horse Artillery before the war. His father is Colonel D. G. L. Cunnington, M.C., of Calgary, where his wife lives with her parents-in-law.

NEARLY 500,000 TRANSPLANTED INTO GERMANY

"Volkdeutsche" Uprooted From Homes Along Black Sea and Russian Poland

'PACKED AS SARDINES'

By PRESTON GROVER
Associated Press Staff Writer.

Berlin, Dec. 18 (AP)—In one of history's most staggering resettlement schemes, nearly 500,000 "Volkdeutsche"—some pleased, some bewildered—are being jammed into a Germany which Hitler said last week is already compelled to fight for more and richer living space.

Some were rooted up from their homes along the Black Sea; some come from the Sovietized Baltic states, some from Russian-held Poland.

Many of these transplanted Germans have been settled in new homes in German-held Poland and East Prussia, but nearly 200,000 more than have been crowded into ancient castles and second and third-rate hotels in recent weeks, awaiting the time when homes can be found for them.

This is one of the most difficult tasks undertaken by the Nazi government. Its stated purpose is to consolidate people of "pure" German race in one nation and under one leadership.

This correspondent returned recently from a tour of some of the congested regions of south-central Germany, where these wandering Germans are packed almost like sardines into winter quarters.

To Bolster Control of Territory

It is generally assumed that many will be sent into Lorraine and other parts of conquered France to bolster German control of that territory.

Others probably will be sent to the rich farm lands of eastern Germany where it has been difficult to keep a solid farming population on the land.

Outside Wuerzburg, 2,500 Bessarabian Germans were being quartered in a gigantic 16th century castle.

Day laborers, peasants, sharecroppers, craftsmen and school teachers milled about in bewildered fashion in the rambling building.

For the most part, these people are truly German in origin. They are the great-grandchildren of thousands of Germans who left beaten Germany at the end of the Napoleonic wars and fled eastward to the Black Sea coast.

In the century and a quarter since then, they have mixed with Russian, Rumanian and other Black Sea populations to some extent. Most of them retained their German characteristics and German speech, however.

One of the Bessarabians who had been a moderately wealthy landowner said local laws compelled them to decide whether they would remain Germans or permit their children to be taught Rumanian, Russian or some other tonque.

Moreover, he continued, they were under pressure from Germany, Rumania and other localities to move.

'Refunds' Asked For Stolen Goods

One of the most ingenious shoplifting schemes ever devised in the city has been uncovered by an enterprising Front Street merchant. Here is the way the neat little racket works.

A lady enters a store, and pilfers one or more articles bearing a price-tag of that particular shop. The lady exits, and the next day at a busy hour, a small girl enters and accosts the clerk at the counter from which the articles were "lifted."

"Pardon me, Miss," the youngster smiles sweetly, "but yesterday when mother bought these things, you forgot to put them in Christmas boxes."

The clerk, busy and probably a bit tired, apologizes, places the articles in question in holiday boxes and turns to her work.

The youngster walks quietly out of the store. Now comes the pay-off." The next day at the peak of business, the girl presents herself again with the articles, says that her mother is ill and the goods are not satisfactory, won't fit, aren't what she wanted or one of a dozen similar excuses. "Could we have our money refunded?" she asks sweetly.

Twice the youngster has "got away" with it, but a suspicious manager when told by a clever saleslady that she had been asked by a girl for boxes the day previous, held the goods in question, "until such a time as your mother can come down and pick out what she wants."

Thus far "mother" has failed to put in an appearance.

U. K. to Compensate For All Adult Citizens Victims of Enemy Action

London, Dec. 18 (CP)—Britain pledged compensation today for all her adult citizens killed or injured "as a result of enemy action."

Sir Kingsley Wood, Chancellor of the Exchequer, announced in the House of Commons that the plan would apply to injuries already incurred and that increased rates would be payable from Dec. 24 on.

ITALIAN TROOPS RETREATING TO DERNA IS REPORT

R.A.F. Fighters Machine-Gun Retreating Force Between Bardia and Tobruk

RAID EL WAK

Cairo, Egypt, Dec. 18 (AP)—Italian troops were reported today by the Royal Air Force to be falling back toward Derna, 150 miles within Libya, harassed by bombs and machine guns while on the march.

"Reconnaissance flights showed the enemy retreating to Derna," an R.A.F. communique said.

"Our fighters machine-gunned retreating troops between Bardia and Tobruk."

Earlier reports from the western desert indicated that Bardia, Italy's main coastal base in the Libyan frontier region, had been isolated by British armored units, to the west, and that fresh troops were rolling up before the town on the east.

Apparently the line had been closed also on the south. For any retreat toward Derna the Italians had to pass through or near Tobruk, roughly half the 150-mile distance between Bardia.

British airmen struck heavily at the Bardia and Derna ends of the Italian line despite heavy rains.

"Three large fires were started in the (Bardia) encampment. Outside the town a large quantity of motor transport was damaged . . .

"Derna was raided during last night, all bombs falling on the airdrome."

Other Offensive Feints

The ten-day drive into the western desert by Britain's army of the Nile, now reported to have carried to positions of dominance at Bardia, seemed to have touched off other offensive feints against Italy's east African holdings including a 35-mile dash into Italian Somaliland by British mechanized units and light artillery which raided the Italian base of El Wak, killing 50 of its defenders and capturing 120 others with considerable equipment.

The R.A.F. shot down two Italian planes in western desert patrol flights and damaged two others.

Military circles said that the raid on El Wak was merely exploratory, not being considered a suitable point for a full-scale British drive into Somaliland.

There has been little change in Northern Kenya, bordering Somaliland and Ethiopia, in the last few months. The Italians still hold Buna, in Kenya, 50 miles south of the Ethiopian frontier, which they captured Sept. 3.

The British General Headquarters' communique was terse on all operations.

"Operations in the Bardia area continue," was all it said about the western fighting, leaving to the R. A. F. an unofficial report from the fighting zone, the description of the penetration of Libya.

Outline of Scheme's Accomplishments Given Over Air

Ottawa, Dec. 18.—(CP)—Military aviation leaders, commemorating the first anniversary of launching of the British Commonwealth Air Training plan, have given Canadian Radio listeners an outline of the scheme's accomplishments.

Air Minister Power and five high officers spoke last night on a "Wings of Empire" program broadcast over a National network of the Canadian Broadcasting Corporation.

Maj. Power said the plan's "one purpose"—to produce pilots, air observers and air gunners — "has already been achieved".

But he added that it remains to be seen how the program will stand up under conditions of mass production. So far its efficiency had been proven only for a comparatively smaller number of units.

Efficient mass production was the goal of the plan, and "we dare not, we must not, we shall not, suspend or delay our efforts", the Air Minister said.

Air Marshal W. A. Bishop, an ace of the First Great War who now is director of Royal Canadian Air Force recruiting describing the future of the plan, said its graduates "would increase and increase and help to achieve in the skies and in the clouds a decisive verdict that will mean freedom for us all".

Other speakers were Air Vice-Marshal L. S. Breadner, chief of Air Staff, Air Vice-Marshal L. D. Dalzell-McKean of the United Kingdom Air Liaison Mission, Air Vice-Marshal S. J. Goble of the Royal Australian Air Force and Group Capt. L. M. Isitt of the Royal New Zealand Air Force.

STATUS OF LAVAL REMAINS UNCLEAR

Berlin Authorities Say German Government Knows Cause of Vichy Upheaval

Vichy, France, Dec. 18.—(AP)—The position of former Vice-Premier Pierre Laval, who went to Paris last night after a visit here by Otto Abetz, Hitler's Ambassador, remained unclear today, but his friends declared he was on a mission for the Vichy government.

These sources intimated that Laval would resume the negotiations for French-German "collaboration" which his removal from Premier Philippe Petain's Cabinet last week interrupted temporarily.

Laval was expected to remain in Paris five or six days during which time, sources here said, Abetz probably would report to Hitler on his talks with Petain and Laval yesterday.

Clarification of Laval's role by Hitler and Petain was expected, although no new meeting of these two leaders was anticipated.

The opinion was expressed in some quarters that the Vichy Cabinet would be reorganized soon, and that Petain would issue a message explaining any changes.

Censor Permits Announcement

The French censor this morning, for the first time, permitted announcement that Laval had made the trip last night after conferences yesterday with Petain and Hitler's ambassador to France, Otto Abetz.

French circles expressed the belief that from that round of conferences negotiations to increase French-German collaboration would be resumed shortly— with Laval playing an active role again.

Laval's exact status remained an enigma but French sources said the "incident" created by his sudden dismissal from the government last week apparently was closed with the German's departure for Paris last night.

(Reports from Berne, Switzerland, said Laval was understood to have left Vichy with Abetz and it was intimated he might become a "special negotiator" for the Petain government in Paris.)

A bulletin on the health of Pierre-Etienne Flandin, who took over Laval's post of Foreign Minister, said he was considerably improved and was expected to be able to return to work in a few days. He has been confined to his home by grippe.

Berlin, Dec. 16.— (AP) — The German government, according to Nazi sources, is now in possession of the reasons for the political upheaval at Vichy, but until German Ambassador Otto Abetz's full report reaches Berlin no official statement of the Nazi position can be expected.

From the general attitude of German officialdom, however, observers believed the storm was blowing over, and that relations between Berlin and Vichy could be resumed where they left off.

Authorized sources declined to confirm or deny reports that Pierre Laval, dismissed as Vice Premier and Foreign Minister, was getting back into grace, saying they had no official information and knew only what they read in the world press.

Berne, Switzerland, Dec. 18 (AP)—France's elderly Chief of State, Marshal Petain, was reported today to have assured Hitler that the ousting of Pierre Laval as his Vice-Premier and Foreign Minister has not affected the French Government's policy of collaboration with Germany.

Authoritative sources said Laval, freed from surveillance, had left Vichy with Abetz, and there were reports he might act as a "special negotiator" for Petain in Paris.

As such, these reports said, the swarthy little Laval would be answerable only to the Marshal himself and not to his own lanky successor in the Foreign Ministry—Pierre-Etienne Flandin, who took a backseat role during talks yesterday in Vichy.

(In Vichy, French circles were said to regard the Laval "incident" as closed and to take it for granted that negotiations with Germany on collaboration would be resumed with Laval taking an active part.)

Indications Petain Backed Water

Whatever Laval's status may be, advices here indicated that Petain and the group of ministers who ousted him from the Cabinet had backed water considerably following the whirlwind visit from Hitler's emissary.

Advices from Petain's close associates said he had remained firm against suggestions that he take Laval back as his designated successor as Chief of State.

Strike Expected If Terms Not Met

Toronto, Dec. 18 (CP)—Norman Dowd of Ottawa, Secretary-Treasurer of the Canadian Congress of Labor, said today that 1,500 employees of Loblaw Groceterias Company, Limited, in Toronto and Hamilton will go on strike Saturday unless the president of the firm signs a contract governing hours and wages. He said the decision to strike was reached at a meeting attended by representatives of more than 60 per cent of the employees here last night. A delegation of 15 was present from Hamilton.

The disputed contract is one drawn up by a Board of Arbitration appointed by the Ontario Department of Labor after employees threatened to strike last September, Mr. Dowd said.

R. G. Meech, Secretary-Treasurer of the Company, said there are no outstanding difficulties to be settled and that findings of the Arbitration Board have been put into effect.

Output of 18,000 American Planes Will Be Reached Within 7 Months

Estimate is Based on Reliable Sources in Aircraft Industry

5,000 THIS YEAR

By DEVON FRANCIS
(Associated Press Aviation Editor)

New York, Dec. 18 —(AP)— An output of 1,500 to 1,700 warplanes a month—a rate of 18,000 to 20,000 a year—will be achieved by American factories in the next seven months, reliable sources in the aircraft manufacturing industry estimated today.

This fact can be added to the statement of William S. Knudsen, production chief of the National Defence Commission, last week that aircraft production was 30 per cent behind schedule—the industry itself appears to have been overly-optimistic in reporting its capacity to Washington.

Figures submitted to the Defence Commission by airplane makers last summer, intended to picture the production peak which could be reached in January, included all types of airplanes, private, commercial and military.

That led Knudsen on Aug. 8 to announce that the rate of warplane manufacture was 10,800 a year and would pass the 18,000 mark in January.

The actual production of military aircraft by American factories in this calendar year will be slightly in excess of 5,000 machines.

With the more conservative figures as a barometer, warplane output during the coming year takes on a much less dismal appearance than that reflected in the Knudsen statement. The engine problem, probably the worst of the many facing the industry, has been made more critical by shipments of engines to Britain to power British-manufactured planes.

Orders for those engines were placed before fresh demands for army and navy planes were made last June.

In 10 more months a fresh flood of engine manufacturing will burst upon the industry from new factories—branches established by plants now working at their peak and by automobile companies. In the same period 150,000 to 200,000 specialized workmen will have been trained for both aircraft and engine manufacture.

By mid-summer, 1941, on the basis of the industry's own revised figures, about 250,000 workers will be employed in American aircraft and engine plants. That compares with 400,000 workmen now reported to be employed in German plants and a like number in England. The ultimate goal in domestic plants is between 500,000 and 600,000.

$2,500,000,000 IN WAR SUPPLIES PREDICTED NEED

Authoritative Source in Washington Forecasts That at Least This Amount Required to Meet British Needs Under Any 'Lease Lend' Program of U.S. Aid

Washington, Dec. 18—(AP)—At least $2,500,000,000 worth of war supplies would be necessary, an authoritative source predicted today, to meet Great Britain's needs under any "lease-lend" program of United States' assistance.

This estimate, he said, was over and above the $2,000,000,000 worth of munitions and material for which Britain already has placed orders in this country on a "cash-and-carry" basis.

The official, a qualified specialist, advanced his estimates after President Roosevelt had outlined a tentative plan for a "lend-lease" policy of assistance which, in effect, would create here a veritable arsenal for the British Empire—without dollar sign limitations.

Britain's military needs, this official said, probably would constitute only one part of the broad question of assistance involved.

Assuming a British victory in the end, he said it was his belief that from $2,000,000,000 to $3,000,000,000 in addition would be necessary to rehabilitate the besieged, bomb-wrecked country when peace came.

To complete the defeat of what he termed Hitlerism and to sustain democracy, the official asserted it would be necessary to help Britain back to her feet.

The official did not specify how long a period of war he thought the minimum of $2,500,000,000 worth of supplies would cover. British sources, however, have mentioned both 1942 and 1943 as the year in which they hope for a decision if they continue to hold their own.

Britain's present orders here call for some 2,000 tanks, more than 10,000 planes, and great quantities of small arms, ammunition, explosives and other war supplies. The minimum estimate presumably would cover slightly larger quantities.

20,000 ITALIANS TAKEN TO INDIA

Bombay, Dec. 18 (CP)—Internment camps were reported today to have been prepared in India for at least 20,000 Italian prisoners captured Egypt.

Rawdon

Rawdon, Dec. 19 (Special).—The December meeting of Mount Pleasant Rawdon Woman's Missionary Society was held on Wednesday, Dec. 11 at the home of Mrs. John Holmes with nine members and two visitors in attendance. The house was suitably decorated for Christmas and a picture of the Madonna and child was given a prominent place. Service opened with quiet music played by Mrs. Ross Hoard and Mrs. Percy MacMullen read a poem entitled "The Christmas Message". All sang "Silent Night" and the Lord's prayer was recited in unison. The roll call was answered with the keyword Christmas and Mrs. D. Campbell read the Christmas lesson in Luke 2. Mrs. Arthur Phillips gave the devotional on "Stewardship and Christmas" and said the two are definitely linked together and each individual should use their time and their talents to carry on God's work. She urged all present to be better stewards in 1941 and to practice "love . . . not hate" for our enemies. The simplicity of Christmas should be the ideal as never before when our country is at war and she closed with an appropriate Christmas poem.

During the business period a letter of thanks from Mrs. Smith was read and the president read a letter from Miss Mabel Clazie formerly of Belleville R.R. 6 who just returned to her work at Aiseikwan in Tokyo, Japan. Although the churches in Japan have declined financial help from churches abroad still they want and hope for the help and co-operation of missionaries. She closed her letter with the motto: "As thy days, so shall thy strength be". Thanks was extended by the president to the hostess of the afternoon and to all who co-operated during the year. The January meeting will be held at the home of Mrs. Edgar McKeown when each officer is asked to give a full report of her year's work. The afternoon offering amounting to over four dollars was dedicated. Miss Muriel Sine gave a broadcast on mission work in China assisted by Mrs. Cyrus Summer. The president presented the Christmas study on the theme "The world church pays homage to Christ" in three parts based on a circle of homage, a world circle and our circle in our own W.M.S. around Christ. Today the Christians of the world bow before Christ and are anxious to further the work of His kingdom and in the same way the shepherds of old bowed in homage to the Babe in the manger. Those who assisted with this service were Mrs. Edgar McKeown, Miss Doris Sine, Mrs. John Holmes, Mrs. Carleton Petts, Mrs. Arthur Phillips, Mrs. Kenneth Weaver, Mrs. Ross Hoard and Mrs. Cyrus Summers. A prayer was offered for Christians of all lands and for our special missionaries. A number of Christmas carols were sung at the close of which the hostess served delicious home made candy, and apples.

Mr. Garnet Grills underwent an operation in Belleville Hospital on Saturday, Dec. 7.

Mr. and Mrs. Percy MacMullen attended River Valley Study Group W.M.S. Christmas social on Friday evening.

Mr. and Mrs. Sam Elliott enjoyed a recent holiday with friends in Hamilton.

Mr. and Mrs. Ed McKeown spent a day last week with Mr. and Mrs. Will Morrow, Peterborough.

The boys who have been in training at Peterborough are now under quarantine for measles, chicken pox and scarlet fever. The boys are keenly disappointed as they had planned to be home the end of this week with their training completed.

"Brigham Young," one of the most spectacular romance-dramas ever filmed, is now on the Belle Theatre screen, with Tyrone Power and charming Linda Darnell, as the youthful lovers. Jean Dagger is seen as Brigham Young.

Hints at Land Offensive in 1941 Against Germany

Mr. Churchill Says U.K. Fully Armed By 1941—Warns of Danger of Nazi Invasion Attempt—Successes in Egypt

By HAROLD FAIR
Canadian Press Staff Writer

London, Dec. 19 (C.P. Cable)—Prime Minister Churchill told the House of Commons today that British losses to December 16 in the "highly satisfactory" battle of Egypt and Libya were "less than 1,000 killed and wounded in all ranks of the Australian, Indian and Imperial troops" and at the same time issued a renewed warning against the invasion danger.

He asserted that while Winter offered "some advantages to the invaders to counterbalance those which belonged to summer," well-defended Britain was unafraid of any blow which might be struck. At the same time the vigil must be unceasing.

Hints Land Invasion Against Germany in 1941

The Premier hinted at a British land offensive against Germany in 1941. He admitted Britain still is only a half-armed nation fighting a fully armed Germany and said that "in 1941 we shall be fully armed, too, and that will open up possibilities which previously were not open."

Mr. Churchill was cheered by the crowded house while Mrs. Churchill looked down from a front seat in the visitors' gallery. As the pre-

Airplanes and icing! When an airplane begins to stagger, ice has formed on the wings and possibly elsewhere. The plane has been flying in moisture-laden air with temperature not far below the freezing point, and the lift of wings has been affected. About 65 per cent. of the lift is due to the negative pressure (or partial vacuum) on the upper surface of the wings. But when ice forms, the shape of this surface is flattened or so modified that the sustaining power is diminished. Icing is due to two conditions: First, an airplane flying through very cold air becomes so cold that when it encounters water droplets they readily freeze to the wings; second, ice is formed when flying through air containing subcooled water droplets.

Further Restrictions In Use of Aluminum In Homes Necessary

Ottawa, Dec. 19—(CP)—Further restrictions in the use of aluminum in homes and in some industries are necessary, G. C. Bateman, Metals Controller, said in an address last night to Ottawa branch of the Mining and Metallurgy Institute.

"If there is not enough aluminum in Canada to supply wartime needs as well as domestic requirements, there is no question which will have the first call," he said. Mr. Bateman is president of the Dominion organization of the institute.

He said Britain's consumption of aluminum for non-war purposes had been reduced from 2,500 tons a month to 46 by bans placed on certain uses and added:

"Similar steps must be taken here, although it may mean hardship, dislocation and in some cases very real sacrifices."

To Fill Current Requirements

(Restrictions on use of aluminum in certain non-essential products were disclosed Sept. 5. Chief among these was prohibition of use of aluminum for cooking utensils until plane requirements were met. Manufacturers would be given time to fill their current contracts, the announcement at that time said.

(Since then, arrangements have been made by the Metals Controller with manufacturers of aluminum foil for wrapping purposes; substitutes will be in use by the New Year.)

Mr. Bateman called on manufacturers to make sacrifices. They would be hardest hit if any curtailment of production of aluminum were put into effect in Canada.

Aluminum production on the North American continent was a common source of supply for Canada, Great Britain and the United States, "and there is not enough in the pot to meet war requirements and at the same time ordinary domestic needs."

PIONEER TRADER DIES

Winnipeg, Dec. 19.—(CP)—William Cornwallis King, 95-year-old pioneer fur trader, believed to have been Winnipeg's oldest resident, died here last night.

Coming to Canada from England in his early youth, Mr. King joined the Hudson's Bay Company in 1862 and served forty years as trader and chief trader at many posts in the Canadian Northwest. He was in charge of York factory for twenty years.

CONGRESS MUST DECIDE ON PLAN OF LEASE-LENDING

Britain Told by Roosevelt to Go Ahead With Negotiations for Billions of War Supplies to Await Signing of Contracts

BRITAIN ENTHUSED

British Press Sees United States as Non-Belligerent Ally — Britain to Pay Cash for 60 New Merchant Vessels Under New Plan

Washington, Dec. 19 (AP)—Henry Morgenthau, Secretary of the United States Treasury, announced today the British government had been authorized to proceed at once with negotiation of billions of dollars worth of new war material contracts, but not to sign the contracts until Congress acts on President Roosevelt's "lease-lending" plan.

The Secretary said he had been instructed by Mr. Roosevelt to send this word to the British Purchasing Commission this morning. At the time he talked to reporters, he had not yet seen the British representatives.

Morgenthau said the first contract in the new program would be for 60 merchant vessels. Britain is going to pay cash for these ships, he declared, and would not wait for approval of the "lease-lending" plan.

He declined to say how much the new British contracts would total, or to comment on reports that the figure was $3,000,000,000.

The Secretary exhibited to reporters a sheaf of closely-typed documents which he said was a list submitted by Britain of its military requirements. The "go ahead" from President, he explained, referred to this list.

List of Requirements 'Cleared'

"The British," Morgenthau said, "have prepared a list which I received this morning—but which I will not show you—of orders that have been cleared with our army and navy and the National Defence Commission.

"I have been authorized by the President to tell them (the British) to go ahead up to the point of signing contracts."

Except for the ship order, which the British intend to pay for themselves, Morgenthou added, "there will be no more British contracts until Congress has a chance to study them."

Speed-up Plans.

Londoners' Spirit of Fortitude Inspiring Sight to Correspondent

The following is the fourth of twelve stories by Milo M. Thompson, Chief of the London Bureau of The Associated Press, on present-day life in London.

By MILO M. THOMPSON
(Associated Press Staff Writer)

New York, Dec. 19 (AP.—"Ain't underground London wonderful?"

It was my waiting taxicab driver who spoke. He had strolled from his cab to lean over a barrier and peer down into the crater of the bomb which hit The Associated Press building.

He saw workmen replacing a giant watermain valve which had been wrecked. The part they were putting in was about as big as the 550-pound bomb which had done the damage.

He saw a crisscross of gas mains undergoing repair and just freed of earth, debris and the mess made by sandbags which, after effectively protecting part of the side of the building, had toppled in. And there were two separate families of multiple cable conduits. Some of their casings were the worse for the beating they had taken but none of the cables had been snapped.

His explanation was pat but, to my mind, it would be still more pat applied to the life that goes on in the deep underground railway stations of London once night has driven the shelterers there.

Newspaper people are often caught off base by the night bombardment and, therefore, we frequently make an involuntary tour of the deep shelters.

It seldom fails to bring tears to my wife's eyes when she sees nursing mothers with their babies, young children, aged women, old men, stretched out on all too thin blankets on the cold concrete.

To me, however, it is an endless pageant of fortitude and determination; and there is something inspiring in the way these people make a smiling best of a bad situation.

As the train stops first at one station, then another, another and another, you see successive tableaux involving new types of people, new postures of repose, new devices for amusement.

MATSUOKAPLEADS WITH U. S. TO STAY OUT OF WAR

Declares World Will Face "Armageddon" if Such Action Takes Place

EXCEPTION TAKEN

By MAXE HILL
Associated Press Staff Writer

Tokyo, Dec. 19 (AP)—Foreign Minister Yosuke Matsuoka pleaded with the United States today to stay out of the war lest the world face "armageddon," and then heard United States Ambassador Joseph C. Grew take quick exception to his statement that the "fate of China is largely a question of sentiment to Americans."

The Ambassador made several points in remarks after he had listened attentively to Matsuoka's address before the America-Japanese Society at a farewell luncheon honoring Admiral Kichisaburo Nomura, new Japanese Ambassador to the United States.

Referring to Matsuoka's assertion that the "fate of China is largely a question of sentiment to Americans; to us it is a truly vital issue affecting the very existence of our Empire," Grew said:-

"I think I must relieve the Minister of his misapprehension that the interest of Americans in China is largely sentimental."

At another point in his speech the Foreign Minister said "we believe we have a great mission as a civilizing and stabilizing force and stand for peace and order. We shut

ASSAULT AIMED AT TEPELENI AND KLISURA

Greeks Report Important City of Klisura is Now in Flames, Set Afire by Italians

MATERIAL TAKEN

Athens, Dec. 19 (AP)—Unconfirmed reports from the Greek-Italian battlefront in Albania said today that Italian forces had withdrawn from the key mountain towns of Klisura and Tepeleni. Another dispatch said that Greek occupation was imminent.

The Greeks apparently were following the usual practice of delaying entrance until surrounding areas had been mopped up.

In the case of Tepeleni and Klisura in the middle sector of the front, the Fascist troops were said to have withdrawn merely to heights about the towns, in position to fire on Greek troops should they try at once to occupy the two places.

Continue Advance

"Despite bad weather," said one dispatch, "Greek columns are continuing their advance, especially in the central secor where, after heavy artillery fire, they reached Klisura.

"The Italians abandoned their positions where they had been fighting for three days, and left in the hands of Greek troops abundant war material and quite a few prisoners."

R. A. F. BOMBERS STRIKE AT MILAN AND MANNHEIM

All Operations Carried Out Successfully Despite Bad Weather

LONDON QUIET

German Air Force Remains Inactive for Second Successive Day

London, Dec. 19 (CP). — Three straight nights of Royal Air Force bombardment of Mannheim, southern German industrial, commercial and communications centre, were described today in well-informed quarters as part of a British move to smash communications between Germany and Italy.

Linked with the third attack last night was an R.A.F. smash at Italy—a factory in Milan, docks at Genoa and an airdrome in northern Italy, according to the Air Ministry's announcement.

Informed quarters stressed the Mannheim raids, however, as an attempt to smash communication links between the axis powers while British troops continue their pressure against Italian forces in Libya and British air and sea forces help the Greeks fight Italy in Albania.

Bombs Planted Discriminately.

In the darkness last night R.A.F. bombers planted bombs amid the smoke of previous bombardments of Mannheim, the Air Ministry said.

Mannheim, at the juncture of the Rhine and Neckar rivers, is one of the key junctions of river-rail routes to Italy from the Ruhr valley, with its heavy industries, and from the Saar which produces coal which Italy needs.

Mannheim has been bombed 31 times since the war started. Aside from its importance in axis communications, the city's factories make submarine engines and provide other finished products needed by warring Germany.

Still another motive in the Mannheim attack, it is believed, is the British wish to give successive regions of Germany a taste of heavy raiding something like the Nazi air force has been giving to various sections of Britain.

Fire damage was reported by the Air Ministry.

Enough is Enough Even at Christmastime

Portland, Ore., Dec. 19 —(AP)— A woman whose patience with Yule crowds had reached the breaking point suddenly gave way to impulse. She shouted "I've had enough of this," walloped an amazed woman bystander with her umbrella and bustled down the street.

Bad Weather Fails To Halt British Drive into Libya

With Fall of Bardia Imminent, Torbuk May Be Abandoned By Italians

Cairo, Egypt, Dec. 19 (AP)—British land, sea and air forces united today in an attempt to pinch off the Libyan port of Bardia and open the way for an attack upon Tobruk toward which the battered Italian army is retreating under harassing fire.

Reports from the front indicated that Bardia already was surrounded, with British armored patrols ranging the desert far to the west, but thousands of Italian troops were said to be breaking through the cordon by sheer weight of numbers.

With the fall of Bardia apparently imminent there were indications that the Italians also were making preparations to abandon Tobruk, 70 miles to the west.

British officers said their reconnaissance planes had observed troop movements in the direction of Derna, 80 miles further west along the coast.

How many Italian troops still lay within the net the British were tightening around Bardia was uncertain here. The normal garrison, however, was said to be one division and it was believed that this number has been augmented "by remnants of the units routed at Sidi Barrani and Salum.

No Slackening of Drive

Although the advance British forces are now operating 150 miles from their nearest railhead at Matruh, Egypt, there was no indication of a slackening of the westward drive launched by Gen. Sir Archibald P. Wavell 10 days ago.

Heavy rains have handicapped but not halted British mechanized units and the Air Force is playing a major role in the advance despite adverse weather.

(The British Broadcasting Corporation, in a broadcast heard by Columbia Broadcasting system, declared British airmen had shot down or put out of action more than 100 Italian planes during the last seven days while "probably" losing no more than five craft themselves.)

Casualties Are Low

There were no official figures to indicate what casualties the drive had cost British forces, but military men said they had been low. Even the Italian casualties, it was said, probably were not high—due largely to the surprise of the British attacks.

British forces were said to be putting to good use the great quantities of stores they captured in driving the Italians out of Egypt.

U. S. BATTLESHIP HIT BY FREIGHTER

Arkansas Suffers Little Damage in Collision Off New Jersey Coast

New York, Dec. 19 (AP)—The United States battleship Arkansas and the American freighter Melrose collided off the New Jersey coast early today, causing little damage to the battleship but springing a leak in the freighter.

Both vessels headed immediately for New York under their own power.

Scene of the crash was about 35 miles off Sea Girt, N.J.

The coast guard cutter Ponchartrain, on patrol duty near there, reached the two ships within an hour. The Ponchartrain fell in as an escort as the battleship and freighter steamed for port.

The coast guard said the Arkansas apparently was "all right," but the Melrose was damaged "pretty badly."

AEMILIUS JARVIS DIES IN TORONTO

Toronto Financier and Yachtsman Was Eighty Years Old

Toronto, Dec. 19 (CP)—Aemilius Jarvis, 80, Toronto financier and yachtsman, died here today.

Mr. Jarvis was born in that section of York County which later became Toronto, April 25, 1860. He was educated at Upper Canada College and following graduation entered the banking business. In 1892 he established his own brokerage firm which continued in business until 1924.

He was connected with various business enterprises, particularly those dealing with heavy industry, hydro-electric and transportation.

Mr. Jarvis' conviction on a charge of conspiracy that followed bond dealings with the Ontario Government headed by Hon. E. C. Drury precipitated a controversy that lasted more than a decade.

Vivid Story of Sober Heroism, Tragedy Told by Hon. C. D. Howe

London, Dec. 19 (CP)—Canada's Minister of Munitions and Supply, Hon. C. D. Howe, freshly-arrived from a stark wartime drama of the sea, prepared today to carry out the mission in Britain which made him undertake the hazardous winter trip across the Atlantic.

Yesterday unkempt, in ill-fitting clothes, he landed at a British port to describe how a member of his mission, Hon. Gordon Scott, former Quebec Provincial Treasurer and Financial Adviser to the Munitions Ministry at Ottawa, had met his death in the events following the torpedoing of the liner Western Prince last Saturday off the Irish coast, and how others, including himself, were plucked from mountainous seas after eight hours of strenuous rowing.

From Mr. Howe, and others, including the two remaining members of the mission, Col. W. C. Woodward, Vancouver, and Edward P. Taylor, Toronto, the account of the hours that followed the torpedoing of the liner pieced itself together into a vivid story of sober heroism and tragedy.

Eerie Angles to the Story

There were eerie angles to the story; such as an account of the U-boat slithering through the heavy seas near the lifeboats and a sudden burst of light as if the Nazis had taken a flash picture of the suffering survivors; pathetic details of three infants brought safely to shore; gruesome details of Mr. Scott, thrown into the water at the moment when rescue seemed sure, being crushed between the capsized lifeboat and the side of the rescue vessel; and the grim but characteristic detail of the sturdy Scottish Captain, John Reed, blowing blasts from the torpedoed ship's whistle just as she plunged from sight—an incongruous cheery good-bye to the lifeboats.

Seventeen In All Lost Lives.

It was generally estimated that six passengers, and eleven crewmen

4 SHOPPING DAYS TILL Christmas

SALVATION ARMY BAND TOURS CITY

Spreading a welcome message of good cheer at this, the Christmas, season, the Salvation Army Band has been unusually active during the past few nights and each evening tours the streets of the city playing popular Christmas numbers and hymns. Wednesday evening members of this hard working organization were seen in the north end of the city while on Thursday evening they will tour Cedar, Catherine, West Bridge, Octavia, Dunbar and Sinclair Streets, playing well-loved hymns and Christmas numbers.

MILD TYPE OF 'FLU PREVALENT IN CITY

With many new cases of influenza being reported in the city during the past few days it seems that the unwelcome traveller is not really going to miss this district after all. Up until the first of the week, only a few cases had been reported but Dr. G. S. Cronk, M.O.H., this morning, stated that doctors in the city were now quite busy attending patients who had contracted the 'flu. Many of the more serious cases are being received at the hospital, but generally speaking attacks are still of the mild type, lasting only three or four days.

BELLEVILLE POLICE CONTINUE DRIVE

Belleville police continued their drive against the violation of the all-night parking by-law in this city last night when police stickers were left on 16 motor vehicles, which were left parked on city streets all night. The Public Works Department, through the police, is endeavouring to keep the streets free from parked vehicles in order that the city snow plough may operate without interruption in the case of sudden snow storms. The motoring public is asked to co-operate in this measure and refrain from all-night parking on the streets of the city.

MONTHLY INSPECTION IS CARRIED OUT

Inspector A. J. Brown of the Headquarters staff of the R.C.M.P. at Ottawa, was in Belleville on Thursday conducting the monthly inspection of the local detachment of the "Mounties". Following the inspection Inspector Brown returned immediately to Ottawa.

LOOK FOR COMET ON JANUARY 23

Tail of the Cunningham comet which has just swung into view, believe it or not, is 1,600,000 miles long, according to Prof. William H. Barton of the Hayden Planetarium, New York. The comet looks like a hazy brightness, "a fuzzy star."

Observatory officials say that to see it clearly it is well to go out into the country, away from the dust and smoke and use field glasses.

Where to look for it? About 20 degrees above the horison and slightly north of due west. Best time: Early evening hours of Jan. 2 and 3.

SEVERAL TREATED FOR FRACTURES AT THE HOSPITAL

Two Campbellford residents, Mr. Fred Hutchison and Mrs. Sadie Smith, residing on Mill street, are in the Belleville General Hospital suffering from fractures. Mr. Hutchison is suffering from a fractured femur and it is thought also that Mrs. Smith's hip is broken although it will not be known definitely until X-ray plates are developed. Dr. G. H. Stoble has charge of both patients.

Suffering a fractured arm when she slipped and fell on the ice late Wednesday afternoon, Mrs. Annie Wardle, 14 Geddes street, was admitted to the Belleville General Hospital last evening. The injured woman was attended by Dr. G. S. Cronk who reduced the fracture.

Mrs. Frances Davis, R.R. 2, Shannonville, was admitted to the Belleville General Hospital on Wednesday suffering from a broken leg. Dr. F. R. Ross and Dr. J. J. Robertson attended the injured woman and after the fracture was reduced Mrs. Davis was permitted to return to her home.

Christmas Concerts

A CHRISTMAS concert that brought delight to the parents and friends of those taking part was held by Bridge Street Church Sunday School on Wednesday evening when an entainment of high merit, directed by the leaders of the different classes was presented. Each department made its own special contribution to the evening's program and the success of each item showed the care that had been taken in the training and the preparation of the numbers.

The program offered a wide variety of entertainment, including beautiful Christmas carols, recitations, vocal and piano solos, duets, dances, choruses, drills and dramatizations all performed in splendid style.

A Christmas carol, "Joy to the World," sung by the audience and prayer by the pastor, Dr. James Semple, opened the concert. A welcome was extended to the audience by Mr. C. W. Burr, superintendent of the Sunday School who acted as chairman throughout the evening.

Alliance Tabernacle S. S.

LAST evening a very enjoyable time was spent at the Christian and Missionary Alliance Tabernacle when the annual Christmas Service was held under the auspices of the Sunday school.

The auditorium, which was decorated with Christmas trees, and evergreen branches with their colorful lights, surmounted by a blazing Star of Bethlehem, made a fitting background for the beautiful life-size painting of the shepherds watching their flocks by night on the hills just outside Bethlehem, and for the little children of the Sunday School, especially the tiny tots who thrilled the large audience with their songs and words of greeting.

After the children's part of the programme which was as follows:

1. Carol: "Hark The Herald Angels Sing."
2 Carol: "O Little Town of Bethlehem."
3 Opening Prayer: Oldest member of the S. S. Mr. H. Baragar (82).

14 Offertory Selection "O Come All Ye Faithful" piano and electric guitar (Miss Lillian White and Donald Henderson).
15 Carol: "He Is King."

Mr. Grafton, of the Belleville Collegiate Staff, took us for a delightful and instructive travelogue from the port of Haifa on the western coast of Palestine, whose magnificent facilities could hold the entire British navy, and from where Britain receives the most of her oil supply by means of a pipeline from Jerusalem, across country for 23 miles, down to Nazareth, the home of Mary and Joseph, nestled like a jewel in cup-like hollow surrounded by hills. Here Jesus made his home for several years. Here, too, we saw the great hill with it's precipitious incline to the sea from which the town's people endeavoured to cast Him into the sea beneath, but He disappeared from their midst.

From Nazareth we went to Schechem, the place of the Samaritans. Here we entered their tabernacle where the oldest book in the world is kept, written 3000 years ago on sheep skin and bound in silver. We visited the 90 foot well at Sychar, dug over 4000 years ago in the time of Abraham, and rested where Jesus rested so long ago when he talked to the woman of Samaria who had come to draw water in the heat of the noon-day. We saw the countryside covered with lilies of the field varying in color from purple to pale pink, the farmer ploughing with a wooden pole with an iron point, hitched to an ox and an ass; we saw the women gathering thorns for the fire, and then we came on down to Jerusalem where we visited a departmental store of those days, and of these days, too, for the custom has not changed, a narrow store filled with everything from onions and garlic to drygoods, and the necessities of life.

From Jerusalem we came on down the winding road, pausing to look at the distant landscape with their rolling hills, and lovely sunsets, on down to a tomb by the road-side, about thirteen miles from Bethlehem, the end of our journey. We stopped here quite a long time, in reverent contemplation, for it was here that Jacob's beloved wife, Rachel, on their return journey from Jacob's exile, died when Benjamin was born. This tomb is sacred to all, Jew and Arab alike, Rachel's tomb, and is very old, about 3000 years.

There are no Jews in Bethlehem, but a hybrid of the old inhabitnats and the Crusaders.

The principal industry of Bethlehem is the mother of pearl industry of which are made many ornaments and little statuettes. The workers are seated on the ground and the work is done by hand.

From the factory we went down to the market place and thence to the Church of the Nativity, the oldest church in the world, built by Queen Helena, the mother of Constantine in the 4th century. Here on Christmas eve, throngs of people from distant parts are gathered, some coming from as far as a thousand miles away. It is a very large church, with many windows, but with only one door, so small that on entering one has to stoop. When this church was built its doorway was large and spacious, but the Romans descrated the holy place by riding on horse back and after Romans had left the inhabitants sealed the door up, making it so small that never more should anything like that happen.

The interior was beautiful in the extreme, with its wonderful altar and candles and sixteen pillars on either side.

From the main part of the church one turns to the right between the pillars at the altar, and again to the left, descend a few steps, and we see before us the place where Jesus was born 1900 ago. Here are hung many beautiful lamps, the gifts of different kings, who have come to do homage to our Lord's birthplace. A spirit of reverence, and a holy calm pervaded all.

As we left this holy place and came once more out into the open air, we felt that Christmas had indeed taken on a new meaning for us.

The remainder of the Christmas service consisted in the presentation of prizes to those scholars who had had a perfect attendance for the year, of which there were about 12. Also those who, through illness had been away one or two Sundays were also rewarded for their faithfulness, followed by the treats, and the closing carol.

Chief Wm. Lynch Warns Public Of Fire Hazards

Particular Care Should be Observed in Handling of Christmas Decorations

Realizing that during the celebration of the Christmas season a great many potential fire hazards are introduced into homes, stores and public places through the careless use of decorations, trees, lighting equipment, etc., the Ontario Fire Marshall, W. J. Scott, broadcasts a plea to "make this Christmas free from fire."

Persons decorating halls, churches and public places should use particular care in their choice of decorations with only materials made of metal, glass or asbestos being used. The Christmas tree itself demands particular attention and should not be placed near any source of heat, such as radiators, fire places or stoves and should be well-secured against falling and should be placed so that standing or falling, it will not block a doorway or exit and thus hamper the escape of anyone should an emergency arise. Only an approved type of electrical appliances should be used and smoking near the Christmas tree is taboo as after being brought into the home it hourly becomes dried and therefore more easily ignited.

The correct choice of toys may mean much to the little ones and warning is made against those made of celluloid as they may become ignited without actually coming into contact with flame and when ignited burn rapidly with danger of igniting the child's clothing.

Fire Chief Wm. Lynch has completed his annual Christmas inspection of public halls, schools and stores and reports that local householders and merchants are co-operating with the Fire Marshal's warning in regard to Christmas decorations, etc. "Everything in Belleville was discovered to be in splendid condition," he said.

No Ceremonies Attend Presentation of Wings

Paraphrasing the famous slogan of the theatre, "The show must go on," is the exigency of training under the Empire Air Training Scheme. Colorful ceremonies that formerly marked the graduation and decoration of pilots and other arms of the flying services are being dispensed with, apparently.

For instance, the first class of student pilots to graduate from the Norman Rogers Airdrome in Kingston on Tuesday were pleasantly surprised when an instructor walked into the classroom where they sat at their desks and deposited the coveted "wings" on each desk-top, pausing only long enough for the boys to sign for the issue.

There wasn't any handshaking or speechmaking. "The men just went on with their work," remarked a flying officer, "they had plenty of time later to sew on their wings." Thirty-three embryonic Collishaws and Bishops graduated in the first class.

'Tea Car' Here For Inspection

Mobile Unit Operated by Y.M.C.A. War Services Will Supply Hot Tea and Biscuits to Troops

Dedicated in Ottawa by His Excellency the Governor-General of Canada, the first Y.M.C.A. War Services "tea car" paused in the city Wednesday before leaving for its destination at Camp Borden.

The first of five planned to be used in Canada for the Canadian Army, the tea car was inspected by high-ranking military officers of the district in Kingston.

The mobile unit will be used exclusively for the troops and will operate at all times. The "Y" officials in charge will serve free hot tea and biscuits, while chocolate bars, cigarettes will be sold at canteen prices. The unit has drop-side and back which gives it the appearance of a miniature shop on wheels.

Three hundred cups of tea are always available in thermos jugs while a gasoline stove and water-tank will supply another 300 cups. With water available the wagon can carry supplies for 6,000 cups without returning to its base.

In the summer, Mr. W. Rutland, Y. Secretary in charge, stated motion pictures and sound effects will be carried. The present tour is an experimental one and any improvements, or accessories found necessary will be included in the remaining four to be built and added to the first one.

The mail-box will be carried in the car so that the troops can post their letters on the spot. Free writing paper and envelopes will be furnished the soldiers. It is the intention of the "Y" to operate the vehicle twenty-four hours a day and to accompany the troops at all times.

The unit, driven by Mr. Charles Ward, left the city for Trenton Air Station later in the afternoon and will proceed from there to Toronto and intermediate points where it will pause for inspection before going to the Western Ontario camp. Mr. Joe Shortt of the local "Y" was present while a large number of spectators looked over the new "shop-on-wheels."

RECALLS BATTLES FOR DARDANELLES FIRST GREAT WAR

Twenty-Five Years Ago Allies Started Successful Evacuation of Fighting Forces on Gallipoli Peninsula

By H. H. GORDON

(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

After a lapse of twenty-five years world attention is again focussed on the Middle East where German and Italian aspirations seek the destruction of Britain's interests in Egypt and Iraq and the closing of her highway to India through the Suez Canal.

In the First Great War the Allies fought the most disastrous campaign of the four-year conflict in this ancient theatre of war. Long and bitter controversy resulted from their failure to force the Dardanelles, gateway to Russia's Black Sea ports and the heart of the Ottoman Empire.

Twenty-five years ago the main body of Allied troops was successfully evacuated from the cliff-bordered beaches of the Gallipoli Peninsula. The operation was one of the few bright spots in ten months of naval and military warfare against the Turks—fighting that cost the Allies 130,000 men, willed, wounded and missing

Epic of Dardanelles.

Endurance of the Allied troops during the land campaign that followed unsuccessful efforts of a fleet to blast its way through the Dardanelles is an epic in British history. Casualties in bitterly-fought battles were augmented by losses from disease and through it all the expedition suffered from shortages of men and supplies.

A total of about 327,000 combatant troops and 140,000 non-combatants were employed from time to time in the Allied land operations. The maximum strength at any one time was about 85,000 combatant and 42,000 non-combatant.

Indirectly the campaign achieved notable results in holding Turkish armies from other theatres of war, particularly Palestine, Mesopatamia and Armenia.

But political and strategical objectives that pormpted the expedition were never achieved. Early in 1915 the armies of the Allies and Germany were deadlocked on the Western Front and it was thought the expedition, if successful, would bring two or three of the Balkan nations to the side of the Allies, making possible an attack on Germany's southern frontiers. Instead, the failure to force a quick victory was responsible for Bulgaria joining the Central Powers and the embroilment of the Allies in a strength-sapping campaign in the Balkans.

Veterans of the Gallipoli expedition recall names like Cape Helles, Gaba Tepe (later known as Anzac Cove) and Suvla Bay and the battles of Krithit, Achi Baba, Sari Bair and Suvla.

Memorable Landing.

Withering fire from Turkish defenders on the heights above Anzac Cove failed to halt Australian and New Zealand troops in their memorable landing on April 25, 1915. They scaled steep cliffs and gradually dug themselves in in the face of great odds.

The Trojan-Horse story of the troopship River Clyde is another of the unforgettable incidents. Jammed with troops the old vessel was run ashore and the men disembarked through a impoverished gangway.

When Turkey threw in its lot with the Central Powers in October, 1914, Russia's water communications with the rest of Europe were virtually cut off. The German Navy's blockade stopped her in the Baltic.

With Russia's Black Sea ports clogged with foodstuffs and other products and the pressing need for imports of munitions and war equipment, the plan to break through the Dardanelles from the Mediterranean was given consideration by the British and French governments on Russia's suggestion.

The question of mastering the all-important waterway had been studied by British naval and military experts many years before. Then it was agreed that, whether the campaign was to take the form of a purely naval expedition or to be the task of a combined army and navy force, the enterprise was bound to prove most difficult.

When Russia appealed to the Allies early in 1915 requesting that an attempt be made to open the Dardanelles, no large bodies of troops were available. With the approval of Vice-Admiral Sir Sackville Carden, commander of the Mediterranean fleet, a purely naval undertaking was decided on. He proposed a methodical advance with a fleet attempting to destroy the Ottoman forts in the Straits and the clearing of minefields sown in the channel.

Fleet Operation.

Fourteen British and four French warships, many of them semi-obsolete in view of the danger of the enterprise, steamed into the western entrance to the straits on Feb. 19 but it was not until a week later that the outer Turkish forts were silenced.

Largely because of the inability of Allied minesweepers to make headway under the fire of the Turks the plan for a methodical advance collapsed. Vice-Admiral Carden had been replaced by Vice-Admiral Sir John De Robeck and he decided on a quick attack on the Narrows, only a mile wide at one point. The operation on March 18 was unsuccessful and three battleships were sunk. De Robeck then informed the Admiralty that the campaign could not be continued as a purely naval operation.

From this point the military began to assume the principal role in the Entente's efforts to secure control of the Dardanelles. After 42 years' service in every quarter of the globe, Sir Ian Hamilton was given command of a force of British, Australian, New Zealand and French troops.

The veteran general had little to work with. He had a manual of the Turkish army, an out-of-date admiralty report on Dardanelles defences and an old map.

On April 25, allied troops made successful landings at three of the points where debarkation was attempted. But they were effected at terrific cost. Australian and British soldiers scrambled through the water from lighters in the face of a murderous hail of bullets, seeking in every conceivable way to shelter themselves on exposed beaches.

Hamilton Appeal.

With the landing accomplished, Sir Ian Hamilton appealed to Lord Kitchener for reinforcements "One fresh man on Gallipoli today is worth fifty loafing around London in the Central Force," he said. "Exactly one-half of my bayonets spend the nights carrying water, ammunition and supplies between the beach and the firing lines. The other half are up the whole night, armed mostly with spades, digging desperately into the earth."

Reinforcements were sent, but still there was a lack of men and supplies; particularly high explosives. The Turks reorganized under the German general Liman von Sanders were adequately strengthened. Several Turkish divisions were liberated for service at the Dardanelles when a Russian army destined for the Bosporus was taken from Odessa for service in Galicia.

Month after month the Allied forces clung to positions and fought battles on the peninsula. In the late fall Sir Ian was replaced by Sir C. C. Monro who, after examining the situation on the spot, declared unhesitatingly for a complete withdrawal. Lord Kitchener was sent to investigate. He also reported that evacuation was the only justifiable course.

Under the noses of the Turkish defenders the Allies set about the business of withdrawal from Suvla Bay and Anzac Cove. Night after night masses of war material and food supplies were removed and animals got away. During the daylight hours guns boomed, reliefs took place as usual and pretences were made of disembarking animals and supplies. The Turks were completely outmanoeuvred and on the morning of Dec. 19 the skeleton force withdrew from the trenches and embarked with only two casualties.

The evacuation of the forces at Helles on the extreme tip of the peninsula was carried out successfully three weeks later.

RADIO CLICKS ON SPLINTERS

London, Dec. 19 (CP).—A correspondent describes in the British Medical Journal how a radio set can help surgeons detect small bomb or shell fragments in the skin. The radio is switched on to a spot where no station can be heard and the volume is turned on full. A few feet of wire, ending in an insulated probe and attached to the aerial terminal or socket, complete the apparatus.

Any piece of metal in contact with the body should yield a loud click when the probe touches it and a scratching noise on further contact.

Celebrated Christmas On Way to North Pole

Captain Scott and his men on their way to the Pole once celebrated Christmas day by having a wash in a cupful of water each, and by washing their shirts. On another occasion after being on short rations they kept Christmas day by consuming such luxuries as raisins and chocolates for breakfast, and for supper they indulged in four courses. First of all, there was a full whack of pemmican with slices of horse meat flavored with onion and curry powder and thickened with biscuit then arrowroot cocoa and biscuit hoosh sweetened, then plum pudding, then cocoa with raisins, and finally a dessert of caramels and ginger. "After all this," says Scott, "it was difficult to move. Wilson and I couldn't finish our share of the plum pudding. We felt thoroughly warm and slept splendidly." But the advance was slow the following day owing, probably to the tightening of the night before.

First Christmas Trees Originated in Germany

On the wild, sandy heathland of the North German plain the dark-leafed fir trees have flourished for many centuries. It is not strange, therefore, that the "Christmas Tree" should have its origin there. It dates back prior to the days of Christianity. The early Egyptians used to employ decorated trees in their festive season celebrations. It is a fact well known by all botanists that the palm tree puts forth a shoot each month, and at the time of the winter solstice, a spray of palm, bearing twelve shoots, was employed in the temple of Osiris to mark the completion of the year. Curiously enough, England did not adopt Christmas trees until the middle of the last century. The prince consort, shortly after his marriage to Queen Victoria, introduced them into Great Britain.

BIG AIR PLAN IS PRODUCING AS YEAR ENDS

Aircrew Men From Canada's Effort for Empire Training Are Already in Planes Over Britain

By FRANK FLAHERTY

(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Ottawa, Dec. 19 (CP).—Canada's wartime university of the air became a year old today.

On this date a year ago a big idea was translated into a legal document and today the idea is embodied in training schools, fighting airmen, aircraft, guns, barracks and technical knowledge crammed into the heads of thousands of young men.

The British Commonwealth Air Training Plan is hitting its stride a year after Prime Minister Mackenzie King announced an agreement between the governments of Great Britain, Canada, Australia and New Zealand to co-operate in centralizing in Canada a joint scheme for training the youth of the empire in air warfare.

As the first anniversary rolled around an undisclosed number of pilots, air observers and air gunners trained in the schools established under the plan are fighting in the battle of Britain or are on the sidelines waiting to get in. More are preparing to follow overseas each month in increasing numbers.

According to Air Ministry figures 48 out of 83 schools contemplated in the plan are now operating or due to open before the year's end. The original plan called for the opening of 33 by that date but it was found desirable to speed things up when the German army mopped up Western Europe last spring and summer.

Of the 48, 35 are flying schools. Others are for the schooling of people to assist in the training of the flying men — armorers, storekeepers, accountants, administrative officers, inspectors, aeronautical engineers, motor mechanics, airframe mechanics and others.

Canada's Responsibility.

The agreement between the four empire governments placed on Canada and the Royal Canadian Air Force the responsibility of setting up the training plan and operating it. Canada was to provide about 80 per cent. of the pupils in addition to practically all the operating and training staff.

The first task was to get the physical properties, flying fields, buildings, aircraft. That process started last autumn. The German progress in the west complicated the problem of obtaining aircraft. Canada could no longer rely on Great Britain to furnish planes in the numbers originally contemplated.

This, together with the necessity of speeding up the output of aircrews, left the Canadian administrators of the plan with a problem which is not yet wholly solved. Purchases in the United States and a drive for increased plane production in Canada were the methods used to meet a plane shortage but Air Minister C. G. Power has yet to express complete satisfaction with the supply of aircraft.

Co-incident with establishment of schools and the securing of training facilities the Air Force had to enlist and train instructors, administrative personnel and mechanics. Schools were set up for this purpose, the largest being the technical training school at St. Thomas.

Initial Training Schools.

Actual training of aircrew personnel under the plan started April 29, 1940, at the first initial training school at the Eglinton Hunt Club property in Toronto. The men who went into that school with the first class and completed all stages of training now are overseas. A second initial training school has since been opened at Regina and a third is booked for Montreal. In these schools the airmen get preliminary ground instruction.

The pupils are divided into pilots, air gunners and air observers on completing the initial training stage. For pilots the next step is the elementary flying training school of which sixteen out of a projected twenty-six are operating or will be by the end of this month. The final stage for pilots is in the service flying training schools of which eight out of sixteen are open or due to open by the end of the year. In addition pilots get a short course in bombing and gunnery schools of which three out of ten are due to open by the end of the year.

Four out of ten projected air observers schools are billed for operation by the year-end. Here the air observers get most of their training. They also attend the bombing and gunnery schools and the air navigation schools of which one out of two projected is in operation.

The air gunners who are also wireless operators spend the bulk of their time in wireless schools of which two of four projected are operating. They also attend bombing and gunnery schools.

Partially trained British, Australian and New Zealand airmen are already in Canada completing their courses in the schools of the plan.

British Trainees.

In addition a number of wholly British service flying training schools are operating in Canada, transferred here because flying for training purposes has become less practicable in a zone of air combat and air raiding. They are separate from the plan.

Speaking in the House of Commons recently Mr. Power said on Nov. 12 there were 7,227 aircrew personnel in training and that in October 1,900 men had been enlisted for aircrew duties.

These figures will increase each month if the plan pursues its destined course, as more schools become available for training more men. Mr. Power said nothing about the number of trained aircrew men turned out.

That, according to the present official view, is something for the enemy to find out if he can. The Air Force will not say except in terms of more planes in the air in the war zone.

WOMAN'S ENERGIES RE-OPENED CHURCH

Windsor, England (CP)—Doors of Boveney Church were closed at the outbreak of the war and the historic building, mention of which is made in the Domesday Book, was abandoned, until Miss Joan Wing decided to act.

All by herself she scrubbed the floors, cleaned the brass, dusted the pews and even "booked" a preacher. The church was unable to hold the congregation which turned out for the re-opening. So Miss Wing, who lives at Bovney, near Windsor, hopes now to have services at least once a month.

THE NEW VETOMOLD TOMATO
THE IDEAL GREENHOUSE AND GARDEN TOMATO RESISTS LEAF-MOLD
(Cladosporium fulvum)

This epoch-making new mold-resistant tomato was developed jointly by the University of Toronto and the Ontario Experiment Station at Vineland.

Every Tomato grower should make a test planting of VETOMOLD, both for forcing and outdoor growing. VETOMOLD is resistant to leaf-mold. VETOMOLD produces heavily, uniform, smooth, clean and bright red fruits of ideal size, being deeper and more round than Grand Rapids. Seven or eight fruit clusters are formed in a height of six feet, the trusses being frequently branched, each producing seven to fifteen fruits.

VETOMOLD is an unexcelled and VERY EARLY GARDEN VARIETY, whether staked or field grown, possessing highest quality, earliness, uniformity and high yield.

CANADIANS' DUTY TO BUY WAR SAVINGS CERTIFICATES

"We should regard our incomes as received in trust. We may legitimately use them for meeting our needs and those of our families, but we should not regard them as our own to spend as we choose. The nation has a claim upon them which ranks ahead of our personal claims for non-essential purposes. The liberty we enjoy in the spending of our incomes increases our responsibility for their proper disposition." So said the Hon. J. L. Ilsley, Dominion Finance Minister, this week before the Canadian Club in Toronto as he spoke on the War Savings Campaign.

The duty of Canadians to make their earnings help fight the battle of civilization is clearly placed before the people of Canada. Mr. Ilsley impressed the urgency of consideration of making preparation for the third war loan next summer, so that the purchase of bonds may be as great as possible. It is necessary that many persons who have never before bought bonds, do so when this loan is offered to the country.

The purchasing of war savings stamps and certificates in much greater volume is necessary. The original objective of $50,000,000 a year from this investment has been raised to $120,000,000. To reach this total it is necessary to count on the average subscription to war savings certificates of about three times as much as is being paid in the form of the (two per cent) National Defence Tax.

Employers and employees have been asked to co-operate so that many employees be enlisted in the plan of setting so much aside under the payroll plan under which employees instruct their employers to subscribe regularly out of their earnings for War Savings Certificates.

Canada can raise the money. She depends upon the more well-to-do and the less well-to-do and every person possible to do their bit towards keeping up the flow of money loaned to the government for the prosecution of the war.

These loans carry value as an investment. Money saved from expenditure on the non-essentials, or saved from pruning down on expenses and loaned to the government in the form of war savings certificates or bonds is more than money saved, it is money fighting for the victory of civilization over barbarism and money which is an investment of great value, an investment in the maintenance of liberty and our homes and our way of life, and a financial investment bringing good returns.

Loaning to the Government gives the satisfaction that each and everyone who participates is doing an essential part in the war effort.

Now is the time to save money for purchases of war savings certificates by buying stamps when one can save patriotically to loan to the government to finance the great cost of the war and keep Canada's war effort to the maximum.

Soldiers have enlisted as their contribution to the war effort of the Motherland, the Empire and Canada and they assume the risks of war and if need be they are ready to lay down their lives in defence of all they hold dear. Canadians at home can and will lend their money freely to their government to carry on the struggle with the maximum of effectiveness, because for that money is necessary.

THE SEASON OF YULE

Christmas is less than a week away. The long-heralded and much-anticipated festival approaches. In home, shop and store the season manifests itself in plans for the celebration of that time. The spirit of Christmas is here and the setting is that to which the people of this clime are accustomed, winter and snow, against which the glow of the festivities is contrasted as the heart, inspired by nature's severities, triumphs over winter.

Already the churches have given a foretaste of the joys of the season. The music of the season is in the air. Christmas trees gather the young of the churches and societies and other organizations into those assemblies where all is mirth, bubbling, joyous anticipation, happiness, innocence and sincerity.

The kind-hearted are at work planning to send out baskets and hampers to those who are lonely or need something of the cheer of the season, the buying of gifts proceeds apace as the crowded city shops, so tastefully decorated in the spirit of Yule and so filled with the good things which are to be distributed or broadcast out of the spontaneous spirit of the time, testify with their flow of happy buyers. The spirit is that of goodwill.

But the realization that this country is engaged with the greatest advocate of democracy, the British Empire, in defending everything that the world treasures most in organized society and in individual lives is never forgotten for one moment. There is the note of gratitude that manifests itself because of the fact that liberty has been maintained during this year in the face of the most powerful force barbarism, savagery, greed and dishonor ever conspired to send against civilization. The presence of Christmas enriches the spirit of loyalty as once again the people realize that such things as are a part of the national life of the democratic empire still remain to be enjoyed. Christmas in its stressing of the happiness and joys of the young vividly reminds parents, brothers, sisters, aunts, uncles and grandparents and the innumerable hosts of friends that the war goes on because these children must be allowed to grow up in the advantages of the freedom Britishers enjoy and be protected against the destroying agencies of Nazism and Fascism.

Christmas does hallow our every act of goodness for it brings a blessing which cannot be weighed. Christmas releases the springs of generosity and the noblest impulses which bless those who give as well as those who receive.

TIME TO GET UP

(Manchester Guardian)

—The other day I went out to buy an alarm clock. I tried various shops without success. At last I found a clock, a beautiful clock with a silent tick and a warning like the last trump. I had to pay a guinea for it, and there was no cheaper clock in the shop.

The shopman explained the situation. Most of the pre-war alarm clocks had come from Switzerland and Germany, and of course were no longer imported. American clocks were scarce, for they had to compete for shipping space with airplanes and other more important goods.

All that was left were British clocks, and for these in London alone there were many thousands of hungry applicants, the men who had never before wakened themselves up but now had to do so because their wives were in the country.

When Tonsils Should Be Removed

When a youngster has frequent colds, parents may feel that the removal of the tonsils might prevent these colds. Experience has amply proven that the removal of tonsils does not prevent colds except in some cases where the cold always begins with a sore throat.

There is present throughout the world today a feeling that tonsils should not be removed unless it can be definitely shown that they are to blame for the symptoms present. Thus in the Hospital for Sick Children, London, 2729 operations for removal of tonsils were performed in 1938 as compared with 4730 operations in 1930.

In discussing the removal of tonsils and adenoids, Sir Lancelot Barrington-Ward at the Royal Society of Medicine, said that the tonsil was in his experience much the more dangerous element. The structure of the tonsil allowed organisms to remain dormant or quiet, but nevertheless active, leading to chronic general poisoning of the system or flare-up into acute inflammation from time to time.

Adenoids, on the other hand, acted simply as an obstruction to the breathing or by a low grade infection causing inflammation of the ear or the glands in the neck.

In discussing tonsils it was stated that large tonsils might not be septic (pouring poison into the blood stream) and septic tonsils might not be large. Mere size is not important unless it is causing obstruction.

How can it be known that a tonsil or tonsils are septic? The appearance doesn't tell much but if there are certain noticeable conditions the physician unusually decides to have the tonsils removed.

1.—Repeated attacks of tonsillitis which can only be stopped by removal of the tonsils.

2.—Chronic or persistent enlargement of the upper deep gland of neck, without enlargement of the other glands, always means infection of the tonsils.

3.—Middle ear disease followed by mastoid infection and deafness is due to infection from tonsil and adenoid in most cases.

Infected tonsils should be removed when there is a history of rheumatism accompanied by heart disease or chorea-St. Vitus' dance.

The above findings are in accord with those of the United States and Europe.

'Another Shot In the Naval Locker'

The Fleet Air Arm is the direct descendant of the old Naval Air Service of 1914-18—which, by the way, the present Prime Minister started—and it is just as much part of the Navy as the submarine branch or the mine-sweeping. The aircraft, in fact, is merely another shot in the naval locker.

And make no mistake about its effectiveness in naval hands. It bombs, fights, torpedoes, hunts for submarines, spots for gunnery, and it has been known to take the messman ashore with his milk can where there was no other means of getting to the beach.

It was a Seafox from Ajax that thwarted the Graf Spee's attempt to hide behind a smoke screen in the Plate Battle. It was a Walrus from Warspite that reconnoitred ahead of the destroyers in the second Narvik battle. It was a Walrus, too, from the Australian cruiser Hobart that gave some timely assistance in the withdrawing from Somaliland. Skuas sank the Koenigsberg in Bergen harbor when the Norwegian campaign was barely a day old, and afterwards Swordfish harried the coast from Trondheim to Narvik. Later, at Dunkirk, they lent the army a hand; and recently, in the Mediterranean, they have attacked Italian warships in Italian harbors, while Fulmars were shooting down Savoias attempting to bomb the Fleet at sea. At home, Albacore have helped the R.A.F. to shatter those barge concentrations and invasion bases.

There is, you see, a nautical flavor about the very names of these naval aircraft—Seafox, Swordfish, Walrus, Skua, Roc, Albacore and Fulmar.

The Royal Naval Air Service changed its name to Fleet Air Arm during that period of stringent economy after the Great War when the Royal Air Force co-operated with the Navy—providing the aircraft, the pilots and the maintenance service while the Navy provided the carriers, the observers and the air-gunners. But that is all ended now. The responsibility for ship-borne aircraft is the Navy's and the Navy's alone; and like the R.N.A.S. of old, the Fleet Air Arm, which you hear so much about these days, is a purely naval service. And naval in the strictest sense.

There is no overlapping of purpose between the Fleet Air Arm as now constituted and the R.A.F. It is true that certain aerodromes are set aside exclusively for naval use—they are all known as ships, by the way; H.M.S. Doedalus, Raven, Peregrine, Kestrel—the Germans claimed that they had sunk the Kestrel, you remember. Still, although aerodromes ashore are set aside for the Navy, and naval aircraft based there lend a hand in local defence as well as in offensive operations like those at Dunkirk and Boulogne, the reason for the existence of these shore bases arises from necessity, because naval airmen must be trained ashore before they go to sea, and ship-borne squadrons must have somewhere to go when the carrier puts into port for repairs.

And make no mistake about this training. There is a vast difference between finding an aerodrome ashore and finding a carrier at sea. There are no signposts at sea, for one thing. You cannot, for example, just look over the side and set your course by the local railway or the roof of your favorite roadhouse. Nor is the difference any less when you come to land on her deck, because if there is anything like a sea running, that deck may be rising and falling from 10 to 20 feet at the very spot where you wish to land—just sufficient, that is, for you to fly straight into the hangar below or miss the deck altogether if your judgment is at fault.

Unavoidably this small, rolling, pitching platform imposes some limitations upon the type of aircraft that can be used at sea, but these limitations are more than offset by the advantages derived from what may be called the ubiquity of ship-borne aircraft. A carrier that is one day operating off Narvik in the Arctic Circle may within a week or two be searching the South Atlantic trade routes or raiding the Dodecanese.

The sedate old Swordfish, indeed, with its crew of three—pilot, observer and air-gunner—impudently poking their noses into every corner of the earth where the enemy least wants to see them—this venerable aircraft has become a sort of symbol of the supremacy that is soon to be ours in every sky. Rain, hail, snow—nothing seems to stop it—nothing, that is, short of a direct hit, and not necessarily even then; for some time ago a shell burst sufficiently close to one of them to convert it, in effect, from a biplane to a monoplane.

Apart from minor damage, the instrument panel dissolved into a splintered wreck; a chunk of the joystick disappeared with part of the pilot's seat, and most of the lower main 'plane vanished. But what was left still went on flying, and the pilot, when asked later on how he had kept control—merely said: "Oh, all right. She became a bit sluggish, that's all."

Today the officers and ratings who fly and maintain these naval aircraft belong for the most part to what is known as the 'A' branch—the exceptions being a handful of officers who volunteered for flying duties before the 'A' branch was formed in 1938 when ship-borne aircraft reverted to the Navy.

But whether this new branch is entered from general service within the Navy, or direct from outside, it is essentially part of the Navy. The riggers and fitters are seamen; so are some of the pilots. Most of the pilots, however are officers—and the observers too. So you see, when one of these general-purpose aircraft like the Swordfish takes off, it is a representative body of the Navy that subsequently eats nut chocolate over Narvik or throws its orange peel into the Aegean.

Remember all this when next you hear that Aircraft of the Fleet Air Arm have been raiding this or bombing that. When the Fleet Air Arm strikes, the Royal Navy is at work—just getting on with its part in the job of winning this war.—London Listener.

They Joust With Death Every Day

Daily, the R.A.F. is conducting bombing and fighting operations over the Albanian mountains, under conditions which must be more excruciatingly severe and probably more perpetually dangerous than aerial warfare in any other part of Europe or North Africa today. Even so, the British have carried out more than 40 raids on 11 different Albanian zones during their first month in Greece.

These are men who joust with death every day. Their record is already one of remarkable efficiency in the face of fearful odds. I have seen them near the front and at their bases. Beside their kind of courage, words are mockingly empty things. But when they describe flying and fighting conditions as "bloody awful," they mean something which the rest of us will never simply comprehend.

You can be certain that the entire European war has produced few aerial warriors who can rival the R.A.F. men who are fighting over Albania today. It has produced none who can surpass them.

"We had a 90-mile gale against us all the way," said a squadron leader today. "We went up high, trying to shake the clouds. It was the worst weather over these mountains we have yet struck. Finally, we had to turn back. It was a tough break after this morning's swell show. Maybe some of the others got through. I don't know—"

x x x

You could see the strain of the flight written in his face when he walked in and sank into a chair. He doesn't say very much.

"They'll be coming in any time, now," the intelligence officer says.

We walked out on the field. Some of the ground crew boys are kicking a football around. Mechanics are working on a couple of big 'planes to one side. On the edge of the field, rows of bombs are spread out at regular intervals. That's where the incoming bombers will roll up for reloading.

Then the first 'plane swoops in, but she comes in from the north instead of from the west. That's not a cheerful sign. When she rolls, the tractor with the gasoline tank is on the job, waiting just in front of her nose. The rear gunner is pulling the canvas cover over his projecting gun barrel. The pilot leaps down—"Couldn't get through. Bloody awful. Everything freezing up. One mountain right in front of us. Hell of a job to clear it."

He yanks open his flying coat while he spouts out these few words. Several of his friends crowd around for the news. It only takes a few words to tell the essentials. It's always the first sentences that count. Already a mechanic is up in the cockpit. Already the gasoline hose is screwed on and the pump is going full speed. Everything is done with extraordinary despatch, just as if the Royal Air Force had been functioning here for months, instead of a few weeks.

A second 'plane roars over the field and then another. The sun is getting low over the western hills and the clouds are black and stormy above the mountains. But they're coming in now and they come with throttle open, going like the traditional hinges of perdition—coming in low and hard and then banking fast to slide down easily on the gritty earth.

The third 'plane comes in straight from where it should come, and the pilot lands without loss of a motion, or a moment. His face is sweaty as he pulls his helmet off and jumps down. This time, it's a different story.

"Fighters all around us. I look down and see three blocks right under us. I let the bombs go—right between two of them. Then the fighters were after us. One chased us for miles. We had to dive through the clouds. I pulled out and a mountain was coming right up at us. Stickiest show I ever want to see."—Chicago Daily News.

Graziani Earns Curses of Arabs

By BASIL MATTHEWS

The name of Graziani, Mussolini's Governor-General of the Italian North African colony of Libya, brings curses to the lips of every Arab, whether he is in his tent in the Syrian desert or sipping coffee in the bazaars of Tunis or Algiers.

The Arabs everywhere feel undying hate for the man who, to crush their resistance to his tyranny in Libya, took shieks of noble birth into the air and threw them from aeroplanes to crash to death among their tribal followers, and who beat others to death.

He, too, it was who—forcibly transporting Libyan Arab tribes by the hundred thousand to desert areas, destroyed their flocks and herds—reducing their camels from 75,000 to 2,600, their sheep from 800,000 to 98,000 and their horses from 14,000 to 1,000.

Graziani succeeded as Governor Italo Balbo, whose mysterious death in an air crash cast suspicion on Graziani.

Balbo was a very different type from Graziani, and would have done much more to give Italy a real Empire, based on sound methods of development. Mussolini sent him to Libya in order to put him into the background; for Balbo's exploits in the air had made him the adored hero of the Italian people and a potential rival to the Duce.

Balbo didn't accept his governorship of Libya as exile. He set to work to improve flocks and herds, and he also carried through a great mass-colonization scheme. In 1938 he transported twenty thousand Italian peasants on sixteen steamships from Italy to Libya and settled them all within twenty-four hours in eighteen hundred farm houses—all exactly identical with one another, on farms provided not only with seed and animal stock, but also with water for irrigation from artesian wells sunk fifteen hundred feet beneath the Libyan sand.

Balbo thus began to create, behind the narrow fringe of fertility on the thousand mile coast line of Libya, a new Italy in Africa. His death ended his work, and Graziani began the other sort of Empire-building—the sort that Mussolini prefers—a brutal tyranny.

But Mussolini still values the mass-colonization idea. His first motive for this is to find space for Italy's swiftly growing population. Her increase is at the rate of 400-000 a year. Mussolini, by financial and other inducements, incites the Italian people to have more babies, and at the same time utters curses because there is inadequate room for them on Italian soil.

The Libyan colonization is a step towards the answer, but it is only a small step.

The second driving force behind Mussolini's Imperialism is the Fascist passion for a self-sufficient Italy, or to use the word invented by the Dictators, an "autarchy". The menace of economic sanctions held over the head of Italy during the Abyssinian crisis, wounded Fascist pride. Italy now plans that Libya shall be a farm of the Roman Empire which, with Abyssinia, would theoretically go some way towards making her independent of imports.

The third motive for colonizing Libya is that of strategic security. Obviously if some hundred thousand sturdy and prolific peasants, owning their own farms in Libya and, therefore, keen on defending that territory, are living on the soil of Africa immediately opposite to Sicily and the toe of Italy, Italy's strategic position in the Mediterranean is much stronger.

The fourth driving force in the Italian adventure of colonization in North Africa is tied up with all the others.

It is the motive that appeals so much to the grandiose imagination of Mussolini, who sleeps every night with the famous book "The Mantle of Caesar" by his bedside; it is the motive of prestige, the passionate desire to make the Mediterranean the lake of a new Roman Empire whose frontiers might even go down to the marshes of India.

What the rule of Italy over other races will always be under Fascist rule is officially stated by Ennio Giuro in the Rivista delle Colonie (November, 1931) in an official exposition of "Italian Colonial Expansion." He says:—

"Our attitude towards the natives will be determined exclusively by what we expect of them. Humanitarian prejudices are out of place. We shall preserve native institutions so long as they strengthen our productive power in accord with our colonial intentions. We shall rigorously reform native institutions when detrimental to our prestige or security.

"The purpose of native education is to create an obedient, respectful, disciplined population.... Intellectuals are available in sufficient numbers in Italy."—Montreal Star.

Italians Are Really Men of Peace!

By Howard Vincent O'Brien in the Chicago Daily News

It seems to me that we haven't got the right slant on the Italians.

The Italian army has managed to make of itself an international laughing stock. The Italian, we are told, is no fighting man: and should, therefore, be laughed at.

Here is fine absence of logic. We piously proclaim the virtues of peace; and then wrinkle our noses at a people who, obviously, believe in peace more than we do.

The Italian is definitely not a fighting man: he is, in fact, one of the few really civilized types of genus homo now inhabiting this earth. The very fact that the Italian army is a contemptible army is proof that the Italians, so far from being contemptible, are wholly admirable.

x x x

Now it can be told. I can break the silence of 20 years, and reveal the contents of a document I saw in 1918—a secret and confidential report on the Italian army of that period.

The report started out by explaining that the Alpine war then in progress was a rather extraordinary one—neither side (Austrian nor Italian) ever having defeated anybody.

This impressed me greatly, since the charm and gemuchtlicheit of the Austrians was as notable as the verve and good humor of the Italians.

The report went on to say that the weakness of the Italian army was not in its common soldiers, they being good men and true; but in its officers, who, as a class, were suffering from a monstrous hallucination.

These gentlemen, famous for the chic of their uniforms and their ability to ride horseback, had been given to understand that not only were they the lineal descendants of Julius Caesar, but were the spiritual sucklings of the wolf that had taken care of Romulus and Remus.

So, when the French opened military schools, staffed with instructors in the latest techniques of mass murder, the Italian officers declined to attend. Who were these French, they inquired, that they dared to venture upon the education of Romans?

So, eventually, came Caporetto, with the Italians unable, despite French, British and American aid, to withstand the German-led Austrians: and the next I saw of the Italian army, it was in the back-country of the Marne, divested of rifles and happily at work with pick and shovel, repairing the roads.

x x x

The Italian lives close to the soil, and even when industrialized is content with a simple life of work and play. He likes to sing, to dance, to argue and to produce the world's finest cooking. He likes music and painting and wine of delicate flavor. He does not like politics. And especially, he doesn't like the sort of politics that requires warfare.

All through his history he has been the victim of Caesars, big and small, who managed for varying periods of time to whip him into a frenzy of martial and imperialistic ardor. Always, however, he has returned to normalcy—that is, to the high degree of civilization that has for so long been the mark of that small fragment of the earth's surface known as Italy.

Few Italians, I believe, wanted Abyssinia or Libya or Greece—except as places in which they might work. Few Italians ever had any taste for conquest, and the few that did have lost it now. The Italian has been the world's greatest bricklayer: he has never been one for tearing things down.

Nobody, I am sure, will be happier than he when this present madness of destruction has passed from us.

GERMAN TROOPS NOW AT TARANTO AND TURIN, ITALY

May Attempt to Run British Blockade of Africa and Aid Italians in Libya

ABOUT 50,000

New York, Dec. 19 (AP)—The Columbia Broadcasting System last night reported receipt of a wireless message from Belgrade, Yugoslavia, which said that authoritative sources "stated German forces are now concentrated in Taranto, Italy, and that a certain number are in Turin."

"No precise figures are available," the message said. "According to eyewitness reports reaching the same sources here, German troops were sighted early this week passing outward through the Brenner Pass and others were seen aboard ship in the harbor of Trieste. These reports estimate the Trieste concentration at one division." (about 15,000 men).

CBS said that despite Italian government denials of infiltration of German troops into Italy, its correspondent's story of Tuesday from Belgrade was further confirmed by last night's message.

(If German soldiers actually are in Italy in force, it could mean that they are intending to help the Italians in Albania or will attempt to run the British blockade of Africa and aid the Italian forces in Libya.)

Eighty policemen have been killed in the London area and 440 injured since intensified air raids began.

RETURN TO GUNS WITH NEW VOWS

London Soldiers Back From Leave Have Bitter Incentive to Fight Huns

London, Dec. 19 (CP).—Members of a new anti-aircraft battery training somewhere in southwest England are working with resolve, borne not only of desire to bring down enemy planes but also to avenge the bombing of London homes.

The men came from London, most of them from bomb-wrecked homes. Some lost their wives and children in the air raids.

"They came here as a new intake with only one aim, to pay Jerry back a thousandfold," the commandant said. "They don't discuss their sorrows. These are Britishers who say little but can take it.

"They find the authorities are very understanding when a question of visiting a wounded wife or daughter arises. Compassionate leave is readily granted and the men are grateful. They return with even more determination to rid the world of these thugs and murderers."

Britain May Possibly Build a Shipyard At Portland, Me.

Portland, Me., Dec. 19 (AP)—The Press Herald says that a shipyard to be financed by Great Britain will be built at South Portland soon "if the (United States) Treasury will assure shipbuilders in this country that they will not be left 'holding the bag' if Britain falls."

Portland shipping interests, whom the paper does not identify, are reported as saying a huge drydock, in which as many as three merchant ships could be constructed, and as many as five launching ways would be built on the site of a former yard near Fort Preble on the South Portland side of Portland harbor.

The new yard, the paper says, would employ about 4,000 workers paying them approximately $6,000,000 annually.

CHRISTMAS INVITATION

By KATHERINE EDELMAN

Jack Treslar hunched his broad shoulders deeper into the big chair, turning a new page of his book. He was reading a Christmas story, trying hard to become absorbed in the tale.

A sharp ring from the telephone brought him to his feet. Who could be calling him on Christmas eve?

A strange voice responded to his "hello". "I hate to bother you on Christmas eve, Mr. Treslar. But I'm ringing up to ask if it would be possible for you to come and spend Christmas with me. My name is Bevan Willers. I live out at Richmond. I have a big home, and—"

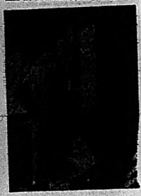
"But—but I don't even know you, Mr. Willers. There must be some mistake."

"I want you!" the low voice was emphatic. "Will you come or not?"

Jack repressed a quick exclamation. "I—I had thought of spending Christmas—" he began.

"Wouldn't it be possible to change your plans? I have a feeling they could be side-tracked easily."

Jack thought of the lonely Christmas he had been anticipating. After all, there might be something to this unusual invitation.



He ascended the steps leading to the massive door.

"You are right about my plans," he admitted. "They are rather in the air. But—but going to spend Christmas with an utter stranger took me back for a moment."

"That's why I thought you might come." There was a note of disappointment in Bevan Willers' voice. "I probably got the wrong man, however."

Jack thought again of the lonely Christmas before him. And before he could debate the question, he heard a voice inside him answering, calling through the wire to Richmond, "You got the right man, Mr. Willers. I'm coming."

An hour later, bathed and dressed, Jack Treslar was speeding along the frosted highway to Richmond. Following the detailed instructions that had been given him, Jack found the long winding drive leading from the roadway. What a secluded, ghostly place, he thought, as he drove under the snow-sprinkled trees.

Bevan Willers was waiting. In the dim light from the chandelier, his tall bent figure seemed grotesque. "I have let the servants away for the evening," he said, his bony hand motioning toward the end of the shadowed hall.

Jack Treslar felt a twinge of fear as he followed. Here he was—alone in the house with this strange old man. Anything could happen. There wasn't another residence within blocks. Then, his adventurous spirit reasserted itself ,and he looked smilingly across the table at Bevan Willers. "Well, what's it all about?"

A dead silence was the only answer. Gray eyes under heavy bristling brows stared at him intently Jack stared back unflinchingly.

Then a hearty laugh rang through the library. With amazement Jack saw the old man straighten up in his chair. Years seemed to fall off his shoulders. The twisted, grotesque appearance vanished as if by magic. He spoke quietly.

"I'm not crazy," he began; "I'm just a lonely old fellow, ticketed as a sort of recluse. The true facts are that I've been trying for years to write. Yesterday I got word that a story of mine had been accepted."

"But I still don't understand your strange invitation, and—" Jack interrupted.

"I'm coming to that," Bevan Willers continued. "The hero of my book is a daring, adventurous fellow. A man willing to answer a strange call that came in the night. I got intrigued with the fellow, and began thinking. Wondering if there was any young fellow who would act as he had done. So I rang the first hotel that came to mind and described my hero. Young, unmarried, interesting sort of chap. Pretended his name had slipped my mind for the moment. They connected me with your room. You know the rest."

Jack stretched out his long arm across the desk, and gripped the old man's hand. "Now that I'm here, Mr. Willers, do you still believe you have got the right man." There was wistful entreaty in his dark eyes.

"I don't just think—I'm absolutely positive."

Stock the Holiday Pantry

By ALICE DENHOFF

Holiday hospitality is an elastic affair, since it must cope with snacks as well as with elaborate set meals. And so it is nice to have at hand a comprehensive repertoire of snacks to take care of unexpected guests. Keep the emergency shelf well stocked and the chances are that you'll be able to serve a brilliant snack in no time. Cans of salmon and sardines we find especially useful as an ingredient. For instance, a small can of salmon makes a popular appetizer. Flake ½-can salmon. Mix with tablespoon lemon juice, two tablespoons chili sauce and a tablespoon chopped pickle. Carefully halve six hard-boiled eggs. Remove yolks and fill whites with salmon mixture. Blend yolks with a tablespoon of mayonnaise. With a pastry tube or fork use this mixture to decorate filled eggs. Serve on toasted and buttered bread rounds, garnished with parsley and radish roses. A hot lobster canape is quickly prepared and is delicious. Brown tablespoon minced onion in four tablespoons butter. Blend in tablespoon flour, three tablespoons chopped parsley and ½ teaspoon curry powder. Add gradually one cup of cream or evaporated milk and cook until smooth and thickened. Stir in two cups canned lobsted that has been threaded, and heat through. Serve immediately on toast rounds garnished with parsley.

Sardine Recipe.

Use sardines for some snappy appetizers. Spread hot toasted slices of rye bread with butter and prepared mustard. Top with a slice of Swiss cheese or snappy Canadian cheese. Arrange smoked sardines on the cheese. Season with sprinkling of vinegar and pepper. Grill until cheese begins to melt and sardines show little crackly curls of skin.

Here's one that the menfolks approve. Split long hard-crusted rolls. Toast and spread with prepared mustard. Between the toasted halves arrange sardines and thin slices of dill pickle.

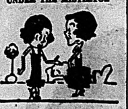
Another favorite is made with canned corned beef hash. Open both ends of No. 2 can corned beef hash and cut contents into five or six slices and brown in butter. Serve on split, toasted round buns with prepared mustard or chili sauce and a slice of tomato.

Florida Honey-Bee Muffins.

Piping hot coffee with some delectable muffins is a snack that always seems to fill the bill. Florida Honey-Bee Muffins are simply swell. Sift ½-cup sifted flour once, measure, add two tablespoons sugar, ½-teaspoon salt, 1¾ teaspoons baking powder, and sift again. Add ½-cup whole wheat flour and mix thoroughly. Combine one well-beaten egg and ¼-cup orange juice and teaspoon grated rind, 1-3 cup honey and three tablespoons melted shortening. Add all at once to flour, stirring only enough to dampen all flour. Bake in well-greased two-inch muffin pans in 400 deg. F. oven fifteen to twenty minutes or until browned. Carefully remove muffins from pans, as they have a tendency to stick. Makes about twelve muffins.

For a delightful beverage combine chocolate and coffee. Melt one square chocolate in double boiler, stir in three or four tablespoons sugar and ⅛ teaspoon salt; add one cup milk gradually and cook for five minutes. Add three cups hot freshly-made coffee (using one heaping tablespoon coffee to each measuring cup of water) and beat with rotary egg beater until frothy. Serve with whipped cream, if desired. Serves four.

UNDER THE MISTLETOE



Marion—Jack is getting nearsighted.

Myrtle — It doesn't follow that there is anything the matter with his eyes because he can't see you under the mistletoe.

Make Christmas Burden, Be Unhappy Rest of Year

It is so customary nowadays to hear disparagement of Christmas as a season of vanity, selfish diplay, greed and covetousness that we like to point out the other side. Some of our cynics declare that Christmas gifts are themselves dictated by self interest—that they are meanly offered in the hope of a return—with interest—or are an exhibition of vanity. And yet, who would dare to say this of a mother, who deprives herself to give happiness to her children, or of the girl who willingly foregoes some little vanity for the pleasure of her parents? People who make Christmas a burden and a tax show the same attitude throughout the year — their own false standards of living are to blame, and not this holy festival.—Rural New-Yorker.

SHEPHERDS AND WISE MEN

It is not clear from the Scriptural allusions that the shepherds who visited the new-born Jesus were the same as the wise men who saw his star in the East. Only Matthew records the story of the magi, and only Luke mentions the shepherds. Mark and John do not refer to either the shepherds or the wise men.

A CHRISTMAS SNOWSTORM

By SARAH JANE CLARK

Three hours late, the snow-bound train reached Chicago. Mary Lou gathered her baggage together and took the bus across to the other station, to find her connecting train had left on schedule. The folks would drive in to town to meet the train unless she could head them off.

Her message put through, Mary Lou sank down on one of the benches to collect her thoughts and make her plans until train time. Five o'clock, and no train until 9:30 the next morning.

"Going out soon?" a cheery voice near her asked. She looked up to find the chief usher standing beside her. A middle-aged, griendly looking fellow. Mary Lou told him of her missed connections.

"Here, Eddie, look at this!" a red cap interrupted her story. He was leading a three-year-old child, a dear little girl with big blue eyes and yellow curls.

"What are you doing with the kid? Is she lost?" Eddie asked sharply, turning away from Mary Lou.

"Might as well be. She came in from Denver, in charge of the stewardess. They missed the train north, and the stewardess is celebrating Christmas by having her appendix out, emergency case. They told me to turn the kid over to you," the boy grinned as he handed her over to the chief usher.

Eddie took her clumsily. "See here, what can a bachelor like me do with a kid like this?" He looked appealingly at Mary Lou.

Mary Lou's eyes filled with tears. Then she held out her arms toward the youngster. "What is your name, dear?" she asked.

"Annette Pollard. I am three years old and I am going from Cheyenne to Rio, Wisconsin, to my grandma Pollard. My daddy is there." It was a lesson she had been taught.

Mary Lou held her close. I had a little girl almost as old as Annette when she died," she said brokenly to Eddie. "Let me keep the child tonight, and take her to her home. I missed the same train she did."

Mary Lou heard the voice of Annette's father.

Eddie studied her face. What he saw satisfied him. Still he hesitated for a moment. "That sounds good to me. But I'd better get the conductor to authorize it."

It was soon decided that Mary Lou should keep her. But she must not leave the station. "It won't be very comfortable for you, ma'am, but the kid can curl up on a bench here and be dead to the world in no time. There are some rocking chairs in the far room there. Why, of course there are some cots there, and baby beds."

"We ought to telephone the child's relatives," Mary Lou suggested.

"Of course we should. Here is the address and telephone number. You do it for me, will you, please, ma'am. I've got my last minute shopping to do. I'm mighty glad you came in on this train. Eddie'll take the kid while you telephone to Rio," and the conductor was off, after turning over the child's money to Mary Lou. But not until Mary Lou had made him promise to send a big doll back for the child's Christmas.

"We'll let Annette say hello to her daddy herself, if she wants to," Mary Lou exclaimed. And so it was done. Mary Lou heard the voice of Annette's father, tense with concern, and then joyful as he realized where his baby was and heard the childish treble over the phone. Her mother's parents sent her back here to have Christmas with me. Her mother died two years ago," he added.

The sun was shining dazzlingly bright the next morning when the train stopped at Rio. The red-haired man who was waiting expectantly on the platform had only time to thank Mary Lou, and get her address, before the train pulled out leaving him holding Annette as she waved a good-bye to Mary Lou.

But the trip home was much easier. Mary Lou forgot the burning pain at the loss of her own little daughter, the aching loneliness since her own husband's death, as she remembered the soft kiss of the baby lips of the motherless child who had been in her charge the night before. And the look in the face of Annette's daddy made her sure she would see Annette soon.

OUTDOOR CHRISTMAS TREE

Outdoor Christmas trees are not new. When in Alsace the folk there will tell you of St. Florentine, who centuries ago went into the woods at Christmas time and placed lights, probably candles, on the trees.

IN BETHLEHEM ON CHRISTMAS

Due to modern transportation one can leave America as late as the middle of December and be in Bethlehem in Palestine for Christmas, 6,000 miles away.

The Rhine and other streams are filling Lake Konstanz (area 240 sq. miles) with stone and sediment at the rate of 4,000,000 cu. ft. a year.

Three Celebrations

Three Christmases are celebrated every year in the Church of the Nativity at Bethlehem. The first occurs in the Roman Catholic section on December 25; thirteen days later the Greek Orthodox church hold their celebrations, to be followed by those of the Armenian church in another thirteen days.

Peacock Dinner English Custom Many Years Ago

Fashions in Christmas dinners come and go. In olden days at a Christmas feast in England, next in importance to the boar's head as a Christmas dish was the peacock. To prepare the bird for the table was a task entailing no little trouble. The skin was first carefully stripped off with the plumage adhering. The bird was then roasted; when done, and partially cooled it was sewed up again in its feathers, its beak painted with gilt and so sent to the table. Sometimes the whole body was covered with leaf gold and a piece of cotton saturated with spirits placed in its beak and lighted before the carver commenced operations. This "food for lovers and meat for lords" was stuffed with spices and sweets, basted with yolks of eggs and served with plenty of gravy.

The noble bird was not served by common hands; that privilege was reserved for the lady guests most distinguished by birth or beauty. One of them carried it into the dining hall to the sound of music, the rest of the ladies following in due order. The dish was set down before the master of the house or his most honored guests. The latest instance of peacock eating recorded was at a dinner given to William IV, when duke of Clarence by the governor of Grenada.

Industrial Manchester produced more than 400 tons of potatoes last year—on park land.

Saxon Words "Waes Hael", Meaning "Be in Health"

Christmas fare has always occupied a big part in Yuletide celebration. Our Anglo-Saxon forefathers were excellent trencher-men, and eating and drinking were a necessary part of every gala day. Stuffed boars' heads, peacocks, geese, capons, pheasants, mince pie, plum pudding—these decked the board. The turkey was unknown. That excellent fowl did not enter into the bill of fare until the discovery of the new world. Of course, there was drink aplenty. Punch was the customary wassail bowl. This bowl takes its name from the Saxon words "waes hael", meaning "be in health". It was a great bowl of punch into which baked apples were thrown to enhance its flavor. Mince pie originated in 1596. It first was made from mutton. The Puritans condemned it as an ungodly dish, and the Quakers would have none of it.

Some British war graves in France have been obliterated in war activities and others damaged.

MERRY CHRISTMAS!

By HELEN MORTON

It was enough to make one hate Christmas! Betsy was so tired that she could hardly stand. This counter in the middle of the aisle had become a nightmare to her. The crowds hurrying by, pulling the neck ties off as their coats brushed against them, fingering them over and then tossing them back on the table carelessly.

Still, it was good to have a job, even a temporary one. For she had been without work for a long enough time so that she had "eaten" and all her possessions she could borrow money on.

No time to be standing here thinking, though. That fat woman looked as if she was going to buy several ties. "These are very nice, madam. And so reasonable; 35 cents apiece, or three for $1.00. This is an exceptionally pretty one," and Betty showed her a navy blue. But the fat woman dropped the ties and hastened away with her friend, leaving a pile of ties on the floor.

Wearily Betsy leaned over and began picking them up. "Let me help?" a friendly voice asked. Betsy looked up into a handsome face, curly brown hair, deep blue eyes, and a mouth that curved into a smile at the surprise in Betsy's eyes.

"I want to get some ties for my family. I've been up here the past few weeks, and so I don't know what the kids want, but I think I'll be safe to give 'em ties. Socks are so commonplace."

"Your brothers?" Betsy asked as she held up one or two she liked particularly.

"Yeah. Three brothers and a sister. She's about your age, I reckon. What does a girl like, anyway, when you've only a little to spend?" He looked imploringly.

"Let's get the brothers fixed up first, and then see about her. How's this for the 17-year-old?" Betsy inquired.

"Fine. You know, I'm tickled pink to be able to do anything for the family. I struck a bad spell, was down with flu for three weeks, and lost my job. I just got another last week. But I'd have hated to have the day go by with nothing from the big boy." His face was shining.

"I'll have them wrapped as gifts. Then you go over to the counter there and select something for your sister. Here, I'll take you over and get a girl from my home town to wait on you. She'll help," and Betsy went along with him.

"You're not a city girl, then? No wonder you were so helpful. I'm scared of these sophisticated girls in most of the shops. That's because I've been here only a few months, and in my home town every one knew every one and it was, well, it was different. Say, you don't think I'm getting fresh, do you? I'm just so homesick." His face was red with embarrassment.

"I want to get some ties for my family."

It was Betsy's turn to look troubled. "Sure, I know how it was. I don't chatter away with every customer this way, either. I'm like you new here, and lonesome for my own people. I was hating Christmas time, with so much confusion and no real Christmas spirit. So I'm glad you told me about your family."

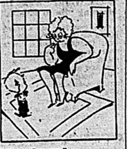
She turned him over to Marie at the women's wear counter, and went on with her tie selling. They seemed prettier, fresher and more attractive, than they had before the curly-headed fellow had come along to buy some.

Only a half hour off for supper, then she'd have to work until the store closed at nine. Christmas eve meant lots of last minute gifts to be bought in this big city. As she turned away from her counter to go out to eat, a friendly voice sounded at her shoulder.

"If you're going to snatch a sandwich, do you mind if I go along and we learn something more about each other? Your friend told me you'd have just a little while for lunch, and I want to get acquainted if you'll let me." It wasn't just a 'pick up". This was a homesick boy, wanting to talk with a small-town girl who knew his language.

There was just a moment's hesitation before Betsy said, with a grin, "Sure enough. Lead me to the lunch counter. You're no more lonely than I've been. As it is, I really feel like I can say 'Merry Christmas' when tomorrow comes."

A BIG STOCKING



Bobby—"Say, ma."
Mother—"What is it, my dear?"
Bobby—"It's good the foot of a mountain don't have a stocking to hang up at Christmas time."

Wreaths, Garlands Gay Shout "Merry Christmas!"

What a joy it is to come into a home scented with spicy pine and hemlock, so suggestive of Yuletide that each room fairly shout "Merry Christmas"! And what a real pleasure, too, to gather the greens and dispose them so that they express all the kindliness of the blessed season, intensifying the delights of the "friendliest" period of the year!

As garlands, the various types of greens may decorate windows and doors, or they may be massed on mantels or tables.

To make a flexible rope of greenery, supply a foundation of heavy twine and to this attach the short sprays of pine, hemlock or spruce, interspersed regularly with clusters of laurel; or for a more decorative effect use the artificial berries with the greens. Fine flexible wire is best for fastening the sprays in place.

Another use for greens is in the formation of window wreaths. Arrange the small sprays on a heavy wire foundation, taking care to keep the wreath symmetrical. Small groups of red berries, regularly placed, give character to such a decoration.

"A Merry Christmas," as Other Nations Say It

This is how the nations of the world express the wish "A Merry Christmas": France, Bon Noel; China, Tin Hao Nian; Portugal, Boas Festas; Japan, Kinga Shinnen; Turkey, Ichok Yllara; Hungary, Boldog Karacsonyi Unnipeket; Greece, Chrystovjena; Croatia, Sretan Bozic; Holland, Een Vroolijk Kerstmis; Spain, Felices Pascuas; Germany, Froehliche Weihnachtan; Sweden, Glad Julen; Italy, Felice Natale; Rumania, Craclum Felicitatiune; Bohemia, Vesele Vanoce; Poland, Wesolych Swiat; Denmark, Glaedelig Jul.

More than 70,000 Belgian workers have accepted obs in German factories.

The Christmas Carolers Are Welcome Everywhere

Here come the carolers.

So it used to be. Young faces pressed against the windowpane straining to hear the cheerful carols outside. Perhaps it was the story of the Christ child put to tune or a ballad of love and cheer. When the singers were done the householder invited them in for a bite and a sup or gave them a coin or two for their song.

Then on to the next house, to sing again under the stars or veiled behind sifted snow.

And then, in the early morning, home again to their own firesides.

It was a good old custom, this midnight minstrelsy in the season of peace and goodwill. "With the beginning of Yuletide twelve days before Christmas day, as Percival Chubb tells us in the Standard published in New York by the American Ethical Union 'small bands of musicians went the rounds and in the mire or on the road or on the steps, played the old folk tunes as a lyrical prelude to the great day. To some of the antique ballad airs, like "Good King Wenceslaus", says Mr. Chubb, the singers would add a hymn tune or two — "Once in David's Royal City" or "Hark, the Herald Angels Sing". "Punctuating the bustle of domestic preparation for the coming feast these ministrations in the still night gave a breath of poetry that touched the spirit of Christmas with an endearing beauty. Day by day the tide of joyous anticipation rose until the crescendo broke into a forte of exuberance."

Those simple days of the folk are gone, says Mr. Chubb; the glory is departed.

But the custom of making the rounds on Christmas eve to sing carols of peace and good will on earth still prevails here and there.—Literary Digest.

THE FIRST SANTA CLAUS

The first Santa Claus was St. Nicholas, Bishop of Myra, who started mysterious midnight gift-bearing journeys. In the fourth century he was famous because he was a rich man who enjoyed giving secret gifts to the poor. One of his tricks was to throw purses of gold into cottage windows and run away.

Gather Up Your Paste and Sheers and Heighten the Christmas Spirit

By DOROTHY ROE

"I cannot tell a lie. I did it with my little scissors."

That can be your answer this Christmas when your guests exclaim with delight over your novel and colorful holiday decorations and demand, "My dear, where DID you find them?"

You'll find, too, that it's lots more fun to concoct crepe paper choir boys and flippant Santas with your own hands than it is to buy ready-made decorations.

All you need to run up the most elaborate mantel trims, centrepieces and such is a goodly supply of crepe paper in assorted colors, plenty of paste, your trusty scissors, some picture wire and perhaps a box of water color paints.

With these as a starter, you may reproduce Santa Claus and his reindeer in miniature, you may evolve new and delightful gadgets and execute a Christmas table setting that will be the last word.

Here's how to make an effective mantel trim.

For Santa's head use a rubber ball about four inches in diameter, an dwrap it with a strip of peach colored crepe paper. Cut the paper one inch wide, across the grain, and stretch it as you wrap, pasting the ends in place. Then cut features out of plain white writing paper and cover with red and black crepe paper. Tint the cheeks with rouge or water color.

For the body use a larger ball, about seven inches in diameter, and wrap with a strip of red crepe paper. Pad the top of the ball, for the neck, and paste the head on top. Next wind and paste a strip of the red crepe paper around the neck to hold head and body together. Trim front and neck of body ball with white crepe paper which has been frilled and then crushed to represent fur.

Santa's hair and beard are made by slashing white crepe paper, cut across the grain, and curling the fringed ends over a knitting needle. The fringed strips of paper are pasted in rows around Santa's head, with the same technique used on the beard. The mustache is cut out of a doubled crepe paper.

The arms are made from two tubes of red crepe paper stuffed with cotton, while mitten hands are cut out of light weight cardboard and covered with peach colored crepe paper. Santa's hat is made of a tube of red crepe paper gathered together at one end and tied with wire, and trimmed with a white ball of crepe paper and a band of crepe paper fur. His bag is made of green crepe paper, stuffed at the bottom with cotton and filled with small toys.

Make the chimney from a box, covered with red brick design crepe paper, and finish top edge with crushed white paper.

Cut the sides of the sleigh out of cardboard, and cut a strip of the same for the bottom, fastening together with gummed paper tape and covering with red crepe paper. Decorate sides with gold Christmas seals.

The reindeer are of celluloid and may be bought at any ten-cent store.

About Old Santa Claus, Children's Patron Saint

The dictionary merely tells you that Santa Claus is a contradiction of Saint Nicholas (see Nicholas, Saint). A turning of the pages reveals that Nicholas was bishop of Myra or Smyrna in Asia Minor about 300 A.D. He was the patron saint of old Russia and was believed to offer special protection and comfort to "sea-faring men, thieves, virgins and children". His affection for children was based on the assertion that he brought back to life three schoolboys who had been murdered. An encyclopaedia attributes the name by which he is known in America to early Dutch settlers who called him San Nicolaas.

But it little matters whether he be known as Saint Nicholas, Santa Claus, Kris Kringle, or a dozen other names, for the presence of his spirit on this climax holiday of the year is the important thing. It enters every home in the four corners of Christendom and touches the hearts of all the men and women in them. Moreover, it is essentially the spirit of childhood, the freshness, the courage and the eagerness of young lives. Saint Nicholas may seem old but he has none of the fears ,regrets or prejudices of age. He and his children stand on the threshold of the world. Their banner is good will and their goal is peace.

So this day, dedicated to the memory of the birth of a child, belongs to all children. It is their carols, their laughter, their happiness which makes it sweet.

BRITAIN NEEDS OLD SHIPWRIGHT

Aged 80 Years and Retired, He Returns to Work on Broken Vessels

London, Dec. 19 (CP). — Fred Grant retired from the shipyards fifteen years ago but he's back again at his old job of repairing vessels despite his 80 years.

Old age sent him into retirement after 50 years in the yards and until a short time ago he was content to tend his flowers in the garden of his Welsh home. One night he read of a call for more skilled shipyard workers. "I'm going back," he told his daughter. "There's a job of work to do."

So he rises every morning at 5.30, catches the 7 a.m. train from his village station and at 7.30 is hard at work adding to the clang of the boiler makers' hammers.

"I couldn't be idle while the lads are fighting," he said. "I'm hale and hearty, good for another ten years, so I made up my mind to help beat the German submarines."

Italian First To Subscribe For Greek Relief

Montreal, Dec. 19.—An Italian was among the first to subscribe last Monday as the Greek War Relief Fund opened its national campaign to raise $500,000 to aid civilians bombed by Italians in open Greek towns and villages.

With a cheque for $15 came a letter to national headquarters of the Fund here, saying: "I sympathize with your community as to the barbarism in Greece." But, said the Italian, he had been in Italy last year and he knew for sure that many of the people there were sick of Fascist rule and would welcome revolt "if they could find a group of strong leaders".

This is but one of the many heart warming evidences of Canadian residents of all nationalities to go to the rescue of the men, women and children in distress after Italian terror raids.

It was five below zero in Montreal. Into the national offices walked a man, turned over a cheque for $50. "I had saved that for an overcoat," he said, "but the Greeks need help more than I need a new coat. This will do for now."

Another old man, with an English accent, handed a bunch of bills to one of the clerks saying: "This is all I have." It was $6. He walked out, refusing to give his name.

But the prize example of self-sacrifice on a higher scale is that of a Canadian of Greek descent with a small lunch room in Montreal's east end—and that isn't the fashionable end.

Canvassers called on this man, Evangelos Papadopoulos; and expected five or ten dollars. Instead, they got $400! "I'd give more," said Evangelos. "I have $550 in the bank but I promised $150 to the Canadian Red Cross Society and so I can only give $400 now to the War Relief Fund. Come back later on. I'm going to give a thousand before I'm through!"

A constant stream of cheques for $10, $15 and $25 is reaching the national treasurer, sent by women following bridges, home teas, and other intimate reunions.

Printed Christmas Card Was Issued Back in '43

There is more humanity about the Victoria and Albert museum than its stiff brick exterior suggests.

The director has sent me a Christmas Picture Book, says a writer in the London Star. It reveals the fact the first Christmas card ever printed was issued only as recently as 1843.

The card, which was printed for Sir Henry Cole, first director of the South Kensington Museum is reproduced, along with many other efforts by artists to celebrate the nativity. They range from a walrus ivory relief from Cologne to a modern woodcut by Eric Gill. It is strange to see how the artistic wheel has turned full circle back to the mediaeval austerity.

Madoc Junction

Madoc Junction, Dec. 19.—A special service was held at Eggleton United Church last Sunday evening. Meeting opened with a quarter hour song service after which Mr. Stewart gave an inspiring address on "The Prodigal Son". A choir of young voices led the singing and Mr. Ralph Stapley in excellent voice sang "Abide With Me".

Mr. K. Stewart and his mother were tea hour guests of Mr. and Mrs. Warren Harlow on Sunday evening.

On Thursday, Dec. 12, members of Eggleton W.M.S. and W.A., also a number of visitors enjoyed a delicious dinner at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Raymond Chambers. Proceeds were $7.80. During the afternoon the regular December meeting was held. This opened with a hymn. Several reports were given by secretaries and treasurers. The nominating committee presented the slate of officers for 1941 as follows: W.M.S.—President, Mrs. R. Chambers; first vice-president, Mrs. Geo. Eggleton; second vice-president, Mrs. W. Harlow; treasurer, Mrs. O. Stapley; rec. secretary, Mrs. C. Fitchett; pianist, Mrs. K. Stapley; assistant, Mrs. B. Stapley; literary sec., Mrs. Russell Stapley; supply sec., Mrs. Harry Clarke; Christian stewardship and finance sec., Mrs. C. Bridges; Mission Band supt., Mrs. R. Woodward; assistant, Mrs. R. Stapley; Baby Band leader, Mrs. Roy Wilson. W.A.—President, Mrs. K. Stapley; vice-president, Miss M. McMullen; sec.-treasurer, Mrs. W. Harlow; flower fund treasurer, Mrs. S. Danford; parsonage com., Mrs. B. Stapley and Mrs. B. Reid; auditors, Mrs. Chambers and Mrs. Fitchett. After a hymn and prayer by Mrs. Woodward, Scripture lesson chapter was read by Mrs. K. Stapley. Mrs. Harlow gave a paper. Two short readings were given by Mrs. O. Stapley and Mrs. M. Reid. Mrs. Chambers sang very sweetly. A splendid paper was given by Mrs. C. Lansing. Another hymn was sung and meeting closed with prayer by Mrs. K. Stapley.

The December meeting of Eggleton Mission Band was held on Friday, Dec. 13 at the home of Mr. and Mrs. R. Woodward. The meeting opened with the theme song and a hymn. Mrs. Woodward read the Scripture lesson. Readings were given by Jack Clarke, Marcella Stapley, Rosella Fitchett, Vera Stapley and John Walton. Collection amounted to 47 cents. Election of officers for 1941 follows: President, Marcell Stapley; vice-president, Mary Chambers; secretary, Hugh McMullen; treasurer, Rosella Fitchett; pianist, Vera Stapley; Watch Tower, Laura Wannamaker. Chas. Bridges and Jack Clarke are to prepare the next program. A little song by Glen Clarke was followed by the closing hymn and Mizpah benediction. The hostess served a dainty lunch.

Friends will be pleased to know that Mrs. Nelson Stapley was able to return home on Wednesday after being a patient at Belleville Hospital for over two weeks.

Queensboro

Queensboro, Dec. 19. — Hazzard's W.M.S. met in the church on Thursday afternoon for the December meeting. The theme for the meeting was "The world church pays homage to Christ" and was a very appropriate theme for the Christmas season which the president, Mrs. Philo Harris brought out in the worship period with the singing of carols and Bible reading of the Christ child. Miss Jennie Burris sang as a solo "There will always be a rainbow". Mrs. Blair took charge of the program and called the members for Christmas messages in which several responded. The president took charge of the business after which she called on Rev. Mr. Snelgrove to conduct the election of officers for the ensuing year which resulted as follows: President, Mrs. Philo Harris; vice-president, Mrs. R. N. Broad; treasurer, Mrs. Mark Howard; community friendship secretary, Mrs. George Harris; Missionary Monthly secretary, Mrs. Foster Gunsolus; temperance secretary, Mrs. W. A. Blair; associate helpers' secretary, Mrs. Harry Love; organist, Miss Alma Keene; press secretary, Miss F. Keene; Baby Band secretary Mrs. Geo. Moorcroft; leader of C. G. I. T., Miss Alma Moorcroft.

Mrs. Allan Love and children and Mrs. Calvin Tanner and children spent Wednesday in Belleville.

Mrs. Geo. Bacon of Edmonton is visiting relatives in Madoc Township.

Miss Josephine Barry, Madoc, spent Sunday at her home.

Mr. George Reid, Belleville, was in the village on Tuesday.

Mr. and Mrs. Robert Sager and family spent Wednesday in Belleville.

Mr. Allan Love, Belleville, spent Sunday at his home.

A large number from here were in Madoc on Saturday attending the children's Christmas tree held there in the afternoon.

Messrs. John A. and James Moore spent Saturday in Belleville.

Mr. Fermah Bosely who has been in Belleville General Hospital for some weeks is improving.

Quest is being made for Australia's best war-time smile, symbolic of a cheery outlook during a time of stress, the object being to raise patriotic funds.

ORGANIZED CRIME SHOWS REDUCTION IN LONDON AREAS

Even Looting Cases Not Alarming, Police Report, but There's Lots of Things to Hold Their Attention

By D. E. BURRITT
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

London, Dec. 19 (CP).—German bombing of London has provided Scotland Yard with invaluable aid. It has reduced organized crime to its lowest point since the war began.

From all sections of the metropolitan area—all that part of London which lies within a radius of fifteen miles of Charing Cross—come reports that serious crime—except looting—has all but vanished.

At the same time, the air raids have opened a wider but less serious avenue of crime. They have provided unlimited opportunities for looting, a crime for which the penalty of death may be imposed.

Usually, the reports of looting cover the picking up of goods tossed into the street or left in homes or shops temporarily abandoned because of bomb damage. Sometimes, it's the "local" pub that reports supplies removed through broken windows or doors. Often the gas meters, filled with shillings, have been pilfered in the darkness after bombs have shattered homes. Often it is the cash register or the toll box of public telephones.

Numerous homes have been "sacked" while families have found safer quarters and while these looters are operating on a large scale, police report that considering the wide field in which thieves have to operate, the number of cases is "not alarming".

Maintaining the law, however, is not the only task of a police officer in wartime. All through the nights when most people are in shelters, the constables patrol the lonely streets, abandoned by all traffic.

Incendiaries, rescue work and any other tasks that might arise without warning from aerial warfare, help the officers pass their hours. Even unexploded bombs have brought policemen on the run, to rope off the danger area and maintain a watch until regular military bomb squads arrive.

When nights are blackest and not a thing is to be seen, a policeman's voice always can be heard if lights suddenly appear anywhere. No matter how heavy the bombardment, constables always are on patrol and casualty lists which show many constbales have been killed or wounded, indicate how policemen are playing their part in the war.

Little Benny's Note Book

We were eating breakfist and I said, Hay pop, hay ma, do you think I need a hair cut? Shall I go and get it cut today? I said.

There comes a time in the life of every man when he cant believe his own ears, pop said. Hitherto the chief concern of your short but hectic existence has been to dodge and squerm like a mountain trout on a hook at the mention of the word barber, he said, and ma said, My lands yes he always has a fit at the faintest indication of the mere thought of the subject.

Maybe he's developing a dubble personality, I believe the sykoanalysts call it frizzogenia or something of the sort, pop said. I hope we wont have to take him to an expensive mind reader, he said, and ma said, Perhaps he just has a touch of passing fever.

And she reached over and put her hand on my forehead pretending she was feeling my pulse, and I said, Aw G, good night, cant I just think about getting my hair cut without a buntch of fuss?

I declare it hasn't been 5 days since he last had his hair reluctantly cut, that's what adds fuel to the mystery, ma said, and pop said, Can it be that he's in love? A slite irresponsible dizziness often attends that phenimenon, he said.

Aw G, pop, holey smokes, ma, they're starting something new over at the barber shop and it begins today, I said. They're going to give a chocklit nut bar with every hair cut every day except Sattiday because Sattiday is their busy day, and if I dont get my hair cut soon they might stop the idea and it'll be too late, I said, and pop said, Yee gods what a relief, I can breethe again, and ma said, I still feel a little faint, but I'll be all right in a moment.

Not saying how soon they would leave me get my hair cut.

Laverty gave an interesting talk on his personal observations when he was a student on a mission field in Manitoba. At the close of the program Mrs. Roy Bush, president of the group and her efficient staff of helpers arranged a dainty lunch on plates and these were passed to the guests by the girls. The ladies realized over ten dollars and the evening was most successful.

HON. C. D. HOWE WELCOMED BY HIGH OFFICIALS

Vincent Massey, Gen. Crerar, Col. Ralston and Others Meet Canadian Minister at London

PLAN TO START WORK

By DOUGLAS AMARON
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

London, Dec. 19 (CP Cable)—Hon. C. D. Howe, Canadian Minister of Munitions and Supply, looking fit and keen as though returning from a holiday, was welcomed to London today by Hon. J. L. Ralston, Canadian Minister of National Defence, and a party of other Canadian and British officials.

Col. Ralston, relieved to see for himself that his Cabinet colleague was safe and well, greeted Mr. Howe at the train and heard from him the story of the torpedoing of the liner Western Prince and of the death of Gordon Scott of Montreal, financial adviser to Mr. Howe.

Viscount Cranborne, Secretary of State for the Dominions, Vincent Massey, Canadian High Commissioner, and Maj.-Gen. H. D. G. Crerar, chief of the Canadian General Staff, also met the train that brought Mr. Howe and his executive assistants, E. P. Taylor, Toronto, and Col. W. C. Woodward of Vancouver, from the port where they were landed with 149 other survivors.

Refreshed after their first night's rest since the torpedoing, the Canadian officials planned to start work—"seeing what else Canada can do in the war effort"—almost immediately. Mr. Howe called a press conference for this afternoon.

The Canadians were smartly dressed in clothes bought for them by the Canadian Government. Nothing was lacking from the wardrobe. Mr. Rowe even carried an umbrella over his arm when he got off the train.

Though arrangements for clothes were made while the rescue ship was still at sea, everything seemed to fit in the right places.

Scott's Death Described

The train carried a number of other survivors although many preferred to remain at the port of arrival for a night's sleep in an hotel rather than on the train. Many said they could still feel the lifeboats heaving as they told and retold their experiences in the hotel lounge last night.

E. Cunningham, British meat company official, who was a passenger in the lifeboat that upset, described Mr. Scott's death.

"The waves must have been at least 21 feet high when the lifeboat reached the rescue ship," Mr. Cunningham said. "As the lifeboat was lifted from the crest of each wave we jumped to the ship's rope ladders. That was the only way we could make it.

"I saw Mr. Scott when he was attempting to get aboard. He was wearing a cloak, to which was attached a hood. He jumped in an effort to get hold of the rope ladder but the hood fell across his eyes.

"He missed his grasp and fell into the sea. He was crushed between the lifeboat and the ship."

Some witnesses said Mr. Scott's head was crushed but others said he did not appear to be seriously injured when he disappeared in the waves. Because of this it was hoped for a time that he might have been picked up by the ship that rescued Second Officer R. F. White, but word from this ship confirmed that he was lost.

Hark! the Herald Angels Sing

Hark! the herald angels sing,
"Glory to the new born King!
Peace on earth, and mercy mild,
God and sinners reconciled."
Joyful, all ye nations, rise,
Join the triumph of the skies;
With th' angelic host proclaim,
"Christ is born in Bethlehem."

Christ, by highest heav'n adored;
Christ, the everlasting Lord;
Late in time behold Him come,
Offspring of the favored one.
Veiled in flesh, the God-head see;
Hail th' incarnate Deity
Pleased, as man with men to dwell,
Jesus, our Immanuel!

Hail! the heav'n born Prince of Peace!
Hail! the Son of Righteousness!
Light and life to all He brings,
Ris'n with healing in His wings.
Mild He lays His glory by,
Born that man no more may die:
Born to raise the sons of Earth,
Born to give them second birth.

Refrain:
Hark! the herald angels sing,
"Glory to the newborn King!"

British Needs For More Ships May Be Satisfied

New York, Dec. 19—(CP) — The New York Herald Tribune says in a dispatch from Washington today that as the first step in a shipping program designed to provide Great Britain with needed tonnage the United States is arranging to take over 30 or more Danish vessels tied up in American ports since the German occupation of Denmark.

The paper, saying it obtained its information from an authoritative quarter, said the proposal has been discussed by officials of the Maritime Commission, the Navy and Treasury Departments and added: "It is further understood that the State Department has been included in a wider discussion that has emphasized the British need for ships and more ships."

The Herald Tribune continues:

"Among the proposals suggested are:

"The purchase for lease to Great Britain of other ships tied up in American ports and belonging to nations occupied by Nazi Germany, to bring the available number up to 50, all of the 12-to-16 knot type and capable of convoy service.

"The placing of ships of the American Merchant Marine at the disposal of the British, particularly those of the passenger or passenger cargo types, perhaps the Manhattan and Washington, able to outrun submarines. These would be withdrawn from the present service and included in President Roosevelt's program, as outlined yesterday, of financing the British war effort by leases for replacement in kind.

"A plan, also stemming direct from the proposal to assist Great Britain for building and equipping ships here for subsequent delivery to the British."

Hunted Man Killed In A Gun-Battle

Middlesboro, Ky., Dec. 19 (AP)—Clyde William Buchanan, 40, died today four hours after a posse of Kentucky, Tennessee and Virginia officers wounded him in a gun-battle near Wheeler, Va., where they found him after a 2½ day search of the tri-state Cumberland mountain area.

Bell County Attorney Walter B. Smith, who directed the hunt for Buchanan, reported the capture late last night of Buchanan's son, Clyde, Jr., 15. The younger Buchanan fled into the mountains with his father after a pistol fight at their trailer camp in which Deputy Sheriff George W. Fisher, 63, was killed and two other officers were wounded early Tuesday, Smith said.

The elder Buchanan was wounded fatally, two bullets striking him in the head and one in the abdomen, when he refused to surrender peacefully to 50 possemen who surrounded him in a cedar grove a quarter of a mile from the Wheeler railroad station.

Dominion's Armaments Program On the Whole Moving Smoothly

Director of Munitions Procurement Predicts Busy Canada in Next Year

CAN MAKE ANYTHING

Ottawa, Dec. 19 (CP).—The dominion's program for arnaments production has 'some growing pains' but on the whole it's moving smoothly, says W. M. Drysdale, director of munitions procurement. He predicts a "pretty busy Canada" in his division of the war effort within the next six months.

British experts sent to Canada to assist in munition production are "astounded" by the quality of work being turned out in the dominion's plants, he told a press conference yesterday.

"There is nothing we cannot make in Canada as good as it is made anywhere," Mr. Drysdale said.

One major feature of the arms and munitions program will be the production of medium naval guns on a large scale. He disclosed that eight plants for this work now are nearing the production stage, three of them to make guns and five to make mountings.

The plants, spread through most of the provinces, are being tooled up now. Practically all their production will be for United Kingdom account.

There are many other important aspects of the program. Mr. Drysdale expected output of arms and munitions would reach its peak next fall. Unofficial estimates place the peak output at close to $1,000,000,000 a year.

Complete Line Produced

A complete line of motor equipment will be produced, ranging from small carriers to huge tanks. Mr. Drysdale said many of these vehicles already are in production, while new types of tank were expected to be produced early next year.

Fourteen plants across the Dominion are turning out shells of 14 different calibres, while eight more plants are being made ready for production. In addition 25 plants are producing ammunition components, and five are being tooled up for production. Small arms ammunition factories will be turning out "several million rounds" of ammunition daily by the middle of 1941, Mr. Drysdale estimated.

He announced deliveries of aerial bombs from a new plant will begin in January. Depth charges, anti-tank mines and trench [illegible] bombs will be produced in Canadian factories before the end of March.

Canada's gun program ultimately will involve production of weapons of 12 different calibres. The gun types include anti-aircraft, anti-tank, field and naval guns, machine guns and rifles.

Mr. Drysdale said that by the middle of next year there will be a "substantial production of complete guns."

While he declined to disclose the number of Canadian plants manufacturing war materials, he said that 2,000 might be a "fair guess." Departmental experts had surveyed a total of about 3,000 Canadian factories with a view to their potentialities for war production.

Gene Autry star of "Radio Ranch," which comes next to the McCarthy Theatre on the same program with the laugh hit, "23½ Hours' Leave."

Bonarlaw

Bonarlaw, Dec. 19. — The dance held at Springbrook on Friday the thirteenth sponsored by Group No. 3 of the Springbrook Women's Institute was very successful. There was a splendid attendance and all report a good time. Excellent music was furnished by the Melody Makers of Tweed and Mr. James Mitts acted as floor manager. The committee provided a bountiful lunch.

The annual meeting of the Woman's Auxiliary of St. Mark's Church was held on Thursday afternoon of last week at the home of Mrs. W. J. Barlow with a good attendance. The election of officers for the ensuing year resulted as follows: President, Mrs. W. G. Swayne; vice-president, Mrs. A. V. Brown; secretary, Mrs. W. J. Barlow; treasurer, Mrs. M. Fitzgerald; Dorcas secretary, Mrs. J. P. Baker. The Dorcas secretary displayed a fine collection of clothing, etc., which was purchased to be sent to the Anglican Indian Residential School at Elkhorn, Man. This will be the best bale the W.A. has made up for a number of years.

Word has been received of the death of Rev. T. H. H. Hall of Maitland, Ont. Mr. Hall was a former rector of St. Mark's Church here and his passing came as a shock to a wide circle of friends in this community.

The rectory of St. James's Piccadilly was destroyed when a bomb fell in the forecourt of the Wren church.

EXCUSABLE FOLLY

It is true that men and women at Christmas time do things which are foolish, especially in the giving of presents. But when did cold wisdom ever make people happy? Who wants to see a Christmas when nobody spends more than he should, or when there is no giving of things that are trivial or needless or foolish? A truly sane Christmas would be a miserable one.—American Magazine.

If Anyone Starves In Europe this Winter Germay Can Be Blamed

London, Dec. 19 (CP).—If anyone in Europe starves this winter it will be "because of German negligence or because of the failure to distribute available supplies," the British Broadcasting Corporation said last night.

The BBC contrasted a report issued by the Berlin Institute of Business Research which said "Germany is fully able to guarantee to the feeding of every individual in Europe," with a statement made by the French minister of food and supplies at Vichy, Jean Achard, which complained "It will be very difficult to maintain a sufficient supply of wheat from one harvest to another".

The minister appealed to French farmers to hasten the completion of their threshing and promised a bonus for prompt delivery of corn, the BBC said.

"The German potato harvest is supposed to be surplus to requirements but the Nazis are importing thousands of tons of potatoes from Norway and Belgium."

The BBC gave as the reason for this that "ten tons of potatoes make about one ton of alcohol, which can be mixed with petrol in the proportion of one to four".

Mrs. Ada Boneham of Belleville was a guest of relatives on Sunday.

One of the greatest power plants in Europe is being built underground in the Bernes Alps to protect it from any possible future bombing.

VIVID STORY

including the captain perished; and that 152 passengers and crew were brought safely to shore.

A Canadian woman was given up as lost, Mrs. D. O. Sproul, whose husband, an Albertan, survived to describe how she was trapped in the cabin of the same motor lifeboat which turned over and threw Mr. Scott into the water.

Capsizing of this lifeboat apparently outdid in drama the torpedoing of the ship itself. Just as the occupants of the boat seemed secure a wave flung it against the rescuing freighter's side.

The ship was torpedoed in the early morning, around 6 a.m. Boats were lowered in the darkness. Everything apparently was orderly and despite the high seas the boats managed to get away.

Captain Remains Aboard.

In the lifeboats were distinguished personages—treasury and admiralty officials and technical experts, many of them with important war missions. The captain remained aboard the ship. With him was a young steward, Jimmy Franks, who rushed back after being safe in a lifeboat to save the £100 (about $445) the crew had pooled as a contribution to Britain's Spitfire fund. They went down together. Second Officer R. F. White also remained with the captain but was picked up after the liner sank.

Mr. Howe had been provided by his wife with warm clothing, including knitted head-wear, against just such an emergency. It had been packed in a dufflebag, and he was better prepared to face the elements than many of the other survivors.

In the lifeboats were the three children, one aged two years, another 11 months, and the third a three-month-old boy, Alexander Bakoff, who was born in Montreal. His mother, evacuated from England, was returning home with her child.

Distinguished Britons Rescued.

Distinguished Britons who were rescued included Maj.-Gen. A. E. MacRae, British technical expert assigned to Ottawa, a member of Mr. Howe's party, Lt.-Col. J. H. Smith, a veteran of the Dunkerque evacuation and likewise a British technician; R. C. Thompson, head of the Sunderland ship-building firm and J. Tansey, a Bank of England official.

There was also George Catlin, Labor candidate and wife of the author, Vera Brittain and William G. Robertson, a British government official whose home is now in Toronto, where his wife and two children reside.

A young survivor was W. A. Sharpe of Prince Albert, Sask. Aged 19 he had made arrangements to join the Royal Air Force. He risked his life in a mad dash to his cabin for the papers that prove he has 250 hours in the air to his credit.

Use Care in Selection of Toys for Tots

By Gary Cleveland Myers, Ph.D.

A leading manufacturer of paint brushes has said that when his firm began painting the brush handle the total sales increased enormously, that the housewife practically always chooses the colored brush. Many a parent, otherwise intelligent, is lured to choose a useless toy because of the paint on it. So also are many led to buy a worthless toy because of its novelty, especially the toy that will do unusual things such as the robot type. We need to remember that a toy to be of best educational value to the child must be used by him. All too soon he will live in the world of passive pleasures.

Ask yourself such questions as these: How long will the toy last? How long will it be used? In how many ways will it be used by the child? Will it encourage activity? Will it stimulate creative and social skills?

There are some parents who are guided by intelligence rather than by passing whims as they choose playthings for the growing child. They have imagination and foresight. They can see beyond the paint and levers of a toy. They measure values in terms of what the toy will mean to the child several weeks or several months hence. They consider it in terms of the child's development.

Educational Toys.

They consider what won't easily perish but will educate in the widest sense as well as amuse. They centre attention upon what will stimulate mental as well as physical activity. They choose toys and tools which encourage creative play — for the young child, for example, crayons, paints, molding clay, large sheets of paper, easel, unpainted blocks with several of the same or of multiple dimensions. For the child beyond three or four, they choose such tools as hammer, saw, vice (that will fasten to any table). In accordance with the boy or girl's age, they build up gradually a good workshop for creative and constructive fun. And they get tools that will work, not cheap tools. Many of the cheap sets of tools are not only worthless but harmful to the child. They discourage him as he tries in vain to make things with them.

Wise parents also choose some books and magazines which stimulate in the child creative and constructive interest. There are such magazines suited to the varying ages of the child. Children's magazines have made rapid strides. They make good Christmas presents and keep coming through the year.

Select Books Carefully.

In choosing books for your child be sure the book will not be too advanced for him to enjoy. Select those which will be worth his reading not only once but many times. While there are some good new books, there are also many others which have stood the test of time and some of these are in attractive editions. Good illustrations are desirable, of course, but you won't be led astray by painted jackets of the book nor by colors of its pages. You will want to know after all what is in the book. You will read the book or seek the advice of librarians.

Ancients Gave Presents As Most People Do Now

The custom of making presents at Christmas is derived from very ancient usage. It was a Teutonic invention. In Latin countries gifts were exchanged at New Year's, writes James Waldo Fawcett in the Washington (D.C.) Evening Star.

The decoration of churches with mistletoe and holly is likewise a pagan survival.

Nativity plays and pageants trace back to a pre-Christian era. The sports of the Lords of Misrule in England are supposed to be an inheritance from the Saturnalia of heathen Rome.

Father Christmas or Santa Claus is identified with St. Nicholas or Nicholas, and also with Knecht Ruperch; and Robin Goodfellow. Grimm says that in some parts of Germany Knecht Nicolas is merely an attendant on the real gift-giver, who is sometimes the infant Christ and sometimes Dame Bertha, but who is also frequently conceived as an ugly dwarf, called Krampus.

Carol singing by waifs, strolling street musicians, is an old British custom.

The first Christmas cards date from about 1846.

The setting up in Latin churches of a Christmas creche is said to have been originated by St. Francis.

Ghostly Christmas Bells To Greet Merry Yuletide

Amongst the bells which will ring out to greet the coming Yuletide will be many ghostly peals, heard on no other night in the year; for tradition says that the bells of all buried churches join the chorus every Christmas eve.

There are the bells of Raleigh, once a prosperous village in Nottinghamshire, now only a country valley. All sign of habitation was swallowed up many years ago by an earthquake. It is said that every Christmas eve the bells of the old church are heard to ring again. A legend of this kind is told of a country church near Preston, the very name of which nobody knows.

In Holland the story of the city of Been is told every Christmas. This wonderful place was famous for its magnificence and beauty and also for its wickedness and shamelessness. One day the whole city was swallowed up by the sea.

The submerged bells of Dunwich, now covered by the sea, are said to join the ghostly chorus.

"Christmas Man", Name Given to Kris Kringle

Santa Claus does not visit the children of Lithuania on Christmas eve as he does the children in this country, but there are all kinds of Christmas celebrations in which they have a part, and many good things to eat. In German and Norway old Kris Kringle hides gifts for the children in many out of the way places, and Christmas day is spent chiefly in hunting for them. In Holland Saint Nicholas dispensed Christmas cheer, but when the Hollanders came to this country his name was changed to Santa Claus. In Sweden Santa Claus is much like he is in America, but he does not come down the chimney, but in the night he comes into the room where the Christmas tree is and leaves gifts for all. His name is not Santa Claus, however, for he is called "The Christmas Man".

MANY PRISONERS MAY TRY ESCAPE BUT FEW EMERGE

Now is Winter of Discontent for Captured Enemies in Canada's Camps but Guards Are Specially Alert

By KEN CLARK

(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Ottawa, Dec. 19 CP).—The dangerous game of trying to escape and preventing escapes from Canada's internment camps keeps guards and prisoners continually on the alert and the onset of winter weather offers advantages and disadvantages to both sides.

The snow makes tracking easier. But the freezing of lakes and rivers provides natural bridges across the country. At the same time freezing of the ground makes prisoners' efforts to tunnel their way out of their enclosures more difficult.

Prisoners, according to authoritative sources are continually tunnelling in the various camps that Canada has established for prisoners of war, civilians and fighting men captured in the British Isles and brought to the dominion for safe keeping. Continually the tunnels are discovered.

The mechanical ingenuity of the prisoners is a cause for admiration on the part of their guards who say the men are expert lock pickers. They are so good at opening locks that the system of leaving all tool sheds unlocked but closely inspected by guards, has been adopted. Locks just wouldn't keep some of the prisoners out of the tool shed if they really wanted to get in.

Matter of Honor.

There is no military regulation which demands that a prisoner of war attempt to escape but officials explain it is considered a matter of honor. In addition an escape or an attempted escape is considered good evidence for sincerity before their own military courts of inquiry would consider all cases of men being taken prisoner.

Aside from the possibility of being shot in attempting to escape, the prisoner suffers little disadvantage. He may be strictly confined for 28 days as a disciplinary measure.

It is anticipated that with some thousands of prisoners in Canada with, to use the words of Defence Minister Ralston, "24 hours a day in which to plan escapes," there will be more attempts.

But the situation of the camps, placed advisedly a considerable distance from the United States border and for the most part in rugged wilderness country, is a factor against an escape attempt being successful.

Long Way To Go.

Even if prisoners manage to get miles away from the camps the chances are they will be picked up before crossing the international border and then there is always the case of Manuel Fischer, the prisoner who escaped from a northwestern Ontario camp, reached International Falls, Minn., and eventually was returned to camp anyway.

Not long ago a prisoner making a dash for it was stopped when the sentry fired one warning shot. The prisoner immediately threw up his hands and went meekly back to the compound. Sentries, officials say fire only a single warning shot.

In the case of Ernst Neuller who was shot and killed when he attempted to rush a solitary guard some miles away from a northwestern Ontario camp, no warning shot was fired. Neuller was the only one of eighteen who escaped to date and were not returned to confinement.

The most orthodox escape was staged by Gunther Lorentz who walked out through a timbered tunnel. Two other prisoners put a couple of planks beneath a truck, much as the story-book hoboes used to put planks across the rods under freight cars. Then they climbed aboard the planks and rode to brief freedom when the truck left the compound.

Two others attending a football game were lightly buried by their comrades in a trench. When their mates had returned to the compound the two prisoners scrambled out of their hiding places and made off only to be recaptured by a search party.

SELECTING CHRISTMAS CARDS

We unconsciously betray our true selves when we select Christmas cards. People who live in city apartments are apt to send drawings of farmhouses that nestle cozily among tall trees; a lawyer's holiday card is likely to be sugary with sentiment.—Collier's Weekly.

CHRISTMAS DAY

It is not definitely known when Christmas was first celebrated. The institution of the festival is attributed to Telesphorus, who flourished in the reign of Antoninus Pius (131-161 A.D.). The reason for the final choice of December 25 cannot now be determined. As Christianity spread, the feast of the winter solstice, the time when the day begins to increase, and light to triumph over darkness, was changed into the Feast of Christ, the Light of Life.

IN NEW VOLUME SETON REVEALS UP HILL FIGHT

Dual Career of Canadian-Bred Naturalist — Artist is Detailed in His Self-Portrait in Prose

(By The Canadian Press)

Ernest Thompson Seton's autobiography, Trail of an Artist—Naturalist (Reginald Saunders, Toronto, $4.50) is an illuminating work on the life and habits of one of the world's leading naturalists.

Seton was forced to battle through his boyhood and youth to fulfil his desire to be a naturalist. His father wanted him to be an artist. The son compromised and made one career (art) an integral part of the other.

The author describes the first 20 years of his life in almost minute detail, slowing considerably an otherwise interesting book. The pace of the book quickens as the subject grows older, after he leaves his early environment in Ontario to study art in London, then in Paris. He lived for brief periods in Toronto, rural Manitoba and New York between his two European jaunts.

In Manitoba he made great progress as a naturalist, and in London and Paris he developed his talent for art. In New York, he made both vocations earn him money for his room and board—rather spotty at times.

Family Life.

There is little mention of either of his two wives—he was divorced once—and none of the hoax he and his second wife pulled on New York reporters about two years ago. After adopting a baby girl, they told reporters the child was their own—Seton was 78. The story hit the continent's press about the time one of Seton's books was published. After the first press furore subsided, the Setons revealed the hoax to Canadian reporters, precipitating a fresh round of comment.

Seton's experiences in Paris, where his art talent was recognized and one of his pictures hung in the Grand Salon of Painting, are interesting. Another of his more famous works, "Awaited in Vain", was done in oils in Paris and exhibited at the 1893 World's Fair in Chicago. It shows a pack of wolves, one of them gnawing at the skeleton of a man. In the distance is a cottage with a light in the window and a woman (the dead man's wife) standing in the doorway looking out over the snow for her husband.

Seton probably is one of the few men, living or dead, who was presented with a bill for being born. When he returned from his first stay in London his father told him that his upbringing, education, board and room for twenty-one years cost $537.50, which sum was owing and due. Dismayed at the time, Seton later paid it in full.

Seton's experiences on the prairies and sand-hills of Manitoba are in detail and interesting, particularly to nature-lovers. In Manitoba he gained the physical strength that later made him so admirably fitted for his exacting craft.

The general impression left by this book is of a gifted artist and naturalist who always has been, and still is, fully conscious of his abilities.

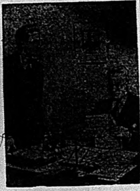
CHRISTMAS DINNER

By KATHERINE EDELMAN

As soon as Darrel Thorpe got a chance to use the phone, he dialed his home. He must tell Edna, how sorry, how terribly sorry he was for what had happened this morning. All the way down on the car he had reproached himself for the hasty words he had said. He couldn't understand how he had spoken to Edna like that, and on Christmas eve.

He drummed impatiently on the desk as he waited. Edna was always punctual about answering the phone and doorbell. It was a way she had, going right through with things.

Which really was the cause of his flash of temper this morning. In her quick, decisive way, she had swept aside his idea of having old Mrs. Darby for Christmas dinner. The little lady, now down on her luck, had befriended Darrel when he had come to the city.



The big man did not seem to hear him. His eyes were glued on a closely-typed statement.

"I'm not going to have her!" Edna had declared emphatically. "We're going to skip Christmas as much as possible—go out and eat somewhere—and miss all the rush and bother."

"I think that's a darn selfish way of doing," Darrel shot back. "Christmas is a home day, with a turkey, and a tree, and gifts, and above all, someone to share them with us."

Then, without waiting to see the effect of his words, Darrel rushed from the house, banging the door.

Now, he dialed the number three times, but there was no answer. Panic seized him. Had Edna believed that he meant what he had said? He had heard of young wives who had packed up and left for much less reason. What a brute he had been to flare up as he did!

The morning was unbearably long. Inwardly fuming, he hung up the receiver, to answer an imperative buzzer from the inner office. It was about the tenth this morning. If it hadn't been for Wheatley, keeping him running around in circles, he might have been able to reach Edna long ago. And if the old man hadn't been in the same ugly mood yesterday, Darrel knew that he himself wouldn't have been on edge this morning, that he wouldn't have spoken to Edna as he had done. He blamed Wheatley as much as himself.

"You sent for me," he said stiffly, as he waited beside the desk. The big man did not seem to hear him. His eyes were glued on a closely typed statement. Darrel spoke again. Then Daniel Wheatley looked up, and rubbed his hand across his forehead as if trying to remember something.

"Oh, yes, yes," he began, "Mrs. Thorpe called before you got to the office this morning. I forgot to tell you. She left word that she was going marketing with a Mrs.—Mrs. Darby, or some such name. Also, she wanted me to be sure to tell you to bring home a Christmas tree and all the trimmings." There was a merry twinkle in Wheatley's usually hard eyes."Looks as if you were going to celebrate Christmas at your house," he finished, with a laugh.

"We certainly are," Darrel grinned back, "we're going to have a real old-fashioned celebration of the day."

"Think your wife would object if you took a cranky old man to Christmas dinner?"

Darrel wondered if he were hearing things, then his quick wit jumped to the surface. "If you really mean that, Mr. Wheatley, I can assure you of a hearty welcome. My wife thoroughly believes in having people for Christmas dinner. At least, I am sure she does now." The last sentence Darrel whispered to himself.

The baffling thing about low blood count is that you can weigh about as much as you ever did—even look healthy and strong, yet—you can feel as if you had lead in your legs, dopey, tired and pepless.

Low blood count means you haven't got enough red blood corpuscles. It is their vital job to carry life-giving oxygen from your lungs throughout your body. THAT'S THE POSTMAN'S PACK FOR THE NEXT FOUR DAYS

By PATRICIA MONTCLAIR

This is the week-end which will find millions of neighbors all over the country addressing Christmas cards to the friends whom they remember with good wishes and affection on Christmas Day, no matter how callously the days speed by between these festive dates.

Sentiment rises above inhibitions, old gratitudes are revived, newcomer acquaintances are welcomed to a warmer communion with Yuletide messages; there is almost no one so disinterested or otherwise impoverished that he does not feel this urge to set aside one day when peace and amiability make the common good.

For All Tastes.

The variety of cards offered in the shops range from the penny postal brave with red berries or poinsettias to the chaste and chilly "Mr. and Mrs." card engraved on white pasteboard with appropriate, formal phrases. In between are the beautiful religious cards which portray the original reason for the great civilised anniversary; the "arty" designs with their magnificent color schemes and stylised symbols; the Santas for children; the missals and carol cards; and the cards of contemporary Canadian artists such as these reproduced here today.

Since well known artists from every part of this country are represented in this series, the collection is varied and colorful, often carrying just the nostalgic message a homesick friend would welcome when far away on Christmas day.

A Mailing System.

To inject an acid note into this discourse: Now is also the week-end when the careless ones wish that they had preserved last year's Christmas card list's addresses, and kept their current address books up to date too. Since greeting card counters are habitually in the vicinity of stationery stock, why not buy a small alphabetized ledger with your cards, and start a permanent address file now?

Many efficient people put each year's collection of cards from friends from far and wide into safe keeping throughout the year, and at this time have the extra pleasure of enjoying them all over again as they are used for a check list for mailing, lest one friend be forgotten in the rush.

Parlor Games Boom as Folks Seek to Forget World Troubles

By DOROTHY ROE

The great urge for adventure is finding a new and comparatively harmless outlet these days in parlor games of marksmanship.

Men who always have cherished a secret ambition to hunt tigers and elephants in darkest Africa now can sit in their own parlors and shoot at everything from jungle beasts to wild ducks, and from battleships to airplanes.

It's all a part of the current boom in make-believe among the grown-ups, a trend invariably to be observed in troubled times.

While in London men, women and children forget their troubles by playing checkers, lotto and lexicon in the air raid shelters, in America the period of national emergency has brought on a record boom in parlor games.

Among the increasingly popular marksmanship games are multiple forms of dart boards which feature baseball strategy, airplane and coast defense targets, jungle animals and playing cards.

There are target pistols that shoot wooden pellets or rubber bands. There are war strategy games which include such titles as Tactics, Conflict and Wings.

The most sophisticated party-goers these days cheer in honest glee when their hostess trots out the dart board and the card table.

Light-hearted games are the favorites in these times of stress. As during the depression men and women satisfied their wishful thinking complex in games of high finance, so today they are seeking an escape from realities.

Christmas gift buyers this year are rushing the game counters, to choose from a bumper crop of new ideas in parlor sports.

Protect Children When Celebrating Christmas

Christmas time being a season of joy, every precaution should be taken to prevent any untoward circumstances which might enter into its celebration.

Too often the careless placing of lighted candles has resulted in painful burns, and even death to those participating in the Yuletide festival. "Santa Claus" has been the victim of innumerable cases.

Tiny electric lights now are most used in lighting the Christmas tree and that reduces the fire danger materially. If candles are to be used in the decoration—and they undoubtedly lend an effect not to be obtained by the electric lights—they should be placed on the mantel and in other secure locations where contact with their pretty blazes is not likely to be made.

In Christmas sports involving the slightest danger, children should be directed in their play by an older person who is competent to effect a rescue if necessary.—Charles Frederick Wadsworth.

SANTA LOADS HIS STRATOLINER WITH A BUMPER CROP OF TOYS

By DOROTHY ROE

Santa Claus flies a Canadian flag this year as he heads south from the North Pole with his sleigh and his $240,000,000 pack of toys for boys and girls.

"Made in Canada" or the Empire is the legend on Santa's record pack this Christmas, as he makes ready to gladden the hearts and fill the stockings of young Canada with brand new streamlined toys that reflect our national life.

No longer are German-made and Japanese-made toys finding favor with Canadian boys and girls. With the tragedy of a war-shattered world has come a virtual end to importations, and a new boom in Canadian-made toys

The largest volume of toys is ready for distribution to the nation's children this Christmas, reproducing faithfully the activities of the world about them.

Patriotic toys are enjoying an unprecedented boom. Puppet theatre sets this year reproduce stirring scenes and characters of history. Soldier suits and aviator outfits are the choice of the young son of every family, and even such standard toys as balls, blocks and kiddie cars are coming in red, white and blue colors, decorated with patriotic emblems.

For the literary child there are wonderful new printing presses with cartoon features and pictures so the young editor can turn out a complete newspaper. And there's a novel printer primer which teaches the future novelist to learn to spell while doing rubber stamp printing at the same time—an idea that might well be tried out on some grown-ups.

There's a velocipede built for two, and a sled on wheels for snowless communities. New Snow sleds have airplane streamlines, and are fitted with red and green signal lights.

Model planes, ranging in price from one cent to $30, are available to delight the hearts of all boys—more than five million of them will be in Santa's pack this year.

Even the doll world has gone patriotic.

There's a new doll with soft skin that feels just like that of a real baby, and there are miniature doll families to fit the furniture of the magnificent new doll houses.

It's a boom year, and joy rides high, in Toyland, Canada.

Vatican City has the whitest bread in Europe, rationed now. Flour for the bread comes from Hungary, and only ten ounces, or two small loaves a day, may be purchased for any individual.

CRAZY PAINTING FOR CAMOUFLAGE

From High Up Old England's Industries Disguised as Verdant Fields

London, Dec. 19 (CP).—From the air, German bombers can't be sure of what they hit when they drop bombs on British targets.

Perhaps a salvo of high explosive bombs falls on what appears to be a readily-recognised aeroplane factory. Perhaps a "stick" falls between rows of workmen's homes. But possibly the only damage done is the destruction of camouflaged framework, resembling a moving picture set. This, however, would not be known by men in the air.

All through the United Kingdom factories engaged in war work are gradually disappearing from view. More and more they are being heavily camouflaged so they may not be recognized by a person standing on the ground 500 yards away. Landmarks by which they might be readily identified have been given new faces.

In some places entire false avenues have been constructed to change the contours of manufacturing centres. The big foundry, say, with its rambling workshops marking the outskirts of the town, now may be nestled amid rows of framework houses. Or its walls may be hidden from view by weird painted patterns, many of them designed by Lonsdale Hands, who has become Britain's highest-paid camouflage expert.

Great Patch Quilts.

Divers colors splashed over the walls may make a huge factory disappear entirely from view of airmen by appearing to settle into red soil, grass or shrubbery. Great nets resembling tattered patch-work quilts similar to those used by the military to camouflage gun emplacements, give a group of buildings the appearance of a woods with the leaves in all their autumn colors.

Airports, hangars and even planes are treated in the same way.

While most of the buildings appear to be victims of drunken painters, each design represents hours of experiment. Models are made and painted colors to blend with their scenic environments. Then the experts stand on stepladders and chairs and examine the model through reversed field-glasses or telescopes which make the factory appear almost the same as it would from the air.

It was only after the war started that Hands became interested in camouflage work. Prior to that he had spent much of his time designing newspaper advertisements for various employers in Fleet street. One day he got married during his lunch hour, quit his job when refused an increase in pay and suddenly found himself preparing camouflage for one of the largest munition factories in the country.

Since that, his tasks have been increasing, especially since a special committee found many factories were not properly camouflaged and that full use of camouflage was not being taken advantage of by some big plants. Hands and his "Design Unit" have been called on to provide remedies.

Members of the New Zealand All-Blacks rugby team which toured England in 1935-36, E. W. Tindill and C. Pepper played on an N.Z. Expeditionary Force team here.

Like Colorful Tree

If there are young children in the home, you should have a real Christmas tree as nothing else can take its place. Older people may like stunning effects that appeal to the imagination, or symbols in a fairy manner that will do this, but children want it loaded to overflowing with baubles of colored glass, lopped around with tinseled strands that gleam and glitter.

Women's Hospital Auxiliary Meets

The Hospital Auxiliary held its regular monthly meeting in the nurses' residence with the President, Mrs. Forrester, in the chair. Several items of business were discussed and settled including the final arrangements for the Christmas dance, which is to be held in the Trianon Ballroom, Friday, December 27. The Bridge in connection with this dance is to be held in the Board Room of the Y.M.C.A. the same evening.

Approximately ninety-five gifts have been bought for the Ward patients in the hospital to be distributed by Santa, Christmas morning. Mrs. Galloway was in charge of buying these gifts and she is to be commended on her choice of articles chosen. Candy will also be given each Ward patient.

Mrs. Stobie very generously donated a beautiful piece of needlepoint, on which tickets will be sold at the dance and during the winter. The draw for this will be made during the Spring Fashion Show.

A ham will also be raffled at the Christmas dance and the draw for this will be made toward the close of the evening.

At the close of the meeting tea was served by Miss Thompson in her usual gracious manner.

Mince Pies Prohibited In Days of the Puritans

The mince pie has had many enemies.

The Puritans would have none of it, and even in the eighteenth century it was a forbidden delicacy to a large number of clergymen. During the Commonwealth the holding of Christmas festivals was forbidden.

In 1644 parliament passed an act ordering all citizens to observe Christmas day as a solemn fast, to be spent in silent atonement for previous festivals that had passed in riotous living and merry-making. This order remained in force for twelve years.

The authorities in several towns tried to reduce Christmas day to the level of other days. In Canterbury by order of the mayor, it was proclaimed that "Christmas day and all other superstitious festivals should be put down."

People who attended service in the cathedral were mobbed. The inhabitants formed themselves into two parties, and feeling in the matter frequently resulted in the exchange of blows.

In 1652 it was proclaimed that "no observation shall be had of the five and twentieth day of December, commonly called Christmas day, nor any solemnity used or exercised in churches."

This order was enforced by soldiers. Ovens and larders were searched, and where seasonable dainties or decorations were found they were carried off and destroyed. A changed attitude towards the Puritan dislike of Christmas festivities came with the restoration of King Charles.

St. ANDREWS W. M. S.

(West Huntingdon)

The December meeting of St. Andrew's Church (West Huntingdon) Auxiliary was held at the home of the president, Mrs. H. Thompson. The members gathered for a pot-luck dinner which was served to fifteen members and some visitors which included the men of the congregation.

About two o'clock the regular monthly meeting took place. Several Christmas hymns were sung. The secretary then called the roll which was responded to by the members telling of Christmas meditation. The Bible reading was given by the president who read St. Luke's gospel.

Mrs. A. Fleming gave a religious reading and Mrs. J. Wallace led in prayer. A reading entitled "Peace Among Ourselves," was read by Mrs. C. Sills. The hymn "O Come Let Us Adore Him," closed the devotional part of the program. The business part of the meeting followed. Several reports were read and the usual Christmas business taken care of.

Mrs. J. Wallace was asked to preside and the election of officers followed.

The officers for the year 1941 are as follows:

Honorary Presidents, Mrs. (Rev.) H. V. Walker; President, Mrs. Wm. Benson; 1st Vice President, Mrs. Donald Haggerty; 2nd Vice President, Mrs. John Wallace; W.M.S. Treasurer, Mrs. Henry Wallace; Glad Tidings Secretary, Mrs. Alex Fleming; Bale Secretary, Mrs. Harry Thompson; Home Helpers, Mrs. J. Wright, Mrs. W. Shaw and Mrs. C. Sills; Mission Band Leader, Mrs. D. Haggerty; Ladies Aid Treasurer, Mrs. J. McInroy; Secretary of W.M.S. and Ladies Aid, Mrs. Chester Sills; Press Secretary, Mrs. C. Sills; Librarian, Miss Bessie Fleming; Organist, Mrs. Wm. Shaw; Assistant Organist, Mrs. G. Welsh; Auditors, Mrs. D. Fleming, Mrs. A. McInroy.

It was decided to hold next year's election of officers in November, that the December meeting might have a program of Christmas meditation.

THE LUNAR transits for this day make for a very promising state of affairs with the prospect of much definite progress and steady growth based on earnest effort, meritorious and practical plans. These should combine to attract the financial support or friendly cooperation of those in powerful places, with the final issue of stabilized fortunes with well-fortified position and popularity. Although such prestige and friendship should be sought it might be as well to be prepared for some peculiar or eccentric phases.

If It Is Your Birthday

Those whose birthday it is may look for a year in which the affairs may progress to definite growth and solidity, with sound ambitions helped to fruition by the cooperation and friendship of influential personages. All investments, possessions and interests should enjoy security and enduring expansion, even though there may be certain irregular, surprising or unlooked-for developments.

A child born on this day should have many sterling qualities and sound ambitions, which may put its destiny and fortunes on a solid basis. Influential friends as well as personal merit, industry and probity assist to such high estate.

ADVISED TO PROCEED

New York, Dec. 19—(CP) — The New York Times says in a Washington dispatch today that Great Britain has been advised to proceed with some $3,000,000,000 worth of new orders for United States war supplies "without too much worry about the ability of this country to fill them or where the money or credit is coming from for payment."

The Times said such advice "is understood to have stemmed from President Roosevelt himself and was relayed to British officials here."

The Glazed Complexion— Latest Beauty Wrinkle

After a soothing massage Alice Frost applies new nail polish.

By HELEN FOLLETT

NOW WE hear tall tales about the glazed complexion. Always something new. Will wonders never cease? Don't fancy, dear child, that you are to polish your phis so it shines like the family silver. Not at all. This is something else again.

Here is the method as outlined by a famous beauty specialist. Try it out; see how you like it and how you like yourself in the mirror.

The first step in this beauty ritual is to use a thin cleansing oil. Rub it in with the finger tips or a pledget of cotton. With cleansing tissues friction the flesh well to give the surface an appearance of freshness and to rouse healthy coloring. So far, so good.

Next a Foundation

Then on with a foundation cosmetic. You can use one that is the daughter of our old-time vanishing cream or a different produce that is similar to a liquid powder. Both must be manipulated until the skin accepts them, and there is no sign of artifice.

Powder is applied lightly with quick little flips of the pad, the surplus removed with a camel's hair brush made for the purpose. Use a compact rouge if the natural roses in your cheeks aren't blooming. Then, with the palms of your hands, give your face a brisk polishing. Start at the neck, work upward. Good for fibres. Good to keep tissues firm.

This is the season of the year when hands show wear and tear, need petting and comforting.

If you would do right by them keep them out of water that is extremely hot or extremely cold. Hot water causes the flesh to swell; afterwards it shrinks; in time hands look old and wrinkled. No fun, that.

Keep a soothing lotion in every bathroom and in the kitchen where it will remind you that it is your good friend. Use several times a day. Once a week massage with a heavy cream.

Train the Youngster In Safety

By Garry Cleveland Myers, Ph.D.

"Dear Dr. Myers:—I have a son four years old, and, recently we moved to a house that is near a railroad track.

"Just as soon as I let my son out to play he immediately heads for these tracks and plays on them.

"I have tried spanking him, talking to him, taking his play time away from him and am now at my wits end as to just how to handle the situation . . . . . .

"I am enclosing a self-addressed envelope and would appreciate it very much if you would give me some suggestion as to how to cope with this situation."

My reply:

"Never let your child go out of the house unless you or a reliable substitute is with him. Plan during the next week to spend several hours a day outdoors with him. Let other things go. They are relatively unimportant. Your little child's life is at stake.

Make Definite Boundaries

"Show him the definite boundaries beyond which he must not go, except when with a responsible persons,—a tree, telephone pole, crack in the sidewalk. Always be right with him, during the next few weeks, when he is near this boundary. The moment he steps over this boundary unprotected punish him.

"Let him have with him a cart, wagon or tricycle he can turn to with enjoyment after the punishment. Do likewise the next time he crosses that boundary, and the next. See that he never can cross it without getting punished. Even after you are pretty sure he is permanently trained to stay within the definite bounds, you need to keep careful watch. But by and by he will have learned to keep himself within these boundaries even though you are a thousand miles away".

It Works

Many mothers have written to tell me the foregoing plan works. To quote a sample:

"At one time you wrote of the proper method to teach a tiny child not to step into the street, but to stay on the walk when playing. I used your suggestions and they worked like a charm".

Then she asks: "Can you tell me now how to go about teaching my child the care and caution necessary in crossing streets? She is five years old and many of her playmates run back and forth freely; up to this time I have not allowed her to cross a street without an adult or unless she is being watched, but I know the time has come when I must allow her to be more independent".

My reply:

"Don't be in haste to have her cross the street alone. Practice her in taking you across the street. She will delight to do this showing you how to be careful, wait at the curb and look both ways. Also where there is a light at the crossing she will show you how to go only with the green light. Show her your strong appreciation of her carefulness. Make her feel she is big and dependable."

RIDEAU HALL'S ROYAL HOSTESS REAL PRINCESS

Governor - General's Wife Has Way of Placing Guests at Their Ease—Takes Part in Many Activities

By GLADYS ARNOLD

(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Ottawa, Dec. 19 (CP). — The friendliness of Princess Alice's smile, her warm sympathy and unaffected simplicity will mean more than her royal rank to Canadians who meet the chatelaine of Rideau Hall.

Recently at a reception in the vice-regal residence a young officer of the R.C.A.F. stood nervously on the fringe of a gay, chatting crowd of young men in the uniforms of the three services and smiling girls in simple afternoon frocks. Obviously he was shy and apparently knew nobody.

Through the crowd stepped Princess Alice. She noticed the young airman at once and with quick friendliness went straight up to him and in no time at all he was chatting away and evidently quite at home.

"She spoke to me as though she had always known me—and right away I met a lot of people," he said. "She's a real princess."

It has been said of the Earl of Athlone, and might equally well be said of Princess Alice who shares his enthusiasm, that "he is really interested in people's lives, in their houses, in their farms, their oxen and everything they are and have."

Since coming to Canada, war work, social and welfare activities and encouragement of culture have kept Princess Alice busy. She is doing in Canada what the First Great War made impossible at that time. That was when Lord Athlone was governor-general of the Dominion but was called to duty in France.

It is recalled however, that this granddaughter of Queen Victoria took part in the war work in England and turned up rain or shine at "Beaver Hut" to bring comforts and aid to Canadian soldiers.

Leopold's Daughter.

Princess Alice Mary was born in Windsor Castle Feb. 25, 1883, daughter of Prince Leopold, fourth son and ninth child of Queen Victoria. Alice Mary was a sprightly child, with delicate bones and vivacity of temperament which gives her her light step and youthful carriage of today.

Her hair has silvered but the brown of her eyes has not dimmed since the days when she played with her royal cousins and was teased by a lively, kindly young man who was later to become George V.

Her quick mind, high spirits and passion for detail together with considerable curiosity led her into many an escapade which she recalls today with her three grandchildren about her.

Especially anticipated treats of her childhood days were gay visits to relations in the different European courts. Her French, spoken with an exquisite accent, was perfected on the continent and her interest in and understanding of other nationalities was gained by knowing the people themselves.

In 1904 she married Lord Athlone, "the first royal prince to be educated at Eton", and began a new life, filled with much travel and brilliant social life which did not, however, dull her fundamental taste for simplicity and love of outdoor life.

At her home in Balcombe, Sussex, a 130-acre estate of magnificent rolling country covered with trees, the garden was one of her principal joys. She played tennis and badminton, and skating is one of her accomplishments.

African Adventure.

In 1923 Princess Alice accompanied her husband to South Africa where he had been appointed governor-general. The popularity of the couple was evident in the extension of their term from five to nearly eight years. There Princess Alice found the lives and customs of the peoples who go to make up the nation most fascinating. She loved to hunt and is an excellent shot and in Africa she bagged lions, antelope, and an elephant to prove her prowess.

One day she took her daughter Lady May mountain climbing. Their return was delayed and the sudden setting of the African winter sun obliged them to remain where they were, as they could not see a yard ahead. In the pitch darkness Princess Alice decided resolutely to settle down on the mountainside with her youthful daughter and make the best of it. Worried searchers found them at dawn, and were surprised to find her gay and fit.

Recalling her work in South Africa is the "Pirncess Alice Home of Recovery", a convalescent home with occupational training for crippled children, the money for which ($100,000) Princess Alice raised in three months with the support of all sections of the community, Dutch and English alike.

For the first time here was a home where both white and colored children were given equality. When the hospital was opened in 1933 her Royal Highness returned to South Africa to open it. The ward for white babies and children is all decorated in pale blue, while that for the native children is exactly the same only in pink.

After returning to England in 1930 she travelled extensivly with Lord Athlone, visiting Arabia, Persia and India, but she never lost her desire to come to Canada.

THIS MONEY-SAVING MODERN PACKAGE

by Mary Blake

I'm all in favour of the convenience, protection, and usefulness of modern food packages. But I certainly like better still a modern package which also saves me money—like the red-and-white-labelled Carnation Milk can.

Just imagine this—every quality that milk, in its ordinary form, has, extra qualities of convenience and usefulness—and a saving in money!

Carnation is whole milk evaporated to double richness—only water taken out. But look what you get—keeps indefinitely on the pantry shelf; takes the place of cream for coffee, cereals and for whipping; makes all milk dishes (custards, ice cream, soups, sauces, puddings) smooth in texture, because it is homogenized; adds extra "sunshine" vitamin D; is specially recommended by doctors for baby feeding.

But prove all this for yourself. Get a few cans of Irradiated Carnation Milk from your grocer. Try it in your own recipes. Send for the beautifully illustrated de luxe Carnation Cook Book and try some of its recipes. 15¢ (postpaid. Carnation Company, Ltd., Toronto, Ontario.

RICE-CREAM PUDDING

(an economy dessert from the Carnation Cook Book)

¼ cup uncooked rice, ¼ cup sugar, 2 cups Carnation Milk diluted with 2 cups water, ¼ teaspoon salt, ¾ cup raisins, ½ teaspoon vanilla. Into a deep baking dish place rice, sugar, milk and salt. Bake in moderate oven (375°F.) until a brown crust forms. Stir this under and continue baking until crust has been stirred under three times. Add raisins, reduce heat to 350°F. and bake until rice is very tender. Remove from fire and add vanilla. Serve hot or cold with Caramel Sauce—1 cup brown sugar, ½ cup Carnation Milk, ½ teaspoon butter. Combine ingredients, cook 3 minutes in double boiler.

ROYAL PUDDING? HERE'S RECIPE

This One Built for Six People and Within Rationing Restrictions

London, Dec. 19 (CP).—The King and Queen have stirred the royal Christmas pudding and have made a wish to comply with the old English ritual and though the wishes remain a secret the recipe for the pudding is made public.

Here is the recipe, devised to meet rationing of certain ingredients suitable for serving six persons: ¼ pound brown bread crumbs; ½ pound finely chopped beef suet; ¼ pound ground walnuts; ¼ pound flour; 1 teaspoonful mixed spice; 1 egg (not absolutely necessary); a pinch of salt; a little old ale.

Allow to boil about seven hours.

Walnuts for the Royal pudding were gathered at the Royal grounds at Windsor while the carrots were grown in what used to be the Royal flower gardens at Sandringham.

PATRICIA AT 12 LONDON HEROINE

Doctor's Daughter Crawled Through Fire and Bombs to Air Her Father

London Dec. 19 (CP). — "Dear Madam," said the letter in which Patricia Dalton receiver congratulations for her work during air raids. They judged Patricia's age by her actions, apparently. She is only 12 years old.

The congratulations came after neighbors told how Paddy ("if you please") scrambled through bomb wreckage to carry morphia syringes to her father, Dr. P. P. Dalton, ministering to trapped victims.

Paddy's mother prepared the syringes and was getting ready to carry them to her husband but the girl, clad only in pyjamas, insisted that because of her size it would be an easier task for her than for her mother.

Part of the wreckage was burning and bombs were falling all around the neighborhood but Paddy completed her task and then went back to the shelter to comfort her six-year-old brother whom she had carried to a safe corner after the bomb demolished the building next door.

Two nights later she discovered an incendiary bomb at her back door and ran for sand and water, at the same time calling to her father. The doctor extinguished it and Paddy refilled the pails in case of further emergency.

"Afraid of bombs," she repeated after a reporter, "don't be silly. I'm 12."

SILK STOCKINGS REPAIR BUREAUX

Bare Legs Out as Christmas Comes and Coverings Have Variety

London, Dec. 19 (CP).—Bare legs have all but disappeared from London streets. In many cases they have been covered by slacks, synthetic silk stockings—and even cotton ones.

The bare leg fad, which had been increasing rapidly during the warmer weather, reached its peak just after the government announced that silk stockings in future would be available only for export. But then the cold weather had to come along and spoil it all for the girls.

So then the girls in slacks began appearing in greater numbers, especially during week-ends. Those who remained loyal to the stocking habit began appearing in coarser silk hose. The only ones who got a break at all were the elderly women who were able to pull on their dull-colored cottons without feeling they were disobeying any edict of fashion.

Silk stockings still are available but the average girl feels she cannot afford to pay the equivalent of $1.25 a pair for hose that she would have scorned prior to the war. The result is that they cling to their best silk hose, even though they may display a couple of "runs".

Even that, however, is to be remedied if plans materialize for chain silk stocking "repair shops". The idea for establishing the repair shops comes from Frederick George Philpott, former manager of a monnern controlling £10,000,000 ($44,500,000) worth of real estate, who figures "this hobby" will help him pass his time and at the same time help innumerable women as well as giving employment to hundreds of others. More than a score of menders are being trained now and within a few months he hopes to have personnel sufficient to staff shops all over the country

WRONG RECIPE FOR ECONOMY

Odessa, Neb., Dec. 19 (CP).—The rapid rate at which her cookie jar emptied so amazed Mrs. Everett Elliott that she decided to find out how many her family really could eat.

For an entire week she baked four dozen cookies daily and tossed in a few cakes for good measure. Her husband and two small sons ate them all.

She gave up the experiment.

HER BOMBED HOME NOW CAT SHELTER

London Woman Also Takes in Pigeons When Air Raids Disturb Them

London, Dec. 19 (CP).—Mrs. Caroline Roberts' home has a gaping bomb hole in the roof but she refuses to leave for a safer refuge because of her friends—the animals.

Scores of cats in one of London's most heavily bombed districts make their way to the 65-year-old widow's home every night after the alert has sounded. There they find supper and a fire beside which they lie and purr all night.

"When the bombs fall particularly close, I go under the stairs and the cats follow me there," said Mrs. Roberts. Cats aren't the only visitors, however. In the morning, 50 pigeons, whose croft in a nearby church was disturbed by a bomb, show up at the front door for a breakfast of crumbs.

DAY-AFTER MEALS CAN BE HIGH HAT

New York, Dec. 19 (CP).—Those "day-after" meals will slide smoothly on the heels of a holiday dinner, providing you plan it that way.

The clever homemaker takes the tag ends of a feast and turns them into tasty menus.

Special leftovers sometimes go high hat. For instance, duck a la king, turkey souffle, oyster shortcake, lobster Newburg and mushroom croquettes often evolve from humble origins.

SUGGESTS WOMEN FOR HOME GUARD

British Woman M.P. Says Young Women Fighters Better Than Elderly Men

London, Dec. 19 (CP).—Dr. Edith Summerskill, Labor member of parliament for West Fulham, wants the ban raised on women joining the Home Guard.

An expert marksman—she is the only woman member of the Houses of Parliament Rifle Club—Dr. Summerskill believes many women can help the war effort more with a rifle than with knitting needles.

"There is a tremendous potential strength in our villages of 'tough' single young women," she said. "Women could do patrol watching or picketing perfectly well."

Dr. Summerskill believes strong, healthy women would make far better Home Guards than elderly men and when the government statement on Home Guard reorganization comes up in the House for discussion she intends to ask why women should not be allowed to join.

"Prejudices against women are dying," she said, "but they are dying too slowly."

A QUICK CHANGE for your evening frock with its very deep neckline is a bolero made entirely of gold sequins. It turns it into a smart dinner dress.

MRS. CORNELIUS BEECKMAN

Flowers, Books Appropriate Gifts to Ill Nun

Dear Mrs. Beeckman,

1.—Is it proper to send flowers to a sick nun? What kind would you suggest? What other gifts can I give her?

2.—Should one answer when one receives thanks? What is proper to say at such an occasion?

3.—Is a priest introduced to an old or a young lady in the same manner as any other man?

Reader

1.—Yes, it is kind and proper to send flowers to a sick nun. A box of all-white flowers would be especially lovely. Books are always welcome to a recuperating patient, and so are fruits, if they are permitted.

Almost all letter-paper manufacturers now offer packages of paper especially designed for nuns and priests. The most popular one is a beautiful white box with a cathedral rose-window sketched on it.

2.—Yes, we do respond to the expression of thanks by saying, for instance, "You're very welcome, Mary. I was so happy to do it" or "It was such a pleasure to do it Jane, that I should thank you". We shouldn't say, "Don't mention it". We should, instead, take for granted that the other person would "mention" it, but that we had pleasure in being of service.

3.—Yes, the only difference is that instead of saying "Mr., we say, "Father", "Father Burke".

Consult Fiance's Parents on Plans

Dear Mrs. Beeckman,

I am planning to have an engagement reception. It was a day after plans had been made before I had an opportunity of calling up my fiance's parents. I was criticized by them for not asking them if my plans for a reception were agreeable to them.

I contend that because I am making the plans for the affair, it is not necessary to consult them in the matter other than to invite them.

Please tell me whether I was right in taking this attitude.

G.

I agree with you that there was no reason why your fiance's mother and father should have criticized you for not consulting with them about your reception. After all, you did let them know at once.

However, if I were you, I'd learn a lesson from the fact that they were so outspoken in their reactions to your plans. Apparently they are the kind of people who like to be consulted about things, and so, to promote peace and goodwill in the future you had better make a special point of talking plans over with them.

It's very important, as you know, to start things off on the right foot when you are to have such close relationships with people, and it will take only some wise forethought to take them into your confidence and thus keep them contented and happy.

Advice to the Lovelorn

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

Warnings Have No Terror for Spendthrift Wife

Would that any word of mine could stay a spendthrift, make him or her "pause and reflect", as the clergy tell us. But a warning to a wasteful spender is similar to crooning in a boiler factory. Here's a letter that came to me in the morning mail:

"Dear Miss Fairfax:

"I wish you'd write an article on the great necessity for a wife to study household economy, and pointing out the importance of learning to live within an income. My wife reads your column every day and wouldn't fail to see it. I've tried to discuss it with her, but she just laughs at me, knowing that I'll manage somehow.

"I'm making a fair salary, but one never knows what can happen, and I believe in laying aside a little for the proverbial 'rainy day'.

"Newly Married"

Before proceeding, let me say that an unrestrained passion for spending is not monopolized by either sex. If women shop, men gamble. Tailors turn out quite as many male fashion plates as department stores help to "doll up" the women.

A manly hand often as not proves to be a sieve through which the dollars seep. But this time we'll have to make a reply in favor of "Newly Married". A great many young husbands write me about their wives' extravagance—and some husbands not so young, and some that are so old that they've given up in despair.

These men all give me the same line—unless a wife will assist and plan to economize in youth, there's nothing ahead but a poverty-stricken and dependent old age.

But warnings have no terrors for the born spender—the genuine spendthrift who scatters money for the "kick" of spending. It's really a quest for stimulation, like drinking or drug-taking. Have you ever watched women bidding against each other at an auction, for stuff they really don't want?

It's the game of making money fly, rather than the desire to acquire possessions, that fires these squanderers. Husbands of such women never prosper. They take on extra jobs—do evening work, they economize and strain and stint to get the bills paid and a little ahead for the nest egg.

More than likely when they come home at night, from earning a few extra dollars, it's to stumble over a piece of unnecessary furniture. Such husbands are only too well acquainted at their places of business with collectors who begin by oily pleasantries and then "turn nasty" when the cash is not forthcoming.

Any women who isn't willing to cut her expenses to the vanishing point when she's young—and a little pinching here and there doesn't come hard as it does in middle and later life—is not only a poor wife but a poor sport as well.

If you'll delve into the histories of the millionaires of this country, you'll make the interesting discovery that almost every one of them was helped to climb money ladder by an economical and capable wife.

Many women are foolish about money because—fatal mistake of married life!—their husbands do not take the trouble to tell them the actual amount of their incomes, the prospects and possible disappointments. Women often plunge because they don't know the value of money and the exact amount of money to be depended upon. When this happens, the spendthrift wife is a liability of the husband's own creation.

Dr. Dafoe's Column on the Quintuplets and the Care of Your Children

Coughs

The physician is often asked, "What's the best thing for a cough?" He has to reply "Which one?" for there are at least 25 different causes of coughing, and the best treatments for them vary widely.

Of course, the most common cause of a cough is a cold in the throat or chest. Inflamed adenoids or tonsils may bring on coughing spells, as well as measles, or a tumor of a lung, or inflammation of the aesophagus. Coughing is one of the symptoms of pulmonary tuberculosis, of asthma, of influenza, of bronchial pneumonia, of lobar pneumonia.

Then, too, we have such a thing as a heart cough. The patient coughs because there is an abnormal condition affecting his heart.

If a man is a heavy smoker, he may have coughing spells in the morning when he rises, and he may get them at different times during the day as well.

All these conditions with which coughs are associated to show the futility of attempting to cure a cough by yourself with one of many preparations offered as remedies for coughs. Soothing the cough doesn't get rid of the cause.

Taking a medicine or a drug to stop coughing isn't always a wise step. The cough is often a very helpful physical reaction, serving the purpose of expelling some foreign substance or secretion from the respiratory tract. If there is something there that needs to be expelled you, by taking something to stop your cough, are interfering with nature's attempts to clear up the condition that is causing the cough.

A cough may be of a comparatively harmless physical irritation, or it may indicate the presence of a serious ailment. Consequently, if a cough persists, the wisest course to follow is to have an examination made of you by a doctor. Of course, the great majority of persons don't want to visit a doctor every time they cough, so they must endeavor to seek relief with home remedies in the hope that the cause will clear up. A cold that seems to be caused by a dry irritation or tickling in the throat is often helped by the use of cough drops. The sugar in the cough candy soothes the irritated membranes in the throat and the cougher gets some relief. In my opinion one doesn't need to stick to cough drops to get this relief, almost any hard candy will do as well.

About the best home remedy I know for a cough is warm drinks. Tea is good, or hot lemonade or hot milk. A big drink of any of these taken every hour will often do wonders for a cough, particularly the dry cough that brings up secretions with difficulty.

Steam is sometimes good for a cough, all you need for the treatment is an ordinary tea kettle. Take it off the flame when it begins to steam, throw one end of a towel over the spout of the kettle and the other over your head, then gently inhale the steam.

Norway, Sweden Babies Are Loaded With Gifts

In many districts of Norway and Sweden every baby born on Christmas day is the recipient of many gifts and bounties from all quarters. He receives a bounty from both the ecclesiastical and civil authorities, and in some districts these bounties amount to a considerable amount of money, which is generally invested until the child is of age.

The children that are born to some classes of the people in Naples on this happy day are visited by "Wise men"—who are selected by some philanthropic society—and are presented with imitation stones which are valued highly by the children in later years, even supernatural qualities being ascribed to them.

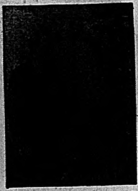
CHRISTMAS PLAY

By KATHERINE EDELMAN

The town hall was wreathed with holly and mistletoe. Bright red bells hung from the old-fashioned chandeliers. Christmas candles sent their glow into the night. The whole place cried out welcome to the crowd who thronged through the doors.

By eight o'clock every seat was occupied. Small gossip and murmurs of expectancy ran through the crowd. The little town was proud of the boy who was taking the leading part in the play. They had known Ted Rawlings all their lives. Known him as an easy-going lad, interested in nothing more than fishing and hunting around the country, and later as an astonishingly changed ambitious fellow. No one seemed to understand how the quick transition occurred.

All eyes turned to the stage as the heavy curtain rolled upward. Three hundred pairs of eyes fastened themselves upon the moving, speaking figures. "Isn't Ted wonderful," young girls whispered breathlessly to each other. Between acts, thunderous bursts of applause filled the room. Hands clapped with vehemence. Small boys made their approval known by shrill whistling.



"Ted, you were perfectly wonderful," Sally was saying.

Ted carried the audience with him every step of the way. He seemed to enter, to merge himself completely in the character he portrayed. His make-believe was so intense in the last act, that there was a deep silence for a moment when the final curtain fell.

For the time it was no make-believe to Ted. He was living again all the agony of parting, of seeing Sally Howard go away without a word. He had been sure until her train pulled out that she would come and say how sorry she was for the bitter, reproachful words she had hurled at him. Words that had left their mark upon his soul—that had stung him into a mad, ambitious desire to show her what he could do.

He found no real satisfaction in the tumultuous applause that followed. In this hour of his triumph, his heart cried out for Sally. If only she was here! If only she had cared! He scarcely knew what he was saying in answer to the lavish congratulations.

Suddenly small hands pressed tightly around his arm, and a remembered voice spoke in his ear. "Ted, you were perfectly wonderful," Sally was saying, "wonderful, wonderful. I'm so proud—so proud of you."

"But, Sally, I don't understand. I thought you were in New York."

"I was, until last night. I've been keeping track of you. I knew all about the play, and—and the way you have been working lately. I wouldn't have missed this for anything in the world."

"But the things you said, Sally? They hurt—they still do."

"I wanted them to hurt, Ted. I know—I know it was cruel, but there seemed no other way. Someone had to give you the right kind of push to get you going. You know you were really lazy? But now, well, you've really put on speed."

"Nothing like the speed I'm going to show in getting ready for a Christmas wedding. There's just two days left. We've got to make it a really big event. Let's give out the announcement now—while the crowd is still in the hall."

Great Yule Feast Given By King Richard in 1399

Christmas in England, of course, is an old feast day, though the Santa Claus and Christmas tree traditions come to us from another source. William E. Mead's "The English Medieval Feast" (Houghton, Mifflin), quotes from Stow's "Survey of London", an account of the great feast which King Richard gave in Westminster Hall in the year 1399, just after rebuilding the hall of William Rufus:

"A most royal Christmas, with daily joustings and runnings at tilt, where unto resorted such a number of people that here was every day spent 28 or 26 oxen, and 300 sheep, besides fowl without number; he caused a gown for himself to be made of gold garnished with pearl and precious stones, to the value of 3,000 marks; he was guarded by Cheshire men and had about him commonly thirteen bishops, besides barons, knights, squires, and others more than needed; insomuch that to the household came every day to meet 10,000 people, as appeareth by the messes told out from the kitchen to 300 servitors."

for a Lovely Lady!

EVEN A GRAND PIANO WILL FIT A CHRISTMAS STOCKING'S TOE

By PATRICIA MONTCLAIR

Gifts for the girl friend are such a major undertaking with most beaux . . . "now, if I choose that, will she think I'm too serious . . . too stingy . . . too dull . . . too cold?" . . . that many a gallant finds himself tearing about on early Christmas Eve without an idea in his mind and Santa Claus already clucking up his reindeer.

Here is a list of last-minute suggestions which can be found (or something very like them) in almost any shop just before the final Christmas sales are closed for the year. With the exception of the ermine jacket and the shell bijoux, your neighborhood druggist, if necessary, can dig up the other items for you.

The way to handle a deluxe gift at the last minute, is, of course, to write the lady a voucher for her fur jacket, diamond wrist watch, or whatnot; camouflaging your dilitory performance with the plea that she must choose the model herself, and that the surprise couldn't be spoiled before December twenty-fifth.

Any type small clock is a good choice . . . helps a girl keep a date on time; perfumes are invariably acceptable; smoking accessories — trays, lighters, cases, boxes—make a household hit; cut flowers or a corsage express something or other held good; well styled vacuum bowls for ice cubes foster future hospitality; sweets to the sweet, meaning candy; smart stationery; make-up kits packed in luggage pieces; picnic kits designed to hold thermos bottles and sandwich box; a good book! . . . all these are sound notions. No reason, either, why you can't get them tonight and spend Christmas Eve wrapping them prettily.

BORN 25 OUNCES NOW 25 POUNDS

Toronto Girl at 22 Months Gives Encouraging Lead for Tiny Babies

Toronto, Dec. 19 (CP).—Talking of "half-pint" babies who have made good, here's a word for Margaret Louise Bridel, who arrived as part of a valentine for a Toronto couple Feb. 14, 1939—she was one of triplets.

Margie was just one pound, nine ounces at the time. Today at 22 months she weighs 25 pounds and according to a reporter is a sprightly little elf, all smiles and happiness. "She comes up to you with her winsome little smile and makes friends right away; just loves having her picture taken."

Her triplet brother Donald, who weighs 35 pounds, is not so fond of the limelight, it seems. "He bawled loud and long as the flashlight bulb played about." He was no "bouncing" babe when he was born, either—just four pounds, four ounces. The third of the triplets did not survive.

Margie was an incubator baby and when she came home from the maternity hospital she had to have special feedings. Now she has sixteen teeth, eats like any other child of her age and is perfectly healthy, her mother says. There's one person Margie is a little jealous of, at the moment. That's brother Bobbie, aged six weeks. He arrived alone.

CHRISTMAS GREENS

The custom of hanging evergreens in the house during the Yuletide originally had a purpose beyond that of decoration. In olden days each kind of evergreen was believed to confer special blessings on those who passed beneath its boughs. To pass under holly inured good fortune throughout the year, bay meant victory, while laurel was supposed to impart a spirit of beauty and poetry.—Missouri Farmer.

IT'S MAN'S WORLD FOR CAREER WOMAN

Sufferance of Other Sex is Factor Says One Who Has Gone Long Way

New York, Dec. 19 (CP).—Louise Rousseau, who was a $25-a-week secretary three years ago, has a secretary of her own now, and that's the tastiest thing about her job as director of movie shorts for Pathe-RKO. She also likes swishing back and forth across the continent by airplane, and buying $35 hats, but says she doesn't really feel her oats until she starts dictating a letter. "Imagine me, dictating, instead of taking it!"

Miss Rousseau has a theory that whenever you find a successful career woman you'll find a woman who has managed to enlist the help of influential men, because it's still a man's world, and women get and hold the good jobs only by the sufferance of men.

As background for her work, Miss Rousseau studied metallurgy at the Massachusetts Institute of Technology. She says she took metallurgy because she knew she didn't want to be a librarian. She doesn't remember much about metals now.

YULETIDE SHOWER

By ELIZABETH EASTMAN

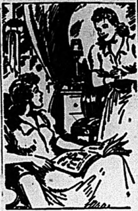
"I wish we could do something exciting — something different at Christmas." Peggy looked out at the winter landscape as she spoke.

"For instance?" Vivian Clark glanced up from the magazine.

"Something like making someone terribly, tremendously happy." Peggy came closer to her sister as she answered, and Vivian saw that she was very much in earnest.

"I've been thinking," Peggy went on, "how wonderful it would be to bring something thrilling — something unforgettable—into someone's life. I don't mean like helping with the baskets and the entertainments at the church; we've always done that; but a sort of special something for one particular person."

For a minute youthful voices surrendered to silence. The gay little clock on the dresser made audible sound. "I've thought of something!" she cried breathlessly, "something really different! You know Sara Werby—she's been an invalid for ten years—shut in from the world except for a few friends who run in every now and then."



"I've thought of something!" she cried breathlessly.

"But what can we do for her? We do visit her occasionally, and have always taken her a little Christmas gift. You know she's much too proud to accept charity."

"Who's talking of charity? What I have in mind is something that will just thrill her. I'm going to write to Mona Muir—you know, she runs that department on the Star—and I'm going to tell her how wonderful Sara has been, and ask a card shower for her."

Vivian whistled through her teeth. "Well, that is a grand idea, Peggy. I know she'll be thrilled."

"She's bound to be! Think of the postman stopping with loads and loads of mail every day." Peggy's blue eyes were dancing.

"But suppose people don't write? You know how busy everyone is at Christmas." Vivian's face reflected the doubt in her words.

"But they will write," Peggy's voice was emphatic. "I'm going to hold the thought that Sara Werby will be just swamped with mail."

Together they penned the letter to Mona Muir on the big city paper. Later, between snatches of shopping, they discussed the possible number of cards and letters that would be delivered at the little cottage on Bank street. They both seemed to be more concerned with what Sara Werby was going to receive than about what they themselves were going to get.

"It's funny how doing something for others gets a hold of you," Vivian said one day; "I wasn't nearly as enthusiastic as you at first, Peggy; now I believe I'm even more eager."

But their real happiness came on Christmas eve when they stood by Sara Werby's bed and saw the radiance upon her face. Stacks of letters, cards, and packages were piled everywhere, with postmarks from almost every state in the Union.

"It's the most thrilling thing that ever happened in my life," Sara told them. "I never knew there were so many wonderful people in the world. It will take me weeks and weeks to answer them all, but it's going to be loads of fun." Her brown eyes sparkled like a girl's.

"I imagine some of them will develop into lasting friends," Peggy ventured. "Vivian and I are so happy about it all—in fact, I think we're just about as excited as you are."

"You're pretty happy then," Sara Werby whispered softly, "for I don't believe there is anyone—anywhere—who is going to have a more thrilling Christmas than mine."

ONE WAY TO KEEP WARM

Perhaps the best of all possible ways to keep warm during the Yule season is to become employed as the fully outfitted Santa Claus in a basement toy department.

Christmas Essentially The Day of the Child

December the 25th is the Day of the Child.

It is upon this day of days that countless men and women and little ones barely able to speak their language utter the great rejoicing: For unto us a Child is born, unto us a Son is given!

Even those who hold creeds in which there is no Christmas feel the splendor of that cry, and those who have no formal creed at all, still know there is one of the 365 portions of the year which is essentially the Day of the Child.

It is the day when even the most unsentimental adult, long since congealed and hardened by the years, can hear in his heart the footsteps of the little ones. Today they are running about so eagerly all over the world pattering to see what good gifts may have been received, ardent with a hope that only young hearts can feel.

On this day the austere scientist who has almost quit believing in the very laws of astronomy which recently seemed so sure and stable, but which now seem dissolving in a midst of relativity—this careful professional skeptic becomes as a child himself, and considers it hard indeed if he cannot believe in Santa Claus, bearded fairy, godfather of the children.

On this day even those who have been the most careless feel like saying over reverently that beautiful prayer for wisdom in the rearing of children:

"Almighty God, heavenly Father, who hast blessed us with the joy and care of children; Give us light and strength so to train them, that they may love whatsoever things are true and pure and lovely and of good report."

For on this Day of the Child we all remember that the most precious gift we can bestow upon our children is a capacity for feeling just such tender and generous and helpful emotions as today stir in the breasts of all good men and women. —Seattle Post-Intelligencer.

CANADIAN WOMAN HELPS BRITAIN'S ECONOMIC FIGHT

Formerly With League of Nations, Miss Mary McGeachy Coming to America After Busy Days in British Service

By HAROLD FAIR

(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

London, Dec. 19 (CP).—In a bare little office tucked away in a rambling London building, Mary McGeachy of Sarnia, Ont., spent long hours poring over a maze of statistics showing the intricacies of world supplies of raw materials needed for Britain's war machine.

Now she is leaving London to act as the representative of the British Ministry of Economic Warfare in Canada and the United States. Miss McGeachy will have her headquarters in the British Embassy at Washington. She expects to spend Christmas in Sarnia.

Miss McGeachy, a University of Toronto graduate who majored in history, was summoned here from her League of Nations job at Geneva just before France collapsed last summer and has been working with the Queen's brother, Hon. David Bowes-Lyon, in the press section at the Ministry of Economic Warfare.

But hers is more than a mere publicity job. It requires hours of study and discussion to learn the ramifications of the ministry—how to blockade Germany effectively, how to snatch from under the enemy's nose materials necessary for his war effort

"I spend about ten hours a day at it," she said, "but why shouldn't I? After all we're winning the war. I arrive at my desk around 9:30 in the morning and finish about six and then work two or three hours after dinner reading and talking in our air raid shelter on the first floor which is considered safe."

"I spend about ten hours a day at it," she said, "but why shouldn't I? After all we're winning the war. I arrive at my desk around 9:30 in the morning and finish about six and then work two or three hours after dinner reading and talking in our air raid shelter on the first floor which is considered safe."

That is the routine four days a week and something similar is followed the other three when she moves to the country for a rest from London's nightly pounding. "I had a home for six weeks but too many times bombs fell around it," she explained.

Except for some yellow roses on a table, it looked like any business office when The Canadian Press met the blond Canadian who talks in terms of oil, aluminium, minerals and how Britain seeks to put a big crimp in Germany's supplies. The roses were only a temporary fixture, however. It was Miss McGeachy's birthday "but don't ask me which one".

Busy Career.

Miss McGeachy first came to Europe to work with student relief organizations which helped establish residence in continental universities after the First Great War. From there she went to Geneva to become British Dominions Officer at the League and remained ten years, with frequent trips home.

While at the League, she undertook a study of raw materials which provided a good foundation for her present work. The study showed the only thing keeping Germans from the world's supplies of materials was the Reich policy of trying to make slaves of the trading countries instead of buying and selling on a fair basis.

"Like a bolt from the blue" last summer a summons to London arrived the week-end before France gave in to Hitler. She started to drive to Marseilles by way of Lyons but the country was "filled with Germans" she returned to Genoa and stayed for two weeks before obtaining a permit that brought her to Portugal

One night a plane landed her in England and the next morning she was at her task.

"After all, I started the job in a hurry and it needs a great deal of study," she said in explaining her long hours. "That's one advantage of living here."

Miss McGeachy likes to talk of Britain's two-edged blockade — the Royal Air Force battering Nazi aluminium factories and oil plants, and the navy shutting off supplies. What appeals to her most is the ministry's possibilities in peacetime. It provides Britain with a ready-made set-up for economic reconstruction.

You suppose he'd rather be doing this work than being back home. "Don't ask that," came the reply. And ou felt the St. Clair River and Kettle Point would be pleasant sights to her.

TRAILER HOMES DODGE BOMBERS

London, Dec. 19 (CP)—Trailers have become a popular alternative to country houses for many Londoners whose homes have been bombed. Hundreds of people who normally live here and in other bombed areas are living in trailers in quieter spots in the country. They chose the trailer because of the shortage of housing accommodation in many country districts.

Manufacturers, hindered by a restricted supply of building materials, cannot cope with the demand for new vehicles and second hand trailers are difficult to obtain.

ANXIOUS TO MARRY BOMBED-OUT FAMILY

London Man Would Take the Plunge and Has Lots of Offers

London, Dec. 1̶9 (CP). — Twenty women are prepared to marry a workingman they have never seen or even heard about until he wrote a letter offering a home to a woman who had been bombed out of her home.

The man made his offer known to officials of the "Save the Children Fund", and said he was prepared to marry and provide a good home for a woman with children. He stipulated that the woman must be a "working class female about fifty years old with one son and a daughter".

Within three days twenty letters were received, one from a woman who explained: "I'm afraid my looks are not in the front rank but I'm a jolly sort and try to make most of my good points." She didn't qualify, however, because she was living in a "safe area" and had not been bombed out of her home.

RECLUSE EMERGED CHRISTMAS ONLY

Wealthy "Witch" of Blackheath is Dead Probably of Starvation

London, Dec. 19 (CP).—Starvation has claimed the life of the "Witch" of Blackheath, a wealthy recluse whose partly-mummified body was found in her suburban home which no other person was ever seen to enter.

She had lived alone as Miss Briannie Margon Alice Heslop in a deserted-looking villa on Shooter's Hill Road and had become almost a mythical character. She appeared to have no friends and it was "three or four years ago' 'that neighbors last saw her strange little form moving behind the hedges of her garden.

Even before that, the 60-year-old woman was seen only at Christmas times and she always was dressed in black hat and coat which gave her the appearance of a witch. She was never seen talking to anyone. Her gardener, Sam Vidler, said he had never spoken to her; that he got his pay by cheque and that whenever he knocked at the door there was no reply.

It was behind the seldom-opened door that police found the decomposed body, part of which was mummified, the doctor said. He was unable to say how long she had been dead nor could he say to what death could be directly attributed. It was known, however, the woman had lived only on biscuits and canned goods which had failed to provide her with sufficient nourishment and the coroner decided death was due to "shock and heart failure as a result of improper dieting."

Money, bonds and stock shares were found in tins in the house, one of them near the body of Miss Heslop who was believed to have inherited money from a wealthy relative whose death was reported in a newspaper clipping found among some banknotes.

Vidler told the coroner his mistress always had kept the blinds drawn and "appeared to be eccentric". He said that "if you saw her at night you probably would have thought she was a witch."

SHOPPERS' CORPS HELP CANADIANS WITH CHRISTMAS

Women of Beaver Club Buy Soldiers' Presents for Them and See That They Are Wrapped and Sent

By HAROLD FAIR
Canadian Press Staff Writer

London, Dec. 19 (CP)—Envy Canadian soldiers in England, all you fellows at home harassed by the annual bugbear of Christmas shopping The Beaver Club, hospitality centre for the Dominion's forces, selects and mails the present for them.

Any of Canada's fighting sons wanting to send presents to the folks back home just goes to the club, specifies how much he wants to spend and women shoppers do the rest.

"Gee, I couldn't sleep nights thinking of Christmas shopping," one lad told Mrs. Patrick Ashley Cooper, wife of the Hudson's Bay Company governor, and one of the club's ace shoppers. Co-chief of the shopping service with Mrs. Geo. Davidson, she went touring the stores and made this private's 10-shilling note ($2.23) really stretch.

She bought presents for his father, mother and sister, wrapped them in tissue paper—and isn't ther, mother and sister, wrapped Christmas seals and posted the parcel to the man's family "somewhere in Canada."

To Help the Boys

Idea for the service came to Mrs. Davidson after she heard that some other organization offered to select gifts. "Why couldn't we do that for our boys?" she asked. And the club added still another link to its long chain for help to the Canadians. "The average boy does not know how to spend his money wisely at Christmas and hasn't the time," she said. "We decided to offer to do it for him."

No assignment is too tough for these shoppers, all of them women with an eye to value and a determination to make the troopers' money count. One man saw a pyjama-clad figure life-size rabbit in the window of a smart London store and decided it would be just the thing for his daughter.

"They didn't like to remove it from the window but—well, it's on the way to Canada, now," Mrs. Ashley Cooper related.

Another posed a real problem. He wanted them to buy something for "dad, mother, sis and two sweethearts." He hadn't quite made up his mind which was Sweetheart No. 1 but thought one of the girls should have a gift costing about 12 shillings six pence ($2.78.) while 10 shillings ($2.23) should suffice for the other.

The Picture Helps

Most of the Canadians have a general idea what they want—something English, a souvenir or some Irish linen. Others show the shoppers a picture of the person for whom the gift is intended "and we obtain a pretty good idea from that what to buy," Mrs. Ashley Cooper said.

Soldiers' mothers require the most shopping attention. The boys always tell the women to spend twice as much money on mother as on dad.

Some got the idea of having Christmas messages on a phonograph record. It took considerable sleuthing on the part of the club to find a place making such records but they finally succeeded. So don't be surprised if familiar voices suddenly boom in the next house or apartment which you thought had a son overseas.

NAVAL VICTORY TO FOOL ITALY

London, Dec. 19 (CP).—Attacked by an Italian submarine, the S.S. Baron Erskine, a merchantman of 3,656 tons, defended herself with her one gun and the submarine submerged without further fight.

This was the gist of the official report, released in London. But this is the Italian version of the incident

"An Italian submarine commander has a very smart action to record in that he has sunk the English auxiliary cruiser Baron Erskine of 10,000 tons by gunfire. The submarine and sighted two vessels but owing to the extraordinary rough sea was unable to use her torpedoes. In spite of enemy superiority the commander decided to exchange shots with the adversary and opened fire.

"He succeeded in sinking the Baron Erskine within eighteen minutes and submerged to extricate himself from the counter attack made by the other ship. In recognition of this splendid action the commander and crew of the submarine are awarded a silver medal, two bronze medals and nine military crosses."

BRISTOL HOST TO CANADIANS

English West Coast City Organizes for Entertainment of Troops

Bristol, England, Dec. 19 (CP).—Royal Empire Society members of Bristol, recently bombed heavily by German air raids, have inaugurated a plan for organized entertainment of Canadian troops, a practice they hope will be adopted throughout the United Kingdom.

The idea was formed by Society members in collaboration with members of the Bristol Canadian Club, who invited sixteen officers and privates from different Canadian units, chosen at random, to spend three days in the city.

During the three days the Canadians were taken on tours of the city and neighboring towns and later were guests of individual members with whom they were billeted. Part of the program was allotted to individual entertainment by club members who devised various ways of keeping their guests "on the go" for three full days.

The Canadians were given a block of seats at a special football game; were guests at luncheons and were given a special reception by the dean at the Bristol Cathedral.

One of the hosts expressed the hope Bristol's welcome would "break the ice and that all the hosts will invite their guests to return some time, or else invite other Canadian troops to visit them."

WOMEN ARE FIRST CHILDREN SECOND ON SANTA'S LIST

That is, Taking it Generally, as Big Store Experts Figure Out What People Buy for Christmas Gifts

By ADELAIDE KERR
(Associated Press Staff Writer)

While you are whizzing round on Christmas shopping tours, wondering what you are going to buy for John and Lala and Sue, most of Santa Claus' henchmen in the shops already know.

Santa's first line lieutenants in some large stores checked up on more than 3,000,000 gifts sold last year, and as a result of their findings the clerks behind counters just about know who will get what and how much.

They know for instance, that if 1940 shoppers behave according to rule,—women will receive 323 of every 1,000 gifts bought in department stores, while men will receive only 127. (It seems it's not always the woman who pays) They also know that youngsters will draw 302 presents out of the 1,000 and that the balance will be divided between gifts for the house and gadgets too varied to fit into neat gift classification.

Lingerie First

Here are some more interesting gift facts based on survey:

Women get more lingerie than any other kind of Christmas present. Out of every 1,000 women who will open gaily wrapped packages on December 25, 121 will get slips and panties, 93 will draw nightdresses and pyjamas and 39 will find housecoats or negligees. Stockings will say "Merry Chirstmas" to 112 and handkerchiefs to 97. When the gifts shower down from lighted Christmas trees 68 women will receive gloves, 66 handbags, 83 slippers and 34 gay gilets or scarfs. Santa Claus and you are going to help give them glamour too. Perfume is going to 24, compacts to 29 and beautiful shimmering jewels to 10.

Trend for Men

There must be something in that legend about the vanity of the male, for clothes are going to thousands of his sex. Out of every 1,000 men who rip open the wrappings of star-studded packages on Christmas, 272 will get shirts and 173 will have ties—and some of them will wear them. One hundred and seventy-three more men will draw socks, 74 will find gloves, 87 will say "thank you" for slippers and 50 more will receive belts, garters or suspenders.

In case you think women have a monopoly on Christmas gift underwear, let this brighten up your Christmas shopping; 37 males out of 1,000 are to receive some variety of underwear—ranging all the way from violent Hawaiian shorts to firemen's red flannels.

Children and Home

Of the 302 gifts that will go to children out of every 1,000 given, 215 will be toys and the rest clothing—shirts, ties, dresses, suits, slippers and such. The gift that boys will welcome with whoop of joy include scientific toys (chemistry and engineering sets), hobby gifts (toy airplanes, ship-models, paint boxes and modelling sets), sports equipment, trains, cowboy and Indian suits, soldiers and forts.

One out of every five toys given to girls will be a doll. Many others will be gifts for doll play—carriages, bassinets, clothes outfits, doll houses and furniture. The rest will be chiefly educational toys, indoor and outdoor games, theatrical dress-up outfits, painting and embroidery sets.

COURT WINDS UP H. AND B. LEAGUE

Judgment Against Famous Women's Groups Led by Former Prunella Stack

London, Dec. 19 (CP).—Compulsory winding up of the Women's League of Health and Beauty, famous pre-war fitness organization, was ordered in Chancery division by Mr. Justice Bennett. The League has languished in the more militant activities of wartime.

Petition for winding up was presented by the Express Lift Co., Ltd., London firm of general engineers. Judgment was given the creditors for £43 ($191).

The League, as a physical culture organization for the women of Britain, attained a membership of nearly 200,000 at the peak of its popularity. It was founded by the late Mrs. Bagot Stack. Her daughter, Lady David Douglas-Hamilton, has been leader of the League since 1935. Before her marriage in 1938 she was Miss Prunella Stack.

WAR'S NUISANCE TO CHELSEA MEN

Boys of Old Brigade Find it Irksome to Do Without Their Smokes

By DOUGLAS AMARON
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

London, Dec. 19 (CP).—The Chelsea pensioner took a puff at his pipe, cocked his good ear as though to listen to his own decision, and after due consideration conceded that "this here modern warfare is a danged nuisance".

That was quite an admission for an old warrior of 83 who roamed the globe for close to 40 years fighting for King and country against a foe who often was only a sabre's thrust away.

Bomb craters in well-kept flower gardens of Chelsea Hospital and broken roofs in some of the buildings where "Sergeant Jack" and 500 more retired soldiers are passing the last years of their life may have influenced his decision but likely only slightly.

A garden can be raked into place and sowed again, new glass can be put in windows and fresh tiles on the roof, but the peaceful routine of old age, once disturbed, is hard to resume.

And German air raids have disturbed the routine of the Chelsea pensioners. These picturesque old soldiers, who still wear medals for service and bravery and stripes of rank, haven't taken kindly to the disruption of daily life.

"Why dang it all, sir," said Sergeant Jack, "a soldier can't get a decent night's sleep any more. They bundle us off into the shelters at six o'clock and don't let us come back until seven in the morning."

A shelter, according to this veteran of Egyptian and South African service, is no place for an old man to spend the night. It isn't that the sleeping quarters are disagreeable, but there's a no smoking sign as you go in.

"I like my pipe," Sergeant Jack confided, puffing away at his well-burned briar, "and I like a smoke before I turn in. They let six of us up at a time for a smoke, but I like to take my time over my tobacco."

Belleville Reliance Scores Four Goals in First Period to Defeat Vimy Barracks Squad

Local Team Assured of Playoff Berth in Van Horne Cup Finals; Win 4 to 0

HOLWAY PLAYS

Former N.H.L. Star Returns to Ice Lanes With Strong Game on Defence

Clicking for four goals in the initial period the Belleville Reliance Aircraft seniors blanked the Vimy Signals 4 to 0 in the Van Horne Memorial Cup series in Kingston last night. In winning the Reliance sextette chalked up their second victory in four starts and cinched a play-off berth in the league finals.

Tabby Gow, former Kingston right winger, and "Tilley" Donihee, erstwhile Cornwall "Flier" front lineman, accounted for all of the goals scored by the winning Reliance sextette with Bill Hastie and "Speedy" St. Louis getting two timely assists. The "plane-makers" opened strongly and rapped home their quartette of counters before the "signal boys" became organized. Then the Belleville squad settled away to play a cautious game in the latter two frames and protect their advantage.

Sparks Defence.

Directing the rearguard efforts of the Reliance squad was "Toots" Holway, former N.H.L. defence star who played with the Montreal Maroons in 1926 to win the Stanley Cup. Holway, after three years of absence from the ice lanes, was lured out of retirement and proved a tower of strength on the Reliance defence as can be proved by the fact the Belleville squad chalked up their first shut out of the season with Holway teaming with St. Louis to balance the locals' defence efforts. Holway has been coaching the Belleville juniors for the past three seasons during which time he kept in close communication with the active part of the game.

In winning the Reliance sextette assured themselves of a play-off berth in the Van Horne Memorial series, while a victory over the Kingston City seniors on Friday night will move the local team into second place in the final league standing.

The line-ups:

Reliance Aircraft—Goal, Hewitt; defence, St. Louis and Holway; centre, Hastie; wings, Bennett and Gow; subs, Donihee, M. Storms, W. Storms, Leary and Sanderson.

Vimy Signals—Goal, Walshe; defence, Pownall and Streets; centre, Holmes; wings, Gleason and McCormick; subs, Green, White and Brown.

Referee—Bill Steen of Kingston.

Summary:

First Period

1.—Reliance....Gow 6.15
2.—Reliance....Donihee (St. Louis) 9.55
3.—Reliance....Gow (Hastie) .11.14
4.—Reliance——Donihee 18.00

Second Period.

No score.

Third Period.

No score.

Penalties—First period, none; second period, Sanderson and Holway; third period, none.

YOUTH MOVEMENT PAYS DIVIDENDS FOR RED WINGS

Three Clubs, Detroit, Montreal and Americans Well Stocked With Rookies

MOWERS IS GOOD

Tony Demers Has Fired Six Goals for Canadiens This Season

Three National Hockey League clubs—Detroit Red Wings, Montreal Canadiens and New York Americans—are well-stocked with rookies this season, but so far the only one able to make the youth movement pay dividends has been the Motor City team.

The Wings are holding down second place in the standing with a third of the season gone, which is quite a creditable showing when it is considered that the Americans and Canadiens are tied for the cellar spot.

One of the bright spots of the Wings' showing has been the work of goalie Johnny Mowers, a freshman to the N.H.L. wars. Other youngsters like Les Douglas, Arch Wilder and Joe Carveth have been showing up well but it remains to the veteran Syd Howe, a 10-year man in the league, to pace the team's point-makers.

Howe is among the top seven scorers in the league with six goals and eight assists. Another veteran who has been going surprisingly well is Alex Motter, converted from a forward and now the leading goal-getter among defencemen in the league with seven tallies.

The Wings lost their last start 3-2 in overtime to the Americans but they get the chance to make amends tonight for that defeat when they play Red Dutton's New Yorkers at Detroit. At the same time Canadiens, who have been showing better form in recent engagements, will take on Chicago Black Hawks at Chicago and New York Rangers will play host to Boston Bruins.

Top man for the Habitants so far this season has been Tony Demers, the man with the bulging muscles and the terrific shot. Demers has fired six goals. Americans haven't a man anywhere near the top among the scorers, their head man being the veteran Lorne Carr who holds down 27th place among point scorers with 10 other players.

HAS HEAVIEST HOCKEY SHOT

Pat Egan of Americans Has Heavy Puck Shot—Gardiner

Pat Egan, strapping young defence player of New York Americans in the National Hockey League, is rated by Bert Gardiner, goaler of Montreal Canadiens, as the heaviest shot in the game today. Gardiner, goaling last season for Philadelphia Ramblers in the American League, had occasion to face Egan many times as the big defenceman played for Springfield, scoring 12 goals during the part of the season he played. Gardiner declares a shot from Egan, if caught on a goaler's pads, will sweep his feet away, or floor him if he takes it on his chest-protector.

Martin Joseph (Pat) Egan was born at Blackie, Alta., in 1918. Last year Dutton brought him up to the N.H.L. for two games and he scored three goals against Toronto on March 17 in New York, by way of celebrating his Irish holiday. Egan is one of the six newcomers to the Americans this season.

Between Egan and Charlie Conacher, it seems quite certain Americans possess two of the hardest shots in hockey, both unleashing thunderous drives. Red Dutton, leader of the Americans, puts on both of these fire-ball shots whenever his team has the odd-man advantage over an opponent.

Zivic Installed 5-8 Favorite Over L. Jenkins

By BILL BONI
(Associated Press Sports Writer)

New York, Dec. 19 (AP)—Welterweight champion Fritzie Zivic meets lightweight champion Lew Jenkins at Madison Square Garden tomorrow night, and between 'em the boys almost have Promoter Mike Jacobs believing in Santa Claus.

In the past fights close to Christmas invariably have brought anything but Christmas cheer at the box office. Yet for this 10-rounder, in which neither title will be at stake, the Jacobs dollar-counters already have salted away some $18,000. On the Jacobs system of reckoning (patent applied for) this represents about one-third of the gross, meaning a crowd of anywhere from 15,000 to capacity.

Meanwhile the customers who back their favorites with cash have installed Zivic the pride of Pittsburgh, a 5-8 favorite over Jenkins, the pride of Sweetwater, Tex.

The reason most generally advanced for making Zivic the favorite is a comparison of both lads' performance against Henry Armstrong. Henry the Hammer pretty well cut Jenkins to ribbons inside of seven rounds, whereas only two months ago Zivic won the welter title from Armstrong by out-pointing him in 15 heats.

CALLING 'EM Between the Lines

with Ken J. Colling

The other day a small boy was nearly killed while sleigh riding down the Lingham Street hill, when his sled darted out into the Emily Street intersection directly into the path of a motor car. The motorist had no chance to avoid an accident and it was only a miracle that avoided a fatal accident, as the boy's sled was crushed to pieces when run over by the car. Fortunately the lad fell off the sleigh and only sustained minor injuries. The next time might not prove so fortunate, but to avoid any such repetition in the future it has been suggested to this corner that ski and sleigh runs and rides be opened by the city for the pleasure of the youth of the city and more so for the protection of their lives and limbs.

Several years ago certain streets were blocked off for the purpose of sleigh-riding, but this plan did not prove popular, especially to motorists who resided on the streets affected. There are several fine hills in Belleville, that could be opened by the city for the express purpose of skiing and sleigh riding and at exceeding little cost to the corporation. There are several ideal hills for such a project. For instance the hill coming off Warham Street south towards the bay bridge road, an ideal hill for sledding or skiing. Then there is the long hill immediately north of the Queen Victoria School grounds, running parallel with the city shunting line. Another ideal hill could be fitted up running in a northerly direction from Purdy Street towards Wallbridge Street in the West Moira Street sector. In every one of these cases the hills mentioned are not on or near city streets, thus eliminating the element of danger from vehicles.

In other cities throughout the province suitable ski and bob-sled runs are provided by the corporation, some coming at considerable cost where ramps have to be erected. In Belleville we are blessed with natural facilities for these winter pastimes, so why not avail ourselves of these facilities if for no other reason than to assure the safety of the children of the community? It should be rather an easy matter for the employees of the Department of Public Works to put such natural facilities as these into practical use at little or no cost. Even if such facilities did cost a small sum, any money expended to assure the safety of the children of the community and to insure the non-occurrence of the Lingham Street incident and the saving of one life would be merely incidental.

Along the same lines it is high time Belleville provided open air rinks for the children of the community. This was forcibly brought to light on Tuesday night when the large sum of $5.25 was realized at the Hume arena when the City Juvenile Hockey League presented a twin bill of juvenile hockey. If hockey players are to be produced in this city the youthful aspirants must be given an opportunity to practice the game. The Hume arena is in no position to provide adequate practice facilities for minor league hockey with two senior clubs and a junior O.H.A. making the arena their home ice. Other cities provide hockey cushions, Kingston erecting two such open air rinks this year. A small fee could be charged to maintain the upkeep, the city only being obligated for the actual construction of the cushions an improvised dressing room and flooding. A charge of five cents for adults for skating and a rental of 50c or a $1.00 an hour for hockey, such fees could be turned over to a caretaker as remuneration, thus eliminating the city from any subsequent cost of operation after the rinks were opened.

We understand the 34th Battery (N.P.A.M.) has organized a hockey team and issued a challenge to the Argyll Light Infantry daring the "gravel-crushers" to meet them on the ice lanes at the Hume arena some fine night this winter. The Artillery boys are boasting they've lined up a strong puck-chasing sextette and fear no foe of the ice lanes.

Do you remember when Ernie Schaaf pounded out a 10-round decision over Max Baer in his first big fight in New York 10 years ago tonight. Three years later Schaaf was pounded unmercifully by giant Primo Canerra and was carried to his corner while 20,000 fans yelled "fake." He died in hospital four days later.

After an absence of three years from active service on the ice lanes A.R. "Toots" Holway returned to his old love and teamed up with "Speedy" St. Louis on defence for the Reliance Aircraft sextette in Kingston last night. The fact the "plane-makers" hung up their first shutout of the season proves that Holway's influence on the defence was a factor to be considered. The Reliance squad blanked the Vimy Signals 4-0 registering their second win in four games and assuring themselves of a play-off berth in the Van Horne series. If the Reliance squad can win over Kingston on Friday night they'll vault right up into second place behind the Queen's seniors. Tabby Gow and Tilley Donihee scored all of the goals for the victors, which came in the initial period, we note.

QUEBEC RIFLES COMING STRONG

Move to Within Game of League-Leading Senators by Defeating Canadiens 7 to 3

Montreal, Dec. 19—(CP)—Quebec Royal Rifles moved to within a game of the league-leading Ottawa Senators last night when they defeated Canadiens 7-3 in the first game of a Quebec Senior Hockey League doubleheader. Royals, in third place in the standings, lost ground to Quebec when they were held to a 1-1 tie by the lowly Concordia sextette in the nightcap.

Two quick goals sent Quebec away to a flying start in the opener and they were never in danger of being headed. McClelland opened the scoring after little more than a minute of play and Smith made it 2-0 three minutes later. Canadiens came back into the picture halfway through the period on Meronek's counter, only to have Gaudrealt restore the two-goal lead for Royal Rifles.

Nicholson took a perfect pass from Stahan inside the defence for the only goal of the second period. Canadiens rallied to within two goals tying it up at the start of the third, but three goals in just over a minute sewed the game up for Rifles. Bessette tallied again for the losers with five seconds to go.

Royals and Concordia battled on even terms through the penalty-ridden first period of the second contest. Nine penalties were handed out in the 20 minutes, two of them 10-minute misconducts to Mundey and Acheson. Five more penalties, all minors this time, were handed out in the scoreless second frame.

The rough play really broke into a rash in the third, with 12 men parading to the penalty box, three with majors.

BARONS DEFEAT HERSHEY BEARS TO HEAD LEAGUE

Win by 6-3 Score With Goals Being Evenly Divided Among Barons

BUFFALO LOSES

Indianapolis Strengthens Hold on Fourth Place With 4-1 Victory

(By The Canadian Press)

One of the recognised measures of a top team lies in its ability to battle off the foremost challenger and Cleveland Barons of the American Hockey League can qualify today under that test.

The Barons opened up a wide lead in the league's western section with a winning spurt during the early days of the season. But Hershey Bears staged a strong stand coincident with a Cleveland slump in the past few games and moved into a tie with the Barons for first place.

With the teams all square in the standing, Hershey clashed with the Barons in Cleveland last night and the Barons regained first place alone with a 6-3 victory. It was one of two league matches, with Indianapolis Capitals defeating Buffalo Bisons, 4-1, in the other.

The Barons opened up a 4-0 lead in the first 12 minutes of their game in Cleveland to send the Bears back into second place in the section. Hershey rallied for the only goal of the second period, but Cleveland came back to outscore them 2-1 in the final frame.

Goals Divided Evenly

All the Cleveland goals were divided evenly, going to Les Cunningham, Don Deacon, Dick Adolph and Norm Locking in the initial period and Jake Milford and Freddie Robertson in the final frame. Harry Frost and Joe Krol tallied second-period goals for the Bears, with Barton getting the other.

Indianapolis meanwhile strengthened their hold on fourth place in the western division with their victory at home over Buffalo, last place squad in the section. The teams played a 1-1 deadlock in the initial period but the Capitals scored three unanswered goals in the next two frames for their fourth triumph in five games.

Tony Hemmerling opened the scoring with Buffalo's only goal half way through the first period but Joe Fisher knotted the count on a solo effort. Dick Behling scored the lone goal of the second frame unassisted to put Indianapolis in the lead and counters by rookie Jud McAtee and Ken Kilrea clinched the verdict.

LONDON MOHAWKS DEFEAT SAILORS

Third Win in Thirteen Starts Doesn't Take Team Out of the Cellar

London, Ont., Dec. 19 — (CP)—The London hockey public has had rather a famine in the cheering department this hockey season, but last night's 4-3 victory over Port Colborne made up for at least part of the deficiency.

In addition to the win being the third in 13 games for London in the Ontario Hockey Association senior "A" series this season, a local boy—Bill Legg—scored the winning goal in overtime.

Legg, who played junior and intermediate hockey here, snagged a loose puck in a corner, circled the net and beat Leo Sargent to climax the fast, wide-open contest.

The result didn't alter the standings leaving London in last place, four points behind the sixth place Port Colborne Club.

Umpo Concessi scored two goals for Port Colborne, Spike McLeod the other. Whitey Kowalski, Hank D'Amore and Dunc Galbraith counted for London during regulation time.

DIMAGGIO LEADS AMERICAN LOOP BATTERS IN 1940

Joe Rallies Late in Season to Hit at .352 Clip

BELOW 1939

Luke Appling is Second in Batting and Williams Third

Apparently the whiff of a possible fifth-straight pennant for the New York Yankees, propelled big Joe DiMaggio, premier outfielder of baseball, into a September hitting spree that enabled him to retain for the second year in a row the clouting championship of the American League in 1940. The slight running-down of the four-time flag-grabbers, who could not quite carry through their stretch drive, did not appreciably affect the personal performance of DiMaggio, as so frequently happens in such circumstances. It takes a real hitter to climb in September when the pitchers are loosened up at their best, but DiMaggio's competitive heart carried him on the wings of momentum to close the campaign with the league's premier mark of .352. This, however, represents a deterioration of 29 points from his remarkably high league-leading percentage of .381 in 1939.

During his finish sprint, DiMaggio passed on the paths both Rip Radcliff of St. Louis, who led the league in swatting most of the year, and Luke Appling of Chicago, the leading hitter of the circuit in 1936. Appling fell just four points short of the top with an average of .348, while Ted Williams, the hard-hitting Boston outfielder, also slipped home ahead of Radcliff. Williams' final average was .344 and Radcliff .342. Two points lower came a brace of the pennant-winning Detroit sluggers—Barney McCosky, and Hank Greenberg with identical averages of .340 each.

DiMaggio's late bid for the crown was supported by a previous batting streak in July when he went for 23 straight games from the second contest of July 4 through July 30 without getting a horsecollar. This was the longest hitting streak of the year in the league.

Among DiMaggio's 179 blows for the year were 31 home runs, as compared with the 30 he hit in 1939. He also had a total base figure of 318, as against 310 the previous season. The honors in homers went to Greenberg of Detroit with 41. Proving that he was a competitor like DiMaggio, Greenberg paddled 15 of his round-trippers during the pay-off days of the Tigers' pennant drive in September. This was only 3 below the one-month record of 18 made by his team-mate and first-basing successor, Rudy York. York was third in homers in the league in 1940 with 33. The previous year Greenberg was second with 33, as Jimmy Foxx of the Red Sox, hit 35. In 1940 Foxx's homer total was 36, or one better than his 1939 list, but it left him in second place instead of first this time in this important and spectacular factor of the sport. Foxx's total of 36 homers in 1940 made it the twelfth successive year in which he had blasted 30 or more for the route, and his tally of 36 also raised his life-time big league count to exactly 500 in 14 years. This places him second to Babe Ruth in the all-time records, displacing Lou Gehrig of the Yankees, who left 494 on the record books before his career was prematurely terminated by illness. Two of Foxx's titanic belts came with the bases jammed in successive games on May 20 and 21 against Detroit, tying a record set by Bill Dickey of the Yankees in 1937. Irrespective of his long blows, Foxx's batting average in 1940 dropped to .297—a shrinkage of 63 points from his 1939 figure of .360.

Total base honors in 1940 again were captured by Ted Williams of Boston with 384—a pick-up of 40 over the previous campaign when he had the high total base count of 344. Williams also took the lead in total runs scored with 134, which was five behind the 139 tally of Red Rolfe of the Yankees, the year before. In the run-scoring feature, Hank Greenberg of Detroit, who was second high for the season with 129, chalked up one or more runs per game in 15 consecutive games from July 24 to the first game of a twin-bill on August 5, inclusive. Another noteworthy scoring performance was that of Dominic DiMaggio of Boston, brother of the leading-hitter, who equalled the league record for most runs scored in a single game with a quintet of tallies against Washington on September 27.

In the difficult art of clouting triples, Barney McCosky of Detroit, was paramount with 19. That he is consistent in this clean-hitting feature is shown by the fact that he connected for 14 three-baggers in 1939, which left him only two behind the leader of that year. Johnny Lewis of Washington. Lewis sagged off to ten in 1940. In addition to leading in hitting the ball over the fence, Greenberg, of Detroit, was also supreme in banging it against the walls, as he came up with a grand total of 50 doubles in 1940. This was four above the leading total made by Rolfe of New York, in 1939, and 8 more than Greenberg himself smashed out that year. Rolfe, while seeing his batting average melt 79 points to .250 in 1940, also decined to a 26 total in hitting two-baggers.

The diadem for the most hits in the league in 1940 was shared by a trio of expert swatters, including Rip Radcliffe of the Browns, who set the pace in hitting until the final stretch, Barney McCosky of Detroit, and Roger "Flit" Cramer of the Boston Red Sox. Each player accumulated exactly 200 safeties during the race. This falls below the high total of 213 made by Rolfe of New York, the year before.

For the second year in succession there was no competition for Geo. Case of Washington, in the lost and neglected art of stealing bases, although he himself fell quite a bit below his previous year's exceptional record. In the full campaign of 154 games in 1940, Case swiped 35 bags. In only 128 games in 1939 the same alert speed demon accomplishel 51 thefts. The nearest competitor to Case in 1940 was his team-mater Gerry Walker, who pilfered 21 times in 140 contests. Joe Gordon, the crack New York second-baseman, was third on the list with 18, while Mike Kreevich of Chicago, and Johnny Lewis of Washington, each made the grade 15 times. While Case was thus making pillow-case history, Ellsworth Dalhgren of the Yankees, tied the league record for fewest stolen bases in 150 or more games with only a single successful cushion-lifting attempt in 155 games.

Consistency in a specialty was also demonstrated by Mike Kreevich, of Chicago, who for the second straight year set the pace for his circuit in successful bunting, with 21 sacrifices to his credit. This talent is really worthy of more commendation than it receives, since many ball players insist that it is more difficult to bunt consistently than to hit regularly. Also, there are a good many games in which the success or failure of a bunt is the tell-tale play. In 1939 Kreevich moved his man over just one more time—or 22 times. At the same time the Washington and Cleveland clubs tied the league record for fewest sacrifice hits by one club in a season with 61 each. This was the second time for such a low total for Washington, their other occurring in 1936. Washington's shortage of sacrifices may be accounted for by the fact that three of the Senators—George Case, Gerald Walker and Johnny Lewis—stole a total of 71 bases, precluding much sacrifice hitting; while Cleveland's short right field fence perhaps gave the edge to playing for long hits.

While the foregoing particular players had big seasons in their special fortes, other stars of the loop had some great and outstanding days or single games during the long campaign. For example, Joe Cronin, the splendid Boston shortstop and manager, and Joe Gordon, Yankee keystone star, each enjoyed the unusual feat of hitting for the cycle—single, double, triple and homer—during the course of the season. Cronin had his big and unusual day at the plate against Detroit on August 2 while Gordon achieved the same difficult feat against the Red Sox on September 8.

Frank Higgins, Detroit, third-basing star, smashed out three homers in the game against Boston on May 20, thus engraving his name on the comparatively short list of major leaguers who have done this. Charlie Kellar of New York, duplicated this feat in the first game of July 28 against Chicago. Ted Williams, Jimmy Foxx and Joe Cronin of Boston, clouted home runs in succession in the sixth inning of their game with the Athletics on September 24, equalling the major league record for this rare stunt.

Two pitchers of the league decided that turn-about was fair play when each contributed a brace of circuit clouts in a single game. These slugging-twirlers were Jack Wilson of Boston, and Spurgeon Chandler of New York. The former put the ball out of sight twice in the second game of a twin-bill with Chicago on June 16, while Chandler smashed two in a night game with the same team on July 26, one of his shots coming with the pillows packed.

Over the course of the race, Joe Kuhel, of Chicago, equalled the record of "Zeke" Bonura, for whom he was traded, for the most home runs for one player in one season on that particular club with 27. Bonura hit 27 for Chicago in 1934.

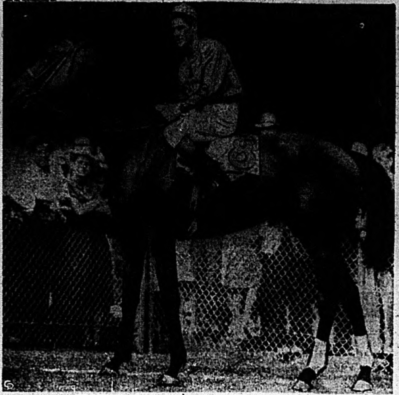
Home run hitting continued to be an American League characteristic in 1940 with numerous other examples of mass long range gunning. The high rate of home run hitting in the league shattered the circuit's record in total homers with 883, which was 19 more than the high mark of 1938. The league record for most extra bases on long hits in a season was also cracked with 5,842. The former record of 5,770 was made in 1936.

All in all, sixteen players in the league socked 20 or more home runs during the season for a new major league record, replacing the old figure of 15 made in the American loop in 1936. Six men—Hank Greenberg, 41; Jimmy Foxx, 36; Rudy York, 33; Joe DiMaggio, 31; Bob Johnson, 31, and Joe Gordon 30—smashed out 30 or more homers, tying the major league record for that many players in a league making 30 or more homers.

The flag-winning Tigers of Detroit, established a new major league record by hitting at least one home run per game in seventeen straight games, starting on September 4 and carrying on thru' September 19. During this streak 26 round-trippers sailed from the flag-hungry Tiger bats, Greenberg kicking in with 13 of these. The former record of 14 games in a row was held by two teams—Detroit in 1938, and the New York Giants in 1935.

OLD BLAKE HABIT

Toe Blake, one of the great left wings of the National Hockey League, has scored a goal in the Canadiens' first game in the last three years. He did not fail this year, scoring the only goal for his team against Boston on the opening night in Montreal. That goal meant a draw for the Canadiens.



CHALLEDON AGAIN PICKED AS "HORSE OF THE YEAR"

The first thoroughbred to be so honored, Challedon has been picked as the "horse of the year" for the second year in a row by American turf writers. William L. Brann's crack runner was awarded the title by 84 votes to 34 for Charles Howard's Seabiscuit. Challedon has won $322,860 in his three year career, which boosts him to sixth in the all-time list.

Records Broken Or Tied in American League In 1940

Only 37 Records Were Registered During Season of 1940, as Against 46 Last Year and 64 in 1938

HOMERS FEATURED

Bob Feller Hurled a No-Hitter on Opening Day at Chicago; Pytlak Sets Catching Record

A saturation point apparently is being approached in big league baseball records. In 1938 a total of 64 records were registered in the American League. The season of 1939 found this figure declining to 46, whereas in 1940 the count again shortened to 37.

The league record for total home runs was raised to 883, along with the total of most extra bases on long hits—5,842. The New York Yankees stretched their total of years leading in home runs to 21, and made their total of years of 100 or more homers nineteen—sixteen of them consecutive. The Yankees also raised the total of home runs in 5 consecutive games to 17, and the number of homers in 9 games in a row to 22.

The all-time total of three home runs in an inning for the league was raised to 28. Also the season saw 16 players hitting twenty or more homers for a new record. The flag-winning Detroit Tigers hit homers in 17 straight games, during which they totaled 26 home runs.

Boston had 29 extra bases on long hits on September 24 for a new major league record.

Frank Pytlack, Cleveland catcher, set a record of 571 consecutive chances acepted without an error.

Frank Crosetti of New York, was for the fifth straight year the leading target of the league's pitchers, which is a new record.

Bob Feller, of Cleveland, established a record by pitching a no-hit game on opening day at Chicago on April 16.

Connie Mack of Philadelphia, increased his record for most years as a manager to 43. Forty of these run consecutively with the Athletics.

Clint Brown, Chicago relief specialist, started his last game on August 18, 1936, against Cleveland, and since then ran his string of consecutive games as relief pitcher to 172.

N. H. L. Coaches Class as Players

If it was possible to roll back the years a short distance, the present-day coaches of teams in the National Hockey League would form a really great hockey club, that would be worth thousands of dollars.

Every manager in the league, except Conny Smythe of the Leafs, was a former professional star of note, but everyone of the coaches was a real star in his day.

Frank Boucher, coach of New York Rangers, was rated tops in his centre-ice position for many years. Cooney Welland of Boston Bruins, set an all-time scoring mark on that club, as pivot-man for the famed dynamite line. Dick Irvin, of Canadiens, led the N.H.L. in scoring one year, as centre for Chicago.

Paul Thompson of the Chicago Black Hawks, developed into a back-hand expert as a southpaw right winger for the New York Rangers.

All these were forwards. On defence, playing-coach Ebbie Goodfellow of Detroit Red Wings is one of the best in the league today. There is also Hap Day of the Leafs, one of the best rearguards the Toronto Club has produced in a decade, and "Red" Dutton, of Americans, who starred for years as an aggressive rearguard on Montreal Maroons and Americans.

For a goaler it would be necessary to step out of the coaching class, and annex a manager, Lester Patrick, who has batted 1000 as a goaler, would serve. He made one appearance in that role, stepping into the Ranger nets in a Stanley Cup game in 1928, against Maroons in Montreal, and his club amazed everybody by winning the match.

Bob Feller Carted Off Bulk Of American League Pitching

Although he was unable to carry his club to the pennant, as so many outstanding pitchers have done in the past, precocious young Bobby Feller of the runner-up Cleveland Indians, carted off the bulk of the twirling laurels in the American League in 1940. And that Feller had good support from his slab mates in holding up the Tribe is proved by the fact that Cleveland was high in the league in pitching with a club earned-run record of 3.63 per game.

Feller started the ball spinning right—right off the bat—when he blanked the Chicago White Sox without a hit, 1 to 0 on opening day in Chicago on April 16. This was the first opening day no-hitter in baseball history, and it was also Feller's first no-hit performance of his phenomenal career.

Some tangible evidence for the good showing of the Chicago White Sox is exposed in their second place earned-run pitching staff percentage of 3.74. The New York Yankees also had good hurling with a 3.89 record, while Detroit won the pennant with a pitching staff ranking only fourth in effectiveness with a record of 4.01 earned runs scored on them per game, indicating that since the advent of the lively ball the American League still was more a hitter's league than a pitcher's league, throughout 1940, at least.

Whereas Ernie Bonham of the Yanks, ranked first on the list in earned runs with only 1.91 per game, he pitched only a dozen contests, so the real leader, of course, was Feller with his 2.62 record for 43 games, 27 of which he won, for the league's high victory total, as against eleven defeats. This record ranked him ninth in the won-and-lost column, the leader of which was Archie McKain of Detroit, with five victories and no setbacks.

Closely following Feller in effectiveness was big Buck Newsom of the Tigers, with a 2.83 earned run figure for 36 games, 21 of which he captured, as against only 5 defeats, placing him fourth in the mound percentages. Feller and Newsom were the only 20-game winners in the circuit in 1940. After losing his opening game of the year on April 16 to St. Louis (in contrast to Feller's opening day no-hitter), Newsom came right back with 13 straight victories. It was not until July 28 that he lost his second game when the Athletics beat him in eleven innings.

Atlee Donald of the Yankees, who won 13 and lost 3 as a first-year man in 1939, ranked just below Newsom in effectiveness in 1940, with a 3.03 earned run record in 24 games, 8 of which he won, and 3 of which he lost. Johnny Rigney of the Chicago White Sox, proved that he pitched good steady effective ball all year by ranking just behind Donald with a 3.11 earned run record, although he lost 18 games, as against 15 victories. Two other White Sox pitchers were well up in the earned-run tables, with Southpaw Edgar Smith enjoying a record of 3.22, and the veteran Ted Lyons, turning in a figure of 3.24 as a "Sunday pitcher" while winning 12 and losing 8.

For the third straight year the same two men were first and second in strikeouts. Feller, as might be expected with his blazing speed, was way out in front in strikeouts with 261, Newsom following with 164. In 1939 Feller breezed 246, followed by Newsom with 192; and in 1938 Feller's strikeout total was 240 and Newsom's 226.

Feller appeared in more games than any other pitcher in the league in 1940, taking the slab in 43 contests, and he also pitched the most innings with a total of 320. He faced the most batters, 1,168; and was high in full games pitched with 31. Thornton Lee, Chicago left-hander, turned in 24 complete jobs, and Emil Leonard of Washington, 23., Newsom of Detroit, Red Ruffing of New York, Kendall Chase of Washington, and Elden Auker of St. Louis, each pitched 20 complete games.

LONDON SOCCER FACES BLACKOUT AFTER NEW YEAR

Government Declines to Lift Ban on Games During Alerts and Attendance Dwindles to Small Figures

MAY REORGANIZE

By DOUGLAS AMARON

(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

LONDON, Dec. 19 (CP)—Association football, beset by war problems, has run up against a snag that may lead to the London clubs quitting league play after the New Year.

The roof spotter system, expected to help draw larger crowds, came and went after only a week's trial. As an experiment it was a success and probably would have been adopted for all league games by the Football Association but the government refused to lift its ban on play during alerts.

The Ministry of Home Security reaffirmed its stand that all sports must be suspended when air raid warnings sound. The official viewpoint was that the risk of bombs falling on a crowd of spectators did not justify continuing play. It is understood that the main reason for the ministry's action was the possibility of a wild rush for shelter's when the spotter's warning was given and the likelihood of casualties being caused before all the people could reach them.

Comment Divided

Press comment on the decision was divided, some papers supporting the ministry and others sparing no criticism. It generally was agreed, however, that unless something is done to bring back the crowds, war-time football in London will die a natural death. The situation in the provinces, where air raids are less frequent, is not so serious. In London, however, scarcely a Saturday passes without at least one afternoon warning.

There's no way of knowing how long the alert will last, but more than one game has had to be abandoned because darkness came before the "raiders passed" signal. Spectators, with no assurance that they'll see more than a few minutes' play, have been staying at home. Millwall, which a year ago played to crowds of 15,000, had 500 fans at a recent match. Three important London games that never drew fewer than 150,000 spectators in peacetime, had a gross attendance of 5,000.

Will be Conference

Representatives of the London teams will meet shortly to discuss plans for the future. Charlton Athletic are expected to drop out of the league unless a solution is found and other clubs may follow suit.

It has been suggested that the London clubs form their own league for the second half of the season, inviting local amateur teams to play with them. By arranging such a competition there would be more local color to the games and lighter travelling expenses.

If no solution is found Londoners may see no more football after January 1 unless teams do as Clapton Orient did in a game against Queen's Park Rangers. Unable to field a full squad, Manager W. Wright appealed to the crowd of 200 for four volunteer players.

Three were chosen from the 20 who came forward and Wright kept goal himself. Orient lost the game 3-0 but their perseverance in keeping their colors flying won them the praise of all English football supporters.

Professional football doesn't exist on praise, however, so the conference of London managers is being awaited with more than usual interest.

CYCLE BLOOMERS ARE PARIS SWANK

New York (CP)—The women of Paris, who used to wear the most gorgeous gowns in the world, now go about in plainer costumes. A favorite is a bicycling suits—usually equipped with bloomers. Reason: No gasoline for those famous taxis.

Despatches from Paris tell of designers putting their best efforts into cycling suits—into a necessary style for the city of Paris itself rather than into swanky costumes for the world.

More High Grade Cheese Produced this Year Than in 1939

Mr. C. E. Lackner Addresses Annual Meeting of H.C.C.P. Association

Stirling (Special)—The annual meeting of Hastings County Cheese Producers' Association was held in Stirling Community Service Building on Tuesday afternoon. E. J. Pyear president of the local organization acted as chairman and among the prominent speakers were C. E. Lackner, Director of Dairying for the Province of Ontario, Mr. Geo. Gardner of Seeley's Bay, Provincial President of Cheese Producers' Association, S. L. Joss of Belleville, Secretary Treasurer of the Provincial Executive, Geo. Pollard, H. L. Fair, B.S.A., and S. L. Lucas, manager Stirling branch of the Bank of Montreal.

Increased Production Urged

Introduced to the gathering by President E. J. Pyear, Mr. C. E. Lackner stated 69 or 70 percent of the cheese produced in the province of Ontario graded 93 and 94 points and there were 16,000 less second-grade cheese produced than last year. The increase in high quality cheese was due to combined efforts of producers, makers, dairy instructors and research projects sponsored by the department and the fine system of testing carried on under the direction of local instructor. One of the chief causes of low-grade cheese production is impure water and poor drainage. This difficulty can be overcome through the service of the health offices at Toronto who will gladly send an expert to any part of the province without cost.

"The desire for increased production as expressed by the British Ministry of Foods will tax the effort of everyone in the industry from the producer to the consumer and it is the patriotic duty of every loyal Canadian citizen to strive for the objective set forth."

S. L. Joss

S. L. Joss Provincial Secretary of the organization outlined the efforts of the provincial executive in striving for the welfare of the producers. Recognition of recommendations made to the government by the executive was evidence of the worthiness of their effort. "Facing the present labor problems the committee has suggested that farm and agricultural labor be classified as skilled labor and as such receive certain exemptions." Referring to the possible elimination of cheese boards Mr. Joss said that from his experience in the sale of cheese there was no other method as a proven improvement on it," and personally he saw no reason to change."

Geo. Gardner

Mr. Geo. Gardner, President of the Seeley's Bay Cheese Factory and Provincial President of the Association spoke at some length on the feeding problems and suggested the recommendation for the use of second grade western grain for this purpose as a likely solution. In the matter of farmer labor shortage Mr. Gardner stated that the wage spread between the farm laborer and the government employed laborer and skilled mechanic on war projects was far too great. "The need for airports and barracks was urgent of course but the continual drainage of farm help to these projects would create a serious situation if some precautionary measure is taken."

Other speakers who addressed the gathering briefly were Geo. Pollard, Dairy Instructor for the Stirling district, Mr. Morris Rose, President of the Central Ontario Cheesemakers' Association, Mr. H. L. Fair, B.S.A. and local representative of the Ontario Department of Agriculture.

Officers Elected

The election of officers under the direction of Mr. H. L. Fair resulted in the following gentlemen being appointed to direct the organization's activity for 1941.

President: Mr. E. J. Pyear, Stirling.

Vice President: Mr. J. A. Bell, Marmora.

Secretary-Treasurer: Mr. Bert Pinkle, Sidney.

Directors: C. H. Ketcheson, Sidney Township, J. S. Treverton, Thurlow Township; W. H. White, Tyendinaga Township; W. S. Stiles, Rawdon; Clayton Wright, Huntingdon; E. Bateman, Hungerford; E. D. O'Connor, Marmora; James Nickle, Madoc; James A. Moore, Eezevir; Auditors, Percy Mitts and J. D. McCullough.

WOMEN WILL HAVE TO WORK

London, Dec. 19—(CP)—Between 30,000 and 40,000 women will have to work in the fields next year in order to keep agricultural production up to present standards, Agriculture Minister R. S. Hudson said in an address here today.

The women, he added, would be necessary to replace men now in the armed forces. At present there are 9,000 women land workers compared with 16,000 in the last war, Mr. Hudson said.

Lobster Prices Increase

Yarmouth, N.S., Dec. 19 (CP)—News of a price war among dealers representing United States firms cheered lobstermen in western Nova Scotia today as prices took an unexpected jump.

The British Ministry of Supply has signed contracts for the largest single order for serge battle dress since the war started — 5,000,000 blouses and 6,000,000 trousers.

Popular Stirling Teachers Honored

Miss Margaret Walt and Miss Helen Lacey Presented With Gifts

Stirling, Dec. 19 (Special). — At several social functions held throughout the past week Miss Margaret Walt and Miss Helen Lacey of the Stirling High School staff were honored by their friends prior to the departure from Stirling at the Christmas holidays. Miss Walt, the daughter fo Dr. C. F. Walt, resigned her position because of her approaching marriage. Miss Lacey, who for the past two and a half years has directed studies in home economics, has accepted a position on the teaching staff of the Chesterville High School and will assume her new post after the holidays.

On Friday evening, Dec. 13, Mrs. E. R. Mundy entertained the teachers of both Stirling school in honor of Miss Lacey and Miss Walt. A very pleasant evening was spent and expressions of regret voiced by several present in the loss of these two teachers popular with pupils, thorough in their work and truly fine citizens of the village. Both ladies were presented with a handsome picture as a token of esteem from their fellow workers.

On Tuesday evening they were again honored, this time by the members and officers of the Stirling Badminton Club of which they are both popular members. The event took place in the gymnasium at the high school and each were presented with a lovely gift prior to their departure from the village and each was addressed on behalf of the membership of the club.

The Book-Bug

brings you this sentence: "To my patients over forty-five, who express the sincere wish to be free from disease, I always give the advice to refrain from flesh foods entirely, save on social occasions when refusal is likely to embarrass the well-meaning hostess, then to dip lightly into it and always eat all the fruit in sight, which in meat-eating houses is often not very much, and also to eat plentifully next day of fruits and vegetables, preferably salad vegetables". From "How to be Always Well" by Robt. G. Jackson, M.D., of Toronto; page 335 in the thirteenth edition.

Also the people in the upper.

"Well, they'll have their oranges for Christmas this year, at any rate", remarked the Brown One, coming out to the kitchen with her empty plate in one hand and the Belleville paper in the other.

"Oh, yes," agreed the Kathleen; "they are likely all shipped in by this time."

"Who will?" the Teen-girl was asking.

"All the children in Canada", the Brown One supplied.

"I still don't understand".

"You wouldn't. Oranges are just oranges to you, they sit in the cupboard in a paper bag, the same as apples and potatoes, and you generally ignore them, because it takes time to peel them. But I can remember when an orange was a ball of gold. A little girl who had been given an orange might keep it a while before she broke into it, merely because it was interesting".

"Just like an Easter-egg," the Teen-girl commented. "Did you?"

"I bet I did. I always had a big orange at Christmas, and some small ones late in the winter, when Davies' put on a sale, but if I got any in between it was news. You see they have plenty of apples of different kinds, and they make it a point to work on each kind at the time when its' nice and mellow, so they really taste good. And they are cheap, so why should they buy oranges? They don't. But Christmas is an exception. My oldest uncle never failed to provide enough oranges to go around the whole crowd, although the number of grandchildren increased until it took two dozen and a half. They were just as much a tradition as the roast fowl and the plum pudding. And they cost sixty cents a dozen, seventy-five cents, even at times".

She had been pitting dates and cutting them up into a saucer. Now she buttered a slice of bread, folded it, and setting it on the saucer alongside the dates, darted into the middle bedroom, returning at once.

"We had the tree soon after dinner", she went on reminiscing, "and soon after that he went down cellar and came up with a milk-pan full of snow-apples that he had somehow managed to save till Christmas. When it was empty he filled it up again. Then before long he came around with those immense oranges".

She had buttered another slice of bread, and now paused with a blank look.

"Something for your father"? suggested the Kathleen.

"No, he's all set. Oh, I know. Honey. You know", she went on, to the Kathleen, "we never had much notion of dietetics, and for the most part we ate whatever we could get hold of, provided we liked the taste of it, but there never was anything more scientific than that fruit after the Christmas dinner; it washed away the grease from the inside of your mouth and throat better than any amount of water could do, and that was only the beginning. After that it did a lot of good work in the way of 'combatting the bacteria of putrefaction.' "

"Set down that saucer of honey". commanded the Douglas.

She looked at it, and levelled it up. "I did have quite a slant on it", she admitted. She started for the middle bedroom. "I've gained that half-pound. I weigh an even hundred".

"At last!" exclaimed the Teen-girl.

"Oh, you great, fat thing! " said the Kathleen.

Official Silence On Roosevelt's Plan For Aiding Britain

Berlin, Dec. 19 (AP)—Germany maintained official silence today with reference to President Roosevelt's plan for aiding Britain.

Nazi sources said they saw "progressive development in a certain direction" (meaning increasing aid by the United States to Britain), "but when and in what form the German press will take up this whole tendency cannot be forecast at present."

"The time may come when we must express our opinion," these sources added.

Privately one hears this sort of comment: "The American President's proposal may be technically within the Neutrality Act, but obviously it is no longer neutral."

Another comment often heard is: "How come that Mr. Roosevelt claims England defends the United States? Who has been violating the American neutrality by belligerent acts within the Pan-American safety zone, by seizing mail and other acts? What evidence has Mr. Roosevelt that Germany is threatening the United States?"

It seems safe to predict that German inspired comment, once its publication is decided upon, will be along those lines.

U. S. OFFICIALS RETURN TO DUTY

Ambassadors to Italy and France Will Leave for Posts After the Holidays

Washington, Dec. 19 (AP)—Storm clouds over the Mediterranean were believed in informed quarters today to have caused the State Department in speeding American ambassadors to their posts in France and Italy, and "checking up" on affairs in French African colonies.

In separate announcements—which were linked together by history-making events—State Secretary Cordell Hull disclosed yesterday that:—

1. William Phillips, ambassador to Italy, would return to Rome immediately after the holidays. Phillips, who has been absent from his post for several months because of illness, was expected to confer with Mussolini in the near future.

2. Admiral William D. Leahy, newly-named ambassador to France would leave for Vichy, capital of unoccupied France, also immediately after the holidays. Expectations were that Leahy would have an opportunity to confer with Marshal Petain, chief of the French state, when he presents his credentials.

3. Robert D. Murphy, charge d'affaires at Vichy, departed by plane yesterday for an "inspection trip" through France's North African colonies during which he may meet Gen. Maxime Weygand, France's pro-consul in Africa.

The three diplomats, operating in different sections of the Mediterranean area, will be in positions to supply President Roosevelt and Hull with first-hand facts and interpretations of major European topics.

Italian Communique

Rome, Dec. 19—(AP)—The Italian High Command reported today that fighting on the Libyan battle-front was centred around the port of Bardia, where Fascist forces, it was claimed, attacked a large concentration of British mechanized units yesterday.

On the Albanian front, the High Command said, Italian warships shelled Greek emplacements in the Lukova zone north of Porto Edda while Fascist planes bombed Greek troop concentrations in the vicinity of Argirocastro, Morgoni and Kolonia.

The Italians acknowledged that British planes had again bombed cities in Northern Italy, causing damage at Milan, Genoa and near Vercelli.

(Vercelli is about 40 miles southwest of Milan).

Mention that fighting was going on in the vicinity of Bardia constituted the first official acknowledgment here that the British westward drive had carried to that port.

KNITTING BEE AT "HELL'S CORNER"

One of the most bombed cities in England, part of that southeastern section known as "Hell's Corner," still carries on in the teeth of Germany's aerial "schrecklichkeit." despite the intensity of the bombings of Ramsgate (more than 1,000 houses were wiped out in one raid alone), the death toll has been amazingly low, thanks to the foresight of the city fathers in preparing deep bomb shelters when the first war clouds appeared over Europe. These shelters are cut through solid chalk, 60 feet below the surface. There are accommodations for no less than 60,000 persons in these shelters and connecting tunnels. ABOVE is a typical gathering in one of the chambers. The women are knitting comforts for the warrior menfolk while the bombs are dropping.

The War Today

By GUY RHOADES
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Comparative silence was observed in Axis communiques today and Britain for the second day in succession had "nothing to report" at home.

These periods of freedom from enemy air attacks have been occurring with increasing frequency lately, leading the Press Association to suggest the Royal Air Force has made such a mess of "invasion" air bases in German-occupied territory that they are unusable.

That may be so, but other causes might lie in the disruption of Germany's rail lines which the R.A.F. has reported, or, perhaps in the weakness of "Ersatz" engines.

Gasoline is only slightly lighter than water and must be hauled by rail or road to airports from which the raiders take off. The R.A.F. has been concentrating its attacks, not on civilian centres as the German air force does, but on plants known to be manufacturing war materials, power stations and communications facilities such as railways and roads.

It is fairly safe to assume that these attacks have had a damaging effect on Germany's transportation system which has been observed on numerous occasions to have become shaky under the huge load of the Nazi war effort, even before it was bombed.

Germany's neighbors have complained in the past of Nazi demands for loans of freight cars and of the disinclination of the Germans to return cars which have hauled goods into Germany.

Depend on Canals

Germany, like many other countries, depended in peace time to a large extent on shipments through the many thousands of miles of canalized waterways which stretch across Europe from Kiel to the Black Sea.

Inland water freighting is the cheapest form of transport, but it is slow and poorly adopted to war condition. The Royal Air Force has not neglected Germany's canals, however and is reported to have laid many a stick of bombs across lock areas.

A lock gate is a simple and speedily repaired device, but its destruction may cause great havoc. Destruction of a key lock may result in draining of a considerable transportation system before the waste of water can be checked.

Even after a lock has been repaired further delay must ensue while reservoirs are tapped to refill the canal. Wate in a canalized country is a precious substance. The more of it the British can spill out of the German transport system the tougher will become Germany's problem of moving vital goods.

Undoubtedly the German air force will be back at work soon, and it is even suggested that the Germans may make a winter invasion attempt against Britain, but if the Nazi air raiders are grounded with increasing frequency due either to failure in the fuel supply or necessity for replacement or overhaul of worn engines, it would not be surprising.

Now is the Time to Beware of Contagious Colds!

At a treacherous time like this, with contagious colds all around you, what you do today may save you and your family a lot of sickness, worry and trouble later.

Follow these simple rules of health: Live normally. Avoid excesses. Eat simple food. Drink plenty of water. Keep elimination regular. Take some exercise daily—preferably outdoors. Get plenty or rest and sleep.

Then use these two time-tested treatments when needed.

AT THE FIRST SNIFFLE, SNEEZE OR SIGN OF NASAL IRRITATION . . . put a few drops of Vick's Va-tro-nol up each nostril right away. This helps to prevent many colds from developing, because Va-tro-nol is expressly designed to help Nature's own defenses against colds. (If a head cold causes stuffiness, you'll find that a few drops of Va-tro-nol helps clear the clogging mucus and makes breathing freer and easier.)

IF A CHEST COLD OR COUGHING COLD DEVELOPS (some colds get by all precautions) depend on Vicks VapoRub to relieve miseries. Rub VapoRub on throat, chest and back and cover with a warmed cloth. VapoRub acts to bring relief 2 ways at once. It stimulates surface of chest and back like a warming poultice. At the same time it releases helpful medicinal vapors that are breathed direct into the irritated air passages.

Both Va-tro-nol and VapoRub have been tested through years of use in millions of homes. When you use these two medicines you are not experimenting, you are not taking needless chances. Remember: If the condition of the cold fails to respond quickly to treatment—or if more serious trouble is indicated—call your family physician right away. In the meantime be prepared! Get a bottle of Vicks Va-tro-nol and a jar of Vicks Vapo-Rub today — have them handy, ready to use.

CHICAGO BOOKIES BUSY DODGING PROCESS SERVERS

Attorney General Determined to Put This "Racket" Out of Business

2,000 INVOLVED

Chicago, Dec. 19 (AP)—The city's bookies—more than 1,000 of them—are engaged these days in a game of hide and seek.

They are dodging, with almost general success, summonses to appear in court in connection with Attorney General John E. Cassidy's campaign to put them out of business.

Cassidy obtained a temporary injunction Dec. 3 restraining 2,000 bookmakers and other persons and corporations in Illinois from handling wagers on horse races or selling service or turf information to handbooks or renting space to them.

A bundle of 1,380 summonses were dumped into the legal lap of Sheriff Thomas J. O'Brien in Chicago last week. Two deputies, accompanied by eight reporters and eight photographers and attended by considerable fanfare, set out to serve the papers on the gambling gentry forthwith.

The first stop was at a den a furlong from the City Hall. The officers ound a padlock on the door, jotted down the notation "lock on door" and left.

Questioned Implications

A newsman, who questioned the implications of the lock, wrote in his account that he returned to the place a bit later, located another entrance, walked in and perceived 200 customers laying their currency on the cashier's line or vice versa.

The trail of the hunt led presently to the home of Frank (the Enforcer) Nitti, listed as the current pooh bah of the syndicate formed by Al Capone. A woman responded to the officia lknock and sent the inquirers on their way with the advice that Mr. Nitti wasn't there.

Thirty deputies swung into the Safari the next day. They came back at dusk with word that they had served eight defendants—communications companies, landlords and turf sheets. They also brought in reports that they had encountered no bookies and documented them with such memoranda as "Wrong address", "Gone away", "Closed", "Not at home."

Still Carrying On

The manhunt has followed the same pattern, more or less, since then.

The sheriff complained that in 433 instances the bet barons had (a) never been at the given address or (b) had moved.

The latest official report was that 39 summonses had been served and that 1,341 were still on hand. And the most recent unofficial advice was that the book shops were doing quite well.

Christmas Concert At Centenary Enjoyed

Centenary (Special)—Rev. Mr. Mercer's message on Sunday morning was full of inspiration and helpful thoughts, it brought home to use the realization of our need for thinking of the true meaning of Christmas, we should not commercialise it as we so often do, it should not be just a holiday for feasting and entertainment.

Christmas Concert

The Christmas concert, an event that is looked forward to by both young and old as a very happy occasion, was held at the church on Monday evening, which, in spite of very unfavorable weather was well attended. The church was gay with Christmas decorations.

The concert was under the direction of Mr. Lewis Bird our school teacher, with Miss Atkinson as musical director. Rev. Mr. Mercer very capably acted as chairman, the concert consisted of choruses, dialogues and drills also a selection by the rhythm band.

Mrs. Mercer gave a reading a duet by Misses Doreen Hall and Vivian Wood, and recitations by little Jimmie Ray and Donnie Thrasher.

All the numbers were very much enjoyed and it was moved by Mr. Mercer and seconded by Mrs. Aikens that a hearty vote of thanks be given Mr. Bird and Miss Atkinson for their splendid work in making the concert a success.

Mr. Bird was called on for a short speech and in a few chosen words expressed his pleasure in being able to help train the children in the art of entertaining, he also extended to all his very best wishes for a happy holiday season.

Mr. Mercer then called on Mr. Harry Bates a former teacher to say a few words. Mr. Bates expressed pleasure at being able to sit back and see the splendid results of someone elses labor and the improvement the children are making in this line of school activities.

With the visit of Santa Claus who distributed candy and presents the happy gathering was brought to a close by all singing "There'll Always Be An England."

TAKE THREE—MATSUOKA .... BIG NAME IN HOCKEY

Detroit Red Wings added to the woes of proofreaders on the National Hockey League circuit when they recalled Centre Art Herchenratter from their Indianapolis farm club to take the place of the injured Kenny Kilrea in a recent game.

Herchenratter, 23-year-old product of the Michigan-Ontario Amateur League played with the Windsor Chryslers last year and was credited with 31 goals and 16 assists for a total of 47 points. He boasts one of the longest names in the big league.

CONACHER SHOOTS LOW

When Charlie Conacher scored a goal recently for New York Americans in a National Hockey League game, he did it on a low shot that had all his old-time blasting speed. Conacher wasn't scoring well previously because, he thinks his shot had a tendency to rise, and he has concentrated now on a new shooting technique that keeps it low.

ESTABLISH BREAD SUBSIDY

London, Dec. 19 (CP)—The Government announced today establishment of a bread subsidy, effective for three months beginning Dec. 1, which it estimated would cost £750,000 ($3,335,000).

The subsidy will permit bakers to sell a four-pound loaf for about 17 cents, the Food Ministry said.

HASTINGS LOOP TO OPERATE WITH FIVE TEAMS IN

H. L. Fair Will Again Direct Operation of the League as President

RULES ADOPTED

Stirling, Dec. 18.—(Special) —The first steps of re-organization of the Central Hastings Rural Hockey were taken on Saturday evening, at a meeting held in the County Agricultural offices at Stirling. Five teams indicated their intention of competing under the same rulings drafted last season, which were adopted for use this season. Thus far the following teams have signified their intention of entrance to the league. Glen Ross, Evergreen, Zion Hill, Foxboro, and Centenary. Teams not represented officially conveyed their intention to the presiding officers.

Mr. H. L. Fair, president for the last three years acted as chairman for the meeting and after a general discussion a motion was passed where by the league will continue to function under the same set of rules and regulations drafted by the Committe last season and the game shall be played in the Stirling arena.

H. L. Fair Popular President

In the matter of selecting an executive for the year, Mr. H. L. Fair, who for the past three years has directed the league's activity was again chosen for that office. Through the efforts of Mr. Fair, the league has enjoyed two successful years after a period of retarding interest. Assisting him will be Art Duncan as Secretary, who has also served the league for about four years. Roy Juby was nominated as treasurer and one representative of each club will make up the entire executive body.

Hope For Early Start

Hoping that the playing schedule would get underway earlier this year, a meeting was called for Saturday evening, December 21, when the clubs are requested to present th lists of players for final sanction and the matter of drafting a schedule will be dealt with.

Might Have County Play-Offs

Rural hockey has during the past few years gained popularity in several local centres and last year officials of the Belleville Arena persuaded the winners to meet for a Championship series in the Belleville rink. With Rural leagues operating in three or more small town rinks it seems only reasonable that they should play under the same rulings and have the benefit of playoffs in their own circles. A movement with this end in view is now underway and it is hoped that at the conclusion of each group playoff the winners will be brought together in either home and home games or round robin series with each team receiving its chance to become County Rural Champion. Rural leagues now operate in Stirling, Frankford and Tweed and it is hoped that a common ground can be reached on rules and regulations to make all chances equal in the case of a final play-down.

RYTI ELECTED PRES. OF FINLAND

Succeeds Kyosti Kallio, Who Resigned, by Receiving 280 Votes an Electoral College Total of 300

Helsinki, Dec 19.—(AP)—Risto Ryti, acting president of Finland since last summer, today was elected president of the Republic in succession to Kyosti Kallio, resigned, receiving 280 votes of an electoral college total of 300.

Ryti, who was prime minister during the Russian-Finnish war of last winter and ranks among Europe's leading financiers, had exercised the functions of the presidency since Kallio became ill in the summer.

Ryti has been acting president since November 29 when President Yosti Kallio resigned because of ill health. A law stipulated that the electoral college should appoint a successor for the remainder of Kallio's term which ends in March, 1943.

Supreme Court Justice Urho Castren was considered another strong candidate although 200 of the electors meeting in party conferences yesterday were reported to have decided tentativly on Ryti.

Soviet Advises Finland

(The Soviet Press advised Finland Tuesday to choose a president who "will guarantee normal friendly relations with neighboring countries and avoid the ruinous path of adventures and experiments of any kind for Finland in foreign policy.")

Ryti, who is 51, became prime minister December 1, 1939, the day after the Russian-Finnish war started.

He has been one of the strong men on the Finnish Republic for almost 20 years, as head of the Bank of Finland, Minister of Finance, Prime Minister and then Acting President.

Appointed head of the Bank of Finland in 1923, Ryti became a financial figure of international note, being credited with stabilizing Finland's currency and establishing Finnish banks as among the world's most secure.

He also is credited with being the man most responsible for the regular payments Finland made on her war debt to the United States.

CROWN PRINCESS ENJOYS VISIT

Juliana of Holland Attends Symphony Concert With Mrs. Roosevelt

Washington, Dec. 19 (AP). —Crown Princess Juliana of Holland slipped easily today into the role of a royal sightseer.

She planned to be present at Mrs. Roosevelt's all-feminine press conference, to have tea at the Netherlands legation, and to attend a formal dinner at the White House, where she is the guest of President Roosevelt and the First Lady.

The blonde, 31-year-old princess, an exile from her German-conquered homeland, made the most of her first day in the United States capital. Arriving from Canada yesterday on an early afternoon train, she was whisked to the executive mansion in an official limousine, and accompanied by Mrs. Roosevelt, followed a tourist's trail past the Washington monument and Lincoln memorial at Mount Vernon.

Again in the company of her hostess, Juliana last night attended a concert by the National Symphony Orchestra, and warmly applauded the conductor, Hans Kindler, born in Rotterdam, Holland, but now an American citizen.

At the Princess' request, Kindler came to the Roosevelt box, along with Joseph Szigeti, Hungarian violinist. Kindler recalled that he and Szigeti took part in a concert at the Hague on the day Juliana was born.

A feature of the princess' evening costume was a black silk shirt with white lame top embroidered with gold brilliants. In addition to her wedding and engagement rings, she wore a diamond bracelet and diamond and ruby pennant ear-rings. A large corsage of orchids was pinned to her silver fox cape.

CONDUCTING SEARCH FOR MISSING R.C.A.F. FLIERS

Provincial police and air force officials are shown here as they dragged the cold waters of Lake Muskoka for the four bodies of air force men thought to have perished in the lake when two R.C.A.F. planes crashed while searching for another missing plane. A mile long oil slick on the lake is believed to have been caused by the wrecked crafts. A diver has been assigned to search the bottom of the lake for wreckage, but it is feared that quickly-forming ice will prevent diving operations.

Long-suffering Britain is now striking back hard at the Axis in three directions. British bombers are reported to have inflicted heavy damage in a raid on Naples, Italy. In Africa, mechanized British forces are said to have pushed the Italians out of Egypt and to be invading Italian Libya. Other British bombers raided Berlin and scored a direct hit on a subway line, disrupting transportation. Adding to the Axis woes, the Greek army reportedly is cornering Italy's would-be invader troops in the Albanian port of Valona in a trap that threatens to be a second Dunkerque.

CRASH OF 22-TON PLANE BRINGS DEATH TO SIX

Four-Engine Bomber Strikes Mountain Side in California

LAUNCH INQUIRY

Riverside, Calif., Dec. 19—(AP)—Strict secrecy surrounded an inquiry March Field officials launched today into the deaths of six army fliers in the crash and explosion of a giant 22-ton, four-engine bombing plane on the frozen, snow-peaked slopes of nearby San Jacinto mountains.

Flying high through intermittent patches of clouds, heavy mist and clearings, the B-17 type plane, which was on a routine training flight, struck the 6,700 foot snowline of Marion Mountain in San Bernardino National Forest yesterday and left wreckage strewn for half a mile along the boulder and tree-dotted slopes.

So twisted and broken was the charred wreckage that the army investigating board faced the prospect of perhaps never being able to solve the mystery of the crash.

March Field, Cal., —(AP)—Six officers and men of the United States Army's 23rd Bombardment Pursuit Squadron, March Field, were killed Wednesday as their 22-ton B-17 four-motored bomber crashed and burned at the 6,700-foot snow line of Marion Mountain in Can Bernardino National Forest.

Four bodies were hurled from the huge craft as it plunged into the boulder - stream, heavily - wooded mountain slope, three miles northeast of Idyllwild.

At 1045 a.m. P.S.T. (2:45 p.m. E.D.T.) the plane appeared to encounter mechanical trouble. Ground witnesses at the Idyllwild Inn and at Pine Cove, nearby, reported that it circled several times, its engines seemingly missing. Clouds closed in on the bomber at 8,000 feet, and in a few minutes it roared into the mountain at full throttle.

A rescue party arrived twenty minutes later from Pine Cove to find the plane a mass of red-hot, fused metal. Two bodies were in the smashed fuselage. The 105-foot right wing had sheared a big pine tree.

Good Quality Turkeys Offered Up to 35c. a lb.

Geese Quoted at 28 Cents While Chickens Remain at Usual Price of 25c

An increase of from five to seven cents per pound over the price of last season was the figure quoted for turkeys on the Belleville market this morning as the No. 1 table delicacy of the Yuletide season was offered on the first Christmas market. With the trade at last having established a price to the retail purchaser, vendors were asking from 30 to 35 cents per pound for well-finished birds with prices ranging from $5 to $5.50 for large birds weighing over twenty pounds, down to $2.50 according to the size. Geese also were quoted at higher prices than last year with vendors asking approximately 28c per pound. Chickens, however, remained at the usual figure of 25c per pound.

The offering of apples predominated on the outside market with No. 1 Spys being offered at $1.75 per hamper. MacIntosh were 35c per basket as were Talman Sweets. Cooking apples were $1 per bushel. Potatoes held at the usual figure of $1 per bag.

Christmas trees were quoted at prices ranging from 50c up to $1.25.

Britain May Shift War to East Africa

(By KIRKE L. SIMPSON)

Washington, Dec. 19—Italy's badly shaken attempt to extend her Empire in Africa seems due for testing in a second front. Disaster for Mussolini may be impending in East Africa as a follow-up to Greek successes in Albania and the Italian rout in the Western African desert.

This is indicated in advices from Cairo and London. These advices show that ten days of British battering not only has cleared Egypt of Italian invaders and badly broken Italian offensive powers in the Western Desert, but also has stimulated a revolt in Ethiopia against Italian conquerors.

Full British aid for exiled Emperor Haile Selassie in his effort to regain his Ethiopian throne was pledged in London. Richard Butler, Undersecretary for Foreign Affairs, told Parliament the revolt movement is "making porgress".

Forces Spread Thin

There is a broad hint in these developments that the British offensive in Africa will shift soon from the Western Desert to the East African front. It may have started already in the resumption of British "offensive patrolling" in Italian Somaliland, where a minor Italian base is reported to have been sacked.

Britain would seem to have more to gain by shifting her attack in Africa to the Red Sea-Kenya Colony-Anglo Egyptian Sudan sectors than by pressing forward into Libya. Italian forces in East Africa are thinly spread at best.

British air scouts now report from Libya that Marshal Graziani's battered army is huddled back of the Libyan-Egyptian border which already has been crossed by the pursuing British troops. If it is headed back to the Derna area as reported, it means 150 additional miles of desert for the pursuers to cross.

Give Up Initiative

A retreat to Derna would indicate that Graziani recognizes that his chances of regaining the initiative in West Africa without help from Italy or Germany are just about nil. He is retreating behind a potent desert barrier to escape the danger of annihilation. Apparently he intends to sit down on the defense while his tottering troops lick their wounds and while the Axis war with Britain is being fought out somewhere else.

The Derna area offers good defensive possibilities although it means surrender of the Italian main advance base at Tobruk, half way between Derna and the border. There are several north-south lateral roads from the coast affording a 40-mile defensive line or a series of possible lines. The Derna position is the best ground available to the Italians for a defensive stand, bulwarked as it is to the Egyptian border by 150 miles of desert.

For this reason British reports of a general Italian retreat to that front are credible. By the same token, however, so deep a retreat would mean abandonment by the Italians of any hope of regaining the initiative without help —now improbable —from home or from Germany.

Dangerous Crossing 51st Street Replies Fatalist Wireless Operator

By GUY RHOADES
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

New York, Dec. 19 (CP)—Big Tim O'Regan said goodbye to us in Connolly and Lennon's Bar around 10 days ago and promised to see us again in five weeks and for four days we kept our fingers crossed, hoping to find his name among the survivors of the Western Prince. It showed up in the list of missing.

The big Irishman, first wireless operator aboard the torpedoed liner, used to drop in almost every day while the ship was loading here, drink his beer, spin yarns and usualy wind up singing songs in his fine baritone voice.

He arrived unexpectedly one night with cartons of cigarettes for Joe McSorley and John Corrigan, the boys behind the bar. When he left he took a turkey for his family's Christmas dinner and a load of presents for his friends and relatives.

Tim was a fatalist. The lads used to ask him if he did not feel nervous ferrying supplies across the submarine infested sea. "It's nothing at all," he used to say. "If they get us, they get us, if they don't we'll be back again."

Joe said to him once: "But it's a pretty dangerous occupation."

Tim replied: "It's dangerous as hell crossing 51st Street."

King George To Broadcast Christmas Day

His Majesty King George VI will broadcast a special message to the world on Christmas morning from "somewhere in England", and special precautions are being taken by the armed services to guard the King against the attentions of Nazi bombers.

The microphone location is a closely-kept secret and even his own subjects in Great Britain will not know from where their ruler is speaking. A day and night vigil on the English countryside by patrols and by anti-aircraft crews will guard both the specially protected studio which His Majesty will use and the tall transmitter shafts which will radiate his message overseas on many different wave-lengths.

The BBC's Christmas program of 1940, of which the King's message is to be the high spot, is to be more elaborate even than those attempted in peacetime with unimpaired communications. The King's part in it will be simple and of few minutes' duration.

As an Englishman whose own London home at Buckingham Palace has been bombed like so many other households in Britain, he will voice the common feelings of Britons as they experience their second Christmas under fire, at the close of a momentous year.

The broadcast will not be exclusively a war program. The solemn chanting of choirs in the great cathedrals, time-honored carols from the hall of a quiet village, and the gay ceremonies around the Christmas tree in British homes, will give to the world glimpses of the English way of life which the Empire is called to defend.

It is to be an Empire-wide program—from the cliffs of Dover, from ships at sea and from the Dominions.

The program will be heard over CBC stations from 9 to 10.10 a.m. (E.D.S.T.), and will be carried in the United States over NBC, CBS and MBS.

Chief Asked to Look For Plane Propeller

New Hamburg Ont., Dec. 18.—(CP)—The proverbial needle in the haystack or an airplane propeller in the fields west of this village—Police Chief E. C. Scherer doesn't think there's much difference

Imagine the Chief's surprise when he received a call from the Royal Canadian Air Force depot at Port Albert, asking him to look for a propeller which dropped off a plane six or seven miles west of New Hamburg Monday.

Chief Scherer has asked anyone coming across the propeller to notify him. The plane off which the propeller dropped apparently didn't miss it too much, for it got down safely.

Mobile Canteen Kitchens Presented

London, Dec. 19.—(CP Cable)—The first of two mobile canteen kitchens purchased with subscriptions of citizens of Guelph, Ont., was presented today by Vincent Massey, Canadian High Commissioner, to Home Secretary Herbert Morrison for the firemen of Suburban West Ham.

The compact unit capable of providing 200 hot meals an hour was donated to men who have faced one of the toughest jobs since the bombing of London began.

Against the buff background, blue lettering says "with affectionate greetings from the citizens of Guelph, Ont., Canada, to their brave brothers and sisters in the heart of the Empire".

TORONTO STOCKS

Toronto, Dec. 19 (CP)—Weakness was general in the Toronto list at noon today and while a few issues, chiefly in the golds, attempted a recovery in the early afternoon, the come-back was half-hearted and the balance of changes for the day remained on the down side. Turnover for the first three hours was 146,000 shares.

Senior oils, foods and steels showed mild weakness. The beverage stocks and banks held firm to strong. In the base metals, Nickel, Smelters and Noranda sold lower and in the western oil list slightly lower prices were posted for Calgary and Edmonton and Home Oil.

Losses of 5 to 10 cents were netted in the gold list for Preston, Upper Canada, Macassa, Coniaurum, Wright-Hargreaves and Teck Hughes.

WALL STREET

New York, Dec. 19 (AP). — The stock market wheels were clogged with more buying antipathy in today's session.

While scattered issues contested the trend with small advances, fractional declines dotted the list from the start. These were extended to a point or so in several instances near the fourth hour. Dealings were about on Wednesday's scale.

Prominent on the early downward drift were U.S. Steel, Chrysler, Douglas Aircraft, Glenn Martin, Du Pont, Westinghouse, Loew's, American Smelting and International Paper Preferred.

Among Canadian issues Dome Mines and Distillers Seagrams improved fractions. McIntyre, Hiram Walker and Lake Shore Mines dipped as much while Canada 4s, among bonds, advanced ¼ point.

A rare occurrence in the United Kingdom, Mrs. Christine Stella Way has been nominated Sheriff of Garthyml, the county in which she lives.

Text of Churchill's Address in House

London, Dec. 19 —(AP)— The text of Prime Minister Churchill's statement in the House of Commons today follows:

I should like to put frankly a difficulty I feel about frequent statements.

As Prime Minister and Minister of Defence there is a danger that if one gives full and frank and frequent statements, revealing one's own point of view or that of the government or of those charged with strategic and practical decisions, the enemy may gain an advantage.

Certainly it would be very convenient if Herr Hitler or the important chiefs in Germany were to give us every fortnight or so an "honest to God" statement—if they were capable of it.

We should immediately set a dozen active intelligence officers to study not only what was said but what was not said, and to read between the lines, and collate any stray words, which, with the other information, might afford a clue.

Asks for Secret Session

Therefore I hope the House will be indulgent to me if I choose the occasions somewhat rarely, and in the event of their desiring information which I did not feel was convenient, they would allow me to impart it to them in a secret session.

At the opening of the session, speaking on the reply to the King's speech, I said we wanted deeds, not words. I think we have not wholly failed to make that good.

The battle of the Libyan desert is still proceeding. I have no later news than that contained in the public press at the moment.

We are attacking the fort and town of Bardia with strong and increasing forces.

The situation there is not such that I can make any decided statement but I will go so far as to say that I have every reason to believe that it is developing favorably.

This memorable battle, spread over a vast extent of desert, these swiftly moving mechanised columns, circling in and out of the mass of the enemy, and posts of the enemy, means fighting is taking place over an area as large as Yorkshire. It is not possible to give all the details at present.

30,000 Prisoners Taken

I am sure the figures of 30,000 prisoners is, even up to the present moment, a considerable understatement.

A hundred serviceable guns and fifty tanks, together with great quantities of invaluable stores have already been gathered by our troops.

Fighting at Sidi Omar the day before yesterday resulted in another 800 prisoners, a battery of artillery being captured, and on the same day, there is the Jarabub Oasis west of the Siwa Oasis and very important on the desert flank, an Australian cavalry squadron charged sword in hand and gathered both guns and transport as its trophy.

At other periods of Italian history they have shown great courage and I am not going to frame a charge of lack of military quality against a people with whom, up to this time, and God knows we never sought it, we have had no quarrel, but only sympathy.

But perhaps their hearts are not in their work. Perhaps they have been so long disciplined and ruled and relieved of all share of the government of their own country that they have not felt these virile emotions, which are the foundations of the actions of brave armies, and which are best furnished by discipline imposed on freedom.

Odds Always Against

We have seen at least one whole division laying down its arms intact to a far-inferior force. Our force has been contending at odds of 3, 4 or 5 to 1 and contending with continued success.

Up to the night of the 16th., the latest return I have, the British army, a very considerable army, who moved rapidly in the desert, fighting continuously for the whole week, lost less than 1,000 killed and wounded of all ranks, British, Indian, and Imperial. There have no doubt been other losses.

We must regard this event as highly satisfactory and its reactions in other directions will be favorable and should permit us to take bolder views than those open to us before.

This is a case where risks have been well run. Risk in the desert was considerable; movement of this large force across 70 or 80 miles of desert was open to very considerable hazards, and the assault on Sidi Barrani had this cause of anxiety, that petrol and water was strictly limited to our attacking force, and failure or delay would have entailed considerable curtailment of our operations.

But these risks have been run and surmounted by the great skill of General Wilson, reputed to be one of our finest tacticians, and General Wavell, whose figure grows upon the eastern horizon.

Air Marshal Longmore, at a most critical moment in the preparations, had a very large part of his force taken away from him for Greece, but nevertheless persevered, running additional risks. His handling of the situation deserves the highest praise.

Won't Unfold Future

When I was at the Admiralty in 1912, forming the Royal Naval Air Service, Longmore was one of the first few fliers there and in those days of very dubious machines, he several times used to fly me about.

I hope the House will be contented by the present position and by the results achieved by this offensive.

It is not by any means at an end but I think it would be better to let the future unfold without attempting to forecast how the play may run.

Risks were also well run here by the general staff and the war committee and the staffs who studied this matter. It was not easy in July and August to send precious tanks of the best quality and cannon of which we were then so short on that long journey round the Cape of Good Hope, to enable us first to defend ourselves and later to resume the offensive.

These were hard decisions to take. The Secretary of State for War and I had many anxious days in coming to these conclusions, but you will not bridge this war, or emerge from it successfully, unless risks are run, and risks do imply that the House will stand by the Government and the military commands.

The British army has at last had an opportunity of showing its quality. We have had hard and unfortunate experiences in this war but in the fighting round Dunkerque all the divisions engaged had the consciousness that they were fully a match for their German opponents.

No Reason to Shrink

Several battles fought on the front of one or two divisions show that we had no reason to shrink from contact on anything like equal terms.

Now we have seen in Libya that our military science and staff officers are capable of planning and executing extremely complex and daring operations with efficiency. It is not only there that we have such officers.

Therefore I renew my advice to the House to do all possible to develop the strength and efficiency of the Great British army now building up at home.

The army will give its help in any air raid emergency but we must have an army here on a large scale—I carefully avoid saying what its numbers should be—not only to defend this island but for action in other theatres.

We must have a large army well found, equipped with the very best weapons.

This is a wise provision for the year 1941 in which no doubt we shall find opportunities of using our forces, if not in defence of this island, in other theatres on terms of moderate equality in numbers and in equipment.

This is the first time in the desert that we have had equal equipment and we are still only a half-armed nation fighting a fully-armed nation, a nation which has already passed the saturation point in its armaments.

But in 1941 we shall become a well-armed nation, too, and that will open possibilities which have not been open up to the present.

Well Armed in 1941

It takes three to four years to put the industries of a country on a war basis. The Germans reached the culminating point at the end of last year, and when we ourselves were still only in the second year, but by efforts now being made and by the great supplies which are reaching and will reach us from the United States of America, we hope we shall become well armed during 1941.

It is essential that every effort should be made in the armament factories to improve the supply not only for the Air Force but of the Army, and every risk run there under the fire of the enemy, every loyal endeavor which our united nation can procure from the workmen to accelerate production, will be a step towards victory and towards an earlier victory.

We are not content with the results of production but they are certainly on a very great and substantial scale. We must never be content. We must continue to strive to place in the hands of our men weapons worthy of the task they are to perform and of their sacrifices.

This applies with equal force to food production.

When I spoke the other day of the years 1943 and 1944 I did not mean I believed that the war would go on until then, but in agriculture and ship building you have got to look ahead. Anything that can be done to increase the [illegible] of our food production will be the wisest insurance, assuming the [illegible] should be prolonged for such a period which is by no means impossible.

Mortal Dangers Not Passed.

We are separating for a short recess, and will go with some sense of composure and even satisfaction at the progress made. But it would be a disaster if any one supposed that the danger, that the supreme danger—the mortal dangers—are passed. They are not. There are the dangers of a prolonged deadlock but there may be also more immediate dangers.

The winter season offers some advantages to an invader to counter balance those of the summer season. It would be a very great lack of prudence—a lack of prudence amounting to a crime—if vigilance were relaxed in our armies at home.

Careful preparations must continue. Although it has been possible to give a proportion of leave to troops, that should not in any way be taken as the slightest justification for supposing that we need not watch from hour to hour. The danger, the menace, which still exists in full force so short a distance away.

Our defence of the beaches is complete. From the north of Scotland round the island enormous masses of guns, machine guns, fortified posts and every device of defence have been erected and are guarded by large numbers of well-trained men.

But we are not making the mistake which was made by the French general staff when they thought that the holding of the Maginot Line was all that was necessary.

I remember going over to Paris at their dark moment and asking what they were going to do with their general reserve. With the greatest sorrow I learned that the general reserve did not exist. It had to be drawn from the different parts of the line.

Large Army in England

We have now got a very large army here, capable of moving to any place with great rapidity and going into action in the strongest counter offensive, and therefore one may have good confidence in our power to beat our enemy if he set foot in any strength on these shores. Nevertheless the watchword must be unceasing vigilance. Hitler—I should certainly deprecate any comparison between Hitler and Napoleon, I do not want to insult the dead—wields gigantic power and is capable of wielding it in a ruthless manner.

He has great need of doing something now or at any rate in the next two months.

When the war began he had his plans ready for Poland and doubted whether Britain and France would come. They came in and when he had beaten Poland he found himself faced with Britain and France.

He waited a long time to complete quiescence it seemed and then he struck the most terrible series of blows which shattered France.

Then he thought, I suppose, that in the fall of France would be involved the fall of Britain. It turned out differently, and we must suppose that he is making other plans particularly directed to our address.

Therefore I urge increasing effort by all. We are not afraid of any blow that may be struck at us but we must make unceasing preparation.

Air Attacks Slacken.

The attacks in the air have slackened somewhat, I suppose because of the weather but they might easily have slackened in preparation for some other form of activity.

Every method of dealing with air fighting by night is being studied with passion and zeal by a very large number of extremely able and brilliant scientists and officers, but so far we have not been any more successful in stopping the Germans' night raiders than the Germans have been successful in stopping our airplanes when they range freely over Germany. We have struck very heavy blows. The blows at Mannheim appear to be very heavy. The enemy have not found any means of preventing that.

So far we have not reached any satisfactory remedy, although we have noticed considerable improvements in various directions. We must expect a continuance of these attacks. We must bear them.

The organization of shelters, the improvement of sanitation, the endeavor to mitigate the painful conditions under which many people sleep, is a first task of the government at home.

The A.R.P. services, the home office, the ministry of health, are as much in the front line as the armored columns chasing the Italians about the Libyan desert. I hope and trust we shall succeed in mitigating increasingly the conditions in the shelters. It will not be for want of trying. It will not be because money or trouble is grudged.

First Military Task.

The only other point I would mention is that of the sinkings in the Atlantic. They still continue at a very disquieting level. It is not so much as in the critical period of 1917 but still we must recognize the recrudescence of a danger that a year ago we seemed to have mastered.

From now on we shall steadily increase our resources in flotillas and other methods of defence but we must regard the keeping open of this channel to the world against the submarines and long distance aircraft which are now attacking it as the first of the military tasks which lie before us.

At the present time we may be thankful that we have been preserved so far and made progress after a moment when many in the world, including our best friends abroad, despaired of our continued power of resistance.

Our power of resistance has grown and we have preserved ourselves secure in our island home and have reached out long and strong hands across the seas to discharge the obligations we have undertaken to the countries that have put thorough faith in us.

Rearguard Forces Defending Bardia Believed Trapped

Cairo, Egypt, Dec. 19—(AP)—Italian rearguard forces left to defend Bardia, Libya's principal base in the frontier region, have been trapped and their way of escape to Tobruk is under aerial bombardment, British war communiques declared tonight.

"Advanced elements of our troops which have successfully contained numerically superior enemy forces in Bardia are being steadily reinforced and the position of the remnants of the beaten Italian army in that area can now be regarded as precarious," said a general headquarters communique.

The Royal Air Force, recounting raids and reconnaissance which took British planes over the western desert battle zone and also over the frontiers with Italian East Africa, reported:

"The Bardia-Tobruk road was also bombed but little movement was seen."

Importance of Training To Canadian Troops Emphasized By Eden

By ROSS MUNRO
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

London, Dec. 19 (CP Cable)—War Secretary, Anthony Eden, emphasizing the importance of training to the Canadian troops, today said the "Canadian forces in England have had to undergo a harder ordeal than any other troops in the British Commonwealth with this long period of waiting away from home."

He told an overseas league luncheon honoring officers of the Canadian forces that "I feel sure, though, that the Canadians will have their chance in battle, but it would be foolish to speculate when and where."

"There can be no final victory without the army and the Canadians will prove worthy of the men of Vimy," he declared.

He said the Canadians "brought invaluable military aid from the Dominion under the sagacious leadership of Gen. McNaughton." (Lt.-Gen. A. G. L. McNaughton, General Officer Commanding-in-Chief a Mixed Anglo-Canadian Army Corps.)

"Your training will reap due reward, for the better the troops know their job the fewer men we lose," the Minister declared.

Mr. Eden cited the example of the Libyan campaign where arduous training and equipment contributed to low casualties.

Maj.-Gen. Crerar Responds

Maj.-Gen. H. D. G. Crerar, chief of the Canadian General Staff, replied to Mr. Eden's toast to the Canadian forces. He thanked Britons for hospitality to the troops and added that "Canadians at home and abroad are waiting impatiently to prove the battle record of the last war is safe in their hands."

Maj.-Gen. P. J. Montagu, Senior Officer of Canadian Military Headquarters in London, Maj.-Gen. Victor Odlum, General Officer Commanding the Canadian 2nd Division, Maj.-Gen. G. R. Pearkes, G.O.C. 1st Division, Vincent Massey, Canadian High Commissioner, the Earl of Bessborough, former Governor-General of Canada, and Rt. Hon. R. B. Bennett, former Canadian Prime Minister, attended the luncheon, together with representatives of the Royal Canadian Air Force, the Royal Canadian Navy, and Canadian Military Headquarters.

30,000 Prisoners Taken

Mr. Eden announced that up to Dec. 16th, British forces in the Western Desert took 30,000 Italian prisoners "at a conservative estimate" against the loss of only 1,000 British soldiers, killed, wounded and missing.

The casualty figures were for "all Imperial forces engaged," the War Secretary said.

"There can be few parallels for such an achievement in the whole history of war," he added.

Mr. Eden declared the "recent brilliant victory" by Gen. Sir Archibald Wavell, Commander in Chief in the Middle East, was a "simple lesson" that, "given equipment and training, there are no troops anywhere in the world superior to those of the British Commonwealth."

Mr. Eden himself made an inspection tour of Gen. Wavell's command a few weeks before the drive began.

BRITISH NEWSMEN INTERVIEW HOWE

Minister of Munitions States Canada's Production Will be at Peak in July

By DOUGLAS AMARON
Canadian Press Staff Writer.

London, Dec. 19 (C.P. Cable) — Without a single one of the numerous files with which he started for England, Hon. C. D. Howe, Canadian Minister of Munitions and Supply, sat at a conference table with newspapermen today and gave a detailed review of Canada's industrial production which he said he expected to reach its capacity about July.

Apologetically, Mr. Howe explained to Canadian reporters that details of his summary are well known in Canada but that he wanted to give a brief picture of the situation for the benefit of British newsmen.

He recounted how all his files were lost in the torpedoing of the liner Western Prince and jokingly suggested that "I'll have to cable back to Canada to ask for what I came over."

He said that among the files there was nothing essential that could not be replaced and said: "We'll just have to do the best we can," adding with a smile, "it's a good thing to get files cleaned out sometimes."

The whole question of war industries is to be discussed with British officials, particularly details as to priority so that the Dominion would know "if we are putting our push in the right direction" and whether its manufacturing capacity is being used to the best advantage.

Mr. Howe said he wanted to make a general review of the situation with British officials — "what has been done and what needs to be done."

This will involve dozens of questions he said and will not be concerned with any one particular branch of industry or problem except perhaps the manufacture in Canada of airplanes engines which are not made there now because of the lack of "elaborate and complicated" machine tools.

Motorist Fatally Hurt, Crashes Locomotive

Hamilton, Ont., Dec. 19—(CP)—Steve Kielb, an employee of the Steel Company of Canada, died in hospital today of injuries suffered a few hours before when his automobile collided with a Canadian National Railways locomotive at the Sherman Avenue crossing here.

Kielb suffered severe brain injuries and multiple fractures of the skull in the crash.

Witnesses said Kielb apparently drove onto the tracks before he noticed the train.

Futile Italian Raid Over 'Alexandria Area'

Alexandria, Egypt, Dec. 19—(AP) Italian planes bombed the "Alexandria area" early today but, according to the official announcement, there were no casualties or damage. Alexandria is the site of a British naval base guarding the Suez Canal and the East Mediterranean.

BOMBS FALL INTO SEA

London, Dec. 19.—(CP)— Three German warplanes attacked a convoy off England's southeast coast today but watchers along the seaside cliffs reported that the Nazi bombs fell harmlessly into the water.

QUEEN ELIZABETH PRESENTS GOWN WORN IN SENATE

Princess Alice Who Brought Gown to Canada Presents it to the Dominion

GOWN A FAVORITE

Ottawa, Dec. 19 (CP). — Canada received as a present today the gown worn by Queen Elizabeth in the senate chamber, May 19, 1939.

Princess Alice turned the gown over to the public archives where it will be on view. The gown is already well-known to Canadians because the Queen wore it when standing under the arch of the peace tower of the parliament buildings with the King as they posed for one of the best known pictures of the Royal tour.

The dress was created by the Queen's famous London dressmaker, Norman Hartnell. He fashioned it of shimmering white satin, with a large crinoline skirt which, with the bodice, is heavily encrusted with pearls, gold paillettes and sparkling diamentes.

The whole garment was embroidered in a Persian pattern on a background of filmy gold lace and the court train is of the same gold and bejeweled embroidery.

In presenting the dress to Canada on behalf of the Queen, Princess Alice described how the Queen asked her, when she was leaving for Canada, if the Princess would mind taking along an "extra box".

The extra box turned out to be the one containing the gift.

The gown was a favorite of the Queen's, the Princess said, and she had parted with it "regretfully". At the same time, she wished to make the gift as "a lasting memento of her Canadian tour".

Told of Affection

Princess Alice told of the Queen's affection for Canada and termed the gift "a mark of her appreciation and affection" for the Canadian people.

Mrs. T. A. Crerar, wife of the Resources Minister, accepted the dress on behalf of Prime Minister Mackenzie King.

Mrs. Crerar said the gift would serve to remind her always "of the happy days of the Queen's presence in our midst when her irresistible charm and radiant personality conquered the whole of Canada from ocean to ocean."

Welcoming Princess Alice at the ceremony of presentation in the Public Archives Building, Hon. P. F. Casgrain, Secretary of State, said, "In the absence of the Prime Minister, who is unable to attend, I deem it a great honor and privilege to welcome Your Royal Highness."

"It is the second time since the visit of Her Majesty the Queen to this country that the Dominion has been favored with a gift from her," said Mr. Casgrain.

"Last year the Queen most graciously presented to Canada the last letter that Wolfe wrote to his mother two weeks before his victory and death on the Plains of Abraham, as well as the original portrait of Wolfe by the well-known American painter, Benjamin West."

Princess Alice, in presenting the gift mentioned the name of Miss Elizabeth M. Delafield of Toronto, whom she said was responsible for bringing the suggestion the gown might be presented to the people of Canada to the attention of the Queen.

Lighter Offerings Send Butter Higher

Toronto, Dec. 19 — Scarcity of offerings pushed butter up another half-cent yesterday on the Toronto open produce market. Eggs showed mixed price trends.

Butter offerings were extremely limited, causing a slow-down in trading. Demand was steady. Early sales of first-grade Ontario solids were made at 36 1-2, with the price advancing later to 36 5-8c and closing at 36 3-4c. Even at this top level offerings were scarce.

Egg prices to the wholesale trade firmed slightly on top grades. A-medium and A-pullet eggs, however lost 1c in selling to retailers. The market was generally steady in tone. Receipts were ample for demand and were kept fairly well cleared by out-of-town inquiry. Government - inspected lots commanded a premium of 1-2c per dozen.

URGENT APPEAL FOR OLD MAGAZINES

An urgent appeal for old magazines and such reading matter was made by the Y.M.C.A. War Council committee here today. "Over in Picton there are over 500 men training for the Air Force who are in dire need of reading material. Old magazines and other such reading matter would be most welcome and acceptable. Persons having such material available if they would either deposit them at the Y.M.C.A. on Campbell Street, or phone to the "Y" and we'll make arrangement to pick it up as the need is urgent," stated Andy Reekie, who is in charge of the Y.M.C.A. war work at both the Trenton and Picton air stations, revealed today.

HINTS AT LAND

mier entered the house he waved a sheaf of notes at her and then smiled before taking his seat. Mrs. Churchill waved an acknowledgment.

Not Afraid of Any Blow of Invasion

As for the danger of invasion, the Prime Minister said:

"We are not afraid of any blow . . . our defence of the beaches is complete."

It was the Prime Minister's final war report before the short Christmas recess of parliament. He devoted much of his address to reviewing Britain's defences.

"We are not making the mistake which was made by the French general staff when they thought that holding the Maginot Line was all that was necessary," he said. "The watchword must be unceasing vigilance."

Deprecates Comparison of Hitler and Napoleon

"Hitler—" and as Mr. Churchill uttered the word he interjected, amid laughter: "I should certainly deprecate any comparison between Hitler and Napoleon—I do not want to insult the dead—Hitler wields gigantic power and is capable of wielding it in a ruthless manner.

"He has a great need of doing the net two months. . . .He waited a long time to complete quiescence, it seemed, and then he struck the most terrible series of blows which shattered France."

Triumphantly telling the House that operations in Libya were proceeding "favorably," Mr. Churchill said British forces, contending against odds of 3, 4 and 5 to 1, had captured more than 30,000 prisoners with a total loss of less than 1,000 killed and wounded.

Defence of Beaches Complete

Cautioning that a German—invasion of Britain still is a "supreme danger," he confidently declared: "We are not afraid of any blow . . our defence of the beaches is complete."

"One reason which makes this victory gratifying to us," Mr. Churchill said, "is that the British army has at last had an opportunity of showing its quality." He added that it "should permit us to take bolder views than those open to us before."

Shipping Losses Primary Problem

However, he added, British shipping losses in the Atlantic remain the primary problem at present.

Mr. Churchill explained that when he spoke recently and referred to 1943 and 1944 he did not mean he believed that the war would continue until then but that preparations had to be made for war production for years ahead.

"We shall steadily increase from now on our resources in flotillas and other methods of defence against the Nazi counter blockade," the Prime Minister said.

Warns Against Supreme Danger of Invasion

"It would be a disaster for anyone to suppose that the supreme danger of invasion has passed," Mr. Churchill warned, explaining that "Hitler has great need to do something now or at any rate in the next two months; we must suppose that he is making plans which would be particularly directed against us."

Noting the decrease in air attacks on Britain, Mr. Churchill said he supposed the weather was the chief factor "but they might easily have slackened in preparation for some other form of activity against Britain."

By No Means At An End

"I hope the House will be contented by the present position and by the results achieved by this offensive," Mr. Churchill said regarding the African campaign.

"It is not by any means at an end."

He disclosed that heavy reinforcements were sent around the Cape of Good Hope last July and August when the threat of German invasion was highest.

"It was not easy in July and August to send precious tanks of the best quality and cannon, of which we were then so short, on that long journey around the Cape of Good Hope to enable us first to defend ourselves and later to resume the offensive.... But you will not bridge this war or emerge from it successfully unless risks are run."

R. A. F. BOMBERS

The Ministry said four large new fires were started in Mannheim, "where smoke from fires of previous raids" still could be seen.

"At Milan," a communique said, "a large area was seen to be blazing furiously."

The submarine base at Lorient, in Nazi-occupied France, also was attacked, the Ministry said.

The R.A.F. lost no planes in the night's raiding, carried out despite bad weather.

Although conditions over the Channel were described as "not unfavorable," the German Air Force remained inactive last night and for the second successive day the morning communique on aerial operations over England said merely:

"There is nothing to report."

Failure of the Germans to attack London during the night gave the capital its longest raid-free period since the heavy air war began last September—a respite of two days and two nights.

The lack of developments puzzled the British Press, which cast about for explanations as to why the German Air Force should remain grounded while the R.A.F. carried out long flights to Germany—and Italy.

The Press Association suggested that "in all probability the Germans' airports in occupied France have been completely disorganized by the constant punching of the R.A.F."

CONGRESS

"mortgaged material" strengthened belief today that new tactics were being worked out to push armament industries to peak production as fast as possible.

Approval of the "mortgaged material" plan by the next congress, officials pointed out, would mean an avalanche of additional military orders for factories now either behind in delivery on present contracts or hard pressed to keep up.

Until new plants and equipment get into service and assume a share of the load, these sources said, existing industries must do the "impossible" in speeding up to the highest possible peak if munitions are to be ready when needed for national defence purposes, for Britain, Greece and China, and for the preparedness programs of Pan-American nations.

London, Dec. 19 (CP).—News of the arms speed-up in the United States and President Roosevelt's proposals to lend aid to British crowded the front pages of London newspapers today, and some sections of the press viewed the United States as a full-fledged ally in the war against Germany and Italy!

Editorial and special writers acclaimed the President's proposals as having solved Britain's current credit dilemma.

"America is our ally in the struggle," proclaimed the Daily Sketch, which deplored the necessity of such expedients as arms loans and said they arose from "the fiction that America is not in the war as much as we."

"America is as much a belligerent as Britain—the only difference being that we are in the front line," declared this paper.

Britain's Supply Base.

The Mail's editorial page told its readers that declarations by Cordell Hull, Secretary of State, and W. S. Knudsen of the National Defence Advisory Committee had finally shocked Americans "out of their smug slumber" in which they "tried to have their guns and candy, too" by maintaining production of "peace time niceties".

"But America isn't living in peace time," wrote Don Iddon, the Mail's New York correspondent. "She is the non-belligerent ally of Great Britain. She is Britain's supply base and plane and ship provider..

MATSUOKA PLEADS

the door to none. Any nation that desires to take a hand in this task is welcome."

"I am glad to learn that in the Japanese program the door is to shut nowhere and to none," Grew remarked, "and this program envisages no conquest, no oppression, no exploitation . . .

"The Foreign Minister knows the American people stand for certain things, among which, on one hand, are their obligations, and the other their rights."

Must Consider Facts

The United States must consider not alone "expressed intentions," Grew said, but "facts and actions too, regardless of the persuasive garb in which they may be dressed."

(It was before the America-Japanese Society that Grew delivered his "horse's mouth" speech of Oct. 19, 1939, in which he bluntly declared that the American people "regard with growing seriousness the violation and interference with American rights by Japanese armed forces in China in disregard of treaties and agreements . . ."

(Speaking shortly after a trip to the United States and a talk with President Roosevelt, Grew said his talk came "straight from the horse's mouth.")

Matsuoka said in his address that he feared United States entry into war would bring the world to "Armageddon that would end in the total destruction of our culture and civilization.

"I beseech my American friends to think twice, thrice, nay a thousand times before they take the leap that may prove fatal to all humanity," he cried.

Expressed Desire for Peace

Admiral Nomura also expressed a desire for peace and for "drastically improving relations between Japan and America which have deteriorated so much of late."

"The light has gone out in Europe where nations have been thrown into the fearful vortex of a great war," he said. "Let us in Japan and America guard the peace of the Pacific, the only bright light of hope now left to mankind."

Matsuoka declared "I owe it to candor to admit that the relations between our two countries are severely strained," adding that he felt the fundamental cause of this was "American misapprehensions of Japan's aims and aspirations."

A Moral Crusade is Claim

"Contrary to the impressions current in America and elsewhere," he asserted, "Japan is not waging an imperialist war of greed and aggression in China. We are engaged in a moral crusade.

"Laugh or shrug your shoulders if you like, ladies and gentlemen, but I am sure time will prove it."

Mentioning no names, Matsuoka declared:

"It seems to me that this world is too wide politically and too narrow economically. Our political efforts had better be restricted only to those spheres in which we are vitally interested, not extended to other people's domains."

Of the Japanese-German-Italian Pact, he said a section of the American people had "misunderstood our purpose and accused Japan of harboring hostile intentions toward America. This is absurd and untrue."

AEMILIUS JARVIS

The conviction was registered in 1924 and for 13 years after friends of the Toronto broker strove unsuccessfully to have the case, appealed on the ground it was a miscarriage of justice.

Peter Smith, treasurer in the Drury administration, was convicted along with Jarvis of conspiracy. Mr. Jarvis was sentenced to six months imprisonment, fined $60,000 and ordered to make restitution of $160,000.

Was First Winner of Cup

Mr. Jarvis was the first winner of the Canada's Cup in the International 12-metre sloop races against the United States and even last summer, he was sailing in the yacht races on Lake Ontario and winning his share with his sloop, the Metina.

Of his life, he told an interviewer on his 80th birthday: "Every day has been a good one for me, except for the time that politicians did me in. Those years were spoiled by men in high places, who ignored justice rather than admit mistakes".

Mr. Jarvis' conviction on the conspiracy charge was reviewed by Attorney General Arthur Roebuck of Ontario in the summer of 1935 and, after a lengthy hearing, Mr. Roebuck sent a report to Justice Minister Lapointe at Ottawa, questioning whether Mr. Jarvis had a fair trial and stating that evidence then available might have resulted in a different verdict.

Mr. Lapointe referred the case to the Appeal Court of Ontario for judicial determination. A new trial was refused.

Mr. Jarvis was a great friend of the late Sir Thomas Lipton, and was always on the scene when Sir Thomas was racing for the America Cup in his Shamrock boats.

Greatest Canadian Yachtsman

Mr. Jarvis, who had been ill some time, was known internationally as a yachtsman, perhaps the greatest of Canadian yachtsmen. He had been around and loved boats since he was 12, when with a cousin he traded 50 cents cash, an old gun and a watch for a 23-foot sloop, which had been beached for some time.

The cousin was Paulus Aemilius Irving, who many years later became Chief Justice of the Supreme Court of Canada.

He shipped as a young man in a three-masted schooner which carried lumber to England, and Mr. Jarvis used to recall that on this voyage, which took 45 days through storms and heavy seas, that he learned to defend himself well enough that he became Canadian amateur boxing champion later.

Mr. Jarvis was active until the fatal illness which struck him a few months ago.

Last April, on his 80th birthday, he rode to hounds with the Toronto and North York hunt of which he was joint master and which was founded by his great-great-grandfather in 1801.

Commodore Seven Times

When Sir Thomas made his challenge in 1920, Mr. Jarvis was navigating officer of the Shamrock and was a member of the board which plotted the challenger's strategy. Mr. Jarvis was Commodore of the Royal Canadian Yacht club seven times.

In the First Great War he was awarded the Imperial Special Service decoration and received public thanks from the British Admiralty three times for his work in obtaining men for the Royal Canadian Navy and the Royal Navy.

After the war, it was learned that he also had been assigned to the task of buying ships outside of Canada, of strengthening and disguising the ships and sailing them to a secret rendezvous where the ships received their wartime crews for Canada's Atlantic U-Boat patrol.

Mr. Jarvis was married twice. His second wife, the former Marion Gertrude Read of Vancouver, three daughters and two sons survive.

D. A. Whittaker, well-known Canadian paint executive, who has just been elected president and managing director of The Sherwin-Williams Company of Canada Limited, was born and educated at Morrisburg, Ontario. He has spent his entire business career with this company. He has held several important posts in his organization and was vice-president and managing director when he succeeded George A. Martin as president. The latter has been appointed chairman of the company. A successful year for Sherwin-Williams was reported on at the annual general meeting held in Montreal on December 12th at which the new appointments were announced.

ASSAULT AIMED

The current Greek offensive also is aimed at the coast town of Chimara.

Maenwhile, the British Air Force told of a "most successful" attack yesterday on the port of Valona, which is in the path of the Greeks' coastal column, 25 miles north of Chimara.

One Italian Plane Downed

The Royal Air Force encountered "strong fight opposition" and fought a 20-minute running engagement. One Italian plane was believed to have been downed and one British plane made a forced landing on its return to base.

Nevertheless, the R.A.F. communique said, "All bombs fell on targets" which included a seaplane base, docks and warehouses.

Klisura, on the important route leading to the lower Viusa River valley, was reported by the Greeks to be in flames and they took this as an indication that Premier Mussolini's forces had fired the city in preparation for withdrawal.

The Greeks said yesterday they were pouring machine-gun fire into both Klisura and Tepeleni and that Chimara also was within range of their attacking forces. They added that Italian reinforcements had been brought up in a determined effort to hold Chimara.

The Greek High Command last night reported only that "successful local operations" had taken place "at various points of the front."

"We again took numerous prisoners, including officers," the communique said. "Much material also was captured."

Snowstorms were reported to be slowing the tempo of the fighting on the northern front.

LONDONERS'

Shelter Fashions.

And sometimes I see it as a fashion show with living models answering the question: What are the best dressed shelterers wearing this season?

Quite obviously it is desirable to choose something warm, something loose, something in colors which do not show the dirt too plainly and yet with a touch of brightness to liven the otherwise too drab scene and lend courage.

For warmth there is a predominance of sweaters and light overcoats and often a glimpse of woollen underwear. The old-fashioned shawl is quite good taste and the blanket worn Indian fashion is not frowned upon. Younger women prefer slacks to skirts which climb above the knees. Some simply wear an old pair of a husband's or brother's trousers. A scattered few have ski suits; they are fortunate.

Looseness is desirable because, after all, shelter clothes are meant to be slept in. The blanket bathrobe would seem to be a perfect garment, but it is almost never seen in the railroad shelters.

But there has to be some color relief. That is supplied by the sweaters and scarves and it is curious how many are wearing yellows and oranges as if they realized how these vivid colors save a shelter scene from having the aspect of a charnel house.

One's train comes at last to the end of the deep underground section and the show is over, but before we leave the subject it might be well to note what is being worn by the west end society women in their more perfumed shelters in the basements of apartment houses and such places.

In that area one finds the open-crowned self-coiled stockinette turban preferred for guarding the hair, in colors to match the costume. One finds loose-belted corduroy jackets and slacks worn with silk-wool hose and wool-lined shoes.

One of the neatest tricks is the tailored costume, entirely of tinted suede, the jacket softly fur-lined, and furlined boots with high uppers as soft as a glove which slide-fasten almost to the knee. They cost a pretty penny but the wearer is likely to be dug out of debris looking fresh and colorful as a debutante at a shooting party.

Or so she hopes.

Fewer Christmas Trees for Sale

A reported shortage of Christmas trees sent residents of the city to the market square this morning where purveyors of the evergreens did a land-office business. Truckloads brought in from the far northern stretchaes of the district were spread over sidewalk and parking lot and lost little time in finding their way into the hands of purchasers.

Prices ranged from as low as twenty-five cents to one dollar for the handsome blue spruce variety. White spruce, fir and other perennials were offered for sale.

Questioned as to the reported shortage, one vendor stated that in ormer years residents of the north country secured their supply from trees cut within a radius of 25 miles. These stocks have been depleted and vendors are forced to go farther north for their supplies.

Farmers of that section of the country, however, are keeping a wary eye on itinerant trucksters who are not averse to cutting a load of trees from northern properties without the formality of asking the owners' permission or paying for them. This practice however, is not as general as it was a year ago, when irate farmers threatened drastic action on the men who deliberately spoiled handsome trees for the sake of securing the top for a Christmas tree.

By the same token, the vendor said, forest rangers are also on the alert fr peple who in former years have made it a practice to secure truckloads of the trees from crown preserves.

The present stocks of trees are being trucked a distance of 80 and 90 miles, the vendor said. Others come from within 30 miles.

Indicative of the reported shortage is the fact that up to the present, truckers have not resorted to the time-honored house-to-house canvas to dispose of their stocks.

AT THE CAPITOL

"Hidden Gold"

Hard riding and smoking guns will bang their way to the fore at the Capitol when "Hopalong" Cassidy comes back with his pals "Lucky" and "Speedy" in his latest action-packed Clarence E. Mulford Western, "Hidden Gold."

"Hidden Gold" is now playing at the Capitol.

"Hoppy", celebrated character of fiction and film, is on a vacation from the Bar 20 this time, looking for the robbers who stop shipment after shipment of the Colby gold. Harry Sherman, the producer, has whipped up a thriller that gives Western fans plenty of photography of saddle action.

William Boyd, the man who gave life to Clarence E. Mulford's cowboy character, will again have Russell Hayden, as "Lucky" and Britt Wood, as "Speedy", supporting him as his scrapping, laughing pals.

"Bad Guy"

The added attraction is a sensational story of two brothers loving the same girl, and one was a smiling killer! To the screen comes a new and exciting melodrama in the adventures of "Blackie" Walden.... who was loved by all women ....and hunted by all men! You will see the most electrifying melodrama since "San Francisco!" How a great "city" can be destroyed by "man - made" lightning! The strange romance of a girl who was loved by two brothers! The most ingenious jail-break in the annals of modern crime! How ironic Destiny trapped "the man who couldn't be killed!" See this great melodrama with a great cast including Bruce Cabot, Virginia Grey, Edward Nanis, Jean Chatburn, and Cliff Edwards.

AT THE BELLE

"Brigham Young"

"Brigham Young" by Louis Bromfield, was produced on a magnificent scale by Darryl F. Zanuck. The picture, which is now on the Belle Theatre screen, is spectacular and grippingly dramatic. It has an exceptional cast, starring Tyrone Power with Linda Darnell in the leading feminine role and Dean Jagger portraying Brigham Young.

With the great Mormon migration as its theme, the film gets on to a tremendous start. The massacre at Nauvoo, Ill., and the heroic trek westward are depicted with thrilling realism. These stirring sequences and the many others make "Brigham Young" one of 20th Century-Fox's greatest achievements. It's entertainment that must not be missed.

"Jennie," Stirring Film

Described as stirring, human and different, "Jennie," a 20th Century-Fox film which is announced as the associate feature, depicts the poignant story of a woman's daring battle to hold the man she loves.

Virginia Gilmore, one of the screen's most promising newcomers is seen at the head of a fine featured cast which includes William Henry, George Montgomery, Ludwig Stossel, Dorris Bowdon and others.

Portraying the wife who dared stand up to her in-laws, she manages not only to hold her man and tame a family tyrant, but to teach eight unhappy people what fun living can be as well.

"Mexico" is the title of the latest issue of the March of Time to be presented on the same program.

What role will Mexico's twenty million play in Western Hemisphere? What are the reasons behind Mexico's re-born friendship for the United States today? Mexico, long resentful of the might and power of the U.S. has frequently expressed its feeling during recent years, by her own sympathy for Soviet Russia and her economic cooperation with Nazi, Germany and Japan in the sale of oil and other materials vital to the war machines of those countries. This issue is exceptionally thrilling and of timely interest.

AT THE McCARTHY

"RACKETEERS OF THE RANGE"

Telling an exciting story of modern Arizona and its cattle troubles, George O'Brien's new western, "Racketeers of the Range" is now showing at the McCarthy Theatre in addition to Richard Arlen and Andy Devine in their latest production "Hot Steel" and a comedy riot, the Three Stooges in "Nutty But Nice".

Some of the most spectacular stunt riding seen on the screen in recent months is presented in George O'Brien's "Racketeers of the Range". In one sequence, O'Brien boards a speeding train from the back of a galloping horse, in another scene he drops into the saddle of the same racing mount from the top of a moving freight train. "Racketeers of the Range" is a western that packs excitement every minute.

"Hot Steel".

Starring Richard Arlen and Andy Devine, highlighted by fast action, comedy and rugged dramatic scenes "Hot Steel", second feature now on the McCarthy Theatre screen is one of the best productions in which these two facorites have yet appeared, the story is told in and around a giant steel mill where the stars have roles of furnace men. Larry, Moe and Curly, the Three Stooges in "Nutty But Nice" is a scream of fun and hilarity from start to finish and never before the Stooges made a more comedy-loaded laugh hit.

POLICE COURT

Two brothers, Fred and Roy Bryant of Sidney Township, appeared in County Police Court held before Magistrate E. J. Butler K.C., on Thursday charged with breaking and entering, theft and being found in possession of stolen goods. The pair was not asked to plead but arraigned and remanded in custody for eight days. At the request of their counsel, Mr. Frank Cushing, the men will be subject to a mental examination during their week's incarceration.

The charges were preferred by Provincial Constable R. S. Patterson following a search made at the Bryant farm by that officer and Sergeant H. E. Thompson recently when a large quantity of stolen goods, which included wrench sets, builders' hardware, bedding, towels and numerous other articles were found which were of little use to them, the O.P.P. stated.

Fred Bryant was charged with the theft of lumber from William Lafferty's summer cottage and also of breaking and entering the summer home of Mrs. J. P. Wills, Trent Road, and committing the indictable offence of theft. His brother Roy, faced charges of entering Mrs. Wills' cottage and also of receiving stolen goods. Mr. Cushing asked to have the hearings laid over and sought bail for his clients.

Request For Bail Denied

"I cannot approve of bail in these cases, if for no other reason than the fact Mr. Cushing suggested a mental examination of these men", stated Crown Attorney B. C. Donnan K.C., as he denied the request.

Manley Storms, Belleville, was fined $25.00 and costs after being convicted of operating a motor vehicle while his driver's permit was under suspension. Mr. A. B. Collins, K.C., appeared on Storms' behalf and pointed out that Storms was employed at the R.C.A.F. as chef and needed his motor car for transportation to his employment. Storm's operator's permit was suspended by Magistrate Butler in a Napanee police court following a H.T.A. conviction two weeks ago. His licence will again be suspended, His Worship pointed out.

Careless Driving

Raymond Bailey, Point Anne, paid $5.00 and costs after entering a plea of guilty when charged with careless driving. The charge was preferred by Motorcycle Patrolman C. E. Siple following an accident near Marysville, last week in which Bailey's motor car was in a head-on collision with another automobile.

Police Blotter

Belleville police recovered an automobile, which had been reported stolen at Trenton last Saturday night. The vehicle, bearing Ontario licence plates number 8-T-136, was found abandoned on the outskirts of the city by Constables Arnott and Taylor.

W. B. Brown, 10 Campbell St., informed police his motor car had been in collision with another automobile on Coleman Street early last evening. The only damage resulting was a damaged bumperette on Mr. Brown's motor car.

Only Few Hours of Liberation

Only a few hours after he had been liberated from the county jail where he served 14 days after pleading guilty to a charge of intoxication a fortnight ago, Thomas G. Cook of Warkworth, was back in the custody of the authorities last night. Today Cook appeared before H. B. Wilson, local justice of the peace, on two charges, that of intoxication and a second charge of the theft of a cigarette lighter. Police say that Cook entered the office of Dr. J. J. Robertson, Pinnacle Street, and after loitering around for a short time left the premises. Later the lighter was missing and when Cook was apprehended police say he was found in possession of it.

LOST SUNRISE

by KATHLEEN NORRIS

INSTALMENT 13.

"Oh no, Van, no! Thank you, but I'm all—all wrung out; I couldn't bear it—lights and people. To hear it, to have heard it just beginning, you know, being hinted—the 'Wedding March', I mean—to realise that—" She was standing still, under the awning, unconscious of time and place, her eyes stars. "To realise, Van, that one doy it wasn't in the world, and the next day—simply, it was!" she said, breathlessly.

The man laughed in pleasure at her excitement. "That was a great performance," he said. "They were all in great form."

"Oh, a taxi?" Gwen said. She settled back in it contentedly. "This completes things, Van".

"And shall you tell Dick you met me?"

Gwen said, slowly, "Oh yes, I'll tell Dick, because I simply must. I can't go in and pretend that I'm not—devastated, and I'll be sure to mention the box sooner or later. Everyone isn't as jealous as you are, Van!"

Van had her hand again, tight in his own.

"I love you so much," he said. "You wonderful woman. As long as I live I shall never forget leaning over your shoulder tonight, with your hair against my cheek, Gwen."

She made no answer. It was too bad, she thought, that he should feel so. Within her being there was no response, no sudden uplift of fear and joy, such as Dick's gruffest word had power to arouse in her. With Van she felt only immense embarrassment and reluctance and sympathy for his feeling. As soon as she and Dick had settled their plans he would know of it, she thought uncomfortably, and then he would find some other woman. Meanwhile—if only he wouldn't grow affectionate—

When they reached her corner she said something shyly about not being able to ask him to come up. Oh no, he said quickly adding, "And when do I see you again, darling?"

"Soon." This was awkward, getting away. They were on the sidewalk when he put his arms about her and kissed her good night. Gwen said nothing more as she escaped into the darkness of the apartment-house stairs.

When Dick came in to breakfast the next morning, he found Gwen in her kimono again, eager to tell him of the opera. She had decided that the simple truth would be her wisest course, but she saw his face darken as the recital went on, and altered it judiciously.

"Changed the seats, did he?"

"Well, yes. He knew a man at the door; he said he was in a case once that this man brought about election returns or something. So he took your seats and sold them, and Van got others."

"Downstairs?"

"Oh, yes. And Dick, it was wonderful! I never dreamed . . ." She was off with a good start upon the musical element of the evening now, but when he spoke it was still of Van.

"How'd he happen to be there?"

"He loves music. He plays the piano marvelously, you know."

They idled at the table. The streets were quiet in the early morning. Now and then church bells rang. Gwen asked Dick if he had had a hard night.

"No, it was darned interesting!" He told them about it. Afterward Gwen helped in the kitchen, got herself completely dressed, came out to the living-room to find Dick deep in the morning papers.

"Now what?" she asked. "Must you go to the hospital this morning?"

"You haven't got a date?" he asked. For a moment Gwen was bewildered, then she laughed, suddenly understanding his mood.

"I've been wondering what was the matter with you! No, I haven't got a date. What shall we do? Where could we go and make a fire and cook hamburgers? Your mother got some for our lunch."

She saw his face brighten in spite of himself.

"Oh, let's see," Dick murmured, warming, letting the newspaper drop to the floor beside his chair. "I know what we could do—if I can get Ollie Briggs on the telephone—" he said. "Wait a minute!"

Ollie Briggs and his wife, it appeared, were going down to spend Sunday at Halfmoon Bay, fishing with friends, Ollie had offered Dick the trip down in the Briggs car, but was not sure they could include Dick and Miss Washburton in the fishing trip. However, there were beautiful beaches all about Princeton, and just behind them were woods and hills. Dick, suddenly all enthusiasm, telephoned Ollie, who promised to stop for Dick and Gwen.

Gwen flew for the hamburgers, added a saucepan and some rolls, pepper, salt, matches, coffee and coffee pot. They laughed joyously as they raced through preparations, and were down on the foggy sidewalk in good time. Dr. Briggs, with a doe-eyed young wife, presently drove up. Gwen and Dick got into the back seat; in laughter and high spirits the party started on its way.

The Briggs left them at a long wide arc of sand, and Gwen and Dick tramped along it contentedly, looking for a place where they might hope to be alone, later on, when the Sunday picnickers arrived. They presently found a cranny in a cliff, with a strip of washed beach set between encroaching rocks.

Gwen busied herself with luncheon preparations, steading her coffeepot on a rock, opening packages from the delicacy shop, scraping sand smooth to hold the cups.

"Gwen," Dick said, "Doesn't your mother mind our having days alone this way?"

"No," Gwen answered sedately. "She knows we like each other, of course, and that we have a good deal to talk over. It's time to light that fire, Dick," she added, in a matter-of-fact tone. "Mother's very practical," finished Gwen. "She knows we're—serious."

Kneeling on one knee, he slowly shook out the lighted match before it had touched the fire. She saw the look in his face change, his eyes soften. He got to his feet, and they stood facing each other.

"Do you mean what you said, Gwen?" Dick asked, his big hands on her shoulders. She locked her hands about his neck, trying to laugh.

"Do—do you want me to?"

"Do I want you to!"

"You never said so." The wind was blowing her dark curls, her slender young body straight into his arms; their cheeks were together.

"Because I—because I—oh, darling!" Dick whispered. And for a moment the whole world, to Gwen, was only a man's kiss. When she emerged breathless from his embrace, and could hold him at arm's length, she was laughing triumphantly.

"You knew it all the time, since that first Sunday!" she reproached him. "The Sunday we went to the Arcades!"

"Know it? I never dared dream it! I didn't—but, Gwen," he interrupted himself, his mood chilled. "I can't go to Scotland now!"

"Ah yes, you can. That's just it. You must. All the more."

"But we can't wait four years! We can't wait one."

"We'll have to, Dick."

"I can't. I won't. I'll get a job running an elevator." She was tight in his arms again, her hair tumbled, her breath stopped.

"It won't be four years, Dick. We'll find a way before that."

"Gwen, you're so wonderful, you're so wonderful!" he was saying, laughing shakily, breathing like a man who had been running. "Sit down here, let's talk! We're engaged, do you get that! We're engaged! And only yesterday I was worrying because I couldn't get you better seats for the opera, and take you in a taxi. Engaged, hey? What do you know about that?"

"It's a mere detail," she said. "But you haven't said yet that you love me. I brought this subject up, remember."

"Oh, lord, do I love you! Wait until we've been married twenty years and I'll tell you I love you!"

"You never would have asked me, I suppose?"

"I didn't dare! I've been going around for weeks—months—wondering how I could. I couldn't even give you the right kind of engagement ring. I can't now. But by George—"

"Dick, darling, don't worry about a ring. Worry about having enough warm clothes for Scotland. Worry about getting there. Will it cost you a lot?"

"No, they send me fifty pounds. I can do it swell on that. I'll go tourist, or third, I don't care! Gwen, I don't care about anything now, so long as you'll wait for me. And you'll be proud of me, you'll see. I'll work! And I'll save, too. I'll save—"

"I'm proud of you now. Why, Dick," Gwen said, "poor or rich, successful or failure, you're just my fate. I'll cook for you in two little rooms in the Mission, or I'll be the wife of the great spine specialist, I don't care!"

"I adore you!" Dick said in a low tone. Another voice had said that in her hearing, and not so long before, but it had not reached her as this voice did. No other woman in the world had ever heard Dick Latimer say that. Seated with her back against the smooth shoulder of a rock, Gwen put out her hand, and he flung himself down beside her and caught the hand to his lips. "I adore you!" he said again, under his breath. "To wait for you for years, Gwen. It seems more than I can do! I want you so, my beautiful wife!"

"It won't be so long. We'll both be so busy. And before you know it, it'll be 'next year', and then 'this year', and then I'll be getting my clothes together!"

"I know. I know. I've not got much to offer you even with this Edinburgh thing, Gwen, but without it I'd have nothing. I've got to take it."

"And this isn't like a 'crush', Dick, just another 'case'. With us it's marriage—it's a life job."

"It'll be heaven!" he said gruffly, as she paused, in a voice almost ashamed of its own emotion.

"Those three years will be nothing. We'll still be young. The glory—the glory, Dick," Gwen said, "is that we've found each other. In spite of my being buried in Kenthill, and you being a slave to those clinics, we've actually found each other."

"Was any one else in the world as happy as this, ever?" Dick said, as they ate their luncheon. "And only yesterday," he added, "I was wondering if you were going to marry that—that sap!"

"Van? Oh, Dick, no! He's—he must be nearly forty, to begin with."

"What happened to his first wife?"

"She died in an auto crash. She was a Kenthill girl, you know. He has a little girl who lives with her mother now. No, he's really nice," Gwen said judicially, on a great bite of hamburger and toasted bun, "but I wouldn't marry him. Not ever."

"He's in love with you, though."

"It sort of surprises me," Gwen said ingenuously. "I don't know how he got that way. He's so violent about it. Well," she presently added, "when he knows we're engaged that'll end that."

"Engaged, ha!" Dick exulted, sprawled in the bland winter sunshine with his dark head resting on the surface of a rock. "We'll always remember this Sunday, won't we, Gwen?"

"Remember it! It starts our new life, Dick. It's the beginning of all our planning, our moving from this house to that house, our worries together and our fun together."

"Gwen, if it didn't have to be so long before we begin!" He stretched out his hand, and Gwen put her own hand into it. "But you're so—so darned wonderful, that you make me ashamed," he said. "We'll both be busy, you know, and I'll be learning—if there's anything that gets away from me in these three years I don't know what it'll be!"

"I don't think it'll be three years. I think I'll come to Edinburgh and we'll be married there in less than two."

"I'd bet on it," he said. He took a paper and pen from his pocket, and they entered upon definite calculations. Rent, so much. Food, certainly not more than so much. Clothes—clothes lasted a long time. And for a while they were alone in a little heaven of their own.

At three o'clock they walked to the bus, sandy, blinking, weary, but there was no fatigue in their bright eyes as they talked all the long way into town, and Gwen, with Dick's arm for the first time tight about her, felt as if she could never be tired or discouraged or doubtful again. There was a deep restfulness in the security of loving and being loved; she could not drink deep enough of it.

Bardia is Bombed As Attackers Work To Encircle Enemy

20,000 Italians in Encircled Post Protected by Traps But British Expect Final Victory

Cairo, Egypt, Dec. 20—(AP)—Italian troops defending the beleaguered Libyan port of Bardia were reported today to be offering fierce resistance to the assaults of a numerically inferior but highly mobile British force which blocked their line of retreat.

British officials estimated that approximately 20,000 men were holding out in the encircled frontier post, protected by a cunningly concealed network of tank traps, land mines and machine-gun emplacements.

They hinted it might take some time to overrun the positions, but expressed no doubt over the final victory, which the British High Command was attempting to speed by hastening more men and equipment to the front.

Military circles here said the stiff resistance encountered at Bardia was not likely to lessen the activity of British tanks and Bren gun carriers which were mopping up the road leading westward to Tobruk, vital Italian naval base 80 miles from the Egyptian frontier.

May Select Tobruk

(Reports from Rome suggested that Marshal Graziani, Commander of Italy's north African armies, might select Tobruk as the site for a conclusive test of strength with

Why The Weather?

By Major A. H. Thiessen

A winter sports! Curling is an old winter favorite in Scotland, and is the national game. The curling rink is a smooth stretch of ice 30 to 50 yards long and 4 yards wide, kept clean during the game by a besom (broom) wielded by the captains of the teams. The curling stone weighs 30 to 70 pounds, depending upon whether made of wood, stone or iron; it has a smooth bottom, and the top is provided with a handle resembling that of a plastering trowel. The object is to slide the curling stone, giving it aim and speed so that it will come to rest at the "tee". The game is played by two teams composed of four men each. After the first man has played and made a good shot, his partners try to protect his stone, while his opponents endeavour to knock it out of position.

U-BOATS ATTACK TWO MORE SHIPS OFF IRISH COAST

One is 5,162-Ton Steamer Carleton, Other Not Immediately Identified

IN SAME AREA

New York, Dec. 20 (AP)—Two ships were attacked by submarines about 450 miles west of the Irish coast today in what appeared to be the second attack on a convoy in three days.

Word of the attack was heard by MacKay Radio which picked up terse messages from the vessels. Both gave positions in the same area—the area that in recent months has become the graveyard of ships carrying war materials to the British Isles.

The first report today came from the British steamer Carlton. At 8.50 a.m. E.D.T., she radioed that a submarine had crossed her bow and then launched a torpedo.

Thirty-six minutes later came a second report, this time from a ship which did not immediately identify herself.

"Being attacked by submarine, 55.31 North Latitude, 19.25 West Longitude," the message said.

The 5,162-ton Carlton, built in 1924, is owned by R. Chapman and Sons and operated out of Newcastle.

Scores of British-controlled ships have been attacked by U-boats in the same general area since Germany stepped up its campaign against shipping. The last assault bearing the marks of an attack against a convoy was unloosed on Wednesday when two tankers and a freighter reported within four hours they had been torpedoed.

The ships, the 12,196-ton British Napier Star, the 9,860-ton Norwegian Dalfonn and the 10,746-ton Dutch Pendrecht, the latter two tankers, placed themselves somewhat north of the scene of today's attack.

CAPITAL GAINS TAX RETURNS TO GERMANY

Berlin, Dec. 20 (AP)—A capital gains tax, suspended two years ago, will be re-instituted in Germany Jan. 1, it was announced today, as a means of halting "rising stock market trends particularly noticeable during the past month."

GIVEN TEN YEARS IN PRISON

Toronto, Dec. 20 (CP)—Convicted earlier this week of wounding Constable Humphrey Hewitt in a patrol wagon, Maurice Bouchard was sentenced today to 10 years in Kingston penitentiary.

Bouchard was said to have fought with the constable and to have shot him with his own gun as they struggled in the wagon taking Hewitt to a police station.

Advantages, Hitherto Enjoyed Only By Few, Widely Shared After War

London, Dec. 20 (CP) — Prime Minister Churchill was disclosed today to have pledged that when the war is over "advantages and privileges which hitherto have been enjoyed only by the few shall be far more widely shared."

The promise was made at Harrow School, where Mr. Churchill spoke Wednesday.

The Prime Minister quoted Hitler as saying Dec. 10 that "Eton College and the Hitler Schools are two different world," and declared Hitler had "overlooked the vast majority of the youth of this country who have never had the advantage of attending such schools as Eton and Harrow but who by their skill and prowess have won the admiration of the whole world."

"When this war is won, as it surely will be," Mr. Churchill declared, "it must be one of our aims to establish a state of society where the advantages and privileges which hitherto have been enjoyed by only the few shall be far more widely shared by the men and

GREEKS BATTLE TO THROW ENEMY "INTO THE SEA"

Drive Retreating Italians Up Albanian Coast From Palermo Bay Toward Chimara

IN DIFFICULT POSITION

Greeks Pressing Ever Closer to Vital Towns of Klisura and Tepeleni

Athens, Dec. 20 (AP)—Blazing ruins were left in new assaults on the Albanian ports of Vadona and Krionero, the Royal Air Force command announced today, while Greek troops were reported battling up the coast from Palermo Bay toward Chimara and tightening their lines around the inland towns of Klisura and Tepeleni.

(The British Admiralty announced its naval vessels pounded Valona, second only to the Italians' chief port of entry to Albania at Durazzo, Wednesday night with nearly 100 tons of shells.)

At Valona, the R.A.F. command said military barracks, a gasoline dump, a motor transport park and buildings north of the town were hit. Great columns of smoke rose from the vicinity of the barracks and the gasoline stores, British pilots reported.

Direct hits were registered on buildings in the Krionero area and fires were seen raging after the attack.

A government spokesman said last night that Fascist forces had abandoned Palermo Bay, on which the town of Palermo is situated, in their withdrawal toward Chimara, 10 miles up the coast. He added that the Italians had been pushed back to the outskirts of Tepeleni and that Klisura was under Greek fire.

(Reports reaching Sruga, Yugoslavia, on the Albanian border, said Tepeleni and Klisura, under withering fire from Greek artillery pulled into position on sledges over snow up to five feet deep, were being abandoned by the Italians.)

Boys of Harrow Add Verse to Song Honoring Churchill

Prime Minister Churchill's visit to Harrow School yesterday, the boys surprised him with a new verse to the song "Stet Fortuna Domus" ("May the Fortunes of This Household Stand!")

"Nor less we praise in darker days
"The leader of our nation.
"And Churchill's name shall win a claim
"From each new generation.
"While in this fight to guard the right
"Our country you defend, sir.
"Here grim and gay we mean to stay
"And stick it to the end, sir."

The song was sung in a hall which had been damaged by incendiary bombs.

Large Fires Started In Duesseldorf Area By R. A. F. Bombing

London, Dec. 20 —(CP)— The Royal Air Force flew through bad weather last night and attacked "several targets in the Ruhr and in western Germany," concentrating on oil plants and storage facilities, the Air Ministry announced today.

The Ministry communique said that the targets also included power stations, a railway junction and Essen, site of the great Krupp armament works. Four explosions from heavy bombs were reported in the Essen assault.

A low level attack on the Rhine city of Bonn caused "one very large fire."

"In the Duisburg area two large fires were observed and oil targets near Cologne were set ablaze," said the communique. "At Dusseldorf several large fires were caused and an anti-aircraft position was bombed."

M. PETAIN SEEKS TO SOOTHE NAZIS BUT LAVAL OUT

Forecasts of Another "Purge" in French Cabinet Expected This Week-end

PEYROUTON TO GO

(By Charles S. Foltz, Jr.)
(Associated Press Staff Writer)

Berne, Switzerland, Dec. 20.—(AP)—French Chief of State Petain was reported in diplomatic circles here today to be considering sacrificing part of his Vichy Cabinet in an effort to "sooth" German ire over his ouster of Pierre Laval as Vice-Premier and Foreign Minister.

Forecasts of another "purge" possibly this week end, came from Vichy after Fernand de Brinon, representative of the French Government in German-occupied Paris and an intimate friend of Laval, was reported to have given to the Petain government the German government's views on Laval's removal.

De Brinon returned to Paris, taking with him, it was said here, the outlines of Petain's appeasement offer suggesting the elimination of some of Laval's enemies from his cabinet.

FASCISTS ASSERT GERMAN TROOPS ARE NOT IN ITALY

Rome, Dec. 20 —(AP)— Fascist sources asserted today German troops were not in Italy, were not en route to any Italian front and would not be sent to any.

NAZIS COOL TO VICHY

Vichy, France, Dec. 20 (AP)—While the Petain government continued cabinet meetings expected to result in readjustment in the make up of the cabinet, officials indicated today that the German attitude toward collaboration had cooled since the departure of Pierre Laval from the government.

TO FIGHT EXTRADITION

Windsor, Ont., Dec. 20 (CP)—Police authorities arrived from Kansas City today for extradition proceedings against George Hogan, 31, of the Royal Canadian Ordnance Corps here.

Hogan faces charges of burglary and grand larceny in Kansas City, police said, adding that he also is wanted in Illinois in connection with car theft and theft of $3,000 worth of jewelry in Kankakee, Ill.

Hogan's counsel, Angus W. MacMillan, said he would fight the extradition proceedings.

Mint Relaxes, Time-Table Cut 8 Hours, May Soon Have 8-Hour Day

Ottawa Dec. 20.—(CP)—Authorities at the Royal Canadian mint, well on the way to providing all the coinage needed in Wartime Canada, relaxed today as they surveyed a daily time-table shortened by eight-hours.

Around the start of the war the mint went on a feverish 24-hour, three-shift schedule in an effort to keep pace with the demand. Recently the situation eased and the schedule was cut to 16 hours.

But the finance department isn't satisfied yet and one spokesman predicted the mint soon will be operating on a straight eight-hour day.

"We've got the situation pretty well in hand at last", he said. "For a while we were pretty well swamped but we made sure it wouldn't happen again".

Late last year and early in 1940 he said, the demand was so great the mint actually fell behind in its schedule.

The spokesman attributed the sudden demand for coinage shortly after the war began to one prime cause—wartime prosperity.

"When everybody has more money, the demand for more coinage is naturally greater" he said. "The more people spend the more work they provide for us".

QUAKE CENTRING IN NEW ENGLAND SHAKES BUILDINGS

Shock Felt in Montreal and Several Sleepers Awakened — Ornaments Thrown From Shelves

Boston, Dec. 20 (AP)—An earthquake centring in New England and felt from southern New Jersey to Montreal, Que., early today shook heavy buildings, caused slight damage and threw thousands of persons into panic.

Professor L. Don Leet of the Harvard University Observatory at Harvard, Mass., said it appeared to be strongest just south of Lake Ossippee, N.H., and that it lasted 30 seconds. He timed it at 3.27:20 a.m. EDT.

Awakened by the rumbling as their homes swayed, men, women and children in cities as far west as Rochester, and Syracuse, N. Y., arose in alarm.

KYOSTI KALLIO DIES IN FINLAND

Fomer President Succumbs to Heart Attack at Railway Station

Helsinki, Finland, Dec. 20 —(AP)—Finland went into mourning today for peasant-born Kyosti Kallio who became the republic's president.

Flags were put at half mast and public dancing, singing and other entertainments were banned as marks of respect for Kallio who died of a heart attack yesterday at a railway station as he was preparing to leave for the peace and quiet of his country estate.

Kallio, whose illness forced him to step down from the presidency Nov. 29 after he had led Finland in her fight against Russia, was present yesterday when Prime Minister Risto Ryti was elected to fill out his unexpired term ending in 1943.

Cheered by thousands, he then went to the station, collapsed and died almost at once. His friends said the excitement and physical strain incident to his departure were contributing causes to his death. He was 67.

His widow, his sculptor son Kalewo and two married daughters survive.

Shopper Finds Plenty of Choice Buying Food in Suburban London

What about food in Great Britain today? Milo M. Thompson discusses marketing in this, the fifth of his series of twelve stories on life in that country.

By MILO M. THOMPSON,
(Associated Press Staff Writer)

New York, Dec. 20—(AP)—Suppose we take a market basket and go looking for food in a suburban shopping district of London today.

We take a doubledeck bus, pay three ha'pence for the ride that in pre-war days was a penny. We pass the public gardens, the tennis courts, cricket pitch, bowling green and golf club of the neighborhood and note people seriously at the work of "keeping fit." We pass many brick houses with pleasant gardens.

Some of the houses are not so tidy as they once were, due to broken glass, but no heap of wreckage stares at us on this particular ride.

We hop off at the English equivalent of the "five and ten," a "thruppence and sixpence" store.

There is always something one needs in such a place. This crowded store has its food counters, too. They are full of canned soups, fruits, gelatines, fish such as sardines and kipper snacks, malted milk, packaged cheese, jellies, self-rising flour, dried fruits and the like. There is plenty of tea cakes and candy. No ration cards here and no shortage for the fellow who has sixpence.

But we are after more sturdy stuff and go out again to the meat markets. It is early in the day and we find in the windows, below the roasting and stewing cuts of strictly rationed beef, mutton and veal hanging on their silver hooks, trays of unrationed "edible offals."

British Naval Raid To Pound Valona Is Unchallenged

British Domination Of Mediterranean Spreads to Adriatic—New Developments Forecast

London, Dec. 20 (CP)—British sea power has swept the lower Adriatic, battleships pouring nearly 100 tons of high explosive shells in the Albanian port of Valona, the Admiralty announced today.

The raid, through the 50-mile-wide Strait of Otranto, was not challenged by the Italian Navy and no Italian shipping was found, the Admiralty said. Valona is a vital supply port for Italian forces in Southern Albania.

The failure of the Italians to engage the warships was viewed as indication that British domination of the Mediterranean has been extended to the Adriatic.

Five-Day Bombardment of Bardia

New evidence of British control of the Mediterranean itself was found in the intermittent, five-day bombardment of Italy's beleaguered Libyan base of Bardia where, the Admiralty announced, three supply ships were sunk in a light harbor on Tuesday.

The Admiralty itself drew no conclusions from the Adriatic and Bardia operations, but the naval correspondent of the Press Association declared:

"It would seem that the Italians driven from Taranto, and hounded again by the Royal Air Force at Naples, have sought fresh bases where they hope their fleet will keep out of the way of our Mediterranean fleet. With the Adriatic Sea now open to us, important developments may be expected."

BEVIN PRAISES ROOSEVELT PLAN

Says It Will Not Only Help to Win War, But Will Save Country From Speculators at End of War

London, Dec. 20 (CP)—Labor Minister Ernest Bevin declared today that "President Roosevelt's great idea of paying for goods by goods will not only help to win the war but take us out of the hands of speculators at the end of the war."

This reference to the President's plan to lend arms to Britain was made in a luncheon address to the Foreign Press Association. Mr. Bevin added:—

"It is an indication that the President accepts the view that the greatest contribution to international stabilization at the end of the war is labor and effort and not speculation and manipulation of currency."

The Minister said the Royal Navy now is doing work which five navies did in the First Great War and that "everyone has now to be one side or the other," in the conflict.

"At this moment, Britain and her allies are in the front line fighting this battle," he said.

"But we are only the front line. Everyone in the world is involved on one side or the other.... There can be no neutrality between right and wrong.

"Great Britain is fighting for a principle which, when established finally, will govern the conduct of humanity for generations to come.

"The Commonwealth idea on a basis of equality must be the basic principle of future security and prosperity in the world."

PACT IS MADE LIVING ORGANISM

Axis Powers Agree on Appointment of Various Commissions

Berlin, Dec. 20—(AP)—Germany, Italy and Japan agreed today on appointment of various commissions envisaged by their pact of military collaboration against any new enemy in the European or Asiatic waters. The action made the pact a "living organism," Nazis said.

It was understood that announcement of the personnel would come later in the day.

This was the disclosure that authorized sources predicted in advance and which they said would present an "intersting prospect of further development of cooperation between nations united in the three-power pact."

These sources also expected today or tomorrow the release of "concrete news on further consolidation within the French government."

It was intimated that the German comment would become available after Marshal Philippe Petain delivers a promised radio address.

No comment was available on the report from Struga, Yugoslavia, that German transport planes were ferrying Italian reinforcements across the Adriatic to Albania.

JUDGMENT RESERVED IN DAMAGE ACTION

The Honourable Mr. Justice Hope reserved judgment in the Bankey versus the City of Belleville damage action, which concluded the fall term of the Non-Jury Sittings of the Supreme Court of Ontario yesterday.

The action was entered by Charles W. Bankey of this city, who claimed $6,000.00 damages for injuries sustained when he slipped and fell on the ice-covered Front St. sidewalk near the upper end of the main street in January, 1940. Charles A. Payne, K.C., representing Bankey, claimed negligence on the part of the city. Mr. Elliott, of the firm of Borden, Elliot, Sankey and Kelley of Toronto represented the corporation as solicitor for the insurance firm with which the city is insured in such matters.

City Engineer Chas. Mott and employees of the Public Works Department told of the condition of the sidewalks, which were sanded, at the time of the accident. His Lordship informed counsel he would send them a transcribed judgment as to his findings.

INDIAN AFFAIRS GIVES DECISION

R.C.M.P. authorities here today received a decision from the Indian Affairs Branch of the Dominion Government regulating the serving of Indians, who are members of the Canadian Army units, with alcoholic beverages, such persons being prohibited from the consumption of such beverages.

The decision of the Indian Affairs Branch was forwarded to the local branch of the R.C.M.P. and reads as follows:

"Military service does not entitle any person or Indian to break any of the provisions of the Indian Act, or any other statute of Canada, or render any person or Indian immune from prosecution for such breach. Insofar as known, unenfranchised Indians, even though returned soldiers, or who at the present time have enlisted with His Majesty's forces, are not entitled to purchase beer or any other intoxicants, and if they do so, both the Indians concerned and whoever supplies them are liable to prosecution under the Indian Act."

EELS BLAMED FOR SHORTAGE LAKE TROUT

The mystery of the shortage of lake trout that has confronted Prince Edward County and other Lake Ontario fishermen for the past two years may have been cleared up by the statement yesterday, made by William Cahill, Oswego fisherman before the International Great Lakes Fisheries Board of Inquiry that depredations of "millions of eels" are responsible for the dearth of this type of fish.

Cahill, one of thirty fishermen who testified, stated that he had travelled over the trout spawning beds and had seen eels "by the millions, with heads buried in the gravel and tails pointing toward the surface." These eels, he said were feasting on trout eggs.

Local fishermen today said that while the lifts of trout in the vicinity of Prince Edward County had been lighter than other years, there was a noticeable decline from year to year. They were of the opinion that the American commercial fishermen whose scope and activities are much larger than those of the Canadians, would be more affected by the shortage.

Turkey Supply Reported Short

Rainy Brood Season in Western Provinces Cut Down Stock — Prices Generally Higher

(By The Canadian Press)

Many Canadians may be eating fowl other than the traditional turkey for Christmas dinner next Wednesday, but whether the entree is turkey, duck, chicken or goose and no matter who gets the drumstick, the farmer will get the gravy.

In a survey of Canadian poultry markets conducted by The Canadian Press a shortage of turkeys was widely indicated with prices on all fowl generally higher than last year. Although supply of geese, chickens and ducks seemed to be little below normal, prices were expected to rise more in the next week. As one major ray of light, wholesalers and retailers alike agreed that much of the benefit from increased prices will go to the farmers.

The shortage of fowl is in direct opposite to last season, when the poultry market was glutted. That oversupply may be an indirect cause of the current shortage. Some farmers were said to have reduced production this season, fearing another crowded market.

Large Army Orders

Excessive rain in Western Canada during brood season also was given as a reason for reduced stock. Western Canada's fowl exports supply many other provinces in which production is small.

A wide demand for fowl in large quantities for army, navy and air force Christmas dinners also was said to have decreased the available supply.

In Vancouver, prairie turkeys were reported selling for approximately 38 cents a pound, with the demand greater than the supply. But chickens and other fowl are plentiful, selling at about the same price as last year.

Edmonton markets reported a reduced supply of all fowl, particularly turkeys, with quality much lower. Saskatchewan—with the lowest retail prices reported in the survey—has about 20 per cent less poultry for sale than last year. In Regina turkeys are retailing from 16 to 25 cents a pound, with chickens around 20 cents a pound and other fowl from 15 to 20.

Manitoba dealers report receipts of turkeys 30 to 35 per cent below those of last year. Other fowl rose in price only about one cent a pound over 1939 in Winnipeg, with an adequate supply on sale.

In Ontario, St. Thomas and Stratford ran against the current trend by reporting no turkey shortage, although fowl prices were higher. The poultry market at Toronto was firm yesterday, with shippers getting as high as 29 cents a pound for Grade A turkeys and chickens selling at 21 cents a pound.

Prices in Quebec were higher than in Ontario. In Montreal, markets forecast a complete sellout with the supply about 40 per cent below that of last year.

The shortage also affected supply and prices in the Maritimes. In Nova Scotia and New Brunswick native birds were reported to be of better quality than last year.

Some Prince Edward Island markets were reported to have decided not to stock turkeys in view of the shortage and the possibility that the supply would be inadequate to the demand.

OBITUARY

MRS. DOROTHY ELLIOTT

Friends and relatives from far and near gathered to pay their final tribute of respect to one who had held their esteem during a long and useful lifetime at the funeral of the late Mrs. Dorothy Ann Elliott who passed peacefully away on Tuesday evening at her late home in the village of Thomasburg after being confined to her room for nearly three months. The deceased who was in her eighty-second year was born at Thomasburg, the eldest daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. William Morton. She was widely known having resided near Tweed and in this community all her lifetime. In religion she was a member of the United Church and also of the Women's Missionary Society, and took an interest in all church activities giving her support in her fine quiet manner.

After a brief service at the home the funeral cortege proceeded to the United Church where service was conducted by her pastor Rev. A. S. Doggett assisted by Rev. F. C. Beazer, rector of Christ Church, Thomasburg. The hymns were "Breathe On Me Breath of God," "Forever With the Lord" and Mrs. Doggett sang as a solo "Some Day the Silver Cord Shall Break," these selections as well as the text were chosen by the late Mrs. Elliott. The text being "If any man be in Christ he is a new creature; old things are passed away; behold all things are become new! II Corinthians 5, 17.

Acting as bearers were Messrs. Will Morton, Frank Herity, A. Jones, Lincoln Elliott, Will Holbert and James Bateman.

Beautiful floral tributes bore silent testimony of the esteem in which the deceased was held.

MRS. ESTHER J. MILLER

The funeral of Mrs. Esther Jane Miller, widow of Robert O. Miller, took place Thursday afternoon from the residence of her niece, Mrs. C. C. Dalyrmple, 163 Pinnacle Street. The service in the home and at the graveside in Belleville Cemetery was conducted by the Rev. Dr. James Semple, pastor of Bridge Street United Church.

The bearers were Messrs. Frank Blakely, R. H. Ketcheson, Garfield Sayers, Harry Sayers, Peter Van-Allen and Fred Blakley.

Early Mailing of Christmas Mail Urged by Postmaster

Despite the repeated warnings it seems that people just will not do their Christmas mailing before the last minute rush is on, stated Postmaster Trualsch at the Belleville Post Office on Friday morning, as he commented on the apparent delay of local residents in getting their Christmas mail away. "Every year it is the same," he said, "we keep expecting the rush to start fully two weeks before Christmas is here, but they always wait until the last few days and then we are deluged with mail."

Mr. Trualsch particularly stressed that local residents get all their mail intended for local delivery away this week at the latest and special arrangements for the handling of this mail have been made at the post office. Extra drop boxes for local mail have been placed in the post office lobby and it is suggested that the people would assist the postal department in their sorting problems if all such mail was tied together and deposited in the drop boxes separately from mail intended for outside points.

24 Additional Employees

In preparation for the Christmas rush 24 additional employees have been added to the post office staff with the entire staff now numbering 52 persons. The eleven letter carriers delivering mail in the city have all been given assistants for handling the mail, with the balance of the temporary employees being engaged in sorting mail at the office. In order that residents not be disappointed owing to mail arriving late on Christmas Eve, there will be the usual Christmas morning delivery by letter carriers. "All mail arriving in the post office by midnight on December 24 will be delivered on Christmas morning," stated Mr. Trualsch.

75,000 Letters Daily

There has been no dropping off this season in the amount of mail arriving which must have customs clearance before being delivered, it was learned, although very little British mail has arrived for customs clearance, it was stated. Customs officials are co-operating with the post office department in every manner possible to effect the prompt handling of all customs mail with very little delay being occasioned due to the extra handling.

As an indication of the amount of mail passing through the local post office during the Christmas season, records for other seasons show that on the average approximately 75,000 letters pass through the office daily. This does not include parcels, of which tremendous numbers are handled during the Yuletide season, and a considerable increase in both letters and parcels is expected this year.

Many Out of Town Shoppers Help to Make Day Best of Season So Far

BUSY DURING EVENING

Belleville loosened its purse-strings Thursday afternoon and evening and went on the wildest shopping spree since Junior first asked Pop to buy him an electric train, so they could both have fun.

The mild weather and the proximity to Christmas brought out the largest crowd of the season, and merchants smiled behind their hands as cash registers rang the liveliest symphony since the first snow fluttered out of the north.

Parcel-laden shoppers thronged the aisles of department stores and other shops. Sidewalks were crowded with a laughing holiday-minded crowd that parted with its money in a manner that bespoke a plentitude.

Conspicuous among the shopping throngs were out-of-town visitors. Gradual clearing up of rural roads and highways facilitated traffic and the shoppers from the outside centres and communities availed themselves of the opportunity to visit the city.

Nor were the city people backward. Principally women, although in several instances "Dad" was along to lend a little advice and provide a lot of carrying power; the shoppers invaded the gaily decorated stores in orderly formations. And the greater majority of them were not on a sight-seeing tour. Money changed hands as did parcels in a steady stream until early evening, when the rush died down, to be renewed after the evening meal in great volume.

Merchants today reported yesterday to be the "best day" of the holiday shopping season. But several had their fingers crossed as the rose-tinted business view of the Saturday before Christmas slowly floated before their eyes.

"We look for Saturday to be the grand-daddy of all the shopping days," a department store manager said, and this opinion was echoed by numerous other merchants. "Of course," he added, "there is Monday and Tuesday of next week in which people can shop, but although there is always the crowd of last-minute shoppers, Saturday will be the biggest day, weather permitting."

Consensus of merchant opinion substantiated the prediction that the 1940 Christmas shopping season would be productive of the heaviest volume done in a decade.

Supply of Oysters Likely to Disappear

Local oyster lovers will soon have to start looking around for a substitute for their favourite sea food, is the opinion of local oyster dealers who state that the supply of fresh oysters is rapidly becoming depleted.

Under the new Federal Budget, oyster imports from the United States are on the prohibited list and it is doubtful if the oysters harvested in British Columbia and the Maritimes will supply the Canadian market.

"The restriction on imported oysters, coming as it did at this time of year is rather a hardship on oyster lovers", stated one Front Street dealer this morning. "Had the restriction come a month later, residents would not have minded it so much. As it is, it is something like banning turkeys at this time of year. After Christmas the demand would not be so great" he said.

One local dealer who was contacted stated that he had made enquiries in the Maritimes with a view of obtaining supplies from there but so far had not received any reply. He said that he did not think the British Columbia product would be suitable for the local trade.

The consensus among dealers, however, is that Canadians will either have to find a substitute or else go without this type of seafood.

Given 5 Months In Reformatory

Warkworth Resident Convicted of Charge of Theft of Cigarette Lighter Had 17 Previous Convictions

Thomas B. Cook, of Warkworth, was sentenced to serve five months in the Ontario Reformatory after being convicted of the theft of a cigarette lighter when he was arraigned before Magistrate E. J. Butler K.C., in Friday's local police court.

Cook who has only been released from the county jail early this week did not enjoy a full day of freedom before he was arrested on a charge of intoxication and also of the theft of a cigarette lighter.

When arraigned today Cook said in reply to the theft charge—"I'll have to plead guilty, it was found on me".

Crown Attorney B. C. Donnan K.C., introduced the accused man's list of previous convictions which included three from a Belleville court, several violations of the Narcotic and Drug Act, making 17 in all. Cook protested the sentence saying —"The theft of a lighter is only a trivial affair and should not warrant over a month at the most".

On the drunk charge, which was preferred by Chief Kidd as a second offence, Cook was given one month in the default of the payment of a fine, the terms to run concurrently.

Assault Charge Withdrawn

Mrs. Velma Culloden, Belleville, appeared on a charge of using abusive language and was fined $1 and costs. A charge of assaulting her brother-in-law, John W. Bean, was withdrawn at the suggestion of Charles A. Payne K.C., counsel for Bean.

Final Business Of Year Transacted By City Council

The final business of the year was transacted by the Council in committee on Thursday evening at the City Hall. The city auditor was instructed that the Council desires that he shall embody in his report for 1940 a "break-down" of all expenditures under the same headings as shown in his "break-down" of the 1939 expenditures as supplied to the Comptroller and also that his annual report shall include the salaries of all public utilities officials and employees.

Grant of $150 Given

The Belleville Yacht Club was granted $150 for recreational purposes for 1940, this to be given in consideration of the service furnished by the association to the citizens of Belleville in general and particularly to the children of this particular vicinity.

All 1940 accounts received subject to same being checked by the Comptroller and signed by the chairman of the department against which the accounts are chargeable were ordered to be paid by the City Treasurer.

Blind Given Grant

The Treasurer was ordered to issue a cheque to W. E. Milton, of the Canadian National Institute for the Blind for the sum of $25, the amount being provided for in the estimates for year 1940.

Repairs to the City Hall Butter Market as outlined in the City Engineer Mott's letter of December 17th, relative to repairing and replacing supports in order that building be made safe were ordered to be carried out at a cost not to exceed $75 and that the work be proceeded with at the earliest possible time.

The tender of Raymond Arnott for leasing of the City Hall market for 1941 was accepted by the Council in committee and the Comptroller was authorized to instruct the city solicitor to prepare the necessary agreement for ratification by the council.

Leo Culhane and John Grills were appointed as permanent firemen of the City of Belleville.

THREE ITALIAN SUPPLY SHIPS SUNK AT BARDIA

British Naval Units Penetrate Inner Harbor to Carry Out Attack

DENY CRUISER SUNK

London, Dec. 20 (CP)—The Admiralty announced today that British light naval units sank three Italian supply ships in a bombardment of Bardia, Libya, Dec. 17, and added that naval operations in support of the British army in that section "are continuing."

No Cruiser Sunk

The Admiralty's communique disposed of Italian claims that a British cruiser had been sunk off Bardia by Italian torpedo-launching aircraft. It said such an attack was made—but unsuccessfully, with no hits on any British ship.

The Admiralty said extensive fires have been burning in Bardia for five days and that yesterday they "assumed very large proportions."

In sinking the three supply ships the British naval units carried out "a very close range attack....penetrating into the inner harbor (of Bardia) under heavy machine-gun fire."

The Admiralty said continuous naval bombardment had "played an important part in harassing the enemy (on land) and containing the defeated troops in the Bardia area."

Yuletide Frolic

On Monday at 3:30 p.m. one of the best tea dances of the term was held. No one could deny that it was a success with fun and favours for all. The Boys' Athletic Society and the Elevator staff co-sponsored the dance. About 150 students filled the boys' gym. This attendance was not quite up to the number expected, but, what was lacking in numbers was made up for in the students' enthusiasm. The students were pleased to see so many of the teachers present; this does show co-operation between masters and students. The highlight of the dance was the crowning of Marion Lashbrook as "Miss B.C.I.V.S." Eileen Cameron ran a close second. Other entertainment was provided by two jitterbug teams: Goldie Mulholland and Margaret Cory, and the Bishop and Belnap team. Of course, the school orchestra was on hand to furnish dance music. Now your reporter would like to acknowledge some of the men who worked behind the scenes and helped make the dance such a success: Walt. Hutchinson (manager), Doc Cherrie, Doug. Roblin, Gord. Spafford, and Norm. Bradford—and last but not least the teachers who supervised. The dance closed at 6 p.m. with the playing of "God Save the King".

POLICE REPORT TWO BREAK-INS

At Feed Company Office Robber Cut Hand Trying to Enter Building

Break-ins were found at the Quinte Seed Company premises, situated in the C.P.R. freight sheds and at Queen Alexandra School on Friday, police learned.

Sergeant Booth and Detective Fred Isard investigated both break-ins. At the Quinte Feed plant the burglar cut his hand on a broken window pane, through which he gained entrance. A blood-soaked handkerchief was found lying on the floor inside of the office, which was ransacked. The only articles missing were some postage stamps, employees assured the police.

At Queen Alexandra School the marauders climbed to a shelf outside of a school room on the south side of the building, broke a large window and entered. As the door leading out of the class room into the corridors was locked, the burglars' efforts were halted and their activities confined to the one room. Nothing was reported stolen from the school room.

Italian Communique

Rome, Dec. 20 (AP)—The Italian high command today reported heavy artillery exchanges on the Bardia front in Libya, during which Italian guns were claimed to have effectively pounded British batteries and mechanized forces.

"Sharp fighting" was reported on the southern flank of the Albanian front, where the Italian 11th. army is engaging Greek forces north of Argirocastro.

The communique acknowledged the Royal Air Force had bombed the Italian Adriatic port of Brindisi four times yesterday. A "furious" air battle was reported over Libya.

TOO COLD FOR COLD STORAGE PLANT

Houlton, Me., Dec. 20 (AP)—It was so cold here yesterday—35 below zero—that it "froze out" a cold storage plant. Electric heaters were called into pay to prevent meat from getting too hard.

Picton and District

Picton, Dec. 20 — The annual meeting of the Guild of St. Mary Magdalene's Church was held on Wednesday evening in the Parish Hall with an attendance of twenty-six out of a membership of forty-three. The annual reports of the secretary and treasurer were received and showed a most satisfactory year just past. Mr. E. L. Bronskill, church warden, addressed the ladies regarding the money urgently needed by the executive board of the church. The Guild this year had raised one thousand and eighty-one dollars and a heated discussion regarding the voting of the money followed. It was finally decided to give the church wardens the sum they asked for, in the neighborhood of seven hundred dollars and the remaining sum was to be set aside towards decorating and making necessary repairs on the church at some future date. Rev. J. B. Creeggan took the chair for the election of officers for 1941 which are as follows: President, Mrs. E. L. Bronskill, 1st Vice Pres., Mrs. H. B. Tully; 2nd Vice Pres., Mrs. C. C. Cooper, Sec., Mrs. H. E. Leheup; Treas., Mrs. N. Mallet

O. W. Torrence of the R.C.A.F., at Picton, will appear before the judge at the Court House on Friday morning charged with assault causing grievous bodily harm. The charge arises out of an alleged assault in which Wren Thomas of Picton lost the sight of an eye, about a month ago.

Mr. W. D. Saunders, accountant for a number of years in the Picton branch of the Bank of Montreal, has been transferred to the Belleville branch of the bank and leaves to take up residence with Mrs. Saunders, Jean and Allan in that city after Christmas.

A number of aeroplanes have arrived on Saturday and on Wednesday at the local Bombing School and there is now almost continual flying over the town.

Officer Harry Rawlins of the Coastal Patrol at Halifax is spending a leave until New Years with his family.

Picton, Dec. 20.—The Christmas meeting of the Picton United Church Evening Auxiliary was held at the home of Mrs. C. A. Newman with forty-two members in attendance. Mrs. P. A. Scott presided and a Christmas devotional service was held. Mrs. Ernest Ward, the treasurer, gave a report of the year's work.

Miss Phyllis Newman sang a soprano solo "Farewell" by Schubert, accompanied by Miss F. Barber.

Mrs. A. Palmatier invited the Auxiliary to her home to the "Elsie Hunt" fund tea.

A Christmas reading called "December Christmas" was given by Mrs. O. O. North.

Mrs. J. F. Reycroft invited the Auxiliary to her home for the January meeting.

Mrs. Arthur Davis, convener of the nominating committee, submitted the following report:

Past President—Mrs. F. E. Waldon; President, Mrs. A. Palmatier; 1st Vice President, Mrs. A. H. Walton; 2nd Vice President, Mrs. Brown; 3rd Vice President, Mrs. H. Huff; Rec.-Sec.—Mrs. N. GOOD NEWS IN EUROPE AND AMERICA

President Roosevelt has given the British Government authority to proceed with the negotiations for the purchase of billions of war supplies in the United States. The signing of the contracts must await the decision of Congress on his "lease-lending plan."

This action is hailed in Britain as a sign that the United States is in the war as an non-belligerent ally of Britain against Germany and Italy. It leaves no doubt in the minds of the British where the hearts of the American people are in this testing time.

Time is the essence of action now and Mr. Roosevelt has seen that. He has given the "go-ahead" sign to Britain to make all arrangements short of signing the contracts which must be withheld until the U.S. Congress has expressed its views.

Other timely news is that Britain is purchasing sixty merchant ships in the United States under this plan and paying cash for these.

This news from Washington coincides with good news from London. Mr. Churchill in the British Commons while warning the British to be ever on the alert and vigilant against an invasion attempt by the enemy, said that the defence of Britain's beaches was complete and that the nation was unafraid of any blow. Mr. Churchill also affirmed that Britain had now been fighting half armed against a fully armed Germany and that in 1941 she would be fully armed and that this condition might bring about developments which were not possible before. This was taken as a hint at a possible land offensive by Great Britain against Germany in that year.

In his speech he also emphasized the importance of the British victories in North Africa and of the offensive against the Italians he said the end is still in progress.

OBSERVE HISTORY BEING MADE

The present generation had seen and known more of the making of history than people probably of any other time. Even in the days of the Napoleonic Wars, the people were not so absorbed in war as they are today for war is now totalitarian and strikes at every factor in the strength of nations. With telegraph, newspapers, movies, pictures and radio, there is no one who cannot have a detailed picture day by day as history is being made.

War is more easily understood, more easily pictured because it is dramatic and outside the routine of normal life such as people appeared to be living before 1914. At least since 1914 the people have been living in a supercharged atmosphere in which world matters have been to the front. What conditions would have been like previous to 1914 had there been the modern newspaper services which can flash a picture across the ocean as there are today and had there then been radio, no one can tell exactly. It was getting well on past the days of the first few years of the armistice between the two great wars when the average man knew the first thing about radio, somewhere in the early twenties.

Days before 1914 would probably be far less interesting and many events would not have been carried on the newspapers and radio which the war has now brought.

But back in the dim days of history and before that in the days of legend, only a few intimately associated with courts of kings, and the armies and people immediately concerned by movements in history could have had anything but a very limited view of the life outside of their immediate circle.

Much of the Middle Ages and the periods before these has left little record. Great events of course happened though little known, but a little light would slowly make its way through with travellers and through men in responsible positions.

But back farther than that in the era before the dawn of history there was civilization. It of course moved slowly as there were not the agencies of knowledge there are today. Rev. Joseph Doherty, S.J., who is leading a Boston College anthropological expedition among the graveyards of old Syria states that there is evidence mankind lived 30,000 years B.C. These old Syrians or whatever they were called knew nothing outside of their own circles as individuals, though their rulers may have had a glimpse of what was going on in the sparsely settled world. It is only in pottery and such like that something of these people can be learned.

Today everyone is an observer of events that are making world history. They do not of course give a complete picture of present day civilization which is so complicated as contrasted with the life of 32,000 years ago.

HON. GORDON SCOTT A WAR CASUALTY

With much concern Canadians had awaited for news of the passengers on the liner Western Prince which had been struck by a torpedo last weekend. The news at last issued was of a double character, for it conveyed the information that Hon. C. G. Howe, Minister of Munitions, E. P. Taylor and Col. Woodward were safely landed unharmed, which was good news and it contained the sad fact that Hon. Gordon Scott had lost his life. Mr. Scott was financial adviser to the Minister, had been Treasurer of the Province of Quebec and had been giving his valuable services to the country at a time when the country stands in need of her best brains at the helm. He with the other members of the party was on a war mission to the United Kingdom where his services would have been of the greatest benefit to Canada in developing her war effort in the Empire cause.

The Dominion mourns his loss.

$20,000 From London Fund To Feed Sheltered in Tubes

(From the London Times)

A new kind of underground train ran beneath London recently. Instead of business people or theatregoers, it carried food, nocturnal snacks for the shelterers in the Tubes.

Among those who cheered this food train on its way were the Lord Mayor (Sir George Wilkinson) and the Minister of Food, Lord Woolton, who is keen to do all that his department can achieve to ensure that those Londoners who use the Tubes shall shelter in comfort.

The city concurs, and so while outside the barrage boomed, the Lord Mayor took part in a pleasing ceremony, and this again was something quite new of its kind. For this city function, not Guildhall nor the Mansion House was the setting, but somewhere well below the ground—the Bank Station—and here the Lord Mayor handed to Lord Woolton a cheque which will help to provide those amenities for the Tube shelterers which the Minister has in mind. Outside the night was black; down in the station it was bright and warm, and cheers went up as the train came in, with its welcome promise of meat pies and hot drinks.

Guided by Lord Ashfield, chairman of the London Passenger Transport Board, the Lord Mayor and Lord Woolton inspected the arrangements made for the shelterers.

The cheque handed to the Minister was for £20,000, and the sum came from the Lord Mayor's Air Raid Distress Fund.

Ernest Bevin A "Bull Terrier"

(From Everybody's Magazine London)

A Bull terrier has entered the War Cabinet—Mr. Ernest Bevin, M.P.

Some call him the elephant to Churchill's bulldog, but that's unfair to Bevin. The bull terrier is a better companion, for that dog has strength, tenacity, intelligence. And those are Bevin's particular attributes.

He was a farmer's boy, born at Winsford in Somerset, forty-eight years ago. Burly, homely, forthright, he has a voice which, if it is not quite so resonant as that of Mr. Ernest Brown's, carries quite as far and emphatically.

He started work on a farm—at sixpence a week, at the age of 11. Soon, looking around for more scope, he saw Bristol, and became a carter, driving a milk float for a restaurant. But it was while he was selling mineral waters and soft drinks to Bristol public houses that Bevin took his first steps in his "political" career. He was twenty at the time, and earning the magnificent salary of ten shillings a week and commission (his weekly pay packet averaged, so he tells friends, fifteen shillings per week.) He was a popular young man with a wide circle of acquaintances formed during his travels round the pubs. So when a vacancy occurred on the local council, some of his friends, remembering the forceful way he had expressed himself on politics during discussions, persuaded him to stand for the office.

x x

His opponent, a tough docker, was making a speech to a waterfront crowd one night when Ernie Bevin drove up with a truck to deliver some cases of mineral water.

Curious Bevin pulled up, and moved to the fringe of the crowd to hear what his opponent had to say. What he heard was an extremely insulting description of himself.

Bevin stuck it for a bit and then his rage got the better of him. Pushing his way through the crowd he climbed up to the platform, knocked the huge-framed docker down, picked him up again, and then repeated the performance. Finally, seeing there was no more fight left in his opponent, Bevin threw him into the river to cool off.

Incidentally, his fighting the election might have cost him his job, for the people in power in Britsol at the time, scared at Bevin's fine showing, passed the word round the Bristol pubs to blacklist him, and for weeks he could not sell so much as a bottle of tonic water. Fortunately his boss had a sense of fair play and stuck by him.

x x

Once in the Union, Bevin knew he had found his goal. Swiftly he progressed, for, as a minor official, he caught the eye—and ear—of Ben Tillet. Tillet saw the possibilities of the Somerset youth. He told him to try for a full-time job in the union. Bevin got one; first as Branch Secretary, then as District Secretary, National Organizer, and finally Assistant General Secretary of the Dockers' Union.

In 1920 he spoke for eleven hours on the docker's claims to better pay and better conditions. They called him the "Docker's K.C." and famous legal men said that if he would read for the Bar, he would have a wonderful career.

Winston Churchill, now his chief, had several conflicts with Bevin before he reached Ministerial rank. The epic encounter was at the General Strike. That was in 1926, when Winston was Chancellor. Tempers were frayed then, feeling ran inflammably high, but there was never any animosity between Churchill and Bevin. Each had the highest respect for the other's abilities.

x x

When Bevin became Minister of Labor and National Service early this year, he stepped naturally into the appointment. He had been a virtual dictator of a huge union, dictator, not by force, but in virtue of the confidence in which he was held.

When he became a Minister, he and others were invested, by the free vote of the House, with dictatorial powers far exceeding anything ever granted to Ministers of the Crown in history. He had power to command, to commandeer labor, to transfer it. He had power over all types of industry and supply, transport, agriculture, education in its relation to business. The field was colossal. He was out and about in factories, sometimes with a handful of officials, to whom he gave immediate and very definite instructions where disadvantages were discovered that could be improved.

Mr. Bevin has the physique that such a tornado of energy demands. He invariably works until midnight and his wife says that he considers he has overslept if he wakes later than 5.30 a.m.

'Censorship May Be Silly But Never Sinister'

By RAYMOND DANIELL

in a Special Cable to the New York Times from London

Under the British way of doing things in wartime the censor can sit on the lid of almost anything except criticism of himself and his Government. This is one of the reasons why Britain's wartime censorship is sometimes silly but never sinister.

It is a necessary evil in modern war, especially in a country where freedom of speech and movement is considerably greater than allowed to the regimented populations of Germany and Italy. There is much to be seen and heard here by the most casual observer that would be most helpful to the enemy. It is the censorship job not only to curb wilful treason, fifth columnists and spies, but to curb the burblings of innocent bunglers.

Since the outbreak of the war there has been censorship, and from the outset it has been clearly understood that it was solely for the purpose of preventing information helpful to the enemy from leaving the country. There has never been the slightest intention by responsible officials, either in the Chamberlain or the Churchill governments to use it for any other purpose. Yet, the censorship has been almost as much criticized here as abroad, and as much abused as the Ministry of Information, whose twin it is, contradictory as that may seem.

x x

There are several reasons for this. One is that the British have embarked on a course of truth-telling from which they will not and cannot deviate now. Since in wartime it is sometimes impossible to tell the truth without helping the enemy, this leaves only one alternative sometimes, and that is to say nothing.

There has been so much said about censorship that it may have the unfortunate result of undermining the confidence of American readers in what is sent by correspondents here. That would be both unfortunate and unfounded. There is no censor looking over my shoulder as I write, and it cannot be said too forcefully that, while deletions are often made, it is never without the knowledge of the writer, who has the right to decide whether the emendations so distort his story that it would be better not to send it at all.

It should further be said that, while sometimes it is possible to tell what happened immediately after the event, as far as this reporter is concerned there is no inside story he could tell his friends if he were home this minute except for a few amusing anecdotes which for one reason or another are not suitable for cabling.

x x

The word censorship is as repugnant to the Britons as it is to Americans, the people here are almost as suspicious of it as they are in the United States.

How to reconcile the requirements of national safety, the desire for truth-telling and the maintenance of freedom of speech is one of Alfred Duff Cooper's big headaches and is the problem that is worrying the whole war cabinet. The government does not want to kid the United States into thinking that victory is in the bag, and on the other hand it does not want to alarm its own people by providing too graphic a picture of the death and destruction all around them.

It is the same sort of dilemma that confronted political candidates in the United States after the popularization of radio, when it became impossible to sing one song in the industrial East and another in the agricultural West. For news travels fast these days, and it has been estimated authoritatively that 18 minutes after a story reaches New York it is in Berlin.

At the head of the censorship under Mr. Duff Cooper, Minister of Information, is a former lawyer, Cyril Radcliffe. He has tried zealously to codify the rules and regulations and establish the rule of law, but his difficulty is that rules have to be interpreted by individual subordinates whose salary is less than that of an ordinary Fleet Street sub-editor. These gentlemen, confronted with the choice of taking a chance or playing safe, generally make the obvious decision.

When that happens the correspondent whose story has been questioned is notified. He can appeal to a higher authority at the Ministry or consent to the deletions. If he takes the former course his story may be held up for hours. If he takes the latter his story will go immediately. Sometimes he would rather not have it sent at all and sometimes the cuts are so trivial that they are not worth arguing about.

The important point is that the decision is left to him and there is never a question of adding anything to what has been written.

x x

In daytime the censors work above ground in the cable company offices and have teletypes over which they can send the questioned messages to higher authority at the Ministry. At night they work in cramped quarters underground and have to read the whole business over the telephone to the Ministry because there is no room for bulky teletypes down there.

That slows things up considerably. Even then there are likely to be more delays because if it really is a ticklish point the whole story has to be referred to the Air Ministry, the Admiralty or the War Office, whichever is most closely concerned, and sometimes it goes to all three. The man on duty, worrying about dispositions of ships and troops, when confronted by a problem involving the foreign press has a tendency to delay a decision for the weekend, and that makes life difficult for a correspondent of a daily newspaper.

Some of these men are journalists, some are ex-servicemen, some are teachers and others would like to be any one of these. All try their best, but each in his own way.

Some of these men are journalists, some are ex-servicemen, some are teachers and others would like to be any one of these. All try their best, but each in his own way.

The press censor's lot is not a happy one, for he is damned if he cuts and damned if he doesn't. Compared with him the postal censor has an easy life, for all he has to do, if he suspects a phrase in a letter, is to return it to the sender with a printed slip like a publisher's rejection slip. There is no argument there, and it is rare that letter writers have a very wide forum to express their dissent.

Clerks Sleep in Store Basements

London (CP)—Provision for skeleton staffs to sleep in basements, earlier closing and special facilities for employees with long journeys to leave early are among arrangements made by big London stores to combat effects of shortening daylight hours and longer night raids.

At one large, fashionable Kensington store plans have been completed for a nucleus staff of 500—one-tenth of the whole personnel—to sleep in basements equipped like a hotel. A snack bar, restaurant, smoke room, games parlor and radio lounge will be among the amenities.

"The ingenuity of our girls is amazing," the staff manager of a third store said. "Some of them have to use tram, train and bus on the homeward journey and others hitch-hike."

Question of store closing has been discussed at the Home Office by a deputation representing store and distributive workers throughout the country. They urged fixing a general early closing hour, applicable to all stores, a delegation of power to local athorities to vary the hour when necessary.

P. G. Wodehouse Interned In Silesia by German Army

NEW YORK—P. G. Wodehouse, 60, British humorist and writer, is "in an internment camp in Silesia,' 'according to a letter received here yesterday from his daughter, Mrs. Leonora Cazelet, of Tonbridge, Kent, England.

Wodehouse was captured by the advancing German forces last June near his villa at Le Touquet, in France.

Mrs. Cazelet wrote Guy Bolton, a Wodehouse collaborator, that she was trying to ascertain the exact location of the Southeast German camp in an effort to send Wodehouse Christmas parcels.

"The news from here is very much the same as when I last wrote, except a bit more so," wrote Mrs. Cazelet. "Fairlawne (the Wodehouse estate) appears to be a sort of rabbit track for the Germans to London, and they go over it most of the day and all night.

"As I write, there is a terrific air battle on and every 15 minutes or so the house shudders as a bomb lands somewhere. We've had about 200 within a half-mile and very little damage. We have about 18 unexploded bombs in the park and field across the road. It is impossible to go to shelters, as to make sense you'd have to spend your whole life there. . .

"Whoops! There really was a crash then, and a long sort of whine before it, so I suppose a plane has crashed. We've often had whining and whistling bombs, and I must say they aren't so good, as you hear the whine getting nearer and louder and wonder when it's going to settle.

"The air battle takes place so high up that it isn't much of a show—merely a lot of little white specks where the sun catches the airplane wings. You see tiny puffs of smoke, but you can barely hear the machine guns. It sounds like a chorus of coughers—and quite polite coughers at that.

"A bomber came down in flames in one of our fields, but the pilot bailed out and was given plum cake and tea by the gardener's wife. All the German pilots brought down around here seem very young and inexperienced. This one of ours was 19 and he completely won Mrs. Braddon's heart by trying to kiss her hand in return for the plum cake.

"I expect it all sounds quite impressive, but I have come to realize that things appear much worse when they are far away. One appears to get used to anything—and quite quickly too. A good third of the people in London could leave but they simply won't budge. Bea Davis' flat has been bombed and at least half-demolished, but her maid won't stir. She says the country in wintertime is too quiet."

Kilties Charged With Bayonets

(From the London Times)

SIDI BARRANI, Egypt — The troops who took Sidi Barrani were a British brigade of an Indian division that had rushed to Nibeiwa and Tummar the previous day. They were materially assisted by an armored brigade that had pushed behind the Italian positions and reached the coast between Sidi Barrani-Bagbag, practically cutting off the Blackshirt division's retreat.

After bivouacking in the desert three battalions advanced at dawn over the few remaining miles, a South Country battalion on the left, Highlanders in the centre and Midlanders on the right. About two miles south of the village they came under fire of the defence positions.

Going in to attack, the British found the Italians well posted in a strongly entrenched position that was protected and well sighted by machine guns, against which it would be difficult to advance without heavy loss. To help, tanks and artillery were called in. The tanks of the armored brigade were handiest for the left battalion, while the guns succeeded first in easing the way for the Midlanders on the right. These two battalions consequently were able to get forward first.

About 2 p.m., the officer commanding the Highlanders, hearing that the other two battalions were making progress on the flanks, decided to take the bull by the horns and ordered his men to rush the enemy position.

They took the cue resolutely and worked forward under a hail of bullets from enfilading machine guns and got in among the Blackshirts with bayonets.

In a few minutes of close fighting the trench line was carried, and, advancing to the crest of the ridge beyond, the Highlanders met the welcome sight of the white-walled houses of the village close in front of them with the sea farther on. By 5 o'clock Sidi Barrani had been taken, with Blackshirts surrendering in groups when they found themselves hemmed in by tanks as men of all three battalions poured in on all sides. The last phases of the fight took place in an eddying sandstorm that limited visibility to 200 yards.

Proof That Massive Doses of Vitamin D Helps Chronic Arthritis

When a physician uses a different method of treating a disease than that in general use and gets satisfactory results, he naturally records his findings in one of the medical journals so that other physicians may try out this new method.

Some months ago I spoke of the results obtained by Dr. F. C. Farley in the treatment of chronic arthritis by large or massive doses of vitamin D. Since that time some physicians have tried this method with fair results and others have stated that their results recorded were so conflicting that the American Medical Association stated that special investigations should be made in closely watched clinics.

If there is one place where one finds serious cases of chronic arthritis, it is in the Arthritis Clinic, Hospital for the Relief of the Ruptured and Crippled, New York, N.Y. When two members of the staff, Drs. R. Garfield Snyder and Willard H. Squires in the New York State Journal of Medicine record their results with the use of massive doses of vitamin D in the treatment of arthritis, all physicians must necessarily be interested.

Before beginning the treatment all patients were informed that this special method of treatment was being closely studied and that patients should do their part faithfully by coming regularly to the clinic. Before beginning the treatment the exact physical condition of each person was learned by a complete examination of blood, urine, spinal fluid, blood pressure, Xrays and photographs of affected joints and surrounding parts and examination by an orthopedic surgeon to estimate the exact amount of movement in the joint.

Throughout the course of treatment, which extended over four years, patients were seen weekly or twice a month and what the patient told them and what the physicians found by examination was recorded.

The interesting point about the treatment was that in nearly all the cases, any improvement noted was slow in appearing.

What were the findings of these two physicians and their assistants?

In the group of 23 cases of "severe chronic" arthritis, who had obtained no results by other forms of treatment, these massive doses of vitamin D (activated ergosterol) the great majority were benefitted and in a high percentage the degree of improvement was marked and lasting.

BABY BURNS TO DEATH

Carp, Ont., Dec. 20—(CP)—Harvey Silas Boyd, 11-months-old son of Silas and Etta Boyd, burned to death in a box in which he was playing at his farm home near here yesterday. Sparks from a stove are believed to have set fire to the box.

MENTHOLATUM

Important Document Seized by British In Captured Sub

(By Harold Fair)
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

London, Dec. 20.—(CP Cable)—The Admiralty last night released a document found by British seamen in a captured Italian submarine in which Italian submarine commanders were instructed to attack "certain Spanish merchant ships without warning.

Informed sources said Britain thus had thwarted an Italian plot to stir up Spanish sentiment by placing the blame for such sinkings upon Britain.

The Admiralty said the order was signed "Mario Falangolia, vice admiral commanding submarines", and read, as translated:—

"Inform units under your command that ships flying the Spanish flag belonging to Ybarra and Pinillos shipping companies leaving or coming from Casablanca (Morocco) and sailing toward Lisbon must be attacked without warning".

The order gave details by which the ships could be identified. Lloyd's register says Ybarra owns 21 ships and Pinillos has nine.

Informed sources said an effort to stir up the Spaniards was the only possible explanation because these ships are not assisting the British war effort.

These sources believed the Italians would have torpedoed the ships without warning and then raised the cry of "British War tactics".

HOWE CONFIDENT GREAT BRITAIN WILL WIN WAR

Declares Motto in Canada Should be Work and Produce

EXPRESSES THANKS

London, Dec. 20 (CP)—Hon. C. D. Howe, Canadian Minister of Munitions and Supply, said in a broadcast to Canada last night that the work of the British Navy, "in its tremendous task of keeping our sea lanes open," made him "more confident than ever that Britain can never be defeated."

Col. W. C. Woodward of Vancouver, and E. P. Taylor of Toronto, three Minister's executive assistants also spoke.

Mr. Howe, who arrived in London Thursday after landing at a British port with other survivors of the torpedoed liner Western Prince, said the broadcast was "a personal message to my wife and children and my friends in all parts of Canada, many of whom have cabled messages to me."

"There is (in Britain) a spirit and a willingness to endure and a determination to win that means victory in the end, no matter how long it takes," he said.

"I have been through a trying experience," Mr. Howe added, "but were it not for the tragic loss of my close friend and associate (Hon. Gordon Scott of Montreal lost during rescue operations) I would have no regrets, except for the anxious moments that the disaster has caused our wives, families and friends.

"The sincere sympathy of my associates and myself goes out to Mrs. Scott and the family. The passing of Gordon Scott was another tragedy of a total war."

Has Seen Many Things

"I have had an opportunity to witness submarine warfare as carried on by the Huns," Mr. Howe said. "I have seen British men and women face death and endure hardship calmly and with undaunted spirit. I have seen the finest traditions of British seamanship upheld and I have seen a British captain elect to go down with his ship."

(John Reed, Scottish captain of the Western Prince, stayed with his ship as she sank. As the Western Prince disappeared, he blew three blasts of the ship's whistle in farewell to the men and women in the lifeboats.)

Col. Woodward said the safety of Mr. Howe, Mr. Taylor and himself was due "only to the heroic bravery of the British merchant marine."

"I cannot express too highly the intense admiration and love we all have for the wonderful work they are carrying on," he said.

"We will win this war, but only at tremendous sacrifice. Our motto should be 'Work, work, work. Produce, produce, produce.'"

Status of An Ally May be Changed To That of Vassal

London, Dec. 20—(CP)—The British Broadcasting Corporation, quoting a "neutral observer" in Rome, said Thursday large numbers of German anti-aircraft gunners and other German army units described as "specialists" have arrived in Rome.

Italian officers told the neutral observer, the BBC said, that "these arrivals are the beginning of a German attempt to reduce Italy from the status of an ally to that of a vassal."

The BBC also quoted Rome reports which said the council of the Fascist militia yesterday passed a resolution calling on Italians "to form a bloc strong enough to meet all trials around Il Duce, while one of the greatest crises in history is nearing its conclusion."

60 Cargo Ships Bought by Britain In United States

London, Dec. 20 — (CP) — The British Broadcasting Corporation said Thursday a contract had "just been signed" under which 60 merchant ships, each of 9,500 tons, will be built in the United States for Britain.

Payment for the ships has been guaranteed by the British Government, the BBC said.

"The number of ships may well be doubled under President Roosevelt's plan for extending aid to Britain," the BBC added. "This will provide for the American administration taking over future British orders for armaments and loaning them to Britain.

"The president has invited the British Government to proceed at once with negotiations accomplished under the terms of his plan, pending approval by Congress, which meets early in January."

(At Washington yesterday Secretary of the Treasury Henry Morgenthau said Britain's proposal to contract for 60 cargo ships, which had been previously announced, would not await Congressional action under the President's "lease-pending" plan. It was indicated in Washington that the contracts might be signed this week.)

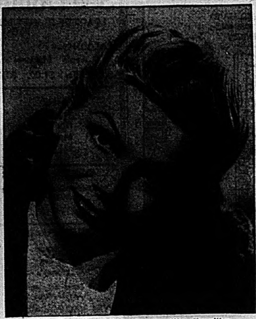
Blues Taboo on Beauty Road



Linda Hayes is noted for her beautiful disposition.

By HELEN FOLLETT

How are you? Do you feel gay or do you feel grumpy? If grumpy, snap out of it. Upon how you feel depends appearance. No doubt about it. No woman or girl who wants to skip along the beauty road can afford to have the blues, feel sorry for herself or be mad at herself and the universe.

There's nothing like animation and good nature to give sparkle to the eyes. These qualities act favorably upon the digestive works, and keep the complexion in a state of good coloring. The animated young lady, being full of kilowatts has a circulatory system that romps and that helps the cause of beauty.

Be Peppy and Gay

She is good company, likes to laugh, especially at herself and her shortcomings.

Animation means that the face is lighted. Interesting to look at. Very different from sad Sadie whose lip ends droop and whose eyes are dull.

Forgive us for getting away from the beaten beauty track, but disposition and temperament have much to do with charm. If a girl is charming it doesn't matter if her nose is too long or that freckles are camping on it.

x x x

All soaps and all creams—even the best of them—do not suit all complexions. The facial covering has its likes and dislikes, as many a woman has found out.

If your complexion starts to have tantrums, gets red or rashy, go get yourself some new toilet articles; it may just be tired of the same old beauty diet. It may rebel against soap in which event a cleansing meal of a thin oil can be substituted.

Extremely sensitive skins respond to the application of those milky semi-liquid hand lotions that are popular. This is particularly true if there is an eczema tendency.

Clean stained aluminum pots and kettles by boiling cream of tartar water in them. For each four cups of water, add one-half teaspoon of cream of tartar. Boil gently and then wash well in warm water and soap suds.

Simple Christmas Table-Decorations Are the Most Effective

The over-loading of Christmas tables with so many items of decoration that the effect is a hodgepodge is definitely outmoded. Today's smart hostess chooses one simple, brilliant Christmas-y motif for her centrepiece and dramatizes that for the decorative highlight. With a minimum of expense she thereby captures a maximum of charm and good taste.

For example, for your Christmas centrepiece fill a large, rather low bowl with medium-sized Christmas tree balls, all red or green or a combination. This makes a glowing but simple centrepiece. If your Christmas dinner is in the evening, flank this glowing bowl with candlesticks or candelabra, using red and green candles, or red and white, or all-white, or all-red. For candle-holders you may like to use something in the form of stars.

Or fill a large centre bowl with holly or holly and mistletoe or feathery pine and holly. You can also fill the bowl with a group of brilliant Christmas bells, putting a bell before each place for a tinkling favor. Or fill a long flat glass dish with fat wax snowballs or apple candies. And always a favorite centrepiece is a small natural tree, brilliantly trimmed.

The Big News in centrepieces this Christmas is the amazing variety of over-sized candles we see everywhere in the shops. Candles in the form of Santa Claus, Christmas trees, angels, cherubs, bells, snow-men, and practically all other traditional Christmas symbols. They come in white and red and green, and are made so that the candles burn down inside a shell that won't melt. They burn for hours and hours, some of them for the entire Christmas season. If possible, use a mirror plateau under the centrepiece candles. Or use a gold-paper or silver-paper doiley.

A white damask cloth is always appropriate as a background for a Christmas table-setting. Less formal, and always attractive and appropriate is a bright red linen cloth.

It's effective to carry the color in your centrepiece to the individual places. For example, at each place can be a small, artistically-made boutonniere of holly or holly combined with mistletoe. Or at alternate places place a box wrapped in red and a box wrapped in green, each containing some little Christmas remembrance.

Advice to the Lovelorn

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

Sister Doesn't Approve Her Boy Friend

Dear Miss Fairfax:

I'm 22 years old and have been going with a young man who is two years younger than I am. At present I am living with my married sister, as my parents live in the country. As my sister doesn't approve of my boy friend I meet him on the sly. He is lovely to me and always treats me with respect.

My sister found out I was seeing him against her wishes, and told me I'd have to find a new place to live unless I broke off with him. We tried it out for a couple of months, but it's no go, and we've started seeing each other again. I'm worried about it though, because I'm not working at present and I couldn't afford to lose my home with my sister. Please give me your advice.

M. R.

You haven't written me why your sister disapproves of the young man you have been seeing. She certainly must have a good reason. What is her reason for objecting to him? Write to me and tell me more about it.

Doesn't Want to be Serious

Dear Miss Fairfax:

The girl I've been going with has broken with me because she thought I was getting too serious. She said she wants to go out with other boys also. We are still friends, and go out together, but sometimes she break dates with me when other boys ask her. We're all in the same high school.

Dick

I've given only part of this boy's letter, but it's a summary of what he wrote. I think the girl has shown a great deal of sense in the matter. Boys and girls in high school are too young for engagements. This girl's idea is much more sensible; that is, for young people to go around in groups and have a good time together instead of these closed corporations, which the young man wants.

"Happy With Either"

Dear Miss Fairfax:

I am very fond of a certain boy and he tells me he is in love with me. However, when he comes to our house he pays more attention to my sister, with whom I live, than to me. When we go out together, he acts as if I were the only girl in the world. I don't know what to think.

Do you think he really cares for me, as he says? If he thinks more of my sister, when she is around, do you think I ought to stop caring for him? Please tell me, because I don't want to be disappointed.

Beth

If you had told me a bit more about the family arrangement, my dear, I might be able to clear up the situation more satisfactorily. Is your sister older, married, and "the lady of the house?" In that case, the young man is probably doing nothing more treasonable than being deferential to his hostess.

If she is just a girl near your own age, it looks as if he were what is called a "honey-sipping at every flower" type in which case it would be well not to take him too seriously. Such men are agreeable, but hardly dependable.

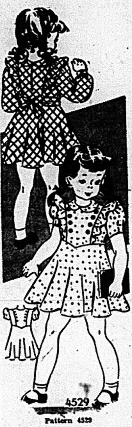
SURPRISING and swift-moving events may be predicted on the astral operations for this day. Some sudden and unlooked-for opportunity for a progressive and far reaching change is indicated. While this exceptional opening may be embraced with determination, boldness, ingenuity, and even high-pressure tactics, there may be also need for subtle acumen, compromise and indirection, since there are peculiar undercurrents or intrigues to be wisely manipulated. There are likely to be dramatic as well as dynamic adventures in personal reaction.

If It Is Your Birthday

Those whose birthday it is are apparently at the threshold of a year of upheaval, dramatic events and entirely unforeseen opportunities for progress and high accomplishments. And while the situation is most auspicious it may be exciting, breath-taking and devastating, with all the faculties and emotions keyed to high tension. Withal there may be need to manage affairs with tact, precaution, vigilance and shrewdness, as there are certain sinister elements of deep-seated menace.

A child born on this day should have extraordinary ingenuity, skill, originality and creative ability, with certain tendencies to shrewdness and subtlety. It should make a signal success probably attaining public acclaim or place.

A Pert Ruffled Basque Frock



Pattern 4529

By ANNE ADAMS

Your little girl will resemble her favorite story-book heroine in this pert frock by Anne Adams, Pattern 4529. Made in blithe basque style, the two-piece bias skirt flares for style and action. That pointed front waist-seam and the trim panelled bodice are most becoming; the sleeves are long and full or short and puffed. Enchanting pinafore touches are added by gay ruffles and a perky bow-tying sash. Another version of this pattern shows a contrast of ruffles, perhaps with a matching skirt. The optional collar might be in contrast too. If you want a more tailored frock, make the button-trimmed version without collar or ruffles. Bloomers or panties are included in this adorable style.

Pain

We medical men frequently encounter cases that became serious because the patients regarded pain as a disease or disorder itself—something to be dosed with a "painkiller". Doses of a "painkiller" gave them temporary relief, and not until there was a serious outbreak of sickness did they submit to the treatment really called for by the pain.

Pain is only a symptom—a warning that something is wrong organically. As the poet write, "nature knows best, and she says roar!" If you hurry to the medicine chest at the first sign of pain, dose yourself with some drug, and consider yourself cured when the pain ceases as a result of the dosage, and don't do anything until the pain returns, then you are ignoring the warning.

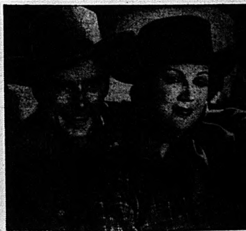
Of course, pains aren't always warnings of serious ailments. Headaches are pains, and headaches may be caused by overindulgence on a night out, or eye-strain. Habitual headaches are serious. You can have painfully sore abdominal muscles or a sore back, due to over-strenuous exercise to which you are unaccustomed, and that isn't necessarily serious. But similar pains in your body may be a warning of an acute attack of appendicitis or the onset of disease in another organ.

I have known persons to scoff at a pain in the left side of the abdomen. They "know" very well, they say, that if the trouble was appendicitis, the pain would be on the other side. Yet the location of the pain doesn't always indicate the seat of the disease. For example, heart disease may produce abdominal pains. There may be only a brief attack of pain in the warning stage and through coincidence, it may appear that the dosage of aspirin or painkiller has ended the trouble. Too late the patient discovers the truth.

My experience as a practitioner causes me to think sometimes that today there is too widespread use of aspirin, that no one should take it without a very good reason. Some persons are allergic to it, that is, when they take it they have a reaction such as hives or vomiting. Such people should be very careful about taking aspirin, because really severe reactions can be the result.

However, if you are sure you are not sensitive to aspirin, and you are suffering from pain, one or two tablets every three or four hours can be used to relieve pain until the doctor comes. Persons who suffer from heartburn when they take aspirin should have a little baking soda in the water with which they wash down the aspirin tablets.

Always keep in mind Meredith's injunction, "There is purpose in pain". When you have one, the thing to do is find out what the purpose is.



Ruth Rogers is the object of Russell Hayden's affections in "Hidden Gold," the "Hopalong" drama now showing at the Capitol, and on the same program a thrilling melodrama, "Badman," featuring an all star cast.

YOUR OWN SETTING

By PATRICIA MONTCLAIR

A woman in her own home really "wears" her rooms—and how often the setting she inherited or chose in a flutter doesn't particularly become her. Not everyone is born with the specific knowledge of what colors combine to give the best personal harmonies, but few women seeing the correct combination fail to recognize its special fitness for her.

A new stunt has been tried in New York this Fall which shows a woman — any woman — herself, against a variety of color combinations. Miniature rooms decorated exquisitely and in current modes of style act as backdrops for a mirror which reduces a human adult to one-eighth her actual size. Doing this trick with a mirror, Madame has the illusion of watching herself wander through the miniature room sets. Rooms are edited for blonde, brunette, Titian, silver gray and brown haired girls.

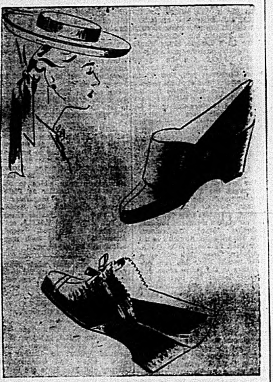
Stage designers have for years followed the theory of this colorama, considering the backgrounds for their star's eyes, hair, complexion, and with the coming of technicolor to the films, the theory is also much used in Hollywood.

x x x

Blondes should lay off vibrant tones which outsmart them; nurturing deep and soft tones and dusty pastels. Titians need the deep shades such as ruby red (surprise?) and the luminous pastels. Brilliant pastels and bright tones are good for silver heads; warm medium tones and fresh, clear pastels for the brown mops. But brunettes, girls, can have any shade or color, just so long as it's not muddy.

New York women are rushing like mad trese days to "try on" suitable rooms at the Rockefeller Home Center with the aid of an ingenious gadget conceived by Virginia Hamill called the "Magic Talking Mirror. The mirror reduces you to one-eighth your normal size and shows you in five different room settings. Each one is designed for a different color type—blonde, brunette, brown-hair, Titian, silver-gray. And while you observe yourself against the various backgrounds, the talking mirror obligingly tells your horoscope.

SCULPTURED WEDGES



Cutting the wedge under to give it a definite suggestion of a heel and shaping it for a new slender silhouette are among the many new innovations that will make this style shoe fashion news for many a day.

These strikingly styled shoes are gay deceivers. The stub toes and sculptured wedges subtract inches from the apparent size of the foot and make it appear youthful, small and feminine.

Another bright spot is that both models have shoe backing cloths made of elastic in laminated layers. Each layer acts as a barrier to the effects of foot perspiration or tensile strain so the ankle fit will stay trim and sleek despite the hardest wear.

A SURPRISE FOR COOK AND FAMILY — HOMEMADE BREADS

By BETSY NEWMAN

HAVE YOU tried your hand at making bread or "raised" rolls recently? If you can possibly spare the time, do try them. The woman who likes to cook and bake will get a big kick out of delicious-looking homemade breads, and the girl who only cooks because she has to, may actually begin to like her task when she sees what she can do with a little time and energy, and especially when hubby, the boy friend, or others who have a chance to sample her baking start singing her praises.

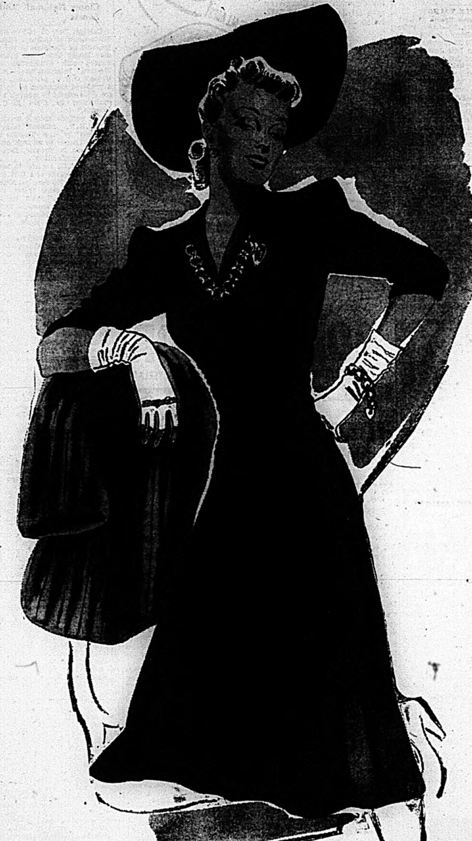
Swedish Rolls

1 pt. milk, ½ cup butter, ¼ cup sugar, 1 tsp. salt, 2 egg whites, ½ cup yeast, 7 or 8 cups flour.

Soak yeast in ½ cup warm water to which you have added ½ teaspoon sugar. Scald milk, let cool to lukewarm, then add yeast, eggs, salt, sugar and part of flour, enough to make a sponge. Place bowl with sponge in pan of warm (not hot) water, or in warm place, and let rise until double its height, then add butter, melted or softened, and rest of flour. Knead, and when light roll out to about ½ inch thickness. Spread with soft butter, sprinkle with sugar, cinnamon, and, if you like, grated lemon rind and currants. Roll up like jelly roll and cut into pieces one inch wide. Let rise again, then bake in hot (400 degrees F.) oven for 15 to 20 minutes.

For that Important Afternoon Date



When it comes to the most important afternoon date of the week the wise woman turns to black for a most effective costume ensemble. For tea or bridge or any interesting social function where the smart will gather, the selection of black will be wise one. Black always is dressy and makes an occasion of any affair at which it is worn.

The frock pictured above is one of the latest versions. It combines the full skirted mode with the snug fitting bodice whose effectiveness is enhanced with cleverly placed gathers and tucks. This frock so simply and classicly cut, lends itself perfectly as a basic frock which accessories will change into a presumably different gown. This particular version favors the new chain costume jewelry, a brilliant trail of metal being made with the bright gold necklet and its matching bracelet whose charm is further enhanced with the gay little heart fastener.

The dress has the over elbow sleeves, whose brevity permits the featuring of the gloves worn with the costume. In this particular case the gloves are fine white suede. The off the face costume hat is perfect for the new pomadour coiffure.

The use of other accessories will transform the frock into an entirely new costume.

FEMININITY THE IDEAL

One designer gives a new series of twenty-four "glamour gowns," designed to help women live up to their 1940 instinct to be lovelier than ever to look at.

Everything to achieve fascination and femininity is employed. Flounces to swish, berthas to drop revealingly off the shoulders, petticoats— sometimes two petticoats of different colors under one dress —to softly stiffen bouffant skirts, gentle white lace ruffles on black velvet, intriguing lace insertions making a pattern in a taffeta gown, shirring, jewelled belts, are among the weapons employed to fight dreariness with beautiful clothes.

Beige and black classics are here again in full force, and black and white are used together for several evening costumes. One of these combines a dress of ten-inch wide white Val lace flounces with a coat of black Lyon velvet straight out of Jane Austen.

ODD FACT

After a thief had stolen several bottles of the baby's milk off the doorstep, Mr. J. Stanley, of Roanoke, Virginia, rigged up a metal band on his front door post so that the milkman could clip it around the neck of the bottle. Next morning when he went to unlock the bottle he found it empty, except for a straw.

HOUSEHOLD HINT

When buying bath towels, part the pile and hold the towel to a strong light. If only pin points of light show through, you will know the towel has a closely woven underweave, says Janice Martin in "The Family Dollar". Enlarged sections of good and poor underweave tell their own story.

SWEATER-TOP DINNER DRESS

One great designer disclaimed any souvenir of the past in her collection, stating that it is completely present-tense. Detective story addicts might name her collection "The case of the Disappearing Waistline." Most of the dresses in the collection are without any sort of midriff marking, following the lines of the figure in one sweep from armpit to hip-bone.

Unquestioned hit of her showing was the group of sweater-top dinner dresses. The handknit sweaters, usually in ordinary black wool, reach well below the hipline, and are rolled up casually into a bulge at the hip. Under the sweater is worn a jersey skirt enriched with bright colored sequin stripes or plaids.

Other flashes in the collection are: Jewel-studded leopard.... sequins on skirts accompanying casual sweaters for evening....

GIRLS SEEKING FIRST JOB

By ALICE DENHOFF ...

WITH AUTUMN and a whole new crop of young hopefuls out to get jobs, how it can be done becomes a vital problem. In the commercial world the applicant's ability is what a prospective employer is most interested in. But no one can deny that appearance and grooming are significant keys to character traits and as such play an important role in the interview.

An employer has come to feel that a woman who is careless about her personal appearance, may be careless about the details of her work. And, by the same token, a girl who looks too much like a fashion plate and too perfectly made-up, might be likely to have a mind more on her dress than on dictation, and may give too much time to that rest-room mirror.

Walter A. Lowen, a well known New York placement specialist, is emphatic about these things, and has his ideas of what is what when a girl wants to get a job. He gave some rules on how to impress the prospective employer as an alert woman of taste and competence:

Dress simple in becoming street clothes.

Wear a stylish hat but not an extreme hat, clean gloves and street shoes.

Carry a handbag, the contents of which can be found without a prolonged struggle, and which is free of powder and lipstick stains.

See that nothing falls out.

Have scrupulously clean hair, simply and becomingly done.

Wear natural-looking make-up with moderate amounts of rouge, powder, lipstick and light nail polish. No crimson claws!

And this is what not to do:

Wear a sweater and skirt which saw better days in high school or college.

Appear with flowing mane or elaborate, hard-to-fix hair-do, and hatless.

Wear saddle oxfords or flat-heeled shoes, ankle socks or rolled-below-the-knee stockings.

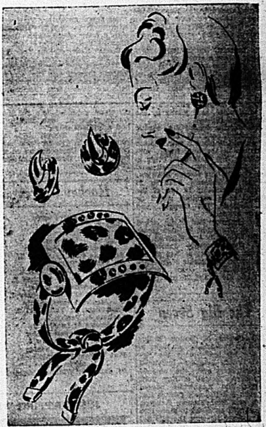
Have grimy hands or be in need of a manicure, or flaunt cracked nail polish.

Douse yourself with perfume, use quantities of mascara or make-up to copy your favorite movie star.

In a smart word, a girl's business clothes should be chosen with a view to their ability to flatter without distracting.

Her clothes should form a fitting and becoming background to herself—the commodity that she is selling when she comes to be interviewed for a position.

FUR FOR ACCESSORIES



NEW accessories are cramming the shops..and costumes. Fur, bejeweled, is the most novel and leopard the most exciting of the various furs so used. Below is sketched a set of leopard pretties—earrings and cuff bracelet—barbarically set with gold color metal and cabochon cut stones. Persian lamb is used the same way, also various neutral shaded cowskins. Some of the most fascinating new dresses use combinations of fur and jewels for the trim that makes them smartly sophisticated.

SCENT THE LINEN CLOSET FOR FRAGRANT ACCESSORIES

By ALICE DENHOFF

TIDY BUREAU drawers are unspoken estimony of a fastidious woman. There is nothing prettier or more emblematic of feminine charm than a neat, sweet, beautifully scented bureau drawer, with lingerie, gloves and scarves, each in their own little niche.

First of all, bureau drawers should be carefully lined. Just paper is not sufficient, especially if you want the contents to be perfumed, or at least whisper faintly of perfume. Chintz or flannel are both good for the purpose. Just line with paper underneath and tack the fabric to the wood. Before you do this, however, wipe the wood with a wad of cotton saturated with the perfume you have chosen. The wood will be permeated and will perfume the contents of the drawer for quite some time.

Another method is to present yourself with some of that heavenly smelling lacquer devised for just that purpose and paint you dresser drawers with it. The lovely perfume will linger and linger, sweetening everything with which it comes in contact.

Now for the closets. Do right by your linen closet and use the lacquer in lavender or verbena, two old world odors for linen. Or else line the closet shelves with lavender soaked wadding, and over this chintz or sateen or whatever you choose. Or if the shelves are paper lined, then have large sachets at the bottom of each pile of linen. All that is wanted is a gentle suggestion of delicate perfume, nothing heavy.

Black Hawks Score 2 Goals In Minute to Beat Canadiens; Rangers Give Bruins 5-3 Loss

GOODMAN STARS

Six Goals Scored in Last Period or Ranger-Boston Game in New York

Shutouts have been as rare as the reputed day in June in the early weeks of this National Hockey League campaign.

The combined team-scoring total is about the same as at this time in recent years, but in all except six games the losing club has slipped at least one goal into their opponents' nets. Only one goalie, Paul Goodman of Chicago, has turned in two scoreless nights while four others have one each.

Goodman, who replaced the veteran Tiny Thompson in the Chicago nets last season, bagged his second shutout last night as the Black Hawks trimmed Montreal Canadiens, 2-0. In two other games however, all clubs broke into the scoring as New York Rangers beat Boston Bruins, 5-3, and Detroit Red Wings played a 1-1 tie with the New York Americans.

Granting that the goalers and defences generally are every bit as good as other seasons, two more probable reasons stand out to explain the few blankings. It would be that all managers have listened to the demands for more wide-open hockey or that the large influx of rookies this season actually has provided a better-balanced league.

The Black Hawks evened up for their two scoreless games by turning back all Montreal thrusts in their game before a slim crowd of 4,307 in Chicago last night. The victory lifted the Hawks into a third-place tie with Boston while dropping Canadiens into the league cellar alone.

Except for the initial period, Goalie Goodman was never hard pressed to hold out the Montreal attacks. All the scoring in the game came within a minute in the second frame, when Bill Thoms slapped the puck into the Montreal net from a melee at 14:06 and Pep Kelly scored on Johnny Gottselig's rebound for the second Chicago counter.

In contrast, the Boston-Rangers match before a crowd of 12,218 in New York was a free-scoring exhibition with six goals being netted in the final frame. With the score tied at 1-1, Rangers beat Goalie Frank Brimsek four times in the last period to move within a point of third place, held jointly by the Bruins and Chicago.

Mac Colville opened the scoring for Rangers early in the second period and finished it with another goal late in the final frame, with the other New York goals going to Clint Smith, Bryan Hextall and Neil Colville. The veteran Bill Cowley ran his season's total to 22 points by assisting in two of the Bruins' three counters, scored by Art Jackson, Dit Clapper and Woody Dumart.

The slumping Red Wings picked up their first point in three games in their tie with Americans at Detroit. Carl Liscombe opened the scoring for Detroit at 3.42 of the first period but Rookie Norm Larson knotted the count minutes later and the rest of the match was scoreless.

McCOY'S INJURY

This closed optic of Al McCoy is the reason he was unable to answer the bell for the sixth round of his scheduled 15-round bout with Champion Joe Louis.

Greenberg Leads American Loop in Runs Batted in Chicago, Dec. 20—(AP)—The official American League averages said in statistical manner today what baseball fans had known for some time—that Hank Greenberg and Rudy York literally drove Detroit Tigers to the 1940 American League pennant.

The circuit's figures on runs batted in show Greenberg the league champion with 150 runs driven across the plate. The No. 2 spot went to his teammate, York, with 134.

Greenberg struck out 75 times and drew 93 bases on balls. York fanned 88 times and drew 89 passes.

Joe DiMaggio of New York ranked third in the R.B.I. department with a mark of 133, with Jimmy Foxx of Boston fourth at 119.

Charlie Keller of New York drew the most walks, 106, and for a fifth consecutive year the Yankee's Frankie Crosetti was the circuit's leading target, being hit by pitched balls ten times. Sam Chapman of Philadelphia fanned the most times, 96, while Lou Boudreau of Cleveland grounded into the most double plays, 23, even though he had a brilliant season.

As expected, Detroit took the runs batted in title for team competition, the Tigers driving in 829 runs, 19 more than the total compiled by Boston.

ZIVIC FIGURES TO BE A SHOO-IN AGAINST JENKINS

Lightweight King Has Solid Punch and May Fool the Experts

NON-TITLE BOUT

Zivic Will Have Considerablt Poundage on Jenkins for Ten-Rounder

By GAYLE TALBOT,
(Associated Press Sports Writer)

New York, Dec. 20—(AP)—Prize-fighting is a funny business, as witness tonight's 10-rounder at the Garden between Lew Jenkins, the lightweight champion, and Fritzie Zivic, the welterweight boss.

On their recent records, there is no good reason to suppose that they are anywhere near evenly matched. Zivic figures to be a shoo-in. Yet the heavy advance sale indicates that the Garden will be filled to its distant eaves, and at a nice increase in prices, too.

The only way to account for it is Jenkins' punch, the established fact that the skinny, hollow-eyed little guy from Sweetwater can knock the ears off anybody he can hit right, up to heavyweights.

There is a quick comparison between Jenkins and Zivic, as both have fought Henry Armstrong in the last year. Henry, then welterweight champion, gave Jenkins a cruel beating in their outdoor meeting and forced Lew to quit between the sixth and seventh rounds. Zivic only a few months later beat Armstrong in a furious battle at the Garden to win the 147-pound title.

Too Light for Welters

If anything was learned about Jenkins in his bout with Armstrong, it was that he was too light and too fragile to fool with welterweights.

The match was brought on by Jenkins' quick knockout of Pete Lello a few weeks ago. The first left that exploded on Lello's chin knocked him flat, and the crowd went wild at the savage fury with which Lou finished him off. Promoter Mike Jacobs heard the yelling, and he knew he wanted Jenkins back in the Garden ring before Christmas. Zivic happened to be the handiest opponent within Lew's weight range. He snapped it up.

Neither title is at stake, so whatever happens Zivic still will be the welter champion when he fights Armstrong again on Jan. 17. It wouldn't help that bout much, though, if Fritzie should forget to duck tonight.

FEATHER CHAMP IS ONE LUNGER

Army Medicos Condemned His Legs Too but Footwork Helped Win

London, Dec. 20—(CP)—Nel Tarleton, British feather-weight boxing champion, has only one lung, was given grade two rating by the Army medical board, and told by boxing experts that his legs would let him down.

Yet at 34 h has fought 500 contests and in a recent title fight went 15 rounds against an opponent 13 years his junior, Sergeant Tom Smith of Sunderland. His superb ring generalship and clever footwork and stamina figured prominently in the victory. He easily outpointed Smith.

Tarleton, who intends to join the Royal Air Force next month, retired twice from boxing and came back both times apparently as good as ever. He won the title for the first time in 1931.

Married and the father of twins, he follows a rigid diet and schedule. He eats only two meals a day, refuses to touch potatoes and takes a halibut liver oil tablet after each meal. The capsule, he says, is good for his chest, weakened by past attacks of pleurisy and pneu-8.30, combining late breakfast monia.

He rises between 8.00 a.m. and with early lunch, and has dinner at 6.30 p.m. He smokes lightly and drinks an occasional glass of beer.

NORM JOHNSON TO COACH JUNIOR TEAM IN TRENTON

Players From St. Thomas, Bracebridge and Gravenhurst Eligible to Play

R.C.A.F. ELIGIBLE

200 Boys Expected to Turn Out for Minor League Hockey

Trenton, Dec. 20.— Practically all of last year's junior hockey players will be out in full force this week when they start the annual practices in preparation for the forthcoming hockey season.

Norm Johnson, former Trenton Junior, will take over coaching the team, which is being sponsored by the Trenton Rotary Club. Arthur Black, manager, assures this reporter that the team this year will be stronger than that of last year.

A number of new players will try to make the team this year, according to Manager Black. Farley Milne who hails from St. Thomas and played with the intermediates in that city is at present residing in Trenton and eligible to play. Two other players who hail from Bracebridge and Gravenhurst along with a number of juniors from the R.C.A.F. station are expected to try out for positions.

The players of last year's team who will again take to the ice are Ingles, Watson, Weller, White, Woodcox, Orser, McColl, Frost and Anderson. Schensel, LaMorre and Filion who played midget hockey last year, along with May of Wooler, Frauts and Pollard from Frankford have also signified their intentions of turning out.

Approximately 200 boys between the ages of 12 and 17 are expected to turn out for the various minor leagues this year which are being sponsored by a number of business men.

With many of the juniors being eligible for military training, it is expected that Bantam, Midget and Juvenile hockey will create a great deal more interest than it has in the past.

The Trenton Midgets of last year, entered the semi-finals but were defeated by the St. George Midgets by a small margin. In the Bantam section, the Trenton team entered the finals against Preston losing out to the more experienced team.

The sponsors of last year's minor league hockey teams were W. B. McClung, Norman Bower, O. M. Newton, George H. Cobley, H. E. McClung, D. T. Fraser, Chief William Bain and O. G. Alyea. The coaches were W. M. Bowen, W. D. Whyte, H. C. Campbell, Bernard York and Father O'Neil.

Furman Kugler and his sister, Mildred, of Somerville, N.J., are the only members of one family to hold the Men's and Women's National Amateur bike titles at one and the same time.

J. M. BANNERMAN GIVES STATEMENT ON RESIGNATION

Declares He Can See Little Reason of Western Football Continuing in C.R.U. Councils

BAD FOR GAME

Offered to Serve in Renewed Efforts Toward a Closer National Unity in Sports

Calgary, Dec. 20 (CP)—John M. Bannerman of Calgary, whose resignation as President of the Canadian Rugby Union last Friday coincided with withdrawal of the Western Interprovincial Football Union's C.R.U. affiliation, says in a prepared statement he "can now see little object in western football continuing to share in C.R.U. councils."

The western union's break with the C.R.U. followed failure of attempts by the Toronto Sports Service League to arrange an east-west game in Toronto, Dec. 3, in aid of war charities.

The C.R.U. refused to sanction the game because of a C.R.U. ruling that no club may participate in an east-west game unless it has played C.R.U. ruled in league competition all season. Ten-yard interference is permitted in the west, seven yards more than the C.R.U. allows.

The Dec. 7 date was ruled out as far as the eastern champions were concerned when it was decided to make the eastern final a two-game play-off, Nov. 30 and Dec. 7, instead of a sudden-death game as in recent years.

Bannerman's resignation and the W.I.F.U. break with the C.R.U. were announced here last Friday by John T. Thompson, W.I.F.U. president.

In connection with failure to arrange an east-west game, Bannerman states that "while formal executive approval could not be given, it was hardly to have been anticipated that eastern playdowns would have been deliberately scheduled in such unusual manner as to make the playing of any kind of east-west game between representative teams virtually impossible.

Short Letter Sent

"This in effect, was what was done....and can only be construed as meaning that under existing official ruling, eastern and western football can neither work together nor play together—not even in a war-time national cause."

In a short letter to the C.R.U. executive, explaining his resignation, Bannerman said "this perhaps unprecedented action has not been lightly taken or with any ulterior motive." He expressed readiness "to serve in renewed efforts towards a closer national unity, in this greatest of all games."

Continuing the statement said:

"When, however, the Sports Service League of Toronto, an organization whose aims it is to supply the Canadian armed forces with much needed sports equipment, suggested a game between our eastern and western finalists to benefit this most worthy cause, I felt that perhaps a "last minute" opportunity had presented itself whereby the impending break between eastern and western football might be avoided.

Might Have Got Compromise

"This feeling was prompted primarily by two lesser factors—that such a game would effectively answer those unfair accusations from some quarters, that the west only favored the east-west game because of the financial return, and that in the atmosphere of good sportsmanship in which such games would be played, some acceptable compromise of playing rules might evolve.

But above all, I felt that in spite of the C.R.U. constitutional impediment—the ruling of the last meeting—a contest for such a cause, in such time of great national emergency, could not but be unanimously supported.

"How far I was in error is now common knowledge. A majority of our executive turned down the Sports Service League's appeal for C.R.U. support and co-operation. This majority opinion was based for the most part on individual interpretations of the powers constitutionally given the executive, and from a strictly legal standpoint the decision was a correct one.."

CALLING 'EM

Between the Lines

with
Ken J. Colling

This is the time the modern girl cares not for the past or the future—but rather the "present." (Blame it on Wilbur.)

Joe Shortt was around for his annual call today and announced that entries are now being received for the Bantam and Midget series in the Ki-Y League. Entry blanks and registration forms are available at the Y.M.C.A. and the group schedules will get under way between Christmas and New Years, providing the team captains respond promptly. The age limits for the groups are 11 years and under for midget and 14 years and under for bantam. Goalkeepers' equipment, officials and ice accommodations are provided by the league. With school holidays commencing today the sooner team registrations are completed, the sooner the schedules can be drafted and games played during the holiday season.

For two full hours on Wednesday night the R.C.A.F. "Flyers" practiced under the supervision of "Simon" Legris. Upwards of 40 aspiring pucksters from the Trenton air station answered the call, including "Brac" Brackenbury, who was with the Airmen's squad here back in the 1938-39 O.H.A. campaign. "Brac" has put on a little weight since his last appearance in the Hume arena and actually looked the best of the entire squad. He played hockey in Halifax last season, he told us. A youthful lad named Smythe, who played for the Moncton juniors last year, also looked as though he knew his way around the puck circles. "We have some good hockey players up at the air station, but some are working on classes and it is impossible to get them out to practice," revealed Legris upon whose shoulders the responsibility of rounding out an Air Force team seems to rest. The current senior "B" O.H.A. campaign opens exactly two weeks from tonight when the "Flyers" tangle with "Speedy" St. Louis' Reliance Aircraft sextette.

Did you know that it is possible to pick out a complete all-Smith team from the National Hockey League, without dipping back more than seven or eight seasons. There would be Normie Smith, ex-Maroon and ex-Wing goaler, in that position; Dess Smith of Bruins and Aleck Smith, formerly of Ottawa and Boston, on defence; Hooley Smith of Americans at centre, Clint Smith and Stan Smith of the Rangers on the wings. Art Smith with Leafs and Ottawa, could be spare man. Ag. Smith could referee any game in which the Smiths played, and Conny Smythe of Toronto Leafs probably could qualify as manager.

Fred Craig, veteran sports commentator from along the shores of the Otonabee in Peterboro, is quite concerned regarding the personnel of the Reliance Aircraft senior squad and is wondering who and what material will be wearing the local puck livery this season. Fred all but challenges us to reveal the identity of the Reliance squad, but surely the venerable Liftlock City scribe should know that it might almost be classed as a subversive act to reveal the names, whereabouts or activities of persons engaged in war work. However, Fred says new names in Belleville uniforms will be most acceptable in the Brock Street arena in Peterborough for a change.

Further comment by Mister Craig in his well-read column reads as follows: "So far as the Petes are concerned they will welcome some new faces on the Belleville squad. Beating that old gang led by Eddie Thomas had become monotonous, and it will be a treat to take a couple of falls out of a fresh squad representing the Quinte city. As for Kingston, the local management is not worrying over the fact that the Limestone City delegates succeeded in postponing the start of their part of the schedule long enough to let all their soldier players finish the Christmas leave and all their Queen's stars complete their holidays. The Petes would not have it otherwise. They didn't want to take advantage of the Kingston gang. When they beat that outfit they are anxious to do it at a time when there will not be an alibi left. Strong opposition makes a good group and as this setup including the double-decker play-offs is going to last for weeks it might as well be a real argument for the honors."

Andy Reckie, who is in charge of the Y.M.C.A. war work at the Trenton and Picton Air Stations, dropped in yesterday to make an appeal for old magazines and such reading matter for the Airmen stationed at Picton. "They have no canteen from which to dispense reading matter at Picton and the need for magazines is urgent," explained Mr. Reckie. Any such reading matter should be left at the local Y.M.C.A. or if it cannot be delivered, merely phone the "Y" and such magazines will be picked up.

Do you remember when Jerome (Dizzy) Dean, who managed to hit the sports pages all year, was voted sports biggest disappointment of the year, three years ago today. Twenty of 53 sports writers voted for Dean, then with St. Louis Cardinals.

The district Intermediate "B" group in the O.H.A. is rather widespread, it extends from Sutton, north of Whitby, to Lindsay and hence east to Campbellford, Cobourg and Port Hope are in the centre of the hub, but the distance of the diameter of the cycle seems to be pretty heavy for Intermediate "B" squads.

Sport Slants: The Rangers and Black Hawks picked up much-needed N.H.L. points last night by beating the Bruins and Canadiens respectively . . . The Americans got out of the league cellar by splitting points with the Red Wings . . . What's this we hear about Art Black's Trenton juniors lining up a gang from the Airport . . . "That ain't cricket, Arthur, remember — a promise made is a debt unpaid" . . . "Speedy" St. Louis' Reliance Aircraft squad can cinch second place in the Van Horne series by winning over the Kingston City entry tonight . . . Carl Liscombe, Detroit, who celebrated a return from the American League by scoring the only goal for the Red Wings in a 1-1 draw with New York Americans.

Norm Larson, Americans, who scored the tying goal for the Americans in their draw in Detroit.

Mac Colville, Rangers, whose pair of tallies paced the Rangers to a 5-3 victory over Boston Bruins in New York.

Bill Cowley, Boston, who continued his brilliant point-getting pace by aiding in two of the Bruins' three goals against Rangers.

Little Benny's Note Book

I was starting to eat breakfist with pop before ma came down, and I said, Hay pop, are you tired of these breakfist dishes?

Why no, now that the subject is brought to my attention it seems that I'm just starting to like them, pop said. These little flowers on them, wich I dont believe I ever noticed before, are just beginning to appeal to my finer instincts, he said. Why the question? he said, and I said, Because I heard ma talking to herself about being tired of looking at them and how she was going to ask your advice about buying a new set.

Who ever heard of new breakfist dishes for Peet sake? pop said. Breakfist dishes are always old, that's half their charm, he said.

Wich just then ma came down, and pop said, I'm glad to see you, my deer, I want to ask your advice about having the whole house repainted, inside and out.

Well of all the ideas at such a time, ma said. Do you realize that we're suppose to be on a saving orgy and not a spending spree? And do you realize that the entire house was painted not quite a year ago, and do you realize the cost of paint and the cost of labor? she said, and pop said, That's just it. According to the economists, as far as I can make out, the country is going to be hit by a combination of inflation and deflation, and the thing to do seems to be to scrape together whatever loose money you have on hand and invest it in something fairly permanent, such as paint, he said.

Now Willyum, we haven't enough money on hand to even merit the term loose, and economists who put any such ideas as that in your head must be false economists, and just to show you that the shoe is on the exact other foot as far as I'm concerned, I was going to speak to you about getting a new set of breakfist dishes, but now I'm not even going to mention the subject, she said, and pop said, Well if that's the way the land lies, okay.

And he winked me a private wink.

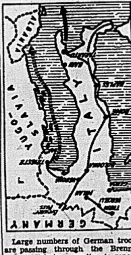
NAZIS IN ITALY?



Large numbers of German troops are passing through the Brenner pass to Trieste, according to reports from Yugoslavia. These troops would obviously be bound for Albania either by ship or by marching through neutral Yugoslavia. From Taranto, German troops might attempt to run the British blockade in a desperate attempt to bring aid to the Italian forces in Libya.

It Will Still Be Hard to Get Up

After tomorrow, Saturday, December 21, arising at six or six-thirty in the morning and setting out for the daily grind while it is still dark as midnight will not seem so hard. Why—well, after Saturday, the days which have gradually been getting shorter and the nights which have been just as gradually lengthening will have come to a stalemate and the order will be reversed.

December 21 marks the winter solstice, the shortest day of the year and likewise the longest night. It marks the official beginning of winter and although there are several months of cold weather still ahead, the fact that the days will soon be noticeably lengthened will alleviate in some measure the frigid temperatures that are promised for the next couple months.

AT THE CAPITOL

"Hidden Gold"

Suspense and mounting suspicion climaxed with posse gun-play in the latest "Hopalong" Cassidy romance "Hidden Gold", which is now playing at the Capitol Theatre.

There's plenty of action for two-fisted, hard riding William Boyd as he plays another "Hopalong" role, as the man who clears a mine owner of the suspicion of stealing his own gold. Everything points to the owner, as the toll of stage coach robbers and sudden-death to the men riding guard continues to mount.

The "Hopalong" rides into the story, accompanied by his two inseparable pals, "Lucky" and "Speedy". 'Hoppy" figures the surprise answer to the mystery by dint of some slick detective work. His two pals pitch in at the close of the story with gun fire and flying fists to bring a ruthless gang of outlaws to justice.

Side-by-side with the thrilling action drama, "Lucky" plays out an ingratiating romantic story with pretty Ruth Rogers. And "Speedy" finds a foil for his comic antics in the irrepressible Ethel Wales, as a maiden lady who has romantic yearnings for "Hoppy's" hard-shell pal.

You'll like this "Hopalong" for the supremely fine action photography; the fast, funny and really plausible story and the amount of real production effort that has been put into this "gun-and-saddles" drama. Lesley Selander, the director, has blended his material carefully to keep action popping all the way through the eight reels of "Hidden Gold". And William Boyd, Russell Hayden, Minor Watson, Ruth Rogers, Britt Wood and Ethel Wales all contribute uniformly fine performances in the leading roles.

"Bad Guy"

The added attraction is a sensational story of two brothers loving the same girl, and one was a smiling killer! To the screen comes a new and exciting melodrama in the adventures of "Blackie" Walden . . . who was loved by all women . . . and hunted by all men! You will see the most electrifying melodrama since "San Franciscoo!" How a great "city" can be destroyed by "man-made" lightning! The strange romance of a girl who was loved by two brothers The most ingenious jail-break in the annals of modern crime! How ironic Destiny trapped "the man who couldn't be killed!" See this great melodrama with a great cast including Bruce Cabot, Virginia Grey, Edward Nanis, Jean Chatburn, and Cliff Edwards.

To conclude this double action program is the Universal News and the 11th Chapter of Tim Tyler's Luck.

Results of Lord Snell's inquiry into torpedoing of the liner Arandora Star en route to Canada with enemy aliens, will not be made public, a Commons questioner was told.

AT THE McCARTHY

"The Long Voyage Home"

The best sea story since "Mutiny On the Bounty" and unquestionably one of the greatest motion pictures of all time is John Ford's production of Eugene O'Neill's story "The Long Voyage Home," starring John Wayne, Thomas Mitchell and Ian Hunter, which will be presented next week at the McCarthy Theatre.

Rated four stars by Liberty magazine, four stars by the New York Daily News and four stars by Roly Young in the Toronto Globe and Mail, "The Long Voyage Home" is a certain contender for the 1940 Academy Award.

A further guarantee of the merits of "The Long Voyage Home" is that it was directed by John Ford who made "Stagecoach," Academy Award winner of 1939 and who also made "Arrowsmith" and "The Hurricane."

"Hot Steel"

Andy Devine and Richard Arlen in the dramatic action hit 'Hot Steel" also George O'Brien in "Racketeers of the Range," an ace-high western, plus the new Three Stooges comedy "Nutty But Nice," is now playing at the McCarthy Theatre.

AT THE BELLE

"Rangers of Fortune"

In an epic of America's Southwest, "Rangers of Fortune," which comes next to the Belle Theatre, Paramount revives the drama of Texas frontier days, gives free reign to action, romance, adventure in the spectacular drama of three freebooting cowboys who forsake a carefree career of outlawry to use their guns and fists in a savage battle against injustice.

Sam Wood, who previously directed such distinguished screen classics as "Goodbye, Mr. Chips," and "Our Town" looses his directorial genius in an entirely new vein for this picture, which features Fred MacMurray, Patricia Morison, Albert Dekker, Gilbert Roland, Joseph Schildkraut and Dick Foran.

From the first episode, in which MacMurray and his two comrades, Dekker and Gilbert Roland, escape from a Mexican firing squad, to furious spectacular final sequences of a battle between the cowboys and land grabbers, the picture is action-studded throughout.

Story of "Rangers of Fortune" derives its interest from the fact that MacMurray and his pals come to the aid of a beleaguered publisher and his granddaughter, when a land-grabbing gang threatens them with extinction. In the roles of champions of law they still find plenty of opportunity for desperate exploits, furious fist and gun fights and even for romance.

"A Night at Earl Carroll's"

Feminine beauty, bright gaglines and hit tunes, are the satisfying comedy and exciting melodrama called "A Night at Earl Carroll's," which is announced as the companion feature. Pooling their efforts to make this production gay and enjoyable entertainment are such experts of comedy as Rose Hobart, Ken Murray and Brenda and Cobina, radio comedy duo, who've lost none of their funniness in the transition from radio to screen. This marks their film debut.

You'll be humming and whistling the tunes as you'll leave the theatre. The songs are "Li'l Boy Love," by Frank Loesser and Frederick Hollander; "One Look at You," by Earl Carroll, Victor Young and Ned Washington; "I Wanna Make with the Happy Times," by Loesser and Gertrude Niessen, and "Cali-Conga," by Carroll, Dorcas Cochran and Nilo Menendez.

The popular Belle Newsreel will be exhibited on the same program. On the week-end matinee a thrilling and fascinating chapter of "The Green Hornet" serial will be presented. Santa Claus will be at the Belle Theatre Saturday matinee with a gift for every boy and girl.

"Brigham Young"

Darryl F. Zanuck's production of "Brigham Young" by Louis Bromfield, is one of the most stirring films ever to come from Hollywood, the 20th Century-Fox film which is now closing at the Belle Theatre. Tyrone Power is starred. Linda Darnell and Dean Jagger, as Brigham Young, head a brilliant featured cast.

Exciting, vivid and enthralling throughout, "Brigham Young" is recommended entertainment.

A funny color comedy cartoon, and the latest issue of "The March of Time" precede the feature attraction.

YOUR FAVORITE CHRISTMAS CAROL

O Little Town of Bethlehem

O little town of Bethlehem,
How still we see thee lie;
Above thy deep and dreamless sleep
The silent stars go by:
Yet in thy dark streets shineth
The everlasting Light;
The hopes and fears of all the years
Are met in thee tonight.

For Christ is born of Mary;
And gathered all above,
While mortals sleep, the angels keep
Their watch of wond'ring love.
O morning stars, together
Proclaim the holy birth;
And praises sing to God the King,
And peace to men on earth.

How silently, how silently,
The Wondrous Gift is giv'n!
So God imparts to human hearts
The blessings of His heav'n.
No ear may hear His coming,
But in this world of sin,
Where meek souls will receive Him, still
The dear Christ enters in.

O holy Child of Bethlehem,
Descend to us, we pray;
Cast out our sin, and enter in,
Be born in us today.
We hear the Christmas angels
The great glad tidings tell;
O come to us, abide with us,
Our Lord Emanuel.

"O Little Town of Bethlehem" was written by Phillips Brooks, one of the most eloquent and liberal preachers in America in the 19th century. Two setting have been written for this Christmas hymn, one by the Englishman, Joseph Barnby, and the other by Louis H. Redner. The latter is the better known.

The War Today

By GUY RHOADES,
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

When Marshal Petain ousted Pierre Laval from his cabinet he apparently upset a multitude of applecarts, causing one of modern Europe's major exhibitions of shadow boxing.

Otto Abetz, Hitler's ambassador to Paris, rushed to Vichy for conferences which do not appear to have accounted for much more than a degeneration of Franco-German relations and a rumor that Laval will still have a job but may have to take another name to hold it.

From Berlin today comes views that the Germans were impressed by Petain's move, but were disinclined to blame the elder statesman for what they called "the putsch of Vichy."

They said they had learned a great lesson, that there exists within France a group of Teutonophobists who are seeking to scuttle attempts to establish the German-sponsored "new order" in Europe.

The Wilhemstrasse was described as surprised at the Vichy move in ousting the Corsican former vice-premier and foreign minister and Berlin sources said anti-German forces within France had uncovered their hand by shaking Laval out of the cabinet.

The Germans claim Italian reverses had helped reshape French policy which previously had been inclined to favor cooperation with Germany and had found Laval a useful and willing agent to further such a course.

Hitler's forces are described as upset by the fact that Gen. Maxime Weygand has remained in French Colonial Africa at the head of his huge force, which, apparently, were considered big enough to prevent the Germans from objecting to Laval's removal. Abetz, however, is said to have obtained Laval's release from custody and to have insisted that he remain in some sort of office to continue anonymous "negotiation" with Germany looking toward the "new order."

The Germans, apparently unwilling to do anything drastic about the Laval affair, excused Petain by saying he was "too old" to follow political developments in detail.

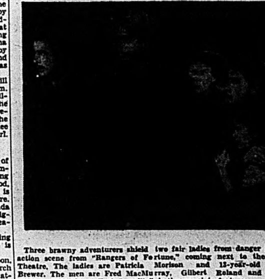
The German story adds, however, that France is a defeated country which must take cognizance of the victor's wishes.

It does not go further than that and the Italian reverses, which the Germans say changed the French attitude, continue both in Albania where they fled before a furious Greek counterattack to their attemped invasion of Greece and, in Africa where British forces have chased them out of Egypt and are now chasing them across coastal Libya, their own colony.

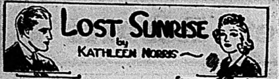
British forces also have tested the Italians on the frontier of Kenya and Somaliland, where a few days ago, with some loss of dignity, in a mule cart, leaving his more stout-hearted countrymen and a force of native troops to hold the fort.

Most of the Italians, apparently, took a hint from their commander and scampered, leaving the unfortunate natives the impossible task of defending the post. They lost, but earned a good word in a British communique which credited them with courage.

If, as the Germans claim, France's friendliness to Germany and the "new order" is weakened by Italian reverses, it does not appear to be based on stout foundation.



Three brawny adventurers shield two fair ladies from danger in this action scene from "Rangers of Fortune," coming next to the Belle Theatre. The ladies are Patricia Morison and 13-year-old Betty Brewer. The men are Fred MacMurray, Gilbert Roland and Albert Dekker. "A Night at Earl Carroll's" is the associate feature.



LOST SUNRISE

by KATHLEEN NORRIS

INSTALMENT 14

Three weeks later, with Dick's little wistful mother beside her, Gwen saw him off on the train from Oakland for his great adventure. Dick was wearing his old overcoat, his old hat, but there were plenty of new socks, a present from his mother in his bulging old suitcase, and the gloves he wore had been Gwen's parting present.

He kissed both women soberly, clung tightly for a moment to Gwen.

"Write me, won't you?"

"I've written you already, darling. There'll be a letter there."

"You're a lucky boy to get a girl like Gwen, Dick," the mother said.

"I love you," Dick said in a whisper. For a minute Gwen was afraid that she was going to cry.

"This'll be funny someday," she said a little unsteadily. Then she and Dick's mother had to leave the train, and they stood on the platform looking up at Dick's window until it pulled away into the east.

Gwen had come to San Francisco with the family car. The two women went back to it together, and Gwen drove her mother-in-law to the big hospital that seemed deserted and unimportant and changed now with Dick's figure, in rumpled starched white, gone from it.

Driving the hundred miles home alone in the early winter dusk, she encouraged herself with bracing thoughts, sometimes speaking them aloud.

"Three years. Thirty-six months. It comes out—let's see it comes out something round a thousand days. About eleven hundred days. What's that? Nothing! I'm going to be so improved when Dick Latimer sees me again that his head'll spin."

The miles rolled by, and presently the days began to slip by, too, and she had her first note from Dick at Omaha, and another from Chicago. Then came a real letter, written on the boat. He had made a friend of the ship's doctor, and this doctor had a brother doctor in the very hospital to which Dick was going, so everything had started auspiciously.

Gwen on her part devoted herself to a conscientious improvement of her character and habits which did not long escape the eyes of the family, but she persisted despite their teasing, and wrote long exhilarated accounts of her doings to Dick.

"I've taken off eleven pounds to date," she wrote him in one of her letters the following spring. "But it isn't all dieting, not sitting up into the wee sma' hours to write to you. Sheila's here, and day before yesterday, at exactly six o'clock in the morning my adored niece Fanny Washburton Baker (delicious name) joined the party. We're all insufferably puffed up about this little dark-haired woman. She's really—But you should hear my father! He tells men downtown how Fanny made a face when they changed her bottle formula, as if the child had opened her mouth and recited the Ten Commandments!"

"There's more good news, too," she said in another letter. "It seems Link is done at the mine. He won his case and he's not going back. He did such a wonderful job that he had to make a speech all about it in San Francisco, and now—now—but this is a secret, Marshall Hunter who is chairman for his party in the state, wants Link to let him put up his name for the congressional nomination in his district and run at the primaries. Excitement? I ask you! It's lucky for me now that Van Bellamy broke with Linherr even if I did lose my extra salary, for I couldn't be working against Sheila's husband. Anyway they say Linherr hasn't a chance against Miller.

"Sheila and I have been to two meetings, and I want to tell you that politics are to me as the air I breathe. I love them! To have someone get up and say nice things about Link, and then have Link talk, and be so simple and modest and clear, telling what ought to be done, and how it hasn't been done, and to have applause and maybe a big collection, with everyone writing pledges or digging down into pockets for money—I tell you it is thrilling! They say the other men—four of them!—won't have a prayer, so it's only the other party candidate that he'll have to fight, and that'll be the incumbent, old Miller, or Linherr. Link's been after Miller for years, and says he won't have a leg to stand on after the exposure of what's been going on.

"You asked me about Van Bellamy. Well, I haven't seen him since early February, because after the scrap with Linherr he went to Hartford on a case, and then to Washington. They say he'll come back to help the party, which means he'll go over to Miller, which seems awful, but if he does he won't ask me to be his secretary and expect me to oppose my sister's husband! Yes, he's written me once or twice, and is as crazy as ever, evidently, but the campaigns won't be here, it'll be in Sacramento, so I'll not have to see him.

"That reminds me," her letter rambled on, "of my pleasure and pride that you want me to announce our engagement right away. But Mother doesn't want it announced until the date can be set, Dick; she says it's unlucky. But it has been steadily oozing out in the circle of my intimate friends, which is large, and nobody'll faint with utter amazement when at least we do tell everyone."

In August she wrote him exultantly: "Too much good news for one letter! Link won at the primaries hands down, which means that Sheila practically is a congressman's lady; Miller beat Linherr, and Link ought to get a landslide over Miller! Fanny is simply ravishing, and of all absurdities there is really a chance that I'll get not a few hundreds but possibly even a few thousand from my ridiculous uncle's patent. It seems that they've been actually using it at the big factory at the Johnson-Polk Mills, and unless they can produce evidence that they did actually buy it and pay for it, we'll have a claim that may go back years, and may amount to money. So then farewell to the mortgage, and a silver bowl for Fanny, and I'm off to meet ye by the bonny, bonny banks themselves!"

"Only nine hundred and seventy-five.." "Only nine hundred and sixteen.." "Only eight hundred and eight-six of our eleven hundred days left!" her letters exulted. And in September she wrote: "Dearest Dick, don't count on it. But there really seems to be a chance that the Johnson-Polk Mills people will offer—will have to offer—a really enormous sum for the rights of Uncle Elmer's asbestos thing. Link's corresponding with a lawyer there—Dick, it might be ten thousand dollars! Mortgage paid, a good sum left for Mom and Dad, and you and me on our way! Try not to think about it."

January, with their three years cut down to one, would be the month of her departure, if all went well, for almost every mail brought fresh news of Gwen's legacy. Link was talking now of a compromise based upon the profit that the Wallbestos patent had meant to the Johnson-Polk Mills all these years.

"Fortune favors the brave, Dick," Gwen wrote him in October. "Keep an eye out for a suitable apartment furnished of course. I insist on a fireplace with rods in it for my tea kettle. We'll have tea and scones every day. What are scones? I insist on a landlady who will call me "Mem." Oh, Dick, Dick, to walk the streets of Edinburgh with you, my darling! To bring home a little occasional prawn or a seedcake for supper! To know that all the time those wonderful square hands of yours are getting cleverer and cleverer, and readier to lessen all the pains of all the backbones of all the world!"

"I think I'm going away after Christmas, Madge," said Gwen to her companion in the office.

"Scotland. To marry Doctor Latimer."

"I knew you were, but not so soon." Madge said. "Won't you hate it? It sounds to me like a lot of gloomy old castles. However, it won't be forever, will it? You'll come back to California. Everyone does."

Gwen laughed with sheer delight.

"It sounds to me like heaven," she said. "My brother-in-law, Link Baker, you know, has been following up this patent thing of poor old Uncle Elmer's. And it seems I have a sort of claim. Link says they're inclined to be very generous about it, they don't want a law suit and neither do I. But it comes to real money. And money is just what Dick and I haven't got most of. We counted on three years, and it'll be just about one!"

"What'll I do without you?" Madge wondered ruefully. "Well, anyway, our dear friend Van will stop telephoning," she consoled herself. "He got back when? Anyway, he's been calling all today and yesterday."

"Idiot! Wasting money telephoning here from Sacramento!"

"I'd be scared to have that man in love with me," Madge said. "He's so wild. Telephoning, and special-delivery letters, and messages—there's a note for you here"

Gwen opened the note and felt her throat muscles stiffen and her mouth fill with salt water. After a moment she read it again.

"My own beautiful darling," Van had written. "I find myself in town, will be here until the six-o'clock tonight — and must see you. Miller's outfit sent me here and I need your help. We've got to stop Baker. J. G. Baker, who's running against Miller, and I've got an idea I can stop him — through his wife. Is he anything to your sister's husband, Link Baker? Do you know him? We haven't much time now and we've got to work fast. I'll be waiting for you downstairs at five. All my heart, my dearest."

"Wake up," Madge said, "Bellamy's telephoning again"!

Gwen reached for her own receiver; spoke to the operator outside. "Put that call on here, May," she said.

Madge was studying her curiously. When Gwen put down the receiver, she exclaimed, "I thought you didn't like him?"

"Mr. Bellamy? Well, I—no, I don't," Gwen said. She tore his note into tiny scraps; kept tearing them smaller and smaller.

"Then what'd you make a date with him for?" Madge demanded.

"Well, I — I — he keeps at it so — and I thought I'd —" Gwen began. "There's no use putting him off," she said weakly.

"Gwen Washburton, in love with one man, you're not going to fool around with another!"

"No, I'm not fooling around with him, I'm . . . Oh, could he know about Sheila, could he know abcut Sheila!" Gwen thought. "I'm going to tell him I'm engaged," she said aloud.

"Well, you don't have to take him home to dinner with you to tell him that!"

"No, but I — I don't know that he'll come home with me to dinner . . . He wants to 'stop Baker' ". Gwen's thoughts milled about in a frenzy of terror. "He can't! The election's Tuesday and this is Friday! How could he—"

"Gwen, you're scared of him. I think you're an awful fool!" Madge said.

"No, but when people persist this way! And after all, we were working together — until he went east."

"When'd he get back? Seems to me this has all started up in an awful hurry."

"He got back Wednesday. I know, because his mother-in-law — you know, his wife's mother — telephoned me and said she and the little girl were going to Sacramento to meet him. He must have wired her and asked her to let me know."

"His wife's dead, you told me that."

"Oh, years ago."

"You didn't go to Sacramento to meet him, did you?"

"Of course I didn't. I see myself! I thought he was going to be away all winter."

Gwen paused nervously. Madge looked at her inquiringly.

To be continued.

TORONTO STOCKS

Toronto, Dec. 20.—(CP)—Action was dull on Toronto Exchange today and few price changes were posted. Only 98,000 shares changed hands.

In the Golds Kerr-Addison, Malartic Gold Fields and Senator were narrowly higher and Perron, Upper Canada and Howey were slightly weak. Nickel and Hudson Bay were mildly soft in Base Metals.

A few weak spots developed in the Industrials, Steel of Canada, United Fuel B, Fanny Farmer and Hamilton Theatres Pfd., lost ground. Loblaw A and Silverwoods Pfd posted minor gains.

A loss of 5 cents for Foothills to 85 and a loss of 1 1-2 for United Oil to 3 1-2 were the only changes in the Western Oils.

WALL STREET

New York, Dec. 20—(AP)—Timid and selective buying seeped into the stock market today and, if nothing else, tended to stem the decline which had been under way all this week.

The list edged forward at the start, then slipped but soon regained its balance. Dealings were about the same as those of yesterday. Advances of fractions to a point or so were fairly well distributed near the fourth hour.

Prominent in the rising division were U.S. Steel, Chrysler, Sears Roebuck, Eastman Kodak, International Paper and Power Preferred, N.Y. Shipbuilding, American Shipbuildnig, Anaconda, J. C. Penney and N. Y. Central.

Hog Quotations

Toronto, Dec. 20—(CP)—Dressedweight were down 15 cents at Hull and prices were unchanged at Brantford, Peterborough and Stratford in bacon-hog markets reporting early today.

Dressedweight: Brantford $10.35 plus transportation, Hull $10.45 plus transportation, Peterborough $10.35 plus transportation, Stratford $10.25 plus transportation.

Chatham and Barrie later reported unchanged prices.

Gillette Safety Razor Company Entertains Employees at Dance

Montreal, Dec. 20.—The fourth annual Christmas Party tendered by the management of the Gillette Safety Razor Co. of Canada Limited took place last evening at the Mount Royal Hotel. A gathering of nearly two hundred employees and guests sat down in the Jacques Cartier Room and partook of a festive dinner amidst a spirit of cordiality and good fellowship. The dinner was followed by entertainment and a dance to which relatives and friends of employees were invited.

Continuing a custom followed for some years, bonus cheques were distributed in which all employees participated.

A short address was delivered by Mr. J. I. Stampleman, President of Gillette Safety Razor Co. of Canada Limited, welcoming all those present and expressing full satisfaction with the successful activities of the company during 1940. The company's continued success he attributed to increasing public support and earned by quality products, made known by consistent use of newspapers and other powerful advertising media, and to the conscientious efforts and loyalty of employees in all departments of the organization.

Mr. Stampleman pointed out the important duty upon each of us in these times to co-operate to the full extent of his ability in whatever war effort is required, for although our own individual effort may seem puny to the giant task ahead, it is the collective effect of millions of such humble contributions that will go far towards the victory for man's freedom which must and shall be won. He particularly stressed War Savings Certificates as a means not only of helping our Country and Empire, but at the same time of helping ourselves to greater security.

Guests of honor were Messrs. J. P. Spang, Jr., President, and G. A. Graham, Vice-President of Gillette Safety Razor Co., Boston. Also present were Messrs. L. R. Maxon and M. F. Mahony, representing Maxon Incorporated, Advertising Agency.

Weekly Livestock Report

Toronto, Dec. 20—(CP)—Lambs gained 25 to 50 cents cwt., hogs were up 10 to 15 cents, calves were firm and cattle prices held steady on slow trading at the Livestock Market here this week. The light cattle run was heavy enough for market requirements.

Early trading on cattle was slowed down to discourage truck deliveries. The market was cleared by the close with prices unchanged for the week. Weighty steers sold at $9 to $9.25 for choice with plain downward to $7. Butcher steers and heifers were mostly $6 to $8 with a few light steers up to $8.50. Fed calves sold from $8.50 to $10. Butcher cows brought $4.25 to $5.75 with a few tops at $6. Canners and cutters sold at $3 to $4. Butcher bulls sold at $5.25 to $6 and bolognas at $4.25 to $5. The few stockers offered sold at $5 to $7 cwt. Milker and springer trade was dull except for good holsteins with tops at $85 to $95 each.

Calves were firm at $10.50 to $11.50 for good and choice vealers with a few tops at $12. Common lights sold downward to $6. Grassers were $4.50 to $5.75.

Montreal buying strengthened the hog market and prices closed 15 cents higher on dressed sales at $10.90 to $11. Live sales were up 10 cents at $8.25. Cows were spotted at $5 to $5.50 dressed.

Lambs gained 25 to 50 cents cwt., closing at $10.50 to $11 for good ewes and wethers with other grades from $7.50 to $10. Two cars of western lambs sold at $10.75 and $11. Western sheep made a top of $6 cwt. Other sheep sold from $2.50 to $5.50.

Butter Advances To High of 37 Cents

Toronto, Dec. 20.—Yesterday brought no break in butter's record-setting price upsurge. First-grade Ontario and Western solids both advanced to 37c and at this level the market was firm with a strong undertone.

Dealers reported a good steady demand for undergrades as well as top-quality butter. Offerings of both Ontario and Western stock were light and difficult to get. First grade creamery prints sold to retailers at 38 1-2 to 39c up 3-4c from Wednesday. Churning cream prices gained 1c.

The egg market was quietly steady. Receipts were ample to meet a good demand. Prices to wholesalers in the graded section were unchanged, but A-large and grade B eggs sold to retailers at slightly reduced price ranges. A premium of 1-2c per dozen was obtainable on Government-inspected lots.

Montreal Produce

IMPORT CONTROL IS HINTED IN U. S.

Guarded Reference is Made to Problem in Report by Export Administrator

Washington, Dec. 20 (AP)—The possibility of import control by the United States—a hitherto unlooked for step in foreign trade regulation—aroused considerable speculation today.

The first guarded hint that any such idea was under consideration came from Col. Russell L. Maxwell, administrator of export control, during a review of the work done by his six-months old agency in preventing defence materials from being shipped out of the country.

"Many students of the situation experts in their fields, have pointed out," he said, "that the control of imports as well as exports, is a major problem requiring early solution."

This bare one-sentence reference to the subject occurred at the end of the 2,000 word progress report he delivered last night. There was no amplification and, with one exception, available government officials professed lack of knowledge on any plans to impose import controls.

One source, however, said the matter was being given serious study and that, while action should not be considered imminent, something might be done in the future.

Economic Weapon

He was asked what purpose would be served by such a move, inasmuch as the United States, unlike warring nations today, was not under pressure to conserve dollar exchange, or to discourage the purchase of so-called luxury goods from other nations.

The reply was that imposition of an import control system would provide the United States with another economic weapon which could be employed if events dictated.

A check of trade records indicated that among major import items was close to $100,000,000 worth of raw silk annually from Japan. These shipments have been an important source of foreign exchange for the Tokyo government whose financial reserves have been depleted by the long drain of the China war.

Col. Maxwell, in his review last night, reported that the export control administration since midsummer had prevented the shipment to foreign countries of more than $112,000,000 worth of vital defence materials.

BARDIA IS BOMBED

Gen. Archibald P. Wavell's army of the Nile.)

The British Royal Navy was reported keeping the Libyan coast under bombardment from the Egyptian frontier to Bengasi, well to the west of Tobruk, while the Royal Air Force blasted at Derna and Benina.

Indications here of heavy British troop movements to the west gave emphasis to Prime Minister Winston Churchill's statement before the House of Commons in London yesterday that "the offensive is by no means at an end."

The task of maintaining steadily lengthening lines of communication was regarded here as one of the chief problems facing the British in continuing their drive into Libya. Losses in manpower apparently constituted a negligible factor, for official figures yesterday put British casualties at less than 1,000.

Convoys of Italian prisoners continued to move toward the east, promising to swell by several thousand the total of 31,546 already reported captured.

GREEKS BATTLE

Enemy in Difficult Position

The Greek Commander-in-Chief, Gen. Alexander Papagos, had informed his fighting men in a general order that "Your blows have placed him (the enemy) in a very difficult position. A large part of his forces are almost disbanded and without morale.

"....Our enemy is shaken on the front before you and in Africa before the English. He is shaken internally. Winter is accelerating his disintegration.

"Persist in your efforts that we may crush him completely and throw him into the sea. Victory will then be ours, the best victory in our history, and it will be due to you."

Dislodged by Bayonet

The Greek High Command acknowledged stiff Italian resistance in the snow-covered mountains but said 600 prisoners were captured and added that "the enemy....was dislodged by bayonets from his positions." The positions, however, were not located.

(Struga reports said Italian reinforcements, mainly crack Alpine troops, were being rushed to the Albanian front by big German transport planes flying steadily across the Adriatic in an effort to stem the steady Greek advances.)

Italian losses were described by the spokesman as "extremely heavy," partly because of the severe cold.

SHOPPER FINDS

There are hearts, kidneys, liver, tripe and the like, and sausages which are half meat and half bread crumbs, the meat content of sausages being prescribed by law. One has to snap these things up quickly if one wants them, because the day's supply does not last many hours. But you can shop for offals where you please, whereas you must go for bacon, butter, sugar, cooking fats and fresh meat to the store at which you are registered.

Next comes the bakery. There is certainly no sign of want here. There are piles of bread — white, rye, whole wheat, raisin, malt (which is dark, sweet and excellent with tea — and even twisted seed loaves. There are innumerable rolls and buns. What is most alluring is the display of tea cookies, cakes and scones.

You would think war had had no real effect upon these things if you were making a quick tour, but we who live in London in peace as well as war can point out differences

Eggs, Cream Scarce

Bakery confections which took many eggs have diminished in number. The splendid sugar icings have disappeared from cakes and buns. There is no longer the heaping whipped cream decorations. Cream fillings have given place to the corn starch kind. And where is the chocolate of yesterday? Coffee has taken its place as a flavouring.

We choose a loaf of milk bread, a jelly roll, a squarish coffee loaf and a much decorated gateau. We spend the equivalent of half a dollar and are on our way to the vegetable and fruit market. It is just round the corner.

Here are white stalks of celery, bundles of fat leeks, heaps of watercress, the first Winter crop of radishes. Here are baskets of mushrooms and bins of potatoes. Cabbages and cauliflower and big piles of Brussels sprouts are prominent, and one may choose, if one will, fat "Swedes" which belong to the turnip family but are much bigger. We serve them in half-inch slices, boiled and buttered or else mash them.

Plenty of Fruit

On the fruit side are cooking apples, eating apples, dessert plums, and big brownish pears. It is late now for the more yellow softer pears. There are still Jaffa oranges from Palestine. But lemons are few and expensive and bananas are disappearing.

We make our selections and stow away our vegetables nude, for the paper shortage does not allow paper sacks; but who cares?

Next stop is at the fishmongers. Here we find Dover and lemon sole, plaice, bream, lake herring and cod. The Scottish salmon is a bit expensive.

But we waste time. There'll be guests tomorrow. We have to obtain some unrationed main meat dish, so we move along to the poulterers and stand thoughtfully eyeing his resplendent pheasants, softly colored wood doves, grouse, ducks, geese and chickens. Nearby are hanging large rabbits.

Can Buy Venison

The choice is hard to make, for fish, fowl and rabbit come on the menu with great frequency these days. We decide to have none of them but make a special trip to another market district where we can get thick venison steaks to boil. They are not rationed except by their price, and this being a special occasion, that will not stop us.

Our regular grocer, with whom we are registered for the rationed commodities, doles out the bacon, sugar and butter. We pick up some cheddar, Cheshire and Chilvern cheese, since one can no longer get the continental varieties. We also wheedle three precious eggs out of our grocer who does what he can for his registered customers. Then we return to the bus stop for our three ha'pence ride back home.

QUAKE CENTRING

Some New Englanders dashed, scantily-clad, to the streets. Many reported that they thought there had been an explosion. Virtually whole communities were roused in some instances. Telephone lines in newspaper offices were clogged with calls from frightened persons.

Some Thrown From Beds

In numerous cases, persons reported they were thrown from their beds, and in one instance, a baby from a crib.

New England bore the brunt of the quake with lighter tremors being felt in New Jersey, Philadelphia and in the Long Island and valley sections of New York. The shock in Montreal was enough to awaken sleepers and shake small ornaments from shelves but no damage was reported there.

Available reports of damage in New England indicated it was confined largely to cracked plaster and broken windows.

Coast guards in their headquarters in the upper part of Boston's custom house tower, tallest building in the city, said they were shaken severely.

The Rev. James J. Devlin of the Weston College Observatory in Weston, Mass., and Leet joined in saying the shock definitely could be classified as an earthquake. The Jesuit added that it was "a severe quake for New England."

Fr. Devlin said instruments at the Weston Observatory began recording the shock at 2:27:26 and concluded 27 seconds later. He described the disturbance as a "severer quake" than that of Oct. 19, 1939, when dishes fell from shelves in many cupboards.

Rev. Joseph Lynch of Fordham University in New York said the seismograph instrument there recorded the shock at 2:28:26 a.m. He said it lasted "only a second or two" but that there were some surface shocks after that. The shock went in a general northeasterly direction for about 295 miles from the Fordham Observatory, he added.

Little Above Average

With thousands roused from slumber, Leet was no exception.

"They seem prone to happen at night in New England", he said, "but this was the first to wake me up before some reporter got me on the 'phone.

"It was just another quake of minor proportions as earthquakes go, but a little above the average for New England. Activity in New Hampshire is not a stranger to quakes. We have a dozen or more a year.

When told the shock was felt in Pennsylvania, New Jersey and New York, Leet said it was "amazing that it went so far for a local disturbance".

He said the nature of the disturbance precluded high tides or other demonstrations of its force at sea.

Felt in Capital

Ottawa, Dec. 20 (CP)—An earth tremor that shook buildings in New England was reported by some residents of Ottawa to have been felt in the Capital early today.

Newspapers received telephone calls at 3:29 a.m. EDT from residents in Ottawa south saying they felt the vibrations and a few minutes later people from east Ottawa reported feeling the tremors.

Montreal, (CP)—A slight earth tremor early today awakened many Montreal residents, shook buildings, and toppled dishes off shelves, but apparently caused no serious damage. The quake was felt about 3.29 a.m. EDT and lasted for a few seconds.

Brockville, Ont., (CP)—Residents of Avondale Farm section of suburban Brockville report feeling a light earth tremor about 3:30 a.m. EDT today.

Sherbrooke, Que., (CP)—Sherbrookers were awakened early today by a slight earth tremor which shook buildings, rattled dishes and ornaments but caused no damage. The shock lasted a few seconds.

youth of the nation as a whole."

Mr. Churchill, who attended Harrow in 1888, joined in singing school songs such as "the wonderful Giants of Old", after which the Prime Minister asked:

"Could anyone doubt that this generation is as good and as noble as any the nation has ever produced, and that its men and women could stand up against all tests?

Could anyone doubt that this generation is in every way capable of carrying on the traditions of the nation and handing down its love of justice and liberty?"

(Berlin reports were that Otto Abetz, German ambassador to Paris, had insisted in Vichy that Laval be returned to the Cabinet in some post.)

Changes Expected

Diplomatic circles said men they expected to figure in a shake-up included:

Justice Minister Raphael Alibert, described as the leading critic of the French-German collaboration plans and a bitter opponent of Laval;

Rene Belin, Minister of Industrial production;

Pierre Caziot, Minister of Agriculture.

Diplomatic advices said it still was not clear whether those expected to be axed out of the Cabinet would include the present "strong man", Interior Minister Marcel Peyrouton.

German officials were said here not only to be anxious to get him out but also to give his job to Laval.

Nazis Learn Lesson

Berlin—(AP)—The French cabinet shakeup of last Saturday, known here as "the Putsch of Vichy," has taught the German government one great lesson, men in the know here say.

That lesson, they assert, is that there is an influential group at work within the French government to scuttle, if possible, attempts at a French-German rapprochement such as planned between Hitler and the French former vice-premier, Laval.

German government circles, they reported, long had suspected that not all who were giving lip service to the plan for a "new order in Europe" under German leadership were sincere about it.

Laval's sudden removal uncovered the hands of these counter-forces, it is said here.

There is no longer even the slightest doubt but that the Wilhelmstrasse was completely surprised by the Vichy upheaval.

The French Chief of State, Petain, it is argued in well-informed circles in Berlin, has about him a group of men who used Laval because they knew him to be acceptable to Germany.

As the German-Italian onward rush continued, they contended, Laval seemed very useful in paving the way toward a French-German peace.

Take Advantage of Opportunity

But, so the story goes, no sooner did the Italians suffer reverses than the forces around Petain which still nurse their old enmity towards Germany thought their opportunity had come.

The former allied commander-in-chief Maxime Waygand was dispatched to Africa in the knowledge that he could hold the French African empire together and possibly even act independently of Vichy should the "putsch" fail, it was said. Germany would be in no position to object to Laval's removal from power at this time for fear of what Weygand might do, this thesis holds.

The official German comment runs, however, that these sources forget that France is a defeated nation which still must take cognizance of the victor's wishes.

To the German government it seemed indefensible that a man with whom Hitler had negotiated—Laval—should be ousted from office and detained without Germany being even so much as informed.

(It was said previously in Vichy that Germany had been informed.)

Hence, the German ambassador Otto Abetz, accompanied by German generals and S.S. (Nazi "elite" guard) officials, hastened to Vichy to obtain clarification and there seems but little doubt that Laval owes his liberation to German efforts.

Meanwhile, Pierre-Etienne Flandin, who is regarded as accepted to both the Axis on one hand and Britain and the United States on the other, was asked to take over Laval's duties as Foreign Minister.

Neither Flandin nor Petain, who well-informed Germans said wrote "a very fine letter" to Hitler, are blamed here for the "pusch of Vichy." Petain is regarded as too old to be expected to follow politics in all its vagaries and Flandin is regarded as having been drawn in innocently.

Abetz was reported to have insisted that Laval must somehow be reinstated as a Cabinet member.

Germans said they recognized that Petain could not very well throw Flandin out of the Foreign Ministry and reinstate Laval.

Laval, for his part, was said to want the ministry of Interior portfolio, which commands the entire civil administration.

That, however, would mean putting the police power into his hands and conceivably he might then arrest the men around Petain who brought about his downfall.

Besides, the present Minister of Interior—Marcel Peyrouton—is one of the chief powers in present day France.

Hence the problem at the moment as seen here is just where to fit Laval into the scheme of things.

SHIPYARD DAMAGED

Rome, Dec. 20 (AP)—The Baglietto Shipyard at Varazze, where small, fast torpedo boats are built, was reported today to have suffered heavy damage from flames which started in the woodworking department and spread to the machine shop. Boats on the ways escaped damage.

Varazze is on the coast southwest of Genoa.

(The docks at Genoa were attacked by British bombers yesterday.)

EXTORTION PLOT

Wednesday night, snatched up a cigar box which he thought was filled with money, and vanished in the murky darkness before officers could seize him.

Before he had reached the bounds of the patch he discovered the box was filled with worthless strips of paper instead of currency, and discarded it among the vegetable rows.

The golden-haired De Tristan boy, closely guarded by his parents at their home in the exclusive Hillsborough community 20 miles south of San Francisco was kinapped last Sept. 20 by Wilhelm Jakob Munlenbroich, a German alien who had visions of getting $100,000 in ransom for returning the child.

Overpowered by Lumbermen

Instead, Muhlenbroich was overpowered by a brace of lumberjacks in the mountains east of San Francisco and is now in San Quentin prison serving a life sentence. The child was returned home unharmed.

Federal agents appeared at the Santa Rosa Postoffice three weeks ago with a photographic copy of a letter mailed the De Tristans. They did not reveal the letter's contents but asked the postmaster to trace its sender. They did not succeed in this, authorities said, but did arrange the rendezvous under pretense of desiring to pay the extortion money.

Eight F.B.I. agents sifted into Santa Rosa Wednesday, taking into their confidence eight or nine members of the Santa Rosa police force and some State highway patrolmen. Heavily-armed and wearing rough clothing, the officers stationed themselves around the cabbage patch.

"Watch for a man in a black overcoat," was the warning.

"We went to the Joseph Inwalle Vegetable Gardens, half a mile from Santa Rosa, and went into the cabbage patch," one officer said later. "There we all spread out.

"I did see a man in a black overcoat suddenly appear out of the darkness. I started to grab him, but he said 'I'm on the Force,' and vanished."

Later, a cab driver named Larry Murphy reported picking up a man fitting the suspect's description. This man seemed uncertain where he wanted to go but finally named a bar. There he got out and disappeared.

BRITISH NAVAL

Raid on Valona

Vice-Admiral Henry Pridham-Wippel, veteran of operations in the Adriatic during the Great War, commanded the raiders which appeared to have made their assault in two phases.

While a cruiser and a screening destroyer force swept the lower, looking fruitlessly for Italian shipping, the battleships—how many was not disclosed—ploughed toward Valona.

The extent of damage at that Albanian port was not indicated, but experts declared that the "nearly 100 tons of high explosive shells" referred to by the Admiralty, could make debris of docking facilities.

Durazzo, Albanian port to the north of Valona, has considerably inferior facilities and these have been subjected to repeated Royal Air Force bombardment.

Italians in Albania Isolated is Belief

London sources expressed belief that Italian forces in Albania are threatened with isolation because of Italy's naval failure to command the lower Adriatic.

This was the first known penetration of the Adriatic by British battleships in the present war although on the night of Nov. 11-12, while naval planes were pounding Italian warships at anchor in the battle of Taranto, a squadron of light forces attacked an Italian convoy off Valona.

Of the four supply ships in this convoy, which was escorted by two destroyers, one was sunk outright, two were "seriously afire and almost certainly sunk" and the fourth, with the destroyers, escaped in the protection of a smoke screen, although one of the destroyers had been damaged.

Naval operations in support of the offensive into Libya are continuing, the Admiralty said, with the fleet air arm co-operating with the R.A.F.

Fires Burning in Bardia

"Extensive fires" have been burning in Bardia since the afternoon of Dec. 15, the Admiralty said. The fires were described as having "assumed very large proportions on Dec. 17."

Choosing that day for a close-range attack on the port, after days of long-range bombardment, "light units"—presumably destroyers—drove into the inner harbor of Bardia "under heavy machine-gun fire" and destroyed three supply ships, according to the Admiralty.

Italian Torpedo Planes Fail

Italian batteries on the African shore "repeatedly engaged" British warships and on the afternoon of Dec. 16 Italian torpedo planes "unsuccessfully attacked," the Admiralty communique said, adding: "No hits were sustained by any of our forces."

The Admiralty emphasized that throughout the Adriatic penetration, as far north as the line between Bari and Durazzo, "no opposition from the enemy was encountered."

LONDON WOMAN HELD IN SHOOTING

Christina Granger Charged With Attempted Murder of Mother and Remanded a Week

London, Ont., Dec. 20 (CP)—Christina Granger was remanded for one week, without plea, when she appeared in county police court today charged with attempting to murder her paralytic mother, 68-year-old Mrs. Thirza Granger.

Mrs. Granger was found in her home here yesterday suffering from three bullet wounds in the chest. She is in serious condition in hospital.

The 28-year-old daughter showed no emotion during today's brief hearing.

Police said they believed accused to have attempted a mercy killing of her mother, who had been partly paralyzed since a stroke about a year ago. Mrs. Granger was shot three times through the chest, two of the bullets passing through her body and the third lodging near her heart. Her condition last night was described as serious.

A .22-calibre rifle was found in the Granger home and is believed by police to have been used in the shooting.

Police said accused was alone in the home with her mother at the time of the shooting, and had been attending her mother during her illness. The victim's husband, F. William Granger, a carpenter, was at work and a son, Edward, looking for employment. Police discovered the shooting after an anonymous telephone call which they believed was made by the accused. A doctor was telephoned at the same time.

INMATES OF COUNTY HOME WILL ENJOY CHRISTMAS REPAST

A real old-fashioned Christmas will greet the 95 aged residents of the Hastings County Home next Wednesday.

Roast goose and chicken will feature a tasty repast which will be decked out in all the "trimmins." Starting off the day will be the generously-loaded Christmas tree which will hold presents for all. Contributing to the holiday atmosphere will be Christmas carols played by the fine band of the Salvation Army.

Superintendent Elmer Sandercock and Matron Mrs. Sandercock and their staff are working hard to bring to their charges one of the jolliest Christmases ever experienced in the institution.

PETERBORO COUNCIL ASSISTS FAIR BOARD BY GRANT OF $2,000

Peterboro City Council came to the assistance of a financially embarrassed Exhibition Society and gave them a special grant of $2,000 to assist them out of a difficulty which ensued from the acceptance of their park this year by the Department of Defence for a military camp.

This sum, it is stated, will enable the directors to pay at least 75 per cent of the prize money won by exhibitors last August. The council expressed the opinion, prior to making the grant, that the fair directors might have been better advised to have paid the prizes out of the exhibition money instead of wiping out their indebtedness at the bank.

It was felt "for the honor of the city and the fair reputation, that some effort be made to pay the prize monies."

Q. A. S. TEACHERS SAY FAREWELL

The teachers' room of Queen Alexandra School was the scene of an enjoyable function yesterday afternoon when the teachers of the institution paid a farewell tribute to Mrs. C. MacDonald, supply teacher, who has severed her association with the school. Mrs. MacDonald took the place vacated by the former Miss Helen Potter on the occasion of her marriage a few weeks ago.

Mrs. Anderson, wife of the principal, was in charge of the refreshments which culminated the affair. Miss Dora Osborne will assume the position vacated by Mrs. MacDonald at the beginning of the 1941 term.

CAR AND BICYCLE IN COLLISION

When a bicycle and motor car collided at the intersection of Earl and North Front Streets last evening 25-year-old Earl Pope of Gilbert Street in this city, was hurled off the 'bike' to the street, where he sustained lacerations of the forehead. Neither the driver of the automobile, Frank Thorn, 79 College Street, who was making a turn off North Front onto Earl St., nor Pope saw the other. Thorn drove the injured man to the hospital where his bruised and lacerated forehead was medically treated. The cuts were sustained as Mr. Pope's head struck on the jagged icy ruts of the street.

ONE NAZI RAIDER DROPS STICK OF BOMBS ON LONDON

Bombers Resume Raiding After Lapse of Almost Three Days

LITTLE DAMAGE

London, Dec. 20 (CP)—One low-flying German raider dropped a stick of bombs on the London district today but there was little damage and no casualties were reported.

One bomb hit an air raid shelter which invariably is occupied during alerts but it was empty because no air raid alarm had sounded.

The bombers resumed their raiding after a lapse of almost three days. Activity during the night was described in an official bulletin as inconsequential.

Despite bad weather, the Royal Air Force attacked "several targets in the Ruhr and in Western Germany" last night, concentrating on oil plants and storage facilities, the Air Ministry announced today.

In resuming their raids on England, German planes earlier dropped a few bombs in the south and southeast. It was officially announced that these raids had caused "little damage and very few casualties."

Sound of Gunfire

During a brief London air alarm last night, the capital's first in 68 hours, sounds of gunfire were heard from the suburbs and a few bombs were dropped in one section. Grounds of a nurses' home were reported hit without causing casualties.

Raiders likewise were reported over Liverpool and cities of the west and northwest.

Coincident with the raid renewals, the Admiralty made public a document found in an Italian submarine, allegedly instructing Italian submarine captains to attack "certain Spanish merchant ships without warning."

The order, signed by Mario Falangola, vice-admiral commanding submarines, directed the submarines to "attack without warning" Spanish ships belonging to the Ybarra and the Pinillos shipping companies leaving Casablanca, Morocco and sailing toward Lisbon.

Marshal Smigly-Rydz Escapes From Rumania

Budapest, Dec. 20 (AP)—Diplomatic reports from Bucharest today said Marshal Edward Smigly-Rydz of Poland had escaped from Rumania where he had been living in internment since leaving Poland during the German invasion of his country in the fall of 1939.

The Marshal, whose arrest by Rumanian authorities investigating espionage and sabotage was announced Oct. 24, was said to have been smuggled aboard a coastwise ship headed for Turkey. He made several previous attempts to leave Rumania.

Smigly-Rydz had been interned along with Foreign Minister Josef Beck and other Polish Government officials who fled before the Germans.

ITALIANS LOSE 70 CAMELS

Cairo, Dec. 20 (AP)—Seventy camels were captured from the Italians in a thwarted Fascist raid on a village in the northern frontier zone of Kenya colony, the British high command announced today.

Two of the Italians were killed when east African troops pounced on the raiding party.

Despite Protests Legislation Will Be Introduced

Toronto, Dec. 20 —(CP)—Despite protests from various groups in Ontario, Attorney General Gordon Conant said today that he still intends to introduce legislation at the next session of the Ontario Legislature legalizing Sunday ski excursion trains.

Following Mr. Conant's first announcement regarding the proposal recently, a number of religious bodies, including the Lord's Day Alliance, protested.

Rev. G. G. Webb, general secretary of the Alliance, said his group has been advised that if the legislation is made retroactive to Dec. 1 it "is open to serious challenge as being ultra vires of any provincial legislation in Canada."

Mr. Conant said that J. Munro, manager of the Toronto Ski Club, told him that the club has a tract in the Blue Mountains at Collingwood, Ont., which provides some of the finest skiing in the province, and that the club intends to make it attractive to American tourists. The club also wants to take advantage of Sunday ski trains.

Mr. Conant said the club told him they understood it was no offence to take advantage of ski trains or to broadcast skiing information but that "no person can prevent prosecution should the complainant take a rather narrow-minded view."

Whole Camp Ablaze After British Raid

Cairo, Dec. 20 (AP)—British fighter planes shot down five Italian planes over the western desert front yesterday without loss to themselves, a Royal Air Force communique announced today.

The communique also described a heavy raid with "great damage" Wednesday night on Derna, Italian coastal base 175 miles within Libya.

"When our last aircraft left the scene practically the whole of the camp was ablaze," it declared.

Bardia, under siege by British land forces, was raided heavily the same night.

Brawl Costs Corporal Three Months in Jail

Picton, Ont., Dec. 20 (Special)—Accompanying a pal on an alleged mission of revenge following an afternoon brawl, cost Corporal David W. Torrence, R.C.A.F., Picton, three months in the Prince Edward County jail, and the signing of a personal bond of $1,000 to keep the peace and not indulge in intoxicating beverages for two years, in police court here today.

The sentence was imposed by His Honor Judge Evan McLean who found Torrence guilty of assault with intent to commit grievous bodily harm. The assault which took place in a hotel beverage room cost a local resident, Wren Thomas, the sight of one eye. The sentence, the bench told the accused man, was mitigated due to the fact that Torrence and his friend, Aircraftman Whalen had made "creditable arangements" with the injured man.

Evidence adduced brought out the facts that the two airmen had been drinking during the afternoon and evening of Nov. 23rd and in a midday scuffle Whalen had received a sharp blow on the nose by an unidentified assailant. That night, with the motive of revenge in their minds they had set out to find the man who struck Whalen.

Thinking he had found him, Whalen approached a man sitting in a hotel beverage room, struck at him and missed. The man promptly ducked under the table and stayed there. Seated at the same table, Thomas, an innocent spectator of the drinking drama, rose to his feet and demanded to know what it was all about. Witnesses testified that Whalen called Torrence who rushed to the table and struck Thomas, who was wearing glasses, a heavy blow in the face. Thomas eventually lost the sight of an eye resulting from the blow.

NEED OF SHIPS IS EMPHASIZED BY RONALD CROSS

Real Struggle With Germany is to Come in 1941, Minister of Shipping Declares

SUBMARINE MENACE

British Minister Casts What He Calls Covetous Eye on Enemy Ships in U.S.—Sees U.S. as Only Source of New Shipping

London, Dec. 20 (CP)—Britain's Minister of Shipping, Ronald Cross, today cast what he called a covetous eye on "a certain number of enemy ships in the United States" and declared that assignment of these and United States ships to the British service "are the only ways I can see for replenishments of any consequence."

Mr. Cross declared that Britain's "real struggle" with Germany would come in 1941. The statements came in an interview with the United States press.

Submarine Menace

He pictured the submarine menace as still the greatest threat to British lifelines and said it could be overcome only by increasing numbers of destoyers and by new shipping which Britain now is turning out at her virtual maximum of production.

"One naturally hopes that the United States will be able to see her way to help us in the coming year," Mr. Cross said.

"I am extremely grateful for what we have got already. A large amount has already been supplied and we have to thank the good will of the administration."

Says Supplies of Old U.S. Ships

Observing that supplies of old United States ships were nearly exhausted and that it would be a year before new shipbuilding there could reach substantial levels, the Minister said:

"Perhaps the United States can spare us something from her existing ordinary services. Also there are a certain number of enemy ships in the United States. I naturally cast a covetous eye on those vessels.

"These are the only ways I can see for replenishments of any consequence."

Speaking of Britain's need for destroyers, Mr. Cross said: "We obviously can do with a great deal more destroyers. We know how to master the submarine, given equipment to do it, but we cannot expect to get the submarine menace so far subdued that it will not require an enormous amount of new construction to maintain the war effort at full blast."

He explained that shipping losses during the last war continued heavy to the end but toward the close were being more than offset by tremendous building in the United States, which produced more than 3,000,000 tons in 1918 as against 998,000 tons in 1917.

U S Shipbuilding Program

"Only the United States can supply the enormous new construction we need," he said. "Consequently we very much hope that the United States will embark on a shipbuilding program on a gigantic scale similar to the last war.

"Given that and our own steady accretion of strength, I have not the slightest doubt we can maintain our war effort at full strength."

Germany has two vessels tied up in the United States—the 4,733-ton tanker Pauline Friederich at Boston and the 4,353-ton Arauca at Port Everglades, Fla.

The Arauca dashed to port a year ago when the British cruiser Orion intercepted her while she was trying to reach Germany from Vera Cruz, Mexico.

Italy has 27 vessels tied up on both coasts and Denmark has 37 ships laid up.

Britain held that Danish ships acquired "an enemy character" when Germany invaded Denmark and a number of Danish operators refused to turn their vessels over to the British Ministry of Shipping on a charter basis.

SEVERAL INJURED

Mexico City, Dec. 20 (AP) —Several persons were injured last night in one of Mexico City's principal movie theatres when unidentified persons threw stench bombs and scattered itch powder among the audience and shouted "this is a Jewish film" near the end of an anti-Nazi film called "The World in Flames." It was the third such demonstration in recent days.

GERMANY GIVES WARNING ON SHIP PROPOSALS

Lord Halifax as Ambassador to U. S. a Certainty

Foreign Secretary Lauded by Press As Ideal for Job

Believed Anthony Eden Will Take His Post And Lloyd George Will Be Taken into Cabinet

London, Dec. 21—(AP)—Appointment of Foreign Secretary Lord Halifax as Ambassador to the United States was regarded as certain by an influential section of the British Press today and The Times said it could conceive of no one "better fitted for this important post."

The Daily Mail flatly declared the tall, scholarly Foreign Secretary would assume the post left vacant by the death of Lord Lothian, and asserted his name already had been submitted to President Roosevelt for approval.

The authoritative but more restrained British Press Association's Parliamentary correspondent said Lord Halifax was considered the most likely choice for the ambassadorship.

Minister of War Anthony Eden will move up to the Foreign Sec-

Why The Weather?

By Major A. H. Thiessen
Science Service Meteorologist

The winter solstice! Many feel encouraged when the winter solstice (which happens today at 6.55 p.m.) is reached; for, they say, the sun is coming back north. daylight will be longer, and warm weather is on the way. But such is not exactly the case. Daylight hours increase very slowly after the winter solstice. For instance, at latitude 45 degrees, from this date to Jan. 1 the increase will have been only 5 minutes. After Jan. 1 the rate increases; by Jan. 15 the increase since the solstice will have 23 minutes, and nearly an hour by the end of that month. But severe weather will continue for some time, due to cold north winds, and to snow and ice fields, and because it can not get warmer until the heat lost from the earth at night is less than that received.

BERLIN, 'INVASION PORTS', ESSEN HEAVILY BOMBED

Krupp Munition Works, Power Stations, Oil Depots Destroyed

LARGE FIRES STARTED

London, Dec. 21 (CP).—"Many explosions and fires" in a Berlin airplane factory and "other parts of the target area" were announced today by the Ministry of Information in elaborating on last night's Royal Air Force raid of the German capital.

The R.A.F. also smashed at the invasion ports along the continental coast.

"Particularly good results were obtained from the raids on the invasion ports of Ostend, Antwerp (both in Belgium), Le Havre (France) and Flushing (The Netherlands)," said the Information Ministry's statement.

It reported daylight attacks yesterday as follows:

"Yesterday several attacks on enemy gun positions, airdromes and harbors were made by aircraft of the coastal command.

"We suffered no losses from any of these operations.

Boulogne, France, and Amsterdam, The Netherlands, also were bombed.

London, Dec. 21 (CP)—The Royal Air Force bombed Berlin and the German "invasion ports" during the night, authoritative British sources reported today.

The Ministry communique said that the targets also included power stations, a railway junction and Essen, site of the great Krupp Armament Works. Four explosions from heavy bombs were reported in the Essen assault.

A low level attack on the Rhine city of Bonn caused "one very large fire."

"In the Duisburg area two large fires were observed and oil targets near Cologne were set ablaze," said the communique. "At Duesseldorf several large fires were caused and an anti-aircraft position was bombed.

'A Christmas Present for Italy' As Shells Rock Port of Valona

By LARRY ALLEN,
(Associated Press Staff Writer)

With the British battle fleet bombarding Valona, Dec. 19, (Delayed)—(AP) — From the deck of one of Britain's mightly floating fortresses early today I watched one-ton shells rocket into the heart of Valona, Italy's main Albanian naval base, causing destructive fires that bathed 2,000-foot mountain peaks with their light.

"A little Christmas present for Italy," the sweating gunners said.

The warship on which I rode and others swept up the mine-laden Adriatic Sea between Italy and Albania in a daring raid in which 100 shells were loosed against Valona in terrific broadsides.

The sleeping Italians apparently were completely surprised and the warships moved close enough to shore to see a lone light shining in Valona's harbor. Then bedlam broke.

One-ton shells rumbled through the night with a noise like a roaring subway express train, exploding with tremendous force against docks, ships, warehouses, supply bases and military encampments.

The heavy bombardment was designed to give support to Greek land armies increasing their pressure on Il Duce's battered Albanian legions.

Moved Like Shadows

A wide path of flaming destruction was apparent. A reddish glow crept over the tops of 2,000-foot high mountains showing the calibre of the raging fires started by the big naval guns.

The British ships moved through the mine-studded straits of Otranto between Italy's "heel" and the Albanian coastline like huge shadows. Keeping the Albanian coast in sight, the ships swept into broadside firing positions off Valona.

At this time, early this morning, shivering with cold, I clambered up the steel ladders from the battleship's wardroom to the control tower.

Through narrow slits in the steel tower, I saw the long, massive gray barrels of the 15-inch guns slowly rear their muzzles skyward from the giant turrets.

GERMAN RAIDERS GIVE LIVERPOOL SEVERE POUNDING

"Considerable Number" of Private Homes Hit Says Government

FEW CASUALTIES

All Fires Started Out or Under Control Before Morning

London, Dec. 21 (CP). — Far-ranging German raiders gave Liverpool one of its worst poundings of the war last night and early today and simultaneously rained explosives on many other scattered objectives in England, including London.

The government acknowledged that "a considerable number" of private homes and other buildings had been destroyed in the important west coast shipping and industrial centre, but said casualties were not believed to be heavy.

Fires were started in many places in Liverpool and the far-flung dock area along the Mersey River, and rubble littered the city streets for blocks. All the fires were said to be out or under control this morning.

A tannery and storage yard were among the places in Liverpool listed by the government as damaged.

Sinkings of Recent Weeks Challenge To United States

New York, Dec. 21 (CP). — The New York Times, outlining in a two-column editorial Britain's needs for ships, said today the United States should use experience gained in the first Great War and construct ships wholesale for Great Britain.

The United States launched 929 ships of 3,000,000 tons in 1918, the Times recalled. At the time of the Armistice 1,099 slipways in 223 yards were in operation. At present there are only 84 slips in 23 yards but the Times said the old shipyards of the last war could be brought back into production with "relatively simple reconditioning".

Saying that cheap wooden ships probably would be preferable to the costly steel ships, the paper concluded: "We should be well able to embark on such an effort now; we have it in our power to keep Great Britain from strangulation without involvement in the war. The sinkings of recent weeks are a clear call to action."

Sir Archibald Wavell Insists Desert Warriors Be Daring and Fast

Guiding the British sweep against the Italians in North Africa is Gen. Sir Archibald Wavell, who is putting into use the tactics of desert warfare he learned from Viscount Allenby and the fabulous Lawrence of Arabia during the First Great War. Here is a word picture of this sturdy Scotsman, "the desert fox."

By EDWARD ROBINSON,
(Associated Press Staff Writer)

London, Dec. 20—(AP)—Gen. Sir Archibald Wavell, directing genius of the British campaign in North Africa, is a man who insists that desert warriors must be daring and "fast as lightning."

A sturdy Scot, the third general in his family in three generations, he is considered here to be fully qualified for his present task by reason of personality and experience.

The 57-year-old officer has had an increasingly important hand in every British war since the South African conflict of two-score years ago. He was created a Knight Companion of the Bath last year and elevated to the full rank of general last October.

Sir Archibald has a penchant for shedding his beribboned tunic and working in shirt sleeves. His manner is described as affable and charming, and he is a brilliant speaker and admirable writer. The poetry of Browning is one of his hobbies.

Attached to Allenby

He wrote what is regarded as the best short history of the Palestine campaign in the last war, during which he was attached to the staff of the late Viscount Allenby.

To disguise the loss of an eye in the fighting in France in 1915, he wears a monocle, but does not let that interfere with his vigorous recreations. He is an expert marksman, a good golfer and, surprisingly for a desert fighter a skiing enthusiast.

A graduate of Sandhurst, Sir Archibald began his military career in 1901 in the Black Watch. He was decorated for service in South Africa and on the Indian frontier.

For two years of the First Great War he was in the thick of action in France, though he found time to marry in 1915. He has a son and three daughters.

After loss of his eye, he was sent to the Caucasus in 1916 as military attache with the Russian army, then transferred to the Egyptian Expeditionary Force.

GENERAL ITALIAN RETREAT APPEARS TO BE IMMINENT

Greeks Seeking to Make Klisura and Tepeleni Untenable

BAYONET CHARGES

Athens, Dec. 21 —(AP)— British bombers based on Greek soil have carried out "successful attacks" on oil tanks and railways at Brindisi, Italy, across the Adriatic Strait of Otranto, a Royal Air Force communique announced today.

"Poor visibility and intense anti-aircraft fire made observation difficult," said the communique, "but all bombs exploded in the target area. Large fires were started and subsequently there were several explosions."

While the R.A.F. reported this and other assaults to support the Greek offensive into Italian-held Albania, dispatches from the front said Greek forces had captured an Italian colonel and two battalions in fierce fighting around Tepeleni.

Occupy Two Villages.

Greek infantrymen, battling cold and a stubborn Fascist force, were said to have occupied two villages and two strategically important heights in the Tepeleni area.

Heights taken in the Tepeleni area were described as stongly guarded with barbed wire. After mentioning the gains in that sector, one report said:—

"Our artillery successfully shelled the retreating Italians. Guns and much material have fallen into our hands.

"While the enemy was being chased, Italian planes attempted to halt our advance but our fighters took off and shot down four enemy aircraft.

Greek Destroyer With Fleet.

A naval communique indicated today that a Greek destroyer force preceded British warships in their sweep of the lower Adriatic, as announced by the British Admiralty yesterday. The British navy sent a battleship-cruiser-destroyer force into the lower Adriatic Dec. 18 and the battleships poured nearly 100 tons of high explosive shells into Valona, Italy's port of entry into southern Albania.

Now the Greek navy reports that on the night of Dec. 15-16 its reconnaissance destroyers penetrated the lower Adriatic as far as the island of Saseno, at the entrance of Valona harbor, "without encountering any signs of the enemy".

SEVERAL LARGE VESSELS SUNK IN WEEK DEC. 20

Western Prince Included Among Four of Over 9,000 Tons

TOTAL OF 51,732 TONS

(By the Canadian Press)

Six ships with a total tonnage of 51,732 tons were reported torpedoed in the Atlantic by enemy U-boats in the week ended Dec. 20.

They were the Napier Star, British, 12,196 tons; Western Prince, British, 10,926 tons; Pendrecht, Netherlands, 10,746 tons; Walfon, Norwegian, 9,860 tons; Carlton, British, 5,162 tons; and Varangberg, Norwegian, 2,842 tons. In addition the 2,450-ton British steamship Bic Island, formerly the Canadian captured Italian freighter Capo Noli, reported it was "being bombed by enemy aircraft" off Ireland.

Dispatches from German-held Oslo Friday reported without details loss of seven Norwegian ships but this has not been confirmed.

They were listed as the tanker Beaufort, 5,053 tons and the freighters Balzac, 962 tons, Stalheim, 1,298 tons, Svein Jarl, 1,908 tons, Kanghalfdan, 2,000 tons, Tres, 946 tons and Gallus, 338 tons.

The latest Admiralty summary, for the week ended Dec. 8, announced the loss of 101,200 tons in the period, 40,000 tons above the weekly average of the war and the highest weekly loss since Oct. 14-21 when the total was 198,000 tons.

British Naval Exploit Praised by Tribune

New York, Dec. 21 (CP). — The New York Herald Tribune praised editorially today the British naval exploit in sweeping up the Adriatic Sea and bombarding Valona, saying Britain has been using its heavy ships "with increasing daring and effect".

Comparing the present naval operations in the Mediterranean with the Norwegian campaign, the Herald Tribune said many considerations may have prompted the British Admiralty to forego a bold stroke against the Germans in Norway at the time of the invasion and added:

"Since that time the directors of British naval policy—the fighting forces have never needed such a lesson—have learned the need for daring and decision."

BATTLE OF BARDIA BECOMES A SIEGE BRITISH REPORT

20,000 Italians Encircled and Will Have to Fight Their Way Out or be Captured

PRISONERS TAKEN

Graziani May Try to Make Stand at Tobruk, 75 Miles From Bardia

Cairo, Egypt, Dec. 21.—(AP)—While British bombers, artillery and warships battered beleaguered Bardia today in an effort to smash a path through the Italian defences, a general headquarters communique announced British troops had captured an additional 900 prisoners and were "clearing" the areas to the northwest and west of the eastern Libyan base.

The British forces in the western desert, "which continue to be reinforced", also have taken four guns in their mopping-up operations, the communique said.

As the British closed in, large units of the trapped Fascist forces were said to be trying desperately to slip through the ring of steel and their Eastern Libyan base under cover of darkness and the pall of smoke and dust hanging over the town after five days of bombardment.

It was believed in some British circles that such units—if any got through—would try to join Marshal Rodolfo Graziani at Tobruk for a new stand 75 miles west of the Libyan-Egyptian frontier.

KNUDSEN NAMED TO HEAD BOARD FOR U. S. DEFENCE

President Roosevelt Chooses Knudsen, Hillman, Stimson and Knox to Arm Nation

CENTRALIZATION AIM

Washington, Dec. 21. (AP)—Four men personally selected by President Roosevelt as a defence "High Command" shouldered the concentrated responsibility today of arming America.

To the new organization—to be known as the office for production management for defence—the President late yesterday named William S. Knudsen and Sidney Hillman of the present defence commission, War Secretary Henry Stimson and Navy Secretary Frank Knox. Knudsen will be director.

Mr. Roosevelt's decision to create the new office, under authority of the 1939 government reorganization act, followed widely-voiced demands for a greater centralization of authority in defence matters.

The Board, Mr. Roosevelt said will represent all three of the elements involved in every process of production—labor, managment, and the buyer-user.

Big, Danish-Born Knudsen, one of the nation's outstanding production experts, will represent management.

Hillman, a Union man for thirty years will handle labor problems, and will be assistant director of the board.

Secretaries Knox and Stimson will present the viewpoint of the buyer-user—the army and navy.

With the public's interest focused on the big job of producing arms and military equipment, it was learned from usually well-informed quarters outside the White House that the President was considering a "fireside chat" on the status of the program.

In outlining the new set-up at a special press conference, Mr. Roosevelt said the Board would have three general subdivisions: production of raw materials, defence purchasing, and priorities on deliveries of war supplies.

Relations Between Germany and U.S. May Be Strained

Nazi Spokesman Says Proposal Nothing More Than Inciting America to Commit Warlike Act

Berlin, Dec. 21 (AP).—A German foreign office representative asserted at a press conference today that the question of continued peaceable relations between Germany and the United States hangs in the balance as the Nazi government awaits reaction to the Cross shipping proposal.

(Ronald Cross, minister of shipping, said yesterday in London that the assignment of "a certain number of enemy ships in the United States" and addition of United States ships to the British service "are the only ways I can see for replenishments of any consequence.")

"The entire attention of the German government is centred upon the American reaction to the Cross proposal," the spokesman asserted.

"That proposal is nothing other than inviting America to commit a warlike act," he said. "I speak with tremendous earnestness in my capacity as your official informant and spokesman.

Interest Extraordinary.

"Our interest is extraordinary, because in an increasing manner one nation (meaning Germany) has shown restraint to the point of self effacement, while on the other side there has been a systematic policy of pin-pricks, challenges, humiliations and even moral aggression.

"The Reich government is, therefore, centring its entire attention upon this problem."

Mr. Cross was speaking, the Nazi official asserted, at a moment when "Great Britain is in a death struggle".

The Anglo-American discussions over United States assistance to Great Britain have become "increasingly interesting", the German spokesman added, because it is "unbearable for Germany to let things drift further."

The Nazi complained that "demands and interpretations are launched as though actions contemplated did not fall within the scope of practices defined by international law".

VICHY REPORTED TO HAVE REFUSED GERMAN DEMANDS

Petain Refuses to Make Changes in Cabinet or to Take Back Laval

TAKES ON DE BRINON

Vichy, France, Dec. 21 — (AP)—Informed sources asserted today that Fernand De Brinon, Vichy's representative in German-occupied Paris, acting on orders of Premier Philippe Petain, has delivered to the Germans in Paris Vichy's refusal to make any changes in its cabinet or take back the ousted Pierre Laval.

Petain agreed, as requested by Otto Abetz, German ambassador in Paris, to replace Gen. De La Laurencie as delegate-general of the Vichy Government in the occupied zone with De Brinon, these sources said.

Other demands, including the ouster of the Minister of the Interior, Marcel Peyrouton, and the Minister of Justice, Raphael Alibert, were said to have been rejected.

BRITAIN'S FLEET HAS BOLSTERED LAND OFFENSIVE

Warships Sweep Within Sight of the Guns of Italian Shore Batteries

BARDIA IN FLAMES

By LARRY ALLEN
(Associated Press Staff Writer)

Aboard a battleship of the Mediterranean fleet, Dec. 20 (delayed) (AP).—Britain's Mediterranean fleet has bolstered the land offensive of her desert troops by pumping hundreds of high explosive shells into Mussolini's Libyan strongholds.

The ships swept almost within sight of the guns of the Italian shore batteries at Bardia, important Libyan base, and hurled heavy shells into the heart of the Italian troop concentrations' supply bases, starting huge fires.

Most of Bardia now is flaming with the mass shellings continuing at close range.

Day and night shellings from the fleet have blocked the attempts of thousands of Marshal Rodolfo Graziani's Fascist troops to flee to Tobruk, Italian base 65 miles west.

Heavy shells hurled Italian motor transports, tanks and armored cars high into the air and tore large craters in the highway from Bardia to Tobruk. Italian infantrymen were scattered.

One ship and some other Italian batteries responded to the bombardment with a hot fire and planes occasionally attempted to bomb the ships, but this appeared only to spur the attack.

A ship shelling Bardia Dec. 17 went so close inshore that she drew machine-gun fire, but succeeded despite that in sinking three small Italian craft.

2 SHOPPING DAYS TILL Christmas

BEN GILL FACTORY HAD GOOD YEAR

Approximately two million six hundred thousand pounds of milk, from which was produced 226,074 pounds of cheese and 6,411 pounds of whey butter fat, was processed by the Ben Gill Cheese and Butter Co. of Prince Edward County during the 1940 season. The average price paid to patrons per hundred pounds of milk was 96.2 cents.

Total receipts were $36,209.65 with the company paying out to patrons and others the sum of $35,959.38. This shows how a cheese factory in a community benefits not only those connected with it, but also the large amount of concentrated food supplied for consumption at a time when such concentrated products are at a premium.

The directors of the Ben Gill factory are to be congratulated on the success of their season's operations and have done their bit to aid in keeping up the flow of foodstuffs to the Old Country. Ben Gill is one of the largest factories offering cheese for sale on the Belleville Cheese Board.

FLOODLIGHTS BRING TRUE SIGNIFICANCE OF CHRISTMAS SCENE

With the floodlights in the background bringing out its true significance the scenes depicting the birth of the Christ Child appear in all of the splendour of a costly stained glass portrait on the windows of the school library of the Belleville Collegiate Institute and can be seen facing Church St., nightly.

The scenes were painted on the inside of the glass windows in water colors by the Art Class under Miss Ash and when floodlights are focussed upon the paintings from the inside the entire three pictures of that First Christmas suddenly appear lifelike in a fine exhibition of artistry. The blendings of the beautiful colorings can only be appreciated at night after the floodlights are focussed upon the paintings. The creation is a credit to Miss Ash and her class for its originality and beauty.

C.I.A. CONSTRUCTS STORAGE TANK

The Belleville waterfront is growing up. Still another storage tank is being added to the numbers already lining the area south of the C.P.R. tracks and along the Belleville Harbor. Early this week the foundation for a large storage tank was started by employees of the Canadian Industrial Alcohol Company.

The tank is being constructed immediately at the water's edge on property re-claimed from the bay by the Harbor Commission several years ago and upon which the Schuster Company now has coal in storage. The tank will be used to store molasses to be used in the process of manufacture at the company's plant in Corbyville.

FOND OF NUMBER 23

Alton, Ill., Dec. 21.—(AP)—Officer Charles Stahl's police motorcycle licence number is 23. Coincidently, his draft number turned up 2323. Imperial Veterans Entertain Children At Their Annual Christmas Tree

Many of the Guests Were Evacuees From Britain

VARIED PROGRAM

Wherever the Union Jack flutters in the breezes the spirit of Christmas personifies and is exemplified by the willingness to assist others and create good will among men. This truest spirt of Christmas known to man was truly brought forth in all its glory in Belleville Friday afternoon when many of the child-evacuees from Great Britain, except those indisposed were the special guests of the Imperial Veterans' Club at their annual Christmas tree entertainment in the club rooms situated on Front Street. Upwards of 125 kiddies, the majority of whom were Imperial Veterans' children, enjoyed the afternoon's program and awaited anxiously the joyous appearance of Santa Claus, who arrived at the most opportune time and presented all kiddies present with gifts and goodies to keep their youthful hearts aglow with the spirit of Christmas.

Annually the Imperial War Veterans hold a Christmas entertainment for their kiddies, but this year included the numerous evacuee children from overseas, who are residing in Belleville, as their special guests, and the teen-aged from Great Britain took as marked interest in the activities of old St. Nick as any Canadian. Upon entering the hall each child was provided with a bottle of Coca Cola and a delicious tart. Later upon the triumphant entrance of Santa Claus the children were given a box of chocolates, candy canes, oranges, apples, chocolate bars, mammoth bags of candy and other Christmas favours, all of which gladdened the hearts of the kiddies present.

Pres. Sheppard Welcomes Children

President James Sheppard welcomed the children and the many parents, while Joe Semain, secretary of the Imperial Veterans, added his felicitations. His Honour Judge Cameron, honorary president of the Club, also spoke, while other civic notables were present to enjoy the fun and frivolity with the kiddies.

Lieut. Fred Jobson proved an ideal master-of-ceremonies and led the community singing, which included the conventional Christmas carols, which were lustily sung by the entire audience.

The program presented prior to the triumphant entrance of Santa Claus in all of the Christmas conventional glory, was provided by George Sheppard, local boy tenor with a solo, a reading by Mrs. Tracey, Calgary Pete with his yodelling songs, Miss Ethel Smith as soloist and other impromptu features to make the 1940 Imperial Veterans' Christmas entertainment the best ever. "It was a great satisfaction to have those evacuee kiddies with us and to see them enjoy themselves at this festive time of the Christian year along with our own", remarked Secretary Joe Semain as the party broke up with reluctance on the part of the adults especially.

Inspectors' Report Praises War Effort of Collegiate

Student Body Has Disposed of $7,760 Worth of War Savings Stamps, Certificates Since September

WILL BUILD RINK

Board of Education Holds Final Meeting for 1940; New Board to Meet Earlier Next Year

Commendation and praises were afforded Principal P. C. MacLaurin and his staff of teachers at the Belleville Collegiate Institute and Vocational School in the annual High School Inspector's report, which was tabled and read at the final 1940 meeting of the Board of Education held in the Board Room last evening.

The report gave special mention to the school effort in the matter of the sale of War Savings Stamps and Certificates, which Mr. MacLaurin later revealed amounted to the sum of $7,760.00 and which has been raised in this manner and forwarded to Ottawa since the opening of the present school semester in September. The report also made mention of the splendid work of the school orchestra and vocal music training, both of which add cultural value to the school curriculum.

Courtesy Shown

"The courtesy and co-operation which prevails within the Collegiate speaks well of the home life and efforts of the teaching staff in creating fine upright Canadian citizens," continued the report of Inspectors R. M. Anglin and A. J. Husband of Toronto.

"We observed that this year the school day has been extended to make provisions and requirement for physical education under the war training scheme, which includes map reading, signalling, drill, range shooting and physical training. The girls have classes in Red Cross and first aid, as well as teachings in ambulance driving.

"Mr. MacLaurin warrants commendation for the skill with which he has combined the school programs of special training with his organization of regular classes," concluded the Inspector's report.

Win 43 Scholarships

In connection with the educational activities of the Belleville Collegiate Institute, Principal MacLaurin reported that out of a total of 63 Carter Scholarships, 43 had been awarded to students of his school since the scholarship was inaugurated in 1914. Belleville students have won a total of $3,080.00 in Carter Scholarships since 1914 as against $1,280 awarded to the students of the combined high schools of Hastings County over the same period, reported Principal MacLaurin as he added that Belleville Collegiate students were better than holding their own with the rank and file of other secondary schools in the district.

The Advisory Vocational Committee reported that a shooting gallery and store room for the B.C.I.&V.S. cadet corps equipment was necessary owing to the increased training under the war training classes.

Build Open Rink

An application from the Boys Athletic Society of the B.C.I.&V.S. was read requesting $75.00 for the purchase of lumber and the permission to erect a skating rink on the Collegiate campus. The application stated that the cost of practice hours at the Hume Arena was too great a strain on the finances of the society. The initial requisition was for lumber to build a hockey cushion, as the boys agreed to assume the responsibility for flooding and cleaning, the Board voted the required sum, provided, however, no responsibility or liability be assumed by the Board in any manner.

"I understand the Belleville Utilities is very sparing with its water and will not permit a rink to be flooded unless a water meter is installed," concluded Rev. A. Beauchamp Payne.

"We used to have free open air rinks when I was in the council and nothing was said about the water," interrupted Dr. Kinnear.

"Why if a citizen wants a little rink in his back yard for his kiddies, the Utilities Commission demands a meter be installed, but I'll move the voting of the $75.00 only," added E. A. Geen, who added that it should not interfere with the new school training period. Mr. Payne seconded the motion.

An account of $37.82 for the replacement of 61 cadet belts, which were reported missing by Lieut. Lester Shiels, was ordered paid, as were bills for $752.46 from the Advisory Board and $1,080.48 tendered by the supply committee. The Finance Committee bill of $2,351.18 was also ordered paid.

Night school classes, which have been suspended for the holiday period, will re-open on Jan. 6th, 1941 and continue until March 31st of that year. Homer Townsend was engaged as a temporary supply teacher for the remainder of the school year at the stipulated rate of $8.00 per teaching day. Mr. Townsend has been temporarily engaged replacing the vacancy left when Mr. Heard joined the War Emergency Training classes.

O.V.C. to Train

An application from the newly inaugurated Ontario Voluntary Constabulary for permission to be allotted space for drill purposes, lecture rooms and shooting gallery at the Collegiate one night a week was referred to the Principal of the school. The O.V.C. wishes to train one night a week under supervision. With the approval of certain regulations the request was granted.

Under the notice of motion, Mr. H. B. Fetterley moved that the regular meeting for the month of January, 1941, be held on the second Friday of the month, instead of the customary third Friday. The motion carried unanimously.

Plans to turn the Machine Shop rooms over to the War Emergency Training Classes between the periods of the closing of day school and the opening of night school met with the approval of the Board, "providing periods for cleaning and ventilation are arranged," added Rev. Payne in a proviso.

To Repair Vault

Repairs to the vault at the Belleville Collegiate were referred over to the incoming Board, as a complete examination of the vault is needed, suggested Frank Cushing.

"Yes, I think a thorough investigation looking into this burglarizing of the Collegiate vault should be taken. This is the second time it's been entered and I for one would like to know what protection it is," added Rev. Mr. Payne. The safe was ordered to be temporarily repaired and Secretary Findlay instructed to inquire as to burglar insurance rates. The Board closed its 1940 term of office with the customary seasonal felicitations, Messrs. Locke, Payne, Cushing, Kinnear, Fetterley and Geen being present.

HEALTH OF PUPILS GOOD SAYS NURSE

No suggestion of serious contagious diseases were noted in the monthly report of Miss E. A. Earshman public school nurse, at the final meeting of the Belleville Board of Education held at the Belleville Collegiate last evening.

Some mild cases of measles and two cases of scarlet fever were the only school reports of contagious diseases in Belleville. Otherwise Miss Earshman inspected 577 school children during the past month, with 93 special physical examinations added. Five vision tests were taken and 60 visits were made by the nurse to private homes. Seven parents visited the nurse's office for advice as to the welfare of their children and only four children were excluded from school owing to skin diseases.

New York, Dec. 21 (AP)—The bomb squad, always alert these days, rushed to the Natural History Museum, where a "suspicious" suitcase was found in some bushes. It contained a prescription for nose drops.

Love is Like That
By Vee Belcher

I don't know why I'm writing this story tonight, unless it's because I've just came home from a sentimental show and the mood still lingers with me. The girl in the picture was so much like Caroline; brown eyes, brown hair and innocent looking. This story is about Caroline, and you will see, when you have read it, how wrong we were in being sorry for her.

There are four women in our crowd. Each one, a soldier's wife. Our husbands are with the C.A.S.F., Somewhere in England. To pass the time, we meet at one another's homes. We play cards, gossip over our cups of tea and read aloud our overseas mail. We are really fond of one another and share each other's joys and sorrows. When Jim won his third stripe, we were just as proud as Vi. When Bob hurt his foot in a motorcycle accident, we were equally as sorry as Betty, his wife. So when the news came, that Tom was running around with "some pretty English girl", we shook our heads, and pitied Caroline.

She didn't join us, that night at Betty's house. We wondered if she had heard what the gossips were spreading, and we knew, what gossip can do to a person. It can sure get you down. Especially in a small town like ours, where everyone knows everyone else. We hadn't known Tom very well, when he married Caroline. He was an outsider. But we took him into our circle of young people and he was soon one of us. He was so jolly and such a good sport!

But there were still those people in the town that thought Caroline could have done better. She could have married Sam Peabody for instance. Everyone knew he was in love with her and didn't Sam have a fine grocery business and a home of his own?

But Caroline had married Tom instead, and they bought a little yellow house, in the installment plan, and Tom did painting and decorating jobs. That was until a year ago last September, when he went into the army. He went away in December with a lot of other husbands and sons, and Caroline went around with a lost look on her face and still wearing last winter's coat.

She was trying to pay off the balance on the house, she told us, so Tom would have a home when he returned. We thought her rather silly, do without so much, when she always found money to buy things for her three children or lovely furnishings for the house.

"I'll wait until Tom comes home, for my new things", she told us laughingly.

That night at Betty's each of us had our own opinion.

Betty thought perhaps that the girl might be one of Tom's relatives. He had written Caroline, that he had located his people, and had spent his first five days leave with them.

Vi's opinion, was that the whole thing was just a made up story.

"Some people aren't happy unless they are hurting someone with their lies".

I hardly knew, what to think myself. Tom was handsome and charming, and if I hadn't been head over heels in love with my own man, I would easily have fallen for him.

Our evening didn't pass so well without Caroline. We missed her, and we all felt blue on her account. We broke up about half-past nine and Vi and I walked to the corner together. My own way took me past the little yellow house. I was right in front of it, when I noticed Caroline's bedroom light on. So I though I'd drop in for a minute. Perhaps she wasn't feeling well. We never knock at one another's door, we just walk in. So I walked into Caroline's front room, and on into her bedroom. She was on her knees, in front of the lovely old bureau. The bottom drawer was open, and I saw stacks and stacks of letters.

She looked up, when I went in, and smiled.

"Did you miss me Vera? I was coming, but Tommy had such a sore throat, I hated to leave him. I made him gargle, and put him to bed. I've been reading all my letters over again, just to put in the time".

I could see, that she had been crying, and I wondered if she had heard.

I sat down on the edge of the bed, and she remained kneeling.

"Vera", she said after a moment. "Do you know, that I haven't always loved Tom?"

I looked at her startled.

"I mean it!" she went on, softly "When I married Tom, I didn't love him, as a wife should love her husband! I married him just to be different! The rest of you married someone you had grown up with. Someone who had seen you in pigtails and freckles, and perhaps a dirty face. I didn't want that! I wanted Romance with a Capital R. So I married Tom! That was five years ago. Until now, the children and I, were all he had. Now he has found his own people. I wonder what they are like? It's funny, I think of that now. I wouldn't have cared a year ago. I didn't know I loved him, until I watched him march away last December, to the train".

She was very quiet, then, and I know how she felt. Hadn't we all stood by, while they marched away? They had tried so hard to be cheerful, calling gaily to us, to keep up our chins, while all the time, they wanted to break down, and cry good and hard. But, soldiers have to be brave, so they had squared their shoulders and marched away, while the band played and people cheered.

I just felt, Vera, as if part of me, was going with him. When he kissed little Tommy and told him to be Mommy's man until he came back, I felt like screaming He looked so old, Vera! His eyes were red, and there were lines around his mouth. Then he looked at me so queerly, and he said, "Darling, I won't be gone long, and when I come back, we we will have that honeymoon, we never could have before". Caroline covered her face, with her hands. I knew she was trying to compose herself. When Tom and she were married, there hadn't been enough money for a honeymoon, and every spring since, they had planned a trip. But something always happened to spoil it. The first year Barbara had come. A year and a half later, Joan had arrived. The next Spring, both children took down with measles, and before those doctor's bills were paid, young Tommy came. Tommy had never been strong, so there was always a doctor bill, or so it seemed. Finally, they had given up the thought of their "honeymoon" together, as they laughingly called it. "He writes such beautiful letters, Vera! I'm really proud of them. They are nicer than any love letter! I don't read all of them out loud to you, only parts of them".

She took the letters out of the drawer, and laid them on the floor, beside her. When she looked up at me again, her eyes were sparkling like two stars.

"I'm going to show you something" she half whispered. "You all felt sorry for me! I know! I've seen it on your faces!"

She took a box from the drawer, and opened it up. From the tissue paper wrapping, she took a dress, and then she stood up and held it against her. It was wine coloured satin, with silver clips at the shirred neckline. A lovely fitted waist, and a wide flared skirt. The light caught the shimmering satin and made it gleam like a jewel. It was lovely!

She put the dress, lovingly, back in its box. Then she showed me all the other things.

"I've got all the things that go with it!" she told me proudly.

A beautiful satin slip, all hand embroidered, satin undies, and several pair of lovely sheer hose. A pair of wine suede slippers and finally a silly little wine felt hat with fur tails on it! It was such a saucy little hat! I could imagine it on Caroline's dark hair, she would look so young and darling!

"But Caroline, why don't you wear them now?" I stammered.

She flushed. Then she said kind of brokenly.

"I'm saving them for my honeymoon! Don't laugh Vera, please! Tom might come home unexpected, and I do want to be ready! I love him so!"

I couldn't answer her only looked quickly away. Tears were running down my face, and I didn't try to stop them.

I, don't think it matters, what the gossips say about, Tom. Caroline loves him, and has faith in him! Somehow, her faith in him is so strong, that she has the rest of us believing in him too!"

If this story should ever be printed, Tom will read it. I know he will understand and be glad. Even though Caroline's name in real life is not Caroline, or mine Vera.

The Stars Say—

By GENEVIEVE KEMBLE

For Sunday, December 22

SUNDAY'S horoscope indicates that the day will be most successful and happy by concentrating on the conventional avocations and interests of the Sabbath, since there are several omens of treacherous and undermining influence. These might be detrimental to noble ambitions.

Those whose birthday it is may make some advantageous associations during the year, if ambitions be restricted to social, cultural or humanitarian activities rather than purely material and personal, as there are hints of secret enmities and want of support from those in power and authority.

A child born on this day should be versatile, artistic, kindly and enterprising in social advancement, yet it may not enjoy approbation of its superiors.

For Monday, December 23

MONDAY'S astrological forecast promises a particularly lively and enterprising day, with heightened faculties and initiative applied to new, original and worthwhile objectives. This preferably in hopes and ideals to enhance collective good rather than private enterprise.

Those whose birthday it is may be confronted by a year in which the highest and noblest ideals may culminate in great felicity and profit as well. The purely personal social, affectional or artistic yearnings may give unusual joy while reflexes in promoting the advancement and welfare of society should offer splendid spiritual and emotional satisfactions. A child born on this day will be greatly talented in the finer arts.

'I Don't Want Much For Christmas'

By Katharine Brush in the Chicago Daily News.

I don't want much for Christmas, I really don't. Just peace for the world, and victory for Britain, and nonintervention for the United States, and a balanced budget for Washington, and a chinchilla coat for myself. Just little odds and ends of things. It's the spirit of giving, I always say, and not the gift, so you mustn't bother too much about me. Just give me some airplane stock, or a talent like Hemingway's, or the best of health forever, or the Hope diamond, or a Hispano Suiza, or Victor Moore around the home.

I won't even hang up my stocking, so you won't have to worry about filling it. Just dump a few wee gifts on the hearth for me, and I'll be quite content. Walt Disney, for example. A line and a backfield for Yale. A couple of grand pianos for my living room—complete with a couple of grand piano-players. A pair of emerald clips, and a trip to Rio de Janeiro, and a Caribbean island all my own, and the restoration of France to the French.

I know your generous nature, my dear — I know you'd give me the shirt off your back, because you're one of those people—but you simply mustn't dream of it. I don't want the shirt off your back. I won't accept it, and that's final. All I want is all the motors out of Hitler's bombers. All I want is not another peep out of Japan.

It is more blessed to give than to receive, so buy me a California mountain that falls steeply into the sea, and build me a house on the top of it. This should be an L-shaped house, of 20 or 30 rooms, and I want the walls to be mostly windows, and I want a moat running all the way around. Furthermore, I want the moat to be a swimming pool (not one of those dirty old, brackish-water moats they had in olden times); and I want a steep chute from my bedroom window descending directly into the moat, so I can whiz down and take my morning dip with the absolute minimum of trouble.

It's just a suggestion, you understand. These are all just suggestions. If you'd rather give me a pair of book ends, or a box of bath powder, or another of those bridge sets you gave me last year and the year before — well, then, all right. But I do think it's silly of friends not to break down at Christmas time and tell each other frankly what they want and need, and would appreciate. I think it's silly, and I think it's wasteful.

So if you really want to know, I need star sapphires the worst way; and I could use a private railroad car and a well-stocked champagne cellar. Oh, and a bellboy in buttons to follow my husband around the house, picking up after him. And a cure for the common cold—I could do with that too. Or just any old trinket.

It's the imaginative gift that pleases people, after all—it isn't necessarily the elaborate gift, or the costly one. For example, a Texas oil well makes an amusing little token, showing thoughtfulness; and so does a small parcel of real estate along 5th avenue in the 50s. Items like these, if you wrap them up prettily, look like much more than they are. Even a gram of radium becomes impressive in a holly box tied with red ribbons.

The Brooklyn bridge is banal, of course—it's like giving ties or handkerchiefs—but practically anybody would welcome the Normandie for a yacht, or Radio City Music Hall for a rumpus room. I would myself. And I'd love Mussolini in a cage in Madison Square Garden, with guards with guns on both sides and Frank Buck leading off.

Well, that's my list I really don't want much, as I said before. I'll even settle for a Christmas card, providing it's an attractive one—a gilt-edge security, for instance, or a beautiful green-and-white Government bond. I'm not so crazy about those cards that picture babies, dogs or doorways, and I definitely dislike those acorn designs and those old-fashioned bell-ringer jobs. But I'll take a plain pink bank cheque in the amount of Mickey Rooney's last-year's earnings. Or a coveted pasteboard entitling me to a life-long seat on the 40-yard line.

All right, my dear. Shop early for me. And wrap securely. And INSURE.

SHANNONVILLE W. A.

The annual meeting of the W. A. of the United Church of Shannonville was held at the home of Mrs. Harry Murphy on Thursday afternoon, December tenth with fifteen ladies present. The president, Mrs. Sam Elliott, was in charge of the meeting. Miss Sara Stickney presided at the piano. After the singing of a Christmas hymn, silent prayer was offered on behalf of the husband of one of the members who is ill at Belleville Hospital. Rev. Sterling led in prayer. Scripture lesson was read by Miss Sarah Stickney.

A Christmas reading was given by Mrs. S. Elliott and Mrs. H. Murphy gave a reading entitled—"Thoughts by the Way".

It was decided to donate thirty-five dollars to war relief work through the M. and M. fund of the church. Thanks was sent by Mrs. Elliott for the card sent to Mr. Vivian when he was in the hospital. Mrs. Fred Taylor expressed thanks for the card she received when she was ill. The officers gave their reports of the year's work which was very encouraging. $156 in the treasury. Mrs. Robertson and Mrs. H. Murphy were appointed Miss Sara Stickney; Press reporter Mrs. W. D. Robertson.

The same committees were put in for another year.

Collection amounted to one dollar and forty-five cents ($1.45) The hostess and her helpers served a dainty lunch and the usual social time was enjoyed by all present. Besides the regular monthly meetings a rummage sale and bazaar was held which were successful and a good interest is taken in the work of our association. The thanks of the members are due the officers and committees for their faithful and efficient work done in the interests of our association. Mrs. Murphy received a vote of thanks for the use of her home and the meeting was closed by repeating the W. A. benediction.

BRITISH PREMIER'S FINE SENSE OF BALANCE

Prime Minister Churchill has the quality of not underestimating. He has always warned against overconfidence as one of the most dangerous states for individual and people. He never forgets to warn that vigilance is the supreme need and must never be relaxed.

His words therefore carry weight and impress with their fairness and directness and are the best guide of the people. He is not only a great statesman but he possesses the qualities of acting as a perfect balance wheel to the emotions of the people in wartime. He is not afraid to be a realist.

As a free man and the descendant of free men, he can speak to a nation of free men and they understand him. They have a sense of the problems of public life and no leader may be afraid of the free people. Mr. Churchill trusts them and they face whatever issue there is to be faced with greater energy and vim and come out conqueror. Everyone remembers the picture the British Premier drew, when France was collapsing, of a Britain that would never yield.

It is not so with the people of dictator lands. They are not trusted by the tyrants and they become mechanical, not exercising the will, but following the will of the dictator or of his immediate group. They are not free for it is the trick of the dictator to shut free men from his presence. The folk of dictator lands are not to think according to Fascist and Nazi. The dictator becomes the centre of a band of sycophants, a selfish company whose advice can never be impartial because it is fostered and directed by a desire and a willingness to cringe and crawl before the dictator who would be worshipped by such men. When problems and adversity strike such a group there is not the balanced judgment nor is there the love and respect that should be felt toward the ruler of a state.

How the leaders of dictator lands speak shows in words. Time was when Hitler's raucous voice and thunderous shrieking raved with pictures of Nazi invincibility. But his last speech delivered in Berlin is the speech of a man upon whom appears to have come realization that he had made the supreme error of his life when he started the war. There was no talk of a short war in that speech. It was not a speech of confidence. There were of course references to Germany as ultimately winning the war, but it was not the speech of Hitler of a year or two years ago, for since then much has taken place, not to Hitler's liking, as witness the Battle of Britain, a defeat for Hitler and the Mediterranean victories for the Allies, a defeat for Hitler's associate dictator.

But Mr. Churchill's speeches after nearly sixteen months of war show his undisturbed confidence in the British people and in the ultimate victory of Britain, his ability to laugh and his sound judgment. It is the speech of a man leading a people who will be victorious, for democracy is a growing force, it does not show itself at its best when first faced with a tyrant who has been conspiring for war for years, but it gathers strength from its freedom and as time passes it reaches its stride. That is the stride which Britain is approaching and which Hitler must face. It is this fact which may force the tyrant of Berlin to throw all on a blow before the Allies reach the maximum level of their strength, but of such a blow Britain is unafraid. Mr. Churchill has fortified the British people by his warnings of the need for vigilance. Of themselves they have shown their ability to endure any blows of the enemy. Thus Churchill and the British people prove their balance and steadfastness.

KALLIO DIES AS PEOPLE HONOR HIM

As he was bidding farewell to the people of Helsinki on the way to retirement, former President Kallio of Finland answered death's sudden call, falling dead in the arms of his great military leader, Baron Mannerheim. Both Kallio and Mannerheim became world figures in the war against Soviet Russia.

No poet could have chosen a more striking scene for the passage of the great figure who has been compared to Abraham Lincoln in his plainess of character and his natural intelligence. His life had been of devoted service to his country and to democracy as an example shows—he insisted even in the dark days of the war with Russia that Finland pay the United States the instalments on the Great War debt.

Finland owes much of what she is to Kallio. He had a program for the improvement of the status of farming. In his early days he was in conflict with the Czarist Russian administration as he sought reforms.

Kallio's death can be traced to the heavy burdens he bore during the Russo-Finn war for it was last summer that his health began to fail.

SKIING SEASON OUTLOOK BRIGHT

Canada is looking forward to the greatest ski season on record as interest grows in this fine winter sport. This country stretching across a continent knows what winter is and every province of it is touched by snow. The terrain is suitable for development of this sport to the greatest extent, so that in very truth Canada may become the ski paradise of the world.

Norway, Finland and other countries of Europe have been ski grounds. Finland has used ski troops very effectively in the war with Russia but long before that time Canada had taken up the sport in earnest. Skiing has assumed large proportions in the northern states of the United States. Now Europe is closed by the war to skiers and Canada and the northern States will develop the sport to large proportions. While clubs in Canada have a membership of over 26,000, there are believed to be more than 100,000 unaffiliated skiers.

There are ski trails everywhere in Canada, some minor, others of world importance as in the National Parks in the Rockies and in the Laurentians in Quebec. The winter ski season extends from December to March (it began earlier this year in Ontario) and in the National Parks spring and summer skiing is available on the glaciers. Even the mountain ski trails are very accessible.

Canada hopes to bring vast numbers to her ski trails this winter and into the mountains in the spring. This will prove to be of value to Canada as many of the visitors will be from the United States and will spend money on trains or on gasoline and oil, on hotels and for other services.

Canada's own people are going to enjoy the trails in every part of the Dominion for wherever there is hilly country there is bound to be a skiing paradise. The sport is one of the cheapest, one of the healthiest and most invigorating.

Their Desire is to Serve

(From the Vancouver Sun)

The French merchant ship "Lisieux" came to Vancouver port after the collapse of France. Six officers and two or three French sailors voluntarily offered their services to the British or the Canadian Navy.

All of them had their families somewhere in France where it was impossible to receive news from them. The mental agony these heroic men suffered can never be expressed in words. But still they carried on, and when last seen, with two men of the crew from Vancouver, by Allen Lyons, of Vancouver, their boat, a prey to the howling gale, was slowly sinking in the Atlantic 400 miles from Newfoundland, blotted out now and then by the snow flurries, helpless for the lack of more life boats.

There are at present ten more Frenchmen in Vancouver, highly trained officers and men of the French Air Force and French Navy who have come here from Tahiti of their own free will to offer their services to help our cause. So as to be better fitted to serve, and while awaiting their admittance in the Canadian or British service, they may be found every day in a down-town school, under the direction of the "Education Committee of the War Council Work," applying themselves to the study of the English language.

Endless numbers of brave men like these are doing similar work for the Empire in all parts of the world, and a great many more would join if they were free to do so.

The ordeal these men are undergoing is immense, deprived as they are of their land, their families, knowing well the hardships their loved ones are enduring. The one and only desire of these noble men is to serve well on our side.

To increase production of various products the government of the Bahamas has employed an expert from the United States as chief agriculturist.

'Uncle Bill' Gives Money To Homeless

(From London Sunday Chronicle)

"Uncle Bill" is the warden the children like best in a south coast town, for every night when he has half an hour or so off duty, he wanders through the shelters with his pockets bulging with sweets.

The children refuse to go to sleep until Uncle Bill has been round to see they are tucked in properly.

Their newly-found "uncle" is a retired business man, but he draws warden's pay and gives it all away to the poor.

When bombs drop in the town he is one of the first on the scene even when it is not in his area. In his pocket instead of sweets, he has one pound and ten shilling notes for bombed families.

He goes among the homeless folk and presses a crisp £1 note into their hand and hurries off to find someone else in need of a little help.

He insists on remaining anonymous.

A rather recondite explanation of why women close their eyes when being kissed is advanced by the Better Vision Institute, which says their purpose is to blot out the every day world and slip into a make-believe one.

Our bet is that they lower their lids chiefly because they've seen Greta Garbo do so in a similar situation. All of us unconsciously emulate mannerisms of film stars and other public figures.

Years ago in the movies the Gish sisters set the style, widely followed to this day, of kicking up the left heel when throwing arms around the hero's neck. The original aim was to give the illusion of height to leading men who were not tall enough to merit a tip-toe embrace. But today practically all men, tall or short, are greeted thus in railroad stations by sweethearts and wives.

Hollywood exerts more potent influence on our manners and behaviour than we realize. Untold thousands of girls imitate the Joan Crawford walk, or strive to achieve the smoldering gaze of Hedy Lamarr. High school boys register the sardonic one-eye-brow-up grimace of Gable, when treating a "date" to an ice cream soda at the corner pharmacy.

THAT BODY OF YOURS

James W. Barton, M.D.

Exercise or Work Helps Mind and Body

A patient about 65 years of age consulted a physician because of a "nervous breakdown" and heart disease. After careful questioning and thorough examination, the physician was unable to find any organic trouble so he asked the patient why he thought he had heart disease and what caused his nervous breakdown.

The patient stated that he got out of breath easily and that he, his family, and the family physician said he had a nervous breakdown and he had gone to bed for six weeks. The physician explained that there was no heart disease present having made the usual examination and tests and advised him to walk and work, not to rest.

"What caused your nervous breakdown?"

"I worked for a firm for thirty-five years and was discharged for no reason I know of. I find I have not the courage to try to get another position, I feel weak and want to rest all the time".

The physician carefully explained that the heart was normal, blood pressure normal, nerve reactions normal, weight normal, kidneys normal, blood normal, no infection present, in fact nothing physically wrong. Therefore it was unwise for him to "nurse" his heart and think he had to rest both heart and nerves. What he should do was to get busy mentally and physically.

The patient owned a small cottage in the suburbs with two acres of ground, a small orchard, and some outhouses. He immediately started gathering up the many stones on the property, trimmed the orchard, tore down some of the outhouses and repaired and painted the others. His appetite improved, his intestine became regular, and he slept well instead of tossing for hours as had been his habit.

When he returned in two months for a further examination, the physician found a "different" man. Instead of stating that he got out of breath easily, couldn't eat, was constipated and couldn't sleep, he now boasted of how much work he could do without having to stop for breath, how much he could eat, his regular bowel habit, and how he went off to sleep as soon as his head touched the pillow.

There are three reasons for this favorable result: first, there was no organic trouble present anyway, second, the exercise outdoors gave appetite, induced sleep and made bowel more active, and, third, he was so busy working he had little or no time to think about his heart or nerves.

Brothers Or Sons As Ye Be

Hearing this message immortal,
Dreaming, and winged like the blast,
I paused at that ponderous portal
Parting the Present and Past.

"Youth of a nation that sired us,
Harken to phantoms that know.
Ye have the same spirit that fired us
Twenty-five ages ago.

Dust, we have mouldered and turned to;
Graves are forgotten and lost,
But we who have done what we yearned to,
Dead have not counted the cost.

Heavens that darken shall brighten,
Death his dark reaper shall ride,
But crosses that crumble and whiten,
Mark but our bodies that died.

Heirs of a freedom won, dying,
Brothers, or sons as ye be,
Remember our bodies are lying Dust, that our sons might be free."

How The Sea Gets Into Our Talk

By OSCAR PARKES
in The Navy (London)

For a few hundreds of years the parlance of a vast seagoing and coast-wise population in this island has been gradually percolating into general usage until nowadays we all use dozens of words and expressions which had their origin at sea but have now "swallowed the anchor" and take their turn with those culled from ring and field.

Here is a sentence containing eight nautical terms. How many do you recognize?

"They were taken aback when the mainstay of the family went on strike and lost his berth, as being hard up it was touch and go whether they could carry on to the bitter end."

A ship was "aback" when through neglect or a shift of wind her sails were blown against the masts and ceased to give any headway. And the "mainstay" is the stoutest rope in the rigging and the forward support of the mainmast To "strike" is "to lower" and a ship used to strike her colors when the flag was lowered as a sign of surrender. Ashore workmen adopted the term in "striking their tools" which soon became abbreviated to 'striking" and "going on strike."

A ship's "berth" is her position at anchor in a roadstead and "hard up" the order to put up the helm to windward, and run the ship off before a squall; hence to be "hard up" means being unable to hold one's own any longer to windward, and so—by inference—short of cash. "Touch and go" explains itself—a ship is said to touch and go when she scrapes over a shoal without actually stopping.

When a ship was carrying a great press of sail, the order to "carry on" meant that it was not to be reduced, while the "bitter end" which sounds like the dregs of a nasty drink refers to the inboard end of a cable which is turned round the "bitts"—two strong timber uprights in the fore part of the ship. When a vessel is dragging her anchor and the cable is payed out to the "bitter end" it means that no more can be let go if the hook does not hold.

x x

When you say you do a thing "on and off" you are using the term which denotes that a ship in turning to windward comes in with the land on one tack and stands out to sea on the other—she is then standing on and off.

And when the ship turns from one tack to another she is "put about"—although cook says "she was put about" without appreciating her naval phraseology. Nor when the chairman refers to his casting vote does he realise that to "cast" is to turn the ship's head in a required direction.

To "edge" is to luff gently toward a ship to windward and "edge away" to increase your distance, while "cut and run" is an old sea term meaning to cut the cable and run off before the wind out of trouble, without waiting to get up the anchor.

A "logger-head" was a lump of iron with a long handle which when heated was plunged into the pitch pot to melt it. So when men come to "logger-heads" on the lower deck they had very effective weapons to hand. After a seam was caulked with oakum it was "payed" with pitch, and the "devil" so-called, being the upper out board strake on the hull side was the hardest seam to pay. Hence the meaning of the full phrase, "The devil to pay and no pitch hot," meaning a doubly difficult job. In the same way, anyone "between the devil and the deep sea" had nothing between himself and Davy Jones. But "to sound" has an obvious naval origin—the use of a lead-line to find the depth of water round a ship, and we use it in a proper sense when we talk about "sounding" anyone to find out their opinions.

In these sober days "three sheets in the wind" has gone out of fashion, but it meant someone not quite drunk whose movements were unsteady or uncertain. A ship would be three sheets in the wind when she was so near the wind that the "sheets" or ropes attached to the lower corners of the three chief sails were all shaking.

When you say, "I gave him the slip after all," you are not using the word "slip" in its usual sense as a short slide, but in its nautical meaning of letting the end of the cable run out quickly after it has been buoyed to avoid getting up the anchor. This was usually done to escape an enemy when taken unawares.

x x

"Reaches" in the Thames are stretches of water which could be used for a long tack, and so to "over-reach" meant sailing longer upon a tack than was necessary. A seaman would say "He held on too long and over-reached himself—should have tacked sooner."

We use the word "trice" in two senses—to tie up securely and "in a trice" to perform an action quickly. Its origin afloat combines the two meanings as "to trice up" was to make something secure and then to hoist it quickly.

"Trim" is used in referring to a ship's seat on the water—when she is "well trimmed" her ballast is not making her draw too much water fore or aft. We mean the same when we talk about someone or something as "being in good trim" or in getting something trimmed down or made level.

And, of course, "not enough room to swing a cat" meant a cat o' nine tails and not poor pussy—but everyone knows that these days.

"Braces" are the ropes used to turn the yards across the masts, and they were "braced up sharp" when they were as nearly pointing fore and aft as the rigging allowed. Hence the "braces" you wear, and your feeling "braced up." And 'aloof" comes from the order "Keep your luff" when a ship was wanted nearer the direction of the wind, which became "Keep a luff" or "aloof"—and so to keep away from the wrong course.

And I will pipe down on "chock o' block." When a rope was too big to pass through a pulley or block, this was said to be choked—hence a choked block which became "chock o' block" or filled up.

Letter to the Editor

If Nobody Cared!

The Editor,
Ontario Intelligencer,
Belleville, Ont.
Dear Sir,—

Again the Christmas season is rapidly approaching and our hearts are warmly filled with sincere gratitude to our Heavenly Father for the many blessings He has generously bestowed on us. May we not in our personal rejoicing lose thought of those in our midst who are, in so many cases through no fault of their own, in need, and we should stretch out the willing hand.

We are anxious to give these little ones a real Christmas treat. Will you kind reader give us a donation to help us make these children's lives brighter this festive season?

Three cases within the last two months. Mother seriously ill and we have the five children under our care. Another case, mother stricken suddenly, at a moment's notice we take the five children. Another case, home broken up through immorality involving four children. We could go on telling you heart rendering cases in need of special attention and necessitating heavy expenditure.

Will you please send us a donation to help give these unfortunate ones a happy time this Christmas?

Yours respectfully,
Children's Aid Society,
250 1-2 Front St. Belleville.

Stewart Says—

Expert Says Defence Program Can Pay Its Way

By CHARLES P. STEWART
Central Press Canadian Columnist

Chas. P. Stewart.

Washington— Lord Lothian's recent sudden demise in Washington spoken of in Washington as having been almost as much a misfortune to this country as doubtless it was regarded by the British ambassador's home folk.

The marquis not only was much liked here personally. He also handled his diplomatic job very pro-Britishly, which was quite satisfactory to our own outspokenly pro-British national administration, and he did it in a way to give a minimum of offence to American isolationists. It's true that they called him a propagandist, but he was sufficiently tactful about it to avoid irritating them over-violently.

Even his death was admirably timed, in a fashion.

The evening before it occurred he was scheduled to make a speech at an American Farm Bureau Federation gathering in Baltimore, and had it already prepared for the occasion, but was ill (only slightly so, it was supposed) when the time arrived; therefore assigned British Embassy Counsellor Nevile Butler to read it for him.

It turned out to be a strong appeal for Yankee aid to John Bull in the latter's conflict with the Axis. It was more, in fact, than an appeal for aid "short of war." It pretty plainly hinted that our naval assistance was desired. Indeed, it was so specific that it probably would have provoked the isolationistic element to declare that at last the ambassador had gone too far with his publicity campaign—had he still remained in the land of the living to be held responsible for it.

Isolationists Stopped

But his lordship was dead before the isolationists had had time to so much as peep on the subject. And since then it's been rather hard for them to pan a dead man. Thus the ambassador put across his address, after which he shut off the isolationist's responsive thunder by immediately dying.

Long before his funeral speculation was rife as to the probabilities of London's selection to succeed him.

Washington's expressed opinion was that he'd be exceedingly difficult to replace with as suitable a representative as he was — a chap equipped to work himself inoffensively up to a dangerous climax finally get that off and follow it by dying at exactly the right minute.

Outside the British embassy there aren't enough Englishmen in Washington to discuss the subject, and, of course, the embassy crowd were as mum as oysters. For one thing, it's unlikely that they had any idea who'd be picked for the post.— the marquis' death was so sudden. And if the embassy did have any guesses in the back of its head, it wasn't going to reveal them.

There are some Canadians in our capital, though— mostly newspaper correspondents, here scaring up war news, especially in connection with the U.S.-Canadian rapprochement, as diplomats call it.

These boys are adequately talkative. To be sure, they truthfully confessed at once that they hadn't a notion who'd get the mission. One and all, however, they said in effect, "He ought to be chosen outside the English aristocracy" "Oh, yes," they admitted. "Lord Lothian was a fine man, but originally he was an appeaser." His last speech didn't sound much like appeasement, but that's what the Canadians declare he was while the late Neville Chamberlain lasted as Britain's prime minister. It was later, according to those Canucks' account, that he took the warpath.

Sam or Tom, Maybee

Their vote, as soon as Lord Lothian was dead, was in favor of a British Laborite to succeed him — an ambassador with no title, not even a baronetcy or a knighthood, attached to him; just a plain mister, or a Sam or Tom, possibly.

The Canadians' notion is that such a plenipotentiary would make a hit in this country, and their theory is that they know us better than the overseas English do

Lord Lothian's death was coincidental with the Duke and Duchess of Windsor's presence in Miami on their dental visit, and the suggestion promptly was heard in Washington, "Why not the duke to fill the marquis' place?"

"Heck no!" exclaimed the Canadian correspondents in chorus. "He's a nice guy, all right, but without a lick of sense. A duke would be worse than a marquis or a viscount or a baronet."

PERCENTAGE OF ACCIDENTS LOWER THAN EXPECTED

29 Fatal Air Accidents Under Commonwealth Air Training Plan in 168,050 Flying Hours

DAILY INSPECTIONS

Ottawa, Dec. 20—(CP)—The percentage of flying accidents, having regard to the amount of flying done in schools of British Commonwealth Air Training Plan in Canada, is lower than was expected, the Air Ministry said in a statement issued today.

Since the plan started operating there have been 29 fatal flying accidents and in the same period 168,050 flying hours were put in. The statement gave a lengthy outline of the rules and precautions taken in the Royal Canadian Air Force to prevent accidents but said "Canada will not carry out the greatest air training plan ever conceived without meeting, with some percentage of accidents."

"It is a fact," the Air Ministry said, "that the R.C.A.F., due to extreme care and skillful precautionary measures, has not thus far suffered the percentage of accidents which British experts anticipated of the training plan at its creation. And since the Canadian training system is the 'Gosport' system used by the R.A.F. in England, this is regarded here and in England as a creditable accomplishment.

"To teach tens of thousands of young men to fly—with the disproportionately high number of take-offs and landings such training involves—is not a fool-proof venture and much less is it free of the human element which must always fail from time to time," the statement added.

"Gosport" System

The "Gosport" system was developed at Gosport Airport in England in 1917, said the statement. It now embodies all the experience of training in the last war and in the intervening years. It has been adopted throughout the British Empire and in other countries and formed the basis of the United States training system.

At the Central Flying School at Trenton the R.C.A.F. trained its flying instructors in the Gosport method and these instructors later trained thousands of pupils at schools across the Dominion. Students and instructors have learned safety along with flying skill and aeronatical lore.

Precautions taken by the air force start with medical examination of applications for pilot training, the Air Ministry said. Only the fittest men are accepted and a constant watch is kept on their condition afterwards.

Daily Inspections

Aircraft and engines are inspected daily and are not flown unless certified ready for flight by competent mechanics. At stated intervals aircraft and engines receive a minute inspection and at longer intervals the entire aircraft and engine are dismantled. Instruments are regularly checked.

Flying regulations, the traffic rules of the air, are strictly enforced. Over an airdrome aircraft have to circle in a uniform direction. A certain level below 1,000 feet is reserved for aircraft landing or taking off. All flights have to be authorized by competent officers.

Aerobatics Limited

Aerobatics are limited. They can not be performed at less than 3,000 feet. On cross country flights the pilot is responsible for obtaining weather information. He is provided with food, emergency equipment and supplies in case of a forced landing in remote regions.

"In the hour of Britain's need the training has been considerably accelerated but never at the expense of safety precautions," said the statement. "Acceleration meant that more schools have been opened in a shorter space of time than originally contemplated, that training schedules were shortened, but not that there were fewer instructors or that student pilots were hurried through their courses. Hasty instruction does not make good pilots and well-trained pilots are an urgent necessity overseas."

2 BOMBS FALL NEAR DUBLIN

Later Two More Are Dropped in County Monaghan Injuring Farmer

Dublin, Dec. 21 (CP).—Three persons were injured and several houses damaged last night when two bombs dropped by an unidentified air raider fell in Dun Laoghaire (Kingstown), only seven miles from brilliantly-lighted Dublin, capital city of neutral Eire.

It was the first time since the war began that bombs had fallen near Dublin, and the incident caused a wave of excitement in the gayly-decorated city.

Two more bombs were dropped about thirty minutes later in the rural district of County Monaghan, which is near frontier of belligerent Northern Ireland, injuring a farmer and damaging two farmhouses.

A CHRISTMAS

Final Instructions

The commander, through a speaking tube, gave final instructions, saying the guns were to open fire in 10 minutes.

Those minutes ticked off like eternity. Looking across the barrels of the guns that were less than 15 feet away and poised for action I mentally girded myself for the tremendous concussion that I knew must come with detonation of the first ton of "bricks".

White and red lights flashed on the fire control indicator, designating the turrets that were to open the bombardment.

Then came the signal: "Open fire!"

A bell sounded lightly.

I grasped a rung of a steel ladder, took a deep breath, and ducked below the level of the vision slits.

A second later there was a terrific burst of fire. Sheets of yellow flame licked back from the muzzles of the guns and seemed to pour through the slits in the tower.

Head Hung By Thread.

Again the bell sounded.

Again I ducked, and two guns fired almost simultaneously. The blinding glare and clouds of yellowish smoke swept into my face, the rapid succession of the blasts made me feel as if my head hung by a thread.

Guns of other battlefleet units roared with great flashes of fire, wiping everything else from my vision. Even the Albanian coast disappeared in the burst of fire.

Swiftly, scores of shells hurtled through the air, each carrying more than 2,000 pounds of destruction into Valona's naval and military concentrations.

The Italian shore batteries of 12-inch guns remained silent during the bombardment, leading to the belief the Italians had been taken so by surprise that they could not fire, possibly not being able even to determine the ships' positions.

For twelve minutes the battlefleet pumped out shells with a Niagara-like roar that reverberated for miles along the Albanian coast.

Then, over the speaking tube, came a voice like that of a railroad conductor — unintelligible but it meant "cease firing".

Big Guns Lowered.

The big guns were lowered but the crews of the six-inch guns stood by, waiting tensely for any reply from the Italians ashore so they could answer in turn.

The British ships, like huge black floating islands moved slowly southward.

Then the Italian shore batteries fired a few starshells, vainly trying to locate their attackers. The long-burning starshells, bursting high in the sky, drifted lazily to the surface of the sea hundreds of yards away from the ships.

The Italians fired several more rounds which came closer, but all were too distant to illuminate the battlefleet.

As the Reddish glow of the fires which had been started at Valona crept over the snow-capped Albanian mountains, a youthful midshipman in the battleship's top control tower happily carolled, "One Night of Love".

The battlefleet cruised southward out of the Straits of Otrano and into the Ionian Sea. Not even an Italian bombing plane appeared to attempt attack.

RAIDERS RETURN TO SCAN DAMAGE

Night Raid Heaviest of the War for the Liverpool District

Liverpool, Dec. 21 (CP).—German reconnaissance planes flew over Liverpool and the Merseyside district after daybreak today to survey the damage caused by bombers which battered this centre of overseas commerce last night.

The night raid was reported to have been the heaviest of the war for the Liverpool area.

Rescue workers digging through wreckage and rubble for victims of the attack hardly spared the scouting planes overhead a glance.

The raid started so early last night that crowds of Christmas shoppers were caught in the streets. They filled shelters and basements in the business district and were forced to remain there throughout the night.

Explosives and fire bombs started many fires as the raiders swept down in a concentrated attack despite an intense anti-aircraft barrage.

A large hotel was damaged and a famous church hit. One large shelter was hit by a heavy bomb and rescue parties still were bringing out the dead and injured in mid-morning.

A number of firemen were killed and injured.

Christmas Concerts

TABERNACLE SUNDAY SCHOOL

DELIGHTED parents and friends thoroghly enjoyed the interesting program of the Christmas Concert held by Tabernacle United Church Sunday School in the church parlors last evening. Mr. A. D. Archibald, Superintendent of the Sunday School acted as chairman, assisted later in the evening by the pastor, Rev. D. T. McClintock.

Presented on the program were short plays and sketches which required dramatic skill in their portrayal and which were given with outstanding success by those taking part. The numbers in each group were planned with variety in mind so that choruses, recitations, solos, and plays brought before the audience many representatives of each department. The teachers in charge are to be complimented for the splendid performance of the children under their direction.

The climax of the evening was, of course, the visit of Santa Claus who brought gifts for all the children. The program follows:

CANNIFTON-CORBYVILLE SCHOOL

BEFORE an audience of parents and ex-pupils, the annual Christmas entertainment arranged by the pupils of Cannifton and Corbyville school took place in the Senior Room on Tuesday afternoon from two to four o'clock. The children taking part excelled themselves in the fine program they had arranged.

The musical numbers were directed by Miss Bernice Robinson, music director in the school, assisted by Donald Williams, Grade 7 pupil. The variety of numbers met with enthusiastic reception by the audience. At the conclusion of the program the arrival of Santa Claus was the signal for much joyous excitement on the part of the pupils and small visitors.

The program follows:

Chorus by senior pupils: "Joy To the World", "Come All Ye Faithful", "Chimes", "Keep the Christ In Christmas"; welcome by Carol Pope; play by juniors: "The King's Throne"; holly drill by twelve senior boys and girls; rhymes and jingles by the beginners; dialogue: "A Chance Encounter" by senior pupils; part song: "Shining Star" by junior and senior pupils; "Merry Christmas Drill" by fourteen senior boys and girls; "Book Exercise" by junior boys and girls; "A Letter to Santa" by senior boys and girls; Rhythm Band, junior pupils; "The Tattle Tale" by junior boys; closing recitation by Everett Reid; "Welcome Santa", a song by the whole school.

JULIANA ENJOYS FIFTH AVENUE

Netherlands Princess Enters Drugstore to Have First Ice Cream Soda

New York, Dec. 21.— (CP)— A blond woman in brown hat and brown fur coat walked swiftly down Fifth Avenue. She threaded her way through hurrying crowds with the ease of a New Yorker, rubbing shoulders with home-going office workers and late shoppers. She passed unnoticed in the throngs.

She was Crown Princess Juliana of the Netherlands, enjoying every minute of her first visit to New York City. Arriving from Washington yesterday after a three-day visit with President and Mrs. Roosevelt, she hardly waited to get settled in her 28th-storey suite in the Waldorf-Astoria hotel before hurrying out to "do" Fifth Avenue as any other visitor would.

The Princess said she never had had an ice cream soda, despite her seven-month stay in Ottawa where with her two children she was given safe refuge after her homeland fell before the German conquerors. So spying a drugstore, she slipped in and climbed atop a soda fountain stool. She ordered an ice cream soda.

"How do you like it?" asked Dr. Alexander Loudon, Netherlands Minister to the United States who with his wife escorted her on the tour.

"It's grand—I love it!" exclaimed the Princess.

Leman is to be groomsman, and the ushers will be Mr. Stephen Cocherva, Capt. R. Butler and Flight-Lieut. W. Devons.

Later the bride and bridegroom will leave for Montreal, and will live in Belleville on their return. For travelling the bride will wear a powder blue wool dress—suit, with black coat and hat, trimmed with caracul.

NEVILLE CHAMBERLAIN

He worked for peace when war-clouds rose,
He thought to check war's crimson tide,
Trusting the honor of his foes,
While they his simple faith decried.

He sought for peace with no avail,
He died before the peace was won,
Beyond the bar his ship set sail—
The haven reached, the voyage done.

Clock Punishment

By Garry Cleveland Myers, Ph. D.

Much of the advice to parents on discipline has been written from the viewpoint of the child in the classroom or nursery school.

In the nursery school, for example, the child goes through a regular routine, lies down for a nap at a regular time and eats when and what the other children eat. If he gets too much out of step with the group he is merely isolated. The impression is given that the parent ought to be able to guide the child at home just as easily; and more easily, indeed, since he is only one.

This very fact that he is only one renders the parent's problem of discipline much harder than it is at the nursery school. When her child is with the group he tends to fall in line with the other children, and when he must be isolated from the group he finds his pleasures greatly interfered with. But at home, when he is isolated, the effect may be very different. Unless he has a twin brother or sister, he is merely cut off from older or younger playmates; more often only from adults.

Keep Child in Sight

Anyway, the child sent to his room may get into deviltry while there and bring on himself further punishment. As soon as he has learn to accept NO as final and not to venture to get down from a chair when ordered there, have him sit where he can easily be seen by the parent for a definite period of twenty minutes by the clock. In this event, be sure the chair is low enough for his feet to reach the floor comfortably, or that there is a foot rest. Let him then sing or talk as he likes—no radio, toys, or books — but merely be restrained from walking about. If he wishes to converse with you then, or ask questions, let him do so. Act entirely as if nothing unusual had happened: only don't argue with him or be affected in any way by his promises, cries or pleadings.

The Clock Decides

Let him know that the clock alone will tell him when his sentence ends. No indeterminate sentence, if you want to make his punishment impersonal and effective. When the time is up, don't ask him to promise to be good.

By and by he, like a philosopher, will meet such punishment without emotion and will quietly submit to it as inevitable, merely interested in how long. If, instead, you ordered him to sit there till you told him to get down he would argue, cry, beg, plead, and you also would betray emotions. The child from three to ten may acquire great respect for the decision of a clock; hardly can he have so much for ours. We get headaches, lose our tempers and we wabble; but the clock does not.

Solving Present Problems

Q. Please suggest a good plan for teaching table manners.

A. Observe good manners yourself in a quiet, calm, happy mealtime atmosphere. Occasionally make gentle positive suggestions on the proper way to eat, one item at a time. Compliment the child often on items of his good manners.

The centre panel of a new mirror to be mounted over a bed can be pulled down to become a shaded reading light on a flexible stem.

If you are tired of shouting at the children to call them in to meals, etc., get a small whistle next time you are in a shop where they are sold and use it instead. It will save a lot of wear and tear on the voice.

Advice to the Lovelorn

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

Wants Date With Young Man

Dear Miss Fairfax:

One of my girl friends had a party recently, and while there I met a very fine young man. He took me home, and was more than nice to me. He didn't ask if he could call, but gave me his telephone number, saying that if I ever wanted to go any place, just to let him know and he'd be "Johnny on the spot."

Our club is having a dance in a month or so, and I wonder if it would be proper for me to call him up, as he suggested, and ask him to come to the affair. Do you think he would get the wrong impression, and feel as if I'm running after him? I wouldn't want him to think that.

Lonesome

It is usual for the young man to call you first, but in these days of greater latitude, you might call him up and ask if he'd like to take you to the dance.

Quarreled With Girl Friend

Dear Miss Fairfax:

I'm very much in love with a girl, but we quarreled because I called her overbearing. But I am unhappy since I've been away from her for the past four months. She said I could come back if I want to. Shall I give away my pride and submit, or would you hold out longer? She is three years younger than I am, and my age is 27. I've been looking in your column every day for a problem similar to mine, but can find nothing to answer my worries.

Jones

How about your own attitude? What did you do, to bring about an overbearing mood on the girl's part? It's so often the other way around. Girls put up with entirely too much in the way of neglectful treatment from men. I like this independent young woman. By all means make up with her.

Question of Bashfulness

Dear Miss Fairfax:

I am 29 years old, and have been very successful in my work as an architect. I know I'm going to make good, and will be financially able to support a wife and give her a nice home.

My trouble is, Miss Fairfax, bashfulness. I'm all right around men, but when I am around with girls, I'm so exceedingly shy that they turn away from me. Although I am always well-introduced and they know I'm what is called eligible, they just don't care for me at all, after the first few words. Naturally this makes me even more afraid to speak to a girl. I do want to marry and have a home of my own and children, toward which I've already saved about a thousand dollars.

Can you advise me how to overcome this terrible shyness which makes me stutter whenever I'm in the presence of women?

Architect

To wear away shyness, which is not as unattractive as you seem to think there are a couple of reliable remedies. One is time, and the other is to live down your bashfulness, accept every invitation that you possibly can, and go out until people no longer terrify you. I knew a delightful man who used to say when he met attractive girls: "I'm terribly bashful; you'll have to do the talking." It worked wonders.

AT THE McCARTHY

"The Long Voyage Home"

Carmen Morales, shapely and vivacious Latin beauty whose stage, screen and radio work have carried her to prominence on four continents, plays a bumboat girl in the colorful cast John Ford assembled for his picturization of Eugene O'Neill's "The Long Voyage Home," which will have its local premiere at the McCarthy Theatre on Christmas Day through United Artist release.

Although born in the Canary Islands, Miss Morales is Mexican. Her father was a Mexican consul in the island and her mother also Mexican. Shortly after leaving school the girl with the flashing dark brown eyes and captivating smile became a professional entertainer. Her first appearance was as a dancer in Mexico City. Later she sang, danced and appeared on the radio in Rio de Janeiro. Her first motion picture work was in an Argentine film in Buenos Aires, her second was in a London studio, her third and fourth pictures were filmed in Paris.

Coming to Hollywood about a year ago Miss Morales was a radio singer before playing a small part in one independent film and then she was awarded the role of a vixenish 'bum-boat girl' in the tropical sequence of "The Long Voyage Home." Miss Morales speaks five languages fluently and as an entertainer first introduced several native dances in Rio, which others have since brought to the American stage,

"The Long Voyage Home," which was filmed at the Walter Wanger studios, features in its impressive cast John Wayne, Thomas Mitchell, Ian Hunter, Barry Fitzgerald, Wilfrid Lawson, Ward Bond, Mildred Natwick, Arthur Shields ad J. M. Kerrigan. The screenplay for the production was written by Dudley Nichols.

Two Excellent Features

Andy Devine and Richard Arlen in "Hot Steel," also George O'Brien in "Racketeers of the Range" two action features are now showing at the McCarthy Theatre in addition to the new Three Stooges comedy riot, "Nutty But Nice."

AT THE CAPITOL

"No Time For Comedy"

Audiences will have their first opportunity to see "No Time For Comedy," the laugh hit of the new film season, when the James Stewart-Rosalind Russell co-starring picture opens an engagement next at the Capitol theatre.

Based on S. N. Behrman's Broadway hit of last year, "No Time For Comedy" tells the highly hilarious story of what happens to a playwright famous for his comedies when he falls under the influence of a blonde who specializes in inspiring artists to give the world a message.

James Stewart is an engaging scamp as the errant writer, Rosaling Russell is his knowing wife, Genevieve Tobin, the blonde menace, and Charlie Ruggles her millionaire husband. Allen Joslyn has a high comedy role as a harried stage director; Clarence Kolb plays a yes-man producer, and dusky Louise Beavers plays the theatrical maid who sees all and tells all. William Keighley directed from the script by the Epstein brothers.

The added select short subjects are "Young America Flies" a short story starring Jean Parker, Donald Woods and William Lundigan "Unusual Occupations" in technicolor with "Gene Autry."

"Melody Ranch"

Nation's cowboy No. 1 stars in new $500,000 western hit.

Gene Autry, Republic's "Singing Cowboy," has something in the nature of a real life role in Republic's "Melody Ranch," which opens next week at the Capitol. In it he portrays a Hollywood radio star who is featured in a western program—all of which is reminiscent of his own position in real life as kingpin of the Melody Ranch radio broadcast.

Ann Miller is cast opposite Gene in the leading feminine role, and provides sultry and scintillating complications in the plot. Jimmy Durante, together with his world famous "schnozzle," carried up his share of the comedy interest, aided and abeted by Vera Vague, popular comedienne of the ether waves.

George "Gabby" Hayes is cast as the cantakerous local trolley conductor, and little Mary Lee, who will be remembered enthusiastically by Autry fans for her appearance in the Autry singing westerns, carries off her share of the acting honors in "Melody Ranch."

The picture was directed by Joseph Santley under Associate Producer Sol C. Siegel.

GOOD MANNERS

MRS. CORNELIUS BEECKMAN

SHOULD GLOVES BE WORN IN CHURCH?

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

1. Is it proper to leave your gloves on in church?

T.

It is best form to keep your gloves on in church.

"THANK YOU" NOTE ALWAYS IN ORDER

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

1. If one is invited by a boy friend's mother for lunch or dinner, is it proper for the girl to offer to help with the dishes?

2. Should the girl write a bread and butter note to the hostess the day after the dinner?

Reader

1. In almost all circumstances it is generous and thoughtful of us to offer service, and it will probably be appreciated in this case. At any rate, you might try, and then be completely guided by what your hostess says. Don't even faintly insist if you sense that she plans this sort of thing in her own way, to be done after her guests depart.

2. There's never a time, after any kind of party, when a gracious note of thanks to the hostess isn't the gracious thing for us to do. There doesn't live the hostess who isn't made happy and delighted by this kindness, this expression of our appreciation of her hospitality. It's a superb habit for us to adopt. A splendid resolution for the new year!

PERSONAL NOTES AS INVITATIONS

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

1. We are having a small church wedding which is to be confined to our families and a few friends. We do not plan to send invitations. What do you think of writing personal notes to the few friends we wish to come? What would you say in the note?

2. Our reception is to be in the afternoon. Would a buffet luncheon consisting of chicken salad, rolls, coffee and so forth be nice to serve? Do you have any other suggestions?

F.

1. This is the very best form, this writing of a note of invitation to the guests for your informal wedding. And the best form is for your mother to write this note, since she is to be the hostess of the occasion, it would be worded something like this:

Dear Mary,

Jane and Jack are to be married, very informally, on Tuesday, the third of January, in the United Church, at four o'clock, and we want very much to have you and Tom with us. We are inviting only close relatives and a few close friends. We do hope that you will say that you will both come for the ceremony at four o'clock, and directly afterward, at our home, for an informal gathering, to wish Jane and Jack godspeed.

Affectionately,

2. This simple menu will be a very appropriate one for your informal reception. And ice cream with the wedding cake will be a perfect dessert course. Or small cakes, if you are not planning to have a wedding cake.

AT THE BELLE

"RANGERS OF FORTUNE"

A resounding tale of derring-do on the cactus covered plains of the Old West—of romance, flaming courage, and plain and fancy gun-fighting—is now on the Belle Theatre screen where Paramount's "Rangers of Fortune" will make its bow.

Drama of this new adventure picture is wound about the fortunes of three tough-fisted, tender-hearted caballeros. They are played by Fred MacMurray, master-mind of the marauding trio; Albert Dekker, a brawling fool who never uses his gun where his hands will do; Gilbert Roland, a handsome Latin whose romantic heart gets him into more trouble than his friends can fight their way out of.

The story of "Rangers of Fortune" hits its pitch in a little plains town near the Mexican border, where an embattled newspaper publisher fights the violence of a sinister gang. Casting their lot with the underdog, the adventurous trio soon finds itself involved in "necktie" parties, shooting scrapes, and finally in a battle royal that serves to clear out the gang preying on the local ranchmen.

The picture serves to introduce a new child star, Betty Brewer, who plays the role of a little general to the three-man army. Patricia Morison is romantically teamed with Fred MacMurray, and Joseph Schildkraut and Dick Foran seen in the principal roles of "Rangers of Fortune" directed by Sam Wood who brought "Mr. Chips" to the careen.

"Gay Film Has Four Hit Tunes."

Four new hit tunes rapidly rising in popularity are to be heard in the Paramount musical comedy-melodrama, "A Night at Earl Carroll's", the added feature attraction in which the famous impresario, Earl Carroll, and Brenda and Cobina, radio comedy team, make their movie debuts, as members of the cast headed by Rose Hobart and Ken Murray.

The four songs introduced are "Li'l Boy Love," "One Look at you", "I Wanna Make With the Happy Times' and "Cali-Conga".

GRANTED NEW TRIAL

Hull, Que., Dec. 21 (CP).—Myer H. Dover, 45, of Ottawa, was granted a new trial here last night when the jury which heard evidence at his trial on a manslaughter charge failed to reach a verdict. Dover, who was released on bail of $2,000, will appear at Hull criminal assizes Jan. 10, when a decision will be made as to whether the trial will continue then or at a later sitting of the court.

Dr. Dafoe's Column on the Quintuplets and the Care of Your Children

The Mystery Vitamin

There is one vitamin still very much of a mystery, but enough is known about it to make it of great interest to me as a country doctor—Vitamin K, which has been discovered to be one of the influential factors in blood clotting.

For years one of the largest single cause of death of babies at birth has been the so-called birth injury that produces internal bleeding. Very often the doctor in attendance has examined the infant without discovering any injury then it bled internally until it died. The cause of death has been assigned to the use of instruments, to the anaesthetic, or the doctor's carelessness.

Now we know one common weakness amongst new born babies is that their blood won't clot properly. Not long ago a Danish researcher discovered that Vitamin K helped to make blood clot. The next step was to give the vitamin to expectant mothers just before the child was born. It reduced infant fatalties.

You all know how blood clots. You cut your finger, and for a moment or two, the blood flows freely. Then a clot forms, and the bleeding gradually stops as the clot spreads over the whole wound, sealing it. Well, imagine what would happen, if that blood lost its power to clot. You would go on and on bleeding even if the wound were small, until you died from loss of blood.

That is precisely what happens with many new-born babies. I've seen babies that bled after you tied the umbilical cord. In the country where I practised for 35 years, there were no nurses. You attended a birth, finished up as soon as you could, and then hurried on to the next call—there was always someone waiting. That meant you had to trust the newborn child and mother to untrained help. Again and again I've come back in a couple of days to find the baby white and weak because a little blood had been seeping out of the tied end of the umbilical cord. The blood just wouldn't clot.

The same happened sometimes when boys were circumsized and I made it a practise to wait until they were ten days or two weeks old because I was afraid of them bleeding to death if I did the operation before that time. Occasionally, an operation had to be done at once because the child couldn't pass his urine, and trouble with bleeding resulted.

Sometimes at child birth bleeding takes place in the brain cavity. If this happens and much blood flows, the baby dies. If the bleeding isn't so extensive, the child usually lives. But this bleeding, with the resultant pressure, often destroys, or impairs some of the brain and you have a mentally deficient child. Vitamin K can be used to reduce the number of these cases.

Montreal Canadiens Lagging Behind Prediction Made at Start of Season by Irvin

Team in Last Place and One Third of the Season is Gone

5 GAMES SCHEDULED

Leafs Play at Home With Amerks and Then Journey to New York Sunday

(By The Canadian Press)

Some amazing things will have to happen if Montreal Canadiens are to finish up in fourth place in the National Hockey League standing as coach D. Irvin predicted they would at the start of the season.

It is still within the realm of possibility for Canadiens, but with one third of the season gone and the team in last place the chances do not look so bright.

The Habitants play Boston Bruins in Montreal tonight and although the Bruins are in third place and have been travelling at a good clip of late, and the Montrealers are in the cellar, the game likely will be a hard fought affair with the score close.

It has been an oddity for the past half-dozen seasons that no matter how poor the Habitants were—and they finished in last place last season and second to last the season before—they always managed to give the Bruins a battle. This year has been no exception for Canadiens have beaten the Bruins once and their other game ended in a draw.

Their contest tonight is one of five scheduled for the week-end. New York Americans and Toronto Maple Leafs engage in two contests, the first tonight in Toronto and then in New York tomorrow night. The Bruins play tomorrow night at Detroit while New York Rangers take on the Black Hawks at Chicago in another Sunday night clash.

LEO LAMOUREUX WILL BE PICKED ON ALL-STAR TEAM

Hamilton Defenceman Has Speed and Size and Plenty of Courage

OSHAWA BEATEN

Lamoureux Scores Two Goals as G-Men Are Beaten by Hamilton 5-3

(By The Canadian Press)

When the sportswriters in Ontario Hockey Association Senior 'A' centres begin picking their all-star teams a couple of months from now, Leo Lamoureux likely will get a call for one of the defence positions.

The big Hamilton blueline brigadier has the two main attributes of a good defenceman in modern hockey—speed and size. Last night, in Hamilton, he scored two goals for Dofascos in a 5-3 victory over Oshawa Generals. The win wasn't enough for Hamilton to overhaul Toronto Marlboros, who stayed out in front with a 3-1 victory against London Streamliners, but it did keep the Dofascos ahead of the rising St. Catharines Saints who beat Port Colborne Sailors 4-1.

One of Lamoreux's goals was on a penalty shot after Ebby Edmison stopped a puck with his glove illegally. Incidentally, Dofascos checked Edmison so hard the little fellow couldn't break loose in any of those scoring orgies he promotes every once in a while. That close watch on Edmison was a big factor in the Hamilton victory.

Dillon Brady, Dick Groom and Doug Fritz were other Hamilton scorers. Thompson, Barnes and Maundrell scored for Oshawa.

Eddie King and Johnny Inglis were big guns as the injury-weakened Marlboros beat London in Toronto. King got two goals, Inglis one, while Ilio Marzo counted for London.

St. Catharines' triumph was their third straight, and they looked very good to their home town fans. Walt Coupland, whose goal record has been the most consistent in the O.H.A. this season, missed a shutout by 61 seconds when Spike McKelvie scored at 18:59 in the third.

Rudy Pilous, Paul Mundrick, Forgie and Hastie were marksmen for the Saints.

Marlboros, Hamilton, St. Catharines, Niagara Falls, Oshawa, Port Colborne and London now appear in the standings in that order with only three points separating the first four clubs.

Ottawa Senators Face Tough Schedule

Ottawa, Dec .21 (CP)—With six players definitely on the shelf for this week-end, Coach Gene Chouinard and his Ottawa Senators face a tough assignment in their two games with Montreal Canadiens of the Quebec Senior Hockey League. The teams meet here tonight and in Montreal Sunday.

Goaler Trevor Higginbottom, defencemen Stan Pratt and Jack Wilkinson, and Jake Brunning, George Greene and Jerry Shannon are the six Senators who will not see action.

However, Dunc Cheyne and Sparky Nicholson rejoined the team last night. At one time this week 11 Senator players were down with influenza. Two players—Defenceman Phil Vitale and Left-Winger Gordon Poirier—will be making their Q.S.H.L. debut in Senator colors Saturday, and both of them have drawn a starting berth.

LEW JENKINS EARNS A DRAW WITH F. ZIVIC

Lightweight Champion from Texas Away Ahead in First Five Rounds

CLEVER INFIGHTING

Welterweight King Had Right Tied Up Most of the Night by Jenkins

New York, Dec. 21 (AP)—Promoter Mike Jacobs must have had an uneasy minute or two last night while the announcer was gathering up the slips and discovering that Fritzie Zivic and Lew Jenkins had fought themselves to a 10-round draw in the garden.

Mike already had Zivic signed to defend his welterweight title against Henry Armstrong on Jan. 17, and that would have been a fine one to try to ballyhoo if Fritzie had dropped a duke to Jenkins, the lightweight champ.

And Zivic came very close to doing just that. The only thing that saved him was a determined rally in the last four stanzas. That and the fact that Steve Hamas, one of the judges, added up his score sheet and it came out even after the other two officials had given a split verdict. Referee George Walsh thought Jenkins won it.

A bulging crowd of 17,000 didn't see a single knockdown, even though Jenkins planted his noted right on Zivic's features many a time. Fritzie of the dented nose came out of it unmarked, but Jenkins suffered cuts over both eyes and looked pretty well used up at the finish.

Zivic possibly would have scored a knockout if they had been fighting a 15-rounder. Jenkins, who is not a distance horse, put so much fury into his early efforts that he began to weaken midway.

Of the two, Zivic was the bigger disappointment. A 1 to 2 favorite at fight time, the Pittsburgh veteran had practically no right at all, and only his superior infighting enabled him to hold Jenkins close for the first five rounds. The referee warned him repeatedly for doing funny things in the clinches, but took no rounds away from him.

STANOWSKI BEST DRESSER ON CLUB

Polish Giant With Leafs Graduates From One-Suit Stage to a Regular Wardrobe

Toronto, Dec. 21—(CP) — Progression from one all-purpose suit to a half-dozen ensembles supplemented by sundry sports jackets and odd trousers, and from no bow ties to eight was reported today by Walter Stanowski to be an accurate indication of his rise to life.

Less than three years ago he was in the one-suit stage, as a junior hockey player. The 21-year-old Winnipegger, now a Toronto Maple Leaf defenceman, then was bouncing along Manitoba highways in a bus hired by St. Boniface Seals, Dominion Junior Champions that year. Like the rest of the lads his attire was a striking pair of trousers and a leather jacket.

But he wasn't destinated to stay in the leather-jacket league. The next year he went to Syracuse in the International League as property of Toronto, and last season he joined the Leafs as a regular. This year his wardrobe, object of minor wonderment before, blossomed into importance as Wally became recognized as among the two or three most colorful men in the N.H.L.

The 173-pound Polish boy always in hockey has been able to jerk fans to their feet with the raw color that begets such polished results. In training camp a couple of months ago his unmistakeable style on the ice was nearly matched by the comment caused by his civilian color—broad-brimmed hats, arresting bow ties, narrow cuffs.

Toronto fans don't mind his attire. He can wear bow ties a foot wide and hats with brims twice that, for their money. They figure his status as Toronto Maple Leafs' goalmouth express entitles him to choose his own decorations—which he does. For if he's the goalmouth express of the ice, he's the royal train of the street.

Canadian And American Sport Scenes of 1940 Pass in Review

In just a little over a week from now 1940 will be history and before it passes from the scene we pause, as is customary, and look back on the year's highlights, in this case, in the world of sport. We can't give you everything in pictures, but we'll hit a few of the high spots — some Canadian, some from across the line. The past year has been the first full war year and international sporting events were rare. Biggest of these international athletic battles, the Olympic games, suffered the same fate as the games of 1916, thrust aside by Mars. But what we have we describe, so here we go. (1) Action around New York Rangers' goal during one of the Stanley cup final games last April. Rangers defeated Toronto Maple Leafs, four games to one for the trophy, as well as setting a new N.H.L. record during the season by playing through 19 games in a row without a loss. Davis Kerr, shown in the picture, was acclaimed hockey's best goalie and won the Vezina trophy for having the least goals scored against him. (2) Seabiscuit is seen here as he crossed the finishing line at the conclusion of the running of the $100,000 Santa Anita handicap. It was the Biscuit's third attempt to win the race and by finally coming down in front he boosted his earnings to $437,730, breaking the record for all-time winnings held for nine years previously by Sun Beau. (3) Alva Bradley, left, president of Cleveland Indians, smiles at his ace, Bob Feller, baseball's greatest pitcher, who led the majors in wins and strikeouts. The two of them also figured in baseball's (and sport's) most bizarre incident of the year, when members of the Cleveland team asked Bradley to get rid of Manager Oscar Vitt, shown in (4), claiming he was hard on their nerves or something to that effect. (5) Canada's No. 1 curling rink, that skipped by Howard Wood, which represented Manitoba in the Macdonald Brier bonspiel, the curlers' annual "world series," this year held for the first time at Winnipeg. Members of the rink, left to right, skip Wood, E. Pollard, H. F. Wood and R. Enman. (6) Boston Bruins' famous "Kraut line," Bobby Bauer on right wing (left in the picture), Milt Schmidt, centre, and Porky Dumart, left wing, right. Schmidt led the N.H.L. in scoring, and the line as a unit, set a record by finishing one-two-three in the final statistics. (7) Surrounded by his rejoicing teammates is Paul Derringer, ace of Cincinnati Reds' pitching staff. The Reds won their second straight National league pennant and went on to defeat Detroit four games to three in a hard-fought world series, giving Cincinnati its first series win since 1919. (8) A strictly American athlete, but one whose name became well-known in Canada; Tom Harmon, mighty Michigan backfielder and the outstanding figure on the American gridiron in the past 15 years. Before hanging up his togs he had broken a number of records set by Red Grange. (9) On a couple of snow-covered gridirons Ottawa Rough Riders, Big Four champions, and Balmy Beach, O.R.F.U. monarchs, battled for the eastern Canada rugby title, the Riders winning both games and the round by 20-2. Both clubs, along with practically everyone connected with the game, were participants in a turbulent battle of words that raged over an east-west game that never did take place. (10) Still monarch of all he surveys in the heavyweight boxing realm is Joe Louis, whose most recent victim, Al McCoy, represented his 12th defence of the crown he won from Jim Braddock in 1937. (11) Stan Leonard, the Vancouver and Calgary golf pro, who became the first western golfer to win the Canadian P.G.A. crown when he beat a field composed mostly of easterners at Toronto. Sam Snead won the Canadian open and the amateur was not contested. (12) Amateur hockey reached trail's end in April with Oshawa Generals making history by winning the Memorial cup for the second straight year, and Kirkland Lake Blue Devils making history of another sort by handing Calgary Stampeders three one-sided wallopings at Toronto to take the Allan cup. Lex Cook, defenceman and coach of the senior champions, is seen here receiving the cup from George Dudley, president of the C.A.H.A. (13) Reg Threlfall, whose Winnipeg Blue Bombers took the measure of all opposition on western Canada gridirons for the third straight year, although this fall, because of the squabble previously mentioned, they didn't get a chance to repeat for the Canadian crown they won in 1939 at Ottawa. So there it goes—not all the sporting highlights of the year, but some of the best in pictures.

CALLING 'EM

Between the Lines

with Ken J. Colling

With mild weather pushing local hockey practice into the discard and the annual "bowl" football games only ten days off maybe a resume of the various New Year's Day bowl games would be in order. There have been Rose Bowl, Orange, Cotton, Sun and Sugar Bowl games, to say nothing of an "Ice Bowl" game played one New Year's in Nome, Alaska, but we've yet to hear tell of a "Soup Bowl" game, that is with the exception of around the family table. Of course of all the bowl games the Rose Bowl at Pasadena, Cal., is the oldest of the holiday gridiron attractions.

This season's programs feature Stanford and Nebraska in the Rose Bowl in Pasadena, Tennessee and Boston College in the Sugar Bowl at New Orleans, Fordham and the Texas Aggies in the Cotton Bowl at Dallas, Tex.; Mississippi State and Georgetown in the Orange Bowl at Miami, Fla.; and the Arizona State vs. Western Reserve at El Paso's Sun Bowl game. Of course the Rose Bowl is the oldest bowl dating back to 1916 when Washington State beat Brown 14 to 0. However, Pasadena has been in the news with a New Year's celebration long before that, because away back in 1890 the first Tournament of Roses parade was held and still outdraws the football game of the day.

Nearly a million and a half people crowd into Pasadena, with a normal population of 85,000 to see the five-mile long morning parade, of which only 86,000 can see the afternoon Rose Bowl fixture. However, the game pays for the parade. The gross take of the game is around $325,000, and after $20,000 is deducted for expenses, the profit is split three ways—roughly 26 per cent to the Tournament of Roses Association, and 37 percent to each of the competing teams. This year it is expected that over 10,000 natives of the State of Nebraska will take the overland route and Santa Fe trail to California to watch the Wolverines against the Stanford squad at Pasadena, which reminds us that the Stanford track and field team under Coach Dean Cromwell, once stopped over in Belleville enroute to a special training and rest period at Bloomfield in 1936.

It was the dream of 39 residents of New Orleans that brought the Sugar Bowl game into being seven years ago and which was organized to usher in the New Orleans Mid-Winter sports week. Other out-of-doors top-ranking sports are included in a gala week prior to the Madri Gras. Nine years ago the Orange Bowl game at Miami was instituted to attract early seasonal visitors to sunny Florida, while an oilman named J. Curtis Sanford, staged the first Cotton Bowl game at Dallas practically single handed before it became a fixture five years ago. The 1939 game in which Tennessee conquered the previously unbeaten Oklahoma squad, 17 to 0, really put the Miami game on the map, the gross gate was $91,000 with each club getting about $27,000, which ain't hay. Yes, these New Year's Day "bowl games" are getting to be big business.

Do you remember when James (Tod) Sloan, regarded as the world's greatest jockey in the 90's, died at Los Angeles four years ago today. Fifty-nine years old and originator of the "monkey crouch," he died a pauper after having gone through a fortune.

The Toronto International League club will train next spring at Winter Haven, Fla., instead of Avon Park, Fla., where the Leafs conditioned the past three years, it was announced, November 30.

President Maurice Callaghan, of the Belleville Yacht Club, was a caller yesterday and dropped in to chat over our suggestion of city sled runs and open air rinks. "Why not have a hockey cushion erected alongside of our skating rink on the harbour. There would always be a foundation as long as there is ice and the city wouldn't have to worry about flooding for a foundation. If a hockey cushion is erected near our club house the players would have access to our dressing room facilities also" pointed out Prexy Callaghan. In the same light Alderman Harry Rollins wants to know why a couple of bobsled runs could not be erected at strategic points in the city by public subscription. The cost of two or three ramps would not be great and they would be permanent fixtures.

Falling before a concerted third period attack, the Reliance Aircraft dropped a 3-1 decision to the Kingston senior pucksters in the final Van Horne Memorial schedule game last night. In failing to halt the Limestone squad "Speedy" St. Louis' sextette also failed to finish in second place, but concluded the league schedule with two wins as against three losses, and tied the Kingston seniors in the final standing. One thing is certain, as the result of last night's game, however, the Reliance team needs some additional scoring punch before they launch upon the senior O.H.A. campaign, if it ever freezes up again. The fact that the Kingston squad won 3-1 last night and will have the additional services of military and Queen's players for the O.H.A. campaign definitely proves the local seniors need more scoring punch.

Sport Slants — Don't blame goalie Carl Hewitt too much for last night's loss, practically the entire local squad backed in on him as Kingston rushed the Reliance net in their last-period rally, that turned the trick.... Hewitt had little opportunity on either of the shots that bulged the local twine....Lefty Gomez is apparently a good salesman, he was slated to be traded by the Yankees, but talked President Ed Barrow into retaining him for another season...."That's what I call a real Christmas present," remarked Gomez as he left Barrow's office with a contract in his mitt ....The sympathy of the sports world is extended to Corbert and Cy Denneny, former pro hockey players, on the death of their mother at Cornwall yesterday. She was 83 years of age....Nick Altrock, veteran coach and funnyman with the Washington Senators, don't like grapefruit any longer—Nick fell out of a grapefruit tree while trying to pluck one of the luscious fruit and he broke an ankle....Woe is me.

Denneny Brothers Bereft of Mother

Cornwall, Ont., Dec. 21 (CP).—Mrs. Alexander St. Thomas, mother of the four Denneny brothers—Cyril, Allan, Corbett, and John F., prominent in Canadian hockey and lacrosse circles, died in hospital here Thursday. She was 81 years old.

Born at Farran's Point, Ont., Mrs. St. Thomas spent her early life in this district. She married James Denneny, father of the four boys, here, then moved to Dean Lake, Ont. where Mr. Denneny died 42 years ago.

She married Alexander St. Thomas of Cornwall 27 years ago at Cornwall. He died ten years ago.

Cyril and Corbett Denneny played with Ottawa Senators a number of years ago during the team's membership in the National Hockey League. Allan was prominent in Cornwall hockey and lacrosse circles. John played junior hockey in Cornwall, and is now a referee. He has coached several amateur teams.

At the Verdun-Cornwall hockey game here last night, the two teams observed a minute's silence in respect to Mrs. St. Thomas before their Quebec Senior Hockey League game began.

Mrs. St. Thomas is survived by one daughter, Mrs. Charles Nelson, Rock Island, Ill., and five sons, Cyril of Ottawa, Corbett of Toronto, Allan of St. Anne de Bellevue, Que., John F. of Cornwall, and James of Montreal.

QUEBEC RIFLES TIE SENATORS

Defeat Montreal Royals 7-5 in Best Game of the Season

Quebec, Dec. 21—(CP)—Quebec Royal Rifles gained a first-place tie with Ottawa Senators in the Quebec Senior Hockey League here last night when they defeated Montreal Royals 7-5. The loss put Royals four points behind the league-leaders.

Both teams played tight defensive hockey in the opening session. Royals opened the scoring with only three minutes left in the first period when Morin counted on a pass from Heffernan but Quebec's Theo Hamel quickly put his team back in the running assisted by Stu Smith.

Royals again took the lead halfway through the second period on a goal by Russ McConnell but Royal Rifles went on a scoring spree and counted three points before the period ended. Stu Smith, Pete Martin, and Ulric got the Quebec goals.

Neither team did any harm in the first half of the final frame. Quebec made it 5-2 at 10:42 and from then on the homesters counted twice and Royals, always in the running, scored three times.

Six-gun action is a background for romance and fun in "Rangers of Fortune," which brings Fred MacMurray and Patricia Morison to the Belle, now playing.

Reliance Seniors Drop Final Van Horne Game To Kingston By 3 to 1

Limestone City Seniors Wear Down Locals in Best Game of Cup Series

IN PLAY-OFFS

Reliance Squad Finishes Tie for Third Place and Earns Play-Off Berth

Pouring alternates over the sideboards with regularity to ultimately wear down the Belleville Reliance Aircraft seniors and weaken the squad, the Kingston seniors concluded the regular Van Horne Memorial Cup schedule with a 3-1 win over the local Reliance seniors at the Jock Harty arena Friday night. The ultimate result of the contest left the Belleville and Kingston clubs tied in the final league standing for the third position play-off berth at two wins and three losses each.

The Limestone City squad dressed 14 players and continued to weaken the St. Louis-led team by tossing waves upon waves of fresh forwards into the fray until they wore the locals down late in the third period to cinch the game at 3-1. It was undoubtedly the fastest and most keenly contested games played this season in the Van Horne series. Skipper St. Louis introduced a new face in the Reliance line-up in his younger brother "Sonny", former St. Lawrence Valley forward, who towers at six foot and skates fast and strong.

Hastie Scores

However, the lone Belleville goal was scored by Bill Hastie, former Gananoque and Oshawa star, who has bagged at least one counter in every game of the Van Horne series, except the game with Queen's when the Reliance sextette was blanked. The locals earned a play-off berth last night despite their loss. The Kingston combination of Smith-Barrens and Stoness proved the most prolific for the homesters. Penalties proved costly to the Belleville aggregation in the last frame when the winning goal was registered, as Kingston applied power plays in both incidents and backed the local Reliance team well into their own defence zone before scoring.

The Van Horne final play-offs are scheduled to commence next week.

The line-ups:

Belleville Reliance: Goal, Hewitt; defence, H. St. Louis and Holway; centre, Hastie, wings, Gow and Bennett; subs, Donihee, Gill, W. Storms, Sanderson, St. Louis and Watt.

Kingston: Goal, Udell; defence, White and Roberts; centre, Smith; wings, Barrens and Stoness; subs, Armstrong, Rowntree, Gray, Aiken, Radley, Nicholson, Scrutton and Lopping.

Referee: Bill Steen of Kingston.

.. .. Summary .. ..

1st period.
No score.
Penalties: Donihee and Aiken.

2nd period.
Kingston: Barrens (Smith) ... 9.15
Belleville: Hastie (Donihee) .. 15.10
Penalties: Stoness and Storms.

3rd period.
Kingston: Smith (Stoness) ... 15.00
Kingston: Gray (Aiken) 19.05
Penalties: Holway, Nicholson and Storms.

Sporting Activities Scheduled for "Y"

In the evening a gala social time will be enjoyed at the "Y" with the supper being provided by the losers of the Christmas card selling contest. The boys will top the evening off by bowling.

Tuesday morning will see a continuation of Prep indoor competitions and at 10.30 the ladies' class will enjoy a swim period. In the afternoon the swimming tank and gym will be taken over by the Preps and Juniors.

LOST SUNRISE

by KATHLEEN NORRIS

INSTALMENT 15

"The Miller outfit have apparently gotten Mr. Bellamy in for the finish of the campaign," Gwen said, breaking the silence.

"That doesn't make sense. He was working against Miller, wasn't he?" asked Madge, looking puzzled.

"Yes, but he quarreled with Linherr. And it's the part now. He's for Miller now."

"How d'you know?"

"He said no, in that note."

"Well, he certainly doesn't think you're going to get into it against your own brother-in-law?"

"I don't suppose." Gwen spoke vaguely, her eyes absent.

"Come back to earth, Gwen. Why don't you tell him he hasn't a prayer against Link? It's true. That Miller crowd is all washed up. And tell him you're engaged and that I'm an emergency ward case over his telephoning. Link's talking here tomorrow, isn't he? Tell him to go to one of those meetings. That'd fix him."

"Yes, Link's in Oakland tonight, and here tomorrow—" Gwen was deep in thought. Link. She'd have to see him. No, she couldn't. Sheila—Sheila—but she couldn't tell Sheila—

"He's got a cinch," Madge was saying. "He doesn't have to worry!"

It was deadly quiet in the office on this cold dark afternoon; there was nothing to do—

"Why don't you go home, Madge? It's almost five," Gwen said.

"O, I might as well stay. You go."

"I'm meeting Mr. Bellamy downstairs about quarter past."

"More fool you! What do you do it for?"

"Oh, well—" Gwen was so frightened that she had to swallow with a dry throat. "I might as well," she said lamely.

"I think I'll go. Thanks, Gwen. I'll do as much for you some day!"

She closed the door. Gwen sat without moving in the dimly lighted, dingy place, starting at the wall. Half an hour later she went down to find Van waiting in the lower hallway.

"Van," she said unsmilingly. She raised heavy eyes to his; put out her hand. He looked ill, haggard and tired, but he was dressed with his usual care.

"My dear, I've been home since Wednesday—this is Friday. I've been telephoning—" he began, in a faint dry voice. "You didn't answer — there wasn't a note—"

"Van, you're not well!" the girl said, forgetting her own fear and distress at the sight of his.

"I'm well now. I'm seeing you. More beautiful—more wonderful than ever!" he said hoarsely, gripping her arm, guiding her toward the street. "Where can we go? I must talk to you!"

"We can't go home," Gwen frowned, her tone lifeless, dull. "We can go to the Lotus Bowl, right round the corner here. You're catching a train?"

"No Yes, of course I am! Gwen, it's all right now. Don't be unkind to me again, will you? You didn't write—all these months—"

"Please—" she entreated him in an undertone. They were in the deserted little tearoom now.

"You wouldn't come and meet me!" Van said after they had ordered tea and toast.

"I couldn't."

"I'd been counting on it, all the way across the continent. No message, no letter! I've tried to forget you. God knows I've tried! I even tried to kill myself, Gwen. I meant to! But I didn't have the courage".

"All that's nonsense, Van," she said wearily, as he paused. "I'm not going to talk about it. You know that I'm engaged to Doctor Latimer. I'm going to Scotland this year—"

"You are not!" he said hoarsely. "I'll not let you!"

Gwen said nothing. She narrowed her eyes and looked away into space. The mere mention of Dick's name had made her want him with a longing that was like pain.

"Van," she said, forcing the words, terrified at their import as she spoke them, "what do you mean about Link Baker?"

He brought his attentions to the changed subject reluctantly, scowling.

"All I meant about him was that he might be something to the Baker that's running against Miller," he said.

"What could you possibly have against Baker?"

"Nothing against him. But I think I can persuade his wife to get him to drop out."

Dusk in the tearoom. Rain tickling against the dark street windows.

"Drop out? Now?" she managed to say. "With the election next Tuesday?"

"He's got a good offer from a San Francisco firm. He should worry! He could say his wife didn't like Washington—couldn't live in Washington."

"And you'd help put Miller in? The man you were fighting at the primaries?"

"It's the party," he said. "I'd have preferred Linherr. Linherr didn't get it. But I'm still for the party."

"You know the kind of crook Miller is!"

"Miller's not necessarily a crook. Politics are a pretty dirty business, Gwen. Miller's done some scaly thing, but he's a decent enough fellow in lots of ways. This man Baker has got the election in his pocket, they tell me, and they called me in—this was yesterday. Well, it so happens that I've got something on Baker's wife. It may be of no use. Or it may be that she'll get her husband to reconsider his candidacy. It's a chance. I don't know him, I don't know anything about him. But I know that a Kenthill man, Damont, rented a little apartment in Sacramento about eight years ago, and that she was seen there. My mother owned the apartment; he left a few books there when he gave it up, and this note was in one of the books. Now from something else they told me I think the girl who wrote it married Baker."

"It was signed?" Gwen's voice was a shadow; her lips were white.

"Nope, but it was on Library papers—she worked in the Library."

"Who told you this!" The words were like so many explosives.

"Nobody. That is, nobody knows about the note. But while they were talking I suddenly put the whole thing together. I knew your sister had married a Lincoln Baker; I thought she might know something about it. Don't look that way, Gwen," Van broke off to say. "This is politics. I got into this only yesterday; it's just a matter of business to me."

Gwen was staring at him, her face colorless.

"You knew James Gunther Baker's wife is my sister Sheila?" the girl whispered at length. She saw from the amazed horror in his eyes that he had not known. And for a long time they sat looking at each other without speaking.

After a while Van said, stammering, "Of course I didn't know that. There are so many Bakers. You — you've always called him 'Link'."

"Because Sheila told him the first time she met him that he looked like Lincoln. He's really James Gunther Baker."

Another silence. Then Gwen said in a whisper, "They want to keep Link out, do they? And they would do that to do it?"

"They would do anything to do it."

"They've thought, I suppose, about proving a—a filthy lie like that?"

"Is it a lie?"

"Of course it's a lie!" The ghost that had haunted her for months, a short year and a half ago, was risen again. Her world rocked. Sheila, and little Fanny, and Link—all of them, their security, their happiness, crashing to earth—!!

"If it is a lie," Van said, watching her narrowly, his nostrils whitened, "then they can go no further with it, naturally!"

"Link would smash your face in, or any one's face in, who only suggested it!"

"He would ask her first to deny it, I suppose?"

Gwen narrowed her eyes, looked into space. "Blackmail," she said in a whisper.

"Not blackmail at all. Nobody knows anything of this but me. We were having a general talk, yesterday, and one of the fellows said that Baker had married a stunning Kenthill girl who had worked in the Sacramento Library. So I went out to my mother's property later on and asked a few questions. Nobody remembered much, everyone remembered something. Later, when I was back with the boys again, I said that possibly I could persuade Mr. Baker to accept an offer from a San Francisco firm of lawyers, as more — more profitable in the long run. I didn't say why. I knew that the average man wouldn't allow any — and investigation that might involve his wife in this sort of thing."

"My God!" Gwen said under her breath. Her thoughts raced about; trapped. "You would take it to Link and threaten him with exposure?" she said, with a dry mouth.

"Not threaten. He knows—Baker's a politician, and he knows exactly how much money his opponents have put into this campaign, what the election is worth to them. They've had it all their own way while Miller's been in. They're not gentlemen, Gwen; they're not going to balance delicate values in this thing. Anything that will stop Baker means hundreds of thousands to them."

"But to you—" she said, swallowing, her hands cold. "You. You're different! You wouldn't — you couldn't do a thing like that!"

"I mean to see his wife. If she chose to tell him that would be her affair."

"Sheila."

"I didn't know it was your sister!"

"No — but now you do know! Now — surely now — you'll do this for me, Van? You'll deny that evidence? It may not be of any value at all. It may be that it wouldn't be evidence!"

To be continued.

Butter Steadies After Record Gain

Toronto.—Butter stepped off its stairway to the stars yesterday and gave the trade its first breathing spell in more than a week of record breaking price gains on Toronto's open produce market.

First-grade Ontario solids were unchanged at 37c, with local demand showing a slight slow-down. There appeared to be some out-of-town demand, however, and the market stayed firm in tone. On the whole, it was a rather quiet day.

Top-grade eggs recorded substantial increases. The egg market, which steadied during the latter part of the week after declining at the opening, closed on a firm note. Receipts moved well under a good demand, leaving no evidence of any real surplus. The Toronto branch of the Dominion Department of Agriculture reported that out-of-town demand had been an important factor in steadying the market, and that several shipments of Government-inspected eggs had gone to various military camps. In the graded section of trading A-large eggs advanced to a range of 30 1-2c to 31c, A-medium to 28 1-2c to 29c and A-pullets to 25c to 26c. Grade C eggs were unchanged at 25c.

Demand for poultry was good and receipts were not as heavy as expected. Dealers, however, anticipate an increase in volume during the next few days. With the exception of geese, all supplies were sufficient to meet buyers' needs. Ontario turkeys gained 2c to 3c during the week. Other poultry prices also showed a higher trend.

SIR ARCHIBALD

Under Lord Allenby, to whom he was devoted, he learned much of the unorthodox desert warfare which he lately has turned to such good account. Lawrence of Arabia became his friend during that period.

Foiled Turks in 1918

With Allenby he foiled the Turks in 1918 with such stunts as dragging trees and branches across the dusty desert raising such clouds that the Turks thought large forces were on the move. When they rushed in to meet the apparent threat, they missed the main British thrust.

Sir Archibald came home in 1921 as a Colonel. In 1932-33 he served as Aide-de-Camp to the King, winning promotion to Major-General in the latter year.

He served several years as an infantry commander at Aldershot, and then, in 1937, went back to the middle east as commander of British forces in Palestine and Trans-Jordan.

Large Offering of Turkeys Features Saturday Market

Average-Sized Bird Sells for $4 to $5 With Large Gobblers Up to $8

BUTTER HIGHER

A brickly buying public, very much Christmas minded, thronged both the inside and outside markets as poultry royalty in all its seasonal glamour held court in the largest market display of the season. King Turkey, shorn of all his feathered glory, lost none of his royal mien as he lay in state and in waiting to grace Christmas dinner tables. Both on the inside and outside markets, the spirit of Christmas was reflected in the nature of the produce displayed, while refuting the popular rumour that this season would see a shortage of Christmas trees the outside market was profusely covered with evergreens offered by vendors.

Turkeys still held at Thursday's price of 35 cents for tops with prices ranging down to 30c. Several large birds weighing upwards of twenty-five pounds were offered at prices as high as $7.50 and $8. The average bird was quoted at a much lower figure, however, with $4 to $5 being the most popular price. Geese were also offered in quantity, selling at prices approximately 28c per pound with individual birds ranging from $4 down to as low as $2 for the smaller variety. Chickens were rather overshadowed by the more popular Christmas delicacy but held at the usual figure of 25c per pound with large fowl being offered at $1.50 and ranging down to $1.

Butter Higher

Butter increased sharply in price from last week's quotations, selling at a new high of 75c for two pounds an increase of two and a half cents. Eggs, however, held at last week's levels with Grade "A" large selling at 35c per dozen with other grades being offered at 32c and 30c.

Floral bouquets for the decoration of the home during the Yuletide season were offered by several vendors, both in the inside and outside markets. Winter bouquets sold at 30c per bunch, painted weed seed and tinted cones at 50c and 35c respectively, while table centres and wreaths were displayed at 50c each.

Pork by the quarter sold at 14c for hinds and 12c for fronts, while lamb, by the quarter, sold at 15c for fronts and 20c for hinds. Pickled pork sold at 18c for pieces or at 20c sliced. Sausage sold at 20c and headcheese at 15c per pound.

On the fish market, white fish were offered at 22c per pound, with lake trout at 30c, mud cats at 15c per pound and suckers, three for 25c.

Fine Quality Apples

Apples were featured on the outside produce market, with several vendors offering lovely samples of the winter variety. No. 1 Spys, MacIntosh and Delicious were offered at $1.75 per hamper or at 40c per basket. Talman Sweets sold for $1.50 per hamper or at 35c per basket. Other varieties sold at $1 per hamper.

On the vegetable market potatoes were offered at the usual price of $1 per 75-pound bag. Carrots, turnips and beets were 30c per peck with onions and parsnips being offered at 40c for the same quantity. Cabbages were 5c and 10c and sauerkraut 10c per quart.

The usual offering of stove wood and young porkers dwindled considerably under the deluge of Christmas trees which were seen on almost every corner. One or two vendors offered "squealers" however, quoting prices up to $5 each, while stovewood of maple and beech and other hard varieties sold at $10 per cord. Softwood and mixed lots sold at $7 to $7.50 per cord. Christmas trees were quoted at prices ranging from 25c up to $1 for lovely large evergreens that would lend a Yuletide spirit to any living room.

GERMAN RAIDERS

Terrific A.A. Fire.

The city's defenders put up a terrific anti-aircraft barrage to meet the raiders, who bucked a stiff wind over the channel. A record number of planes was said by some sources to have taken part in the raid which lasted until almost dawn.

The Royal Air Force was reported to have bombed German and Nazi "invasion ports" while the German air force was engaged over England.

Neutral Eire also was bombed by an unidentified plane during the night. Bombs fell not far from Dublin, the capital, and in Monoghan County, near the border of belligerent Northern Ireland. Three persons were reported injured and several homes damaged.

London Visited.

London was bombed intermittently from dusk until 3:30 a.m. (10:30 p.m. EDT) when the all clear sounded.

Nazi raiders also were reported over several sections of the midlands where two hospitals were said to have been damaged.

retaryship, if Lord Halifax is appointed and Prime Minister Winston Churchill also will make a post for David Lloyd George, first Great War Prime Minister,, the Daily Mail said.

Lloyd George Declines Post

Mr. Lloyd George was reported by the British Press earlier this week to have declined the ambassadorship because of his age.

Lord Halifax, 58, has had a distinguished political career. As Prime Minister Neville Chamberlain's Foreign Secretary, he conducted pre-war negotiations with Adolf Hitler.

Son of a pious father, Lord Halifax himself is an extremely devout Anglican churchman. He was Viceroy to India from 1926 to 1931, has been Lord President of the Council and Lord Privy Seal in the House of Lords and served with distinction in the First Great War.

BATTLE OF BARDIA

The coastal road to Tobruk and Derna has been reported like Bardia, under almost constant R.A.F. and naval bombardment.

Complete Semi-Circle

Reports from the battlefront said the British, bringing up infantry to reinforce their advance tank columns, completed a semi-circle of men and guns around the landward side of Bardia last night while a line of warships off the coast finished the encirclement.

Immediately, it was said, the battle of Bardia became a siege.

The British counter-drive into Libya in the desert lands to the south also was reported advancing.

There the British, spearheaded by a unit of Australian cavalry, were fighting to oust an Italian garrison from the oasis of Giarabub, about 20 miles west of the Egyptian frontier.

GENERAL ITALIAN

A general Italian retreat from Tepeleni and Klisura was reported imminent.

The Greeks said that "one after another" Italian posts in the mountains north of the two strategic towns guarding the roads to the battered port of Valona, were falling to fierce bayonet charges.

The Italians were said to be fighting back "especially fiercely" because of the importance of the ridges, beyond which the tangle of mountains of southern Albania gives way to foothills rolling down to the coastal plain.

Trenton and District

Accidental Death Verdict of Jury In Sharpe Case

Trenton, (Special)—Investigating the death of Maynard Sharpe, of Wooler, a coroner's jury returned a verdict of accidental death and the driver Clarence Brooker was in no way to blame for the accident.

Maynard Sharpe was almost instantly killed when a motor car which he was driving collided with the rear of one of the Rathbun buses driven by Clarence Brooker. The accident happened four miles west of this city on Highway 2.

Death was due to severe internal injuries, Dr. J. W. Farley testified before the jury. The ribs on the right side were badly crushed, causing the internal injuries.

"Driving conditions were treacherous" Traffic Officer Hatch stated. "It was snowing but the snow was melting as fast as it fell, causing the highway to be icy and very slippery. Conditions were such that twenty-five miles an hour was the fastest speed that motor cars could travel safely."

Plenty of Room to Pass

"From my investigation, the Sharpe automobile collided with the bus which had stopped partly on the highway and partly on the shoulder," said the officer. "I was unable to understand why the driver of the car did not see the bus on the highway and turn out to pass it. There was more than half the highway for the driver to do so."

Clarence Broker, driver of the automobile testified that the road was very icy. "It took me fifteen minutes to drive from Belleville four miles west where the accident occurred. I started to slow down my bus some 500 feet east of the Bush residence where I was to stop to let Miss Bush off the bus."

"The bus had just stopped and the passenger was on her way up to the front of the car when I felt the collision," he said. "When I got out, I found the car had jammed into the rear of the bus and found Mr. Sharpe in the car."

Clearance lights and stop lights on the rear of the bus were in working order the driver informed the jury.

"I would think that a car coming from behind would have passed the bus on the other side of the highway. It was still light when the accident occurred and visibility was good. There was no reason that the driver of the car did not see the bus to my knowledge," said Mr. Brooker.

Miss Marion Bush who was the passenger about to leave the bus testified that the driver exerted every care in bringing the bus to a stop.

Dr. E. A. McQuaid of Trenton was the coroner and Crown Attorney B. C. Donnan examined the witnesses.

Ice on Moira River Shows Signs of Breakup

In these days of chaotic world conditions anything is liable to happen.

For instance, glancing at the Moira River one would almost think the temperamental old girl had got her dates mixed. Today instead of hummocks of ice, large expanses of snow-covered areas with schoolboys enjoying their outdoor winter sports on her placid bosom, the river has all the earmarks of March conditions.

The five inches of ice that covered the river last week is gradually breaking up. Along the banks flows swiftly moving channels of water. Pieces of ice speed down the rapidly flowing currents on their way to the bay. Puddles of water lay glistening on a surface that is already giving hints of honeycomb.

Rains of recent days have flowed into the river from its tributary streams in the northern areas. This in conjunction with the mild weather of the past few days, has given the Moira a decided "spring breakup" appearance.

If the present weather conditions continue, city officials declared today, there is a strong possibility that the river will experience the earliest ice breakup in its history. However, the weather-man may have something to say about that.

MISUNDERSTOOD MESSAGE

Amarillo, Tex., Dec. 21 (AP)—An Amarillo boy handed his teacher a note from his mother. "Please send the Fire Department to our house" it read. Shortly, a roaring fire truck stopped at the woman's front door. Startled, she held out a sack to the firemen and told them, "This is what I wanted. Here are some toys you can fix for poor youngsters."

Trenton, Belleville Connected by Radio

Another phase in the advance of law enforcement in the area of Trenton and Belleville was definitely established yesterday when a direct two-way police radio contact was completed and established for the future when radio station C.J.R. (Belleville) and C.H.S.A. (Trenton police) set their respective receiving sets on the other's wave band.

The occasion was one of satisfaction to Sergeant Arthur Booth, who not only constructed the Belleville police radio transmitter, who celebrated his 20th anniversary as a member of the Belleville Police Department by seeing a new phase in the development of his favourite diversion-police radio. Sergeant Booth was born at Carmel and resided in that district during his early life. After receiving the customary public school education, Sergeant Booth migrated to western Canada, where he served with the then-famous R.N.W.M.P. shortly after the turn of the century. He joined the Belleville Police Department on Dec. 20th, 1920.

"It was with satisfaction I heard Chief Bain broadcast so clearly from Trenton, the reception being exceedingly good at this end. Later the Trenton authorities told me their reception of our broadcast was equally as good. The day is not far distant, when we will have police radio short wave hook-ups from Montreal to Toronto, with messages being transferred over 50-mile wave bands," predicted Sergeant Booth as he nonchalantly continued his experimental work with the Belleville police radio on his 20th anniversary as a member of the Belleville Police department.

Incidentally today the Trenton police radioed to C.J.R. here seeking information from Magistrate Butler, who was contacted by telephone, gave his decision and within a matter of seconds Sergeant Booth relayed the required message back via air to Trenton. Such is the modern age.

Scio, Ore., Dec. 21 (AP)—Six Scio residents born on Christmas Day and tired of being "short changed" on gifts, decided on a joint birthday party hoping their friends would be generous. The friends ignored the party—"Too near Christmas," one said.

Christmas Services Will Be Featured In All City Churches on Sunday

Prayers for peace will mingle with those of the celebration of the Birth of Christ in city churches on Sunday. Pre-Christmas congregations will thrill to the majesty of Christmas carols and other music by augmented choirs, and soloists.

People of all denominations and those of none will wend their way to holy edifices to celebrate a Christmas worship that in all probability is one of the most unique in the history of Christendom.

For in a war-shattered world, the song of the Angels, "Peace on Earth, Goodwill Toward Men" hints of travesty. Oppressed peoples of the conquered countries will experience just another day. Warring nations will hurl missiles of death at each other.

In Canada and other civilized nations, populations will turn to their devotions, far from the menace of war and all its horrors.

Many churches will hold candlelight services. The holy festival of Christmas will again, perhaps more than ever in view of present chaotic world conditions, be celebrated with more fervor, and sincerity than ever before.

Yuletide decorations, floral and otherwise, will pay beautiful tribute to the occasion. Special music will ring out a glad paean in commemoration of the Birth of the Saviour. Belleville will lay aside worldly cares and worship in its many churches with prayers of thankfulness, for peace, and for a return to the days when the brotherhood of man was uppermost in the minds of the nations of the earth.

Picton and District

Picton.—Picton armouries was beautifully decorated for the Christmas dance sponsored by the N.C.O.'s of "C" Company, Second Battalion, Hastings and Prince Edward Regiment, Wednesday night.

The orchestra dais was brightened by lights from a Christmas tree on which reposed a gift for the popular Q.M.S. Strings of long red, white and green streamers formed a canopy overhead. Windows were gay with shining tinsel, colored rope and wreaths, while a decorated tree stood against the main door. The balcony was also gaily decorated.

The large throng danced to music furnished by Bud Haines and his Commodores.

The Legion Ladies' Auxiliary dispensed refreshments from a long table decorated with a miniature Christmas tree and bowls of poinsettas. It proved to be the dance of the season and the N.C.O.'s received much praise for their successful effort.

Christmas Concert

The annual Christmas Concert at the Mission Church, arranged by Mrs. C. Ball, deaconess, was enjoyed by a large crowd. Rev. J. F. Reycroft was chairman, assisted by E. F. Case.

Recitations were given by Russell Green, Earl Courtney, Barbara Dayton, Joan Armstrong, H. Welbanks, Ada Jewell, Margaret Duetta, Joan Belnap, Laverne McAlpine, Margaret Martelle, Gwen Dingman, Betty Reid, Carman Green, Beverley Dingman, Celia Reid, Lillian Martelle, Beatrice Myatt, Albert Norman, June Miller, Peggy Rawlins, Mary Duetta, Harold McKenzie, Helen Beasley, Marie Cross, Gordon Duetta, Mildred Armstrong.

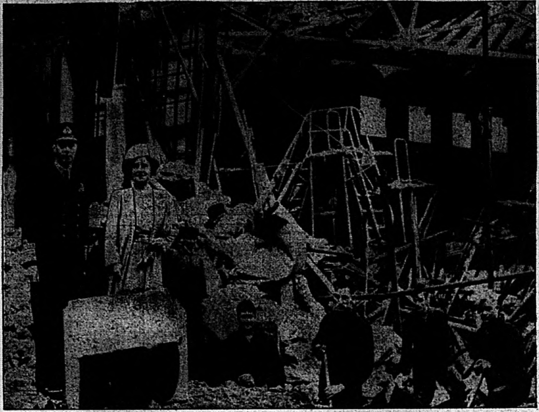
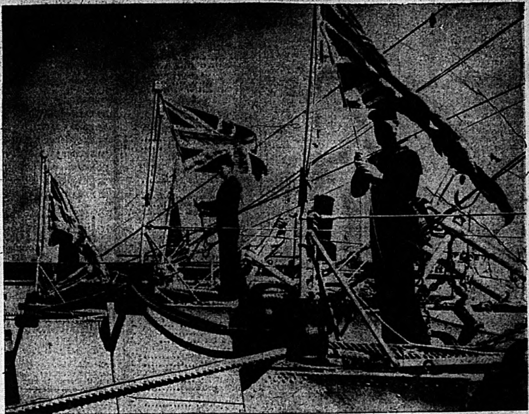
Courage Of British Captures News Headlines Of 1940



HUNDREDS OF NAZI PLANES, raiding London day after day, were unable to break the morale of the British capital much to the chagrin of Hitler, who had counted on the collapse of London and then invasion of the British Isles. Their Majesties are shown examining damage done to Buckingham palace during the raids.



PRESIDENT ROOSEVELT EXPLODED BOMBSHELL of news early in September when he announced the U. S. and Great Britain had come to an agreement whereby England would receive 50 over-age destroyers in exchange for naval and air baes. British sailors are shown hoisting the Union Jack aboard the former United States destroyers.

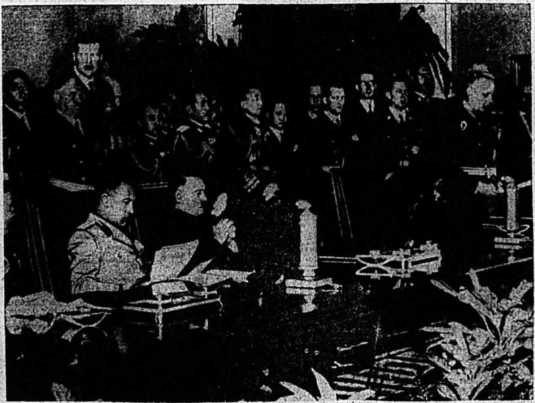
WOUNDED DUTCH FATHER helplessly gazes on the dead body of his child as Nazi bombers pounded Rotterdam and Amsterdam in preparation for their occupation by Nazi legions.

THESE WOUNDED FINNS will not forget the unprovoked attack on their country by Soviet Russia, despite the signing of a peace treaty between the Soviet and Finland last March, which brought to a close the desperate resistance of tiny Finland.

THE FRENCH CAPITAL again felt the thud of conquerors' feet as France bowed to the might of the Nazi war machine. Hitler is shown here, with aides, viewing conquered Paris.



GERMANY, ITALY AND JAPAN signed a three-power economic, political and military pact in Berlin last September, which up to the present has not aided Germany very much. German Foreign Minister Joachim von Ribbentrop is pictured here reading the terms of the pact to Italian and Japanese representatives while Hitler listens.

"THE ACT OF HAVANA" climaxed the historic Pan-American conference in which 21 American republics pledged a united front against aggression in the western hemisphere.

Often-Bombed Mannheim Again Attacked—Heavy Damage Reported From Norway To Adriatic

London, Dec. 23 (CP).—Royal Air Force planes again blasted the German industrial centre of Mannheim and the nearby suburb of Ludwigshaven last night and also attacked the invasion ports of Flushing, Dunkerque and Calais, the Air Ministry announced today.

It was the second attack on Mannheim, important Rhineland rail junction and manufacturing city, which last week was raided heavily on four successive nights.

Last night's attacks capped a series of British raids since Saturday on Germany, Italian and four Nazi-conquered countries. One plane was lost in the latest forays.

(Reports from Switzerland that unidentified planes passed over the Alps last night for the second consecutive night indicated the British also might have struck again into Italy. The Swiss reports said Berne, Basel and Zurich had alarms and eleven persons were injured by bombs dropped near Zurich.)

Observers believed the renewed attack on often-bombed Mannheim was intended to sever the main rail link between Germany's vast Saar Valley coal fields and the war-vital heavy industries of Northern Italy.

Why The Weather?

By Major A. H. Thiessen

Science Service Meteorologist

Vertical weather maps! Most people think of weather maps or charts as representing weather conditions on the earth's surface; that is, on a horizontal plane. But weather forecasters nowadays also make use of vertical charts, also called cross-sections, and indicate thereon the vertical distribution of temperature and moisture, and also positions of upper air fronts, or the meeting places of different air masses. These facts are of the greatest importance in weather forecasting. Vertical maps are drawn for the east-west direction and also for the north-south direction, where there are the greatest number of stations taking upper air observations. These maps are valuable also in training young forecasters to think of the whole atmosphere.

MORE NAZIS POUR INTO RUMANIA

Thousands in War Gear Cross Frontier to Add to German Patrols in That Country

Lokoshaza, Hungary, on the Rumanian Frontier, Dec. 23 (AP)—Thousands of German troops with full war gear crossed into Rumania today.

Border reports said they would reinforce the Nazi Divisions already patrolling the country and guarding its rich oil wells.

A Rumanian official, however, claimed that the additional Nazi troops were only another part of the corps being sent in to "instruct" the Rumanian army.

Machine guns, field artillery and tanks were transported across the border in freight cars.

The troop movement followed the dispatch of two other German divisions to Rumania two weeks ago.

Military observers estimated that there are more than 100,000 German soldiers already in Rumania—their ranks increased steadily by a stream of troops moving across Hungary.

A native of Toronto, he is survived by his widow, his son and five daughters including Mrs. V. P. McMahon, St. Catharines, Ont.

GERMAN RAIDERS DIRECT ATTACK ON MANCHESTER

British Communique Says City "Heavily Attacked for Many Hours"

MANY FIRES STARTED

Number of Persons Killed and Considerable Damage to Buildings Reported

London, Dec. 23 (CP).—German raiders centred their attack last night on the northwestern industrial city of Manchester.

The government earlier had identified the main target of the night assault only as a northwest English city, but said that "a large number of fires were caused and considerable damage was done to buildings and shops."

A communique said the city "was "heavily attacked for many hours" and added that "full reports as to casualties are not yet available but it is known that a number of people were killed and many others injured."

The raiders also were active over many other parts of England and London had two alarms. A famous old naval inn was smashed in a south coast town and one of the town's oldest mansions and a big motion picture theatre were set on fire.

Britons had a virtual rest from bombing during the daylight hours yesterday after the Germans had delivered two smashing blows at the great port of Liverpool on successive nights.

TRENTON YOUTHS HELP FUND

London, Dec. 23 (CP).—"Twenty Spitfires" from Trenton, Ont., have donated $5 as a gift for funds to purchase aircraft for Britain, the British Broadcasting Corporation reported last night.

Terming the gift "one of the latest examples of the Empire's loyalty, the BBC said:

"The gift is from twenty Canadian boys at Trenton, Ont. They call themselves the 'Twenty Spitfires' and have asked that the gift go toward the purchase of aircraft."

Substantial Reinforcements Of All Arms Arrive in Malaya

Singapore, Dec. 23—(CP—Reuter)—Air Chief Marshal Sir Robert Brooke-Popham, British Commander-in-Chief in the Far East, announced today that "substantial reinforcements of all arms have recently arrived in Malaya."

"The reinforcements include aircraft, air force personnel, members of Indian infantry, artillery, engineers and auxiliaries," the official announcement said.

"The reinforcements not only strengthened already formidable defences at Singapore but also increased defence forces in other areas of the Far East command."

The Far East command includes Malaya, Burma and Hong Kong. Informed quarters said the reinforcements included additional units of Australian and New Zealand air forces.

Sir Shenton Thomas, Governor of the Straits Settlements, announced in a broadcast yesterday that the mainland of Malaya as well as Singapore and Penang were being placed in a state of defence.

The great naval base of Singapore guards Britain's communications with the Far East, Australia and New Zealand and stands as a power behind Netherlands forces in The Netherlands East Indies, important producer of oil, tin and rubber.

A thousand miles to the north of Singapore, Thailand (Siam) is embroiled with French Indo-China in border trouble which has flared sporadically into bombings, artillery exchanges and other incidents.

Another 500 miles to the north the Chinese are feeding supplies to the armies of Gen. Chiang Kai-Shek along the Burma Road which Britain re-opened to traffic after once closing it in a move designed to better Japanese-British relations.

Expectation of Invasion From the Air Widely Supported in England

By DREW MIDDLETON

(Associated Press Staff Writer)

London, Dec. 23 (AP).—Expectation of a new, formidable threat of invasion from the air is widely supported by responsible military and air sources who say that Germany would send over an enlarged air force and thousands of parachute troops in an attempt to bring Britain to her knees before spring.

The air correspondent of the Sunday Times said the "new threat as forecast by Lord Beaverbrook comes more plainly from the air". Lord Beaverbrook, minister of aircraft production, warned Britain last week to be vigilant constantly.

These sources suggested that the comparative immunity of night bombers over Britain probably may encourage the Germans to try landings by parachutists and aerial troop transports at night.

Observers remark hopefully that such landings, bringing Nazi aircraft to low altitudes, would put them within range of searchlights and short-range anti-aircraft guns. The Germans, they say, would suffer heavy casualties in the air, be spotted by searchlights and surrounded on landing.

The most probable line of attack was forecast by one observer as a "sudden and studied attempt" to destroy fighter airdromes so that Spitfires and Hurricanes would be unable to retain daylight mastery of the air over Britain and the channel.

After preliminary bombing of hangars, this source said, parachute troops might be dropped at as many as fifty fields at once to hold a landing area and light it for "pancake" landings of troop-carrying Junkers and Focke-Wulf transports.

Following the precedent of Norway and the Netherlands, he added, thousands of troops might be landed to attempt to hold out long enough to destroy all aircraft at air stations while a bridgehead was being established on the English coast free from fighter opposition.

Snorers Promptly Subdued in Swank Sleeping Quarters of London Hotel

Bombs rain, but life in Britain goes on. Here's a bit of the more cheerful side in Milo M. Thompson's story on the experiences of those who live in London.

By MILO M. THOMPSON

(Associated Press Staff Writer)

New York, Dec. 23 (AP)—One gets a little weary of the dreary stories of misery in the shelters of bombarded London and it may be time to give the other side of the picture.

The newspapermen who write of the squalor of Tilbury Arches do not sleep there, or in the other places where people huddle by thousands; under begrimed blankets and do with few sanitary conveniences. Reporters dash in and out of such places, They themselves live in no such shelters.

Perhaps the largest concentration of these fellows has been at the Savoy, famous to tourists for its bar as also for the floor shows patronized in pre-war days by the elite in white tie and tails. I think the Savoy shelters are one of the prime sights of London.

If you choose to put yourself up at the Savoy and find the night a little too thick for comfort, what with gunfire, explosion quake and the scream of bombs uncomfortably close, you throw on your bathrobe and start following "to the shelter" arrows which lead you down carpeted stairs.

Down and down you go to an underground haven below nine floors of steel and concrete and come before a serious clerk who checks you in and sends you to your allotted bed in care of a uniformed servitor.

You find there are four departments' reached down corridors made by long thick silken hangings softly lighted.

Turn to the right as you leave the check-in clerk and you go to the snorers' section.

Turn to the left and you pass in turn the departments for ladies, for men and for married couples.

Each is a broad expanse of floor-space filled with beds, side by side, in neatly regimented rows. And such beds!

VISCOUNT HALIFAX NEW AMBASSADOR TO WASHINGTON

Anthony Eden Takes Over Post as Foreign Secretary in the Cabinet

OTHER CHANGES

London, Dec. 23 (CP)—Viscount Halifax, who has guided Britain's foreign policy thus far through the war, is the new ambassador to Washington—in the words of Prime Minister Churchill, the "most important post any British citizen can fill outside this country."

Anthony Eden, whom Lord Halifax replaced as Foreign Secretary Feb. 20, 1938, returns to the Foreign Office.

Mr. Eden's post as Secretary for War goes to Capt. David Margesson, 50, chief government whip in the House of Commons.

Additional Cabinet changes were expected by some observers, including possibly the appointment of David Lloyd George, premier during the last war, to the Government.

Lord Halifax first came into prominence as Viceroy in India from 1926 to 1931 during the Civil Disobedience Campaign. Later he was entrusted with the leadership of the House of Lords.

FREIGHT TRAIN LEAVES RAILS, THREE KILLED

Derailment Takes Place on Lonely Stretch of Road Near Hamilton

ENGINEER BURIED

Hamilton Ont., Dec. 23—(CP)—Two men were killed and a third injured when the locomotive of a Canadian National Railways freight train left the rails while crossing a stretch on the Six Nations Indian Reserve, 20 miles southwest of here last night and partly buried itself in a ditch bordering the right-of-way.

The dead are:

William C. Laycock, Hamilton, engineer.

William C. Willson, Hamilton, fireman.

The injured man is John Ness, Hamilton, a brakeman.

Railway officials investigating the accident today said they believe a rail, affected by frost, derailed the engine. Eight cars followed it.

Engineer Laycock was buried in the wreckage and it was several hours before rescue workers, hindered by blasts of steam from the twisted engine boiler, were able to remove his body.

Fireman Willson was badly scald-

PLAN ASSAULT AGAINST 20,000 ITALIANS IN FORT

No Sign of a "Rescue" Drive by Italians to Save Bardia Troops

SACRIFICE GARRISON

British Believe Graziani Leaves Troops So That Time Can be Had to Strengthen Western Defences

Cairo, Egypt, Dec. 23—(AP) — A British General Headquarters Communique said today that 35,949 Italian prisoners have been removed from the Sidi Barrani battle area and that "several thousand more" still are in camps near the front.

Crossing paths with the Italian prisoners moving behind the British lines in the western desert, steady streams of British reinforcements were moving up to the siege line around battered Bardia, massing for an assault against the 20,000 survivors of Italy's 10th army reported trapped in the Libyan port.

The General Headquarters communique said that, while British artillery still harassed the Italians inside Bardia, "our preparations outside are progressing."

Canadian Army Not Likely to Move To Mediterranean

London, Dec. 23 (CP). — The chances of the overseas formations of the Canadian army moving to the Mediterranean's now blazing theatre of war are understood to have diminished if not altogether disappeared.

Hon. J. L. Ralston, Canadian Minister of National Defence, said today that such employment of the Canadians had not been formally proposed by the British government. If it were, it would be a matter for the Canadian government to decide.

The minister made his statement at a conference attended by two score representatives of British and Canadian newspapers. Although still using crutches as the result of an attack of sciatica from which he has suffered since arriving three weeks ago, he appeared in good health and spoke with his usual vigor.

Mr. Ralston said he had been pleased to assure Prime Minister Churchill and other members of the United Kingdom government that "Canada is united wholeheartedly—united as never before—in every activity that will help the war effort."

He outlined the dominion's contribution in manpower and in many lines of industry.

More than 50,000 Canadian troops are serving outside the dominion, he said. Canada's peacetime active naval strength of 1,700 officers and men would have grown to 23,000 by the spring of 1942. By the end of 1941 the number of graduates turned out by the Commonwealth Air Training Scheme would double the figure originally envisaged.

"Shooting Works" To Keep Italians On the Retreat

Choice Fascist Regiment Cut to Pieces Near Tepeleni And Two Battalions Surrounded

Athens, Dec. 23 —(AP)—. The Greek government today announced the capture of Chimara, a strategically important Italian supply base on the Albania coast between Valona and Porto Edda.

Announced at the same time was the capture of the 153rd battalion of the Fascist militia, made up of 800 men and 30 officers. Quantities of war materials also were taken.

The Italians were reported in disorderly flight toward Valona, pursued by a Greek motorized column. Military sources said possession of Chimara opened the way for the Greeks to advance swiftly toward the Italian-held port over a good coastal highway.

Eight Planes Shot Down

At the same time, the Royal Air Force command reported a big air battle Saturday over Argirocastro, Greek-held Albanian stronghold, in which British flyers shot down at least eight Italian planes and lost only two themselves, although outnumbered more than five to one.

The Italian attack, by 50 fighters, came after nine R.A.F. fighters had intercepted fighter-escorted Italian bomber formations over the town.

The communique also reported R.A.F. attacks yesterday on oil wells at Kucova, in central Albania and said "all bombs fell in the target area" despite Italian aerial and ground defence fire.

The Greeks earlier had reported skirting the town and said their troops were fighting forward toward the port of Valona, on the Adriatic, less than thirty miles up the coast.

A Greek spokesman said then that Chimara was "under absolute control of our artillery," and the Greek forces were reported "shooting the works" to keep the Italians in retreat.

Twenty miles to the northeast, on a second road to Valona, the Greeks claimed "brilliant successes" in a "very large scale" battle for control of the mountainous Tepeleni-Klisura region.

Lost Seeking Christmas Tree, Girl Rescued After 8 Hours in Woods

Kirkland Lake, Ont., Dec. 23 (CP). —Twelve-year-old Helen Lazarou of Kirkland Lake is safe at her home today after a terrifying eight hours spent in the woods five miles from here late yesterday. She got lost when she went out alone to get a Christmas tree for her family.

The rescue was made early today by a group headed by Dr. P. Callaghan which followed the little girl's tracks by means of Eddie Dunn's dog team.

Leaving her home armed with an axe, the girl set out in the 10 below-zero weather and entered the woods south of Kirkland Lake. She followed a trail for some distance but ventured into the woods to make a better selection and lost her way in the dark.

The girl's disappearance was not reported by her father, Peter Lazarou, until 10 p.m., after the child had been gone six hours. The searchers, equipped with strong searchlights, picked up the trail within a short time for Helen had dragged the heavy axe.

When the searchers drew near, the girl called for help and she soon was safe. She was exhausted and "bushed"—terrified of the lonely silence of the dark forest.

She did not get the Christmas tree.

THREE KILLED IN ROCK SLIDE

Rescuers Locate but Have Not Yet Recovered the Bodies

Nanaimo, B.C., Dec. 23 (CP)—Officials of Canadian Collieries Ltd., today planned a full investigation into a rock slide which killed three men yesterday in the No. 4 heading of a coal mine at South Wellington, eight miles south of this Vancouver Island town.

Rescue workers have located but not yet recovered the bodies of James Gava and Chris Mills, fire boss. The body of James Waring, 42, was recovered soon after the slide occurred.

According to reports, said mine officials, a small localized explosion took place, and was followed by the rock slide which trapped the men, cramped working conditions prevented use of a large rescue crew. It was not known if all the men were killed instantly.

The men were engaged in making preparations for installation of a ventilation shaft, which slanted upward at a 65 degree angle. On Friday that shaft had been pushed to within 17 feet of the surface and it was expected to reach the ground early next week. The shaft was three-quarters of a mile from the mine heading. Although the shaft had been pushed up close to the ground it was not known exactly where the men were when the accident occurred.

ANXIETY FELT AMONG JAPANESE

United States Foreign Policy Causes Anxiety Indicated in Tokyo Press

Tokyo, Dec. 23 (AP)—Nervousness over the United States' foreign policy, which might involve Japan, through the three-power pact if it led to a break with Germany, was indicated in the press today.

A one-yen drop to 108 in the price of shares in the Tokyo Stock Exchange, a normally steady barometer, was ascribed by the financial newspaper Chugao to two developments.

One of these was a German Foreign Office spokesman's statement that Germany would consider it an unfriendly act if the United States requisitioned foreign flag ships in her ports to sell to Britain. The other was President Roosevelt's addition of 15 items to the list under the export licensing system.

The Japan Times and Advertiser, English-language paper controlled by the Foreign Office, commented that "Germany has opened a diplomatic offensive against the United States." The paper said that the German move might have greater significance than merely calling attention "to an intolerable situation" and that Germany "comes extremely close to a direct warping to keep out—or else."

FEW EX-SERVICEMEN APPLY FOR TEMPORARY WORK AT POST OFFICE

Only five applications from ex-service men were received by the local post office this season applying for temporary positions with the post office department to assist with the annual Christmas mail rush. In other years the entire temporary staff would be chosen from the ranks of ex-service men, states Postmaster Truaisch, but this year a call to Collegiate students was necessary to supply the majority of the 34 additional workers needed for the Christmas rush.

Not until Saturday did the real Christmas rush materialize at the post office, according to the postmaster. From early Saturday morning until the lobby was closed in the evening the stamp wicket was besieged by long of waiting customers.

Montreal, December 23.— At the Executive Offices of Zeller's Limited here it was stated that the Christmas bonuses to be distributed this year to salespeople in the company's twenty-seven stores, and to clerical and warehouse staffs in the stores and in Head Office will total $20,000. Distribution of this amount will be made today.

Zellers', founded in November 1931, has distributed a Christmas bonus to its employees each year since its inception.

SHOPLIFTERS ACTIVE IN CITY SATURDAY

Shoplifters were reported active in Belleville on Saturday, several cases being reported to the police and one woman apprehended. The woman caught pilfering resides some 15 miles north of Belleville and when searched at the police station she was found in possession of a dress and sweater, taken from Zeller's and a quantity of groceries admittedly taken from the A. & P. chain store. Mr. R. D. Arnott K.C., appeared in police court on the woman's behalf today and assured the court the woman, who is a widow, was in destitute circumstances.

At the Canadian Department Store a portable battery radio and two gold watches were reported stolen today. Other stores reported minor articles had been lifted from their counters, the most valuable being the radio, however.

CAKE IS WON BY JACK MURPHY

Drawing was made at the K. of C. bingo for the Christmas cake donated by Mrs. George Lee for the C.W.L. War Fund. The lucky ticket, drawn by Mr. H. C. Thompson, was that held by Jack Murphy.

NO JOBS WAITING FOR TURKEY CARVER

The transient whose eyes twinkled with a merry light applied at the local Employment Office for a job.

"What can you do, or have you a trade?" he was asked.

Again his eyes twinkled. "I'm a carver", he grinned.

Apologetically, the official told him that no vacancies for such tradesmen were open.

"It's all right", the transient smiled as he turned toward the door.

"I thought perhaps someone would need help to carve a turkey on Wednesday".

NO FIRE ALARMS OVER THE WEEKEND

All was quiet at the fire department over the week-end with no alarms for fires being turned in. The only activity entered into by firemen came as the result of a distress call from a Station Street resident who, with his family found themselves locked out of their home on Saturday night. Obliging firemen pried up the living room window to gain ingress into the home after which it was a simple matter to unlatch the front door.

GIRL GUIDES TROOP ENTERTAINS CHILDREN AT CHRISTMAS TREE

A jovial Santa Claus, huge in proportions and red of countenance, delighted 27 children of the Front of Thurlow at the Centre Street Mission on Saturday where they were the Christmas party guests of the 7th Belleville Troop, Girl Guides.

The delighted youngsters eyes aglow with anticipation, and administered with paternal care by the mammoth St. Nick, surrounded a beautiful Christmas tree, where they received handsome gifts augmented with candles and other seasonal goodies.

Twenty members of the troop under the supervision of Captain Audrey Livence, and Lieutenant Margaret Forster, looked after the wants of the children, and assisted them in a program of games. Girl Guide Commissioner, Mrs. (Dr.) Branscombe attended the function and delighted the diminutive guests, none of whom were over 7 years of age, with a Christmas story.

The party is an annual institution of No 7 troop, which is said to be one of the smartest organizations of its kind in the city. Enthusiastic members and capable officers have brought the troop to an envious status in Girl Guide circles of the city. Guides and Brownies now number 47 in this district and are expected to reach well over fifty by the New Year.

The honey had been missing for three months.

Trainees Pleased With Army Camp Life At Peterborough

Their faces alight with the glow of healthy outdoor exercise and showing other beneficial results of their brief period of life in the army, approximately forty trainees of the city and district arrived home on Saturday from the Peterborough Camp where they had spent the last thirty days learning the mysteries and other things of military training.

Entire satisfaction with the treatment received by army officers and others in charge of the training was voiced by a group of the trainees on Saturday night. "It was fine", was the consensus, "and we would not have missed it for anything".

The food was exceptionally good, they stated, "although the Friday fish could have been a bit better", but on the whole they had no complaints. The officers and non-commissioned officers treated them splendidly, and showed plenty of tolerance and patience with those trainees to whom the rudiments of army life did not come so easy.

"Sure, we'd like to go back" one of them smiled, "and if what we are told is true, it won't be so very long at that, before we are once more toting rifles, and urging the sergeant to bring our breakfasts to us in bed."

Lieut. Eric Keeler, M.C., well-known Belleville military officer, was the officer commanding the Peterborough camp while Major Hubert Jones, also well-known here, and former Indian Agent at the Tyendinaga Reserve, was the camp adjutant.

Stores and Streets Packed All Day Saturday by Shoppers Eager to Spend

Weary but smiling merchants, tired shopgirls and thousands of sagging but satisfield shoppers welcomed a pre-Christmas Sunday yesterday following one of the heaviest Saturday volumes of business done in years in the city and a day that broke all current season records.

From the surrounding districts, communities and towns, literally thousands of gift-hungry people converged on the city and its tempting array of holiday merchandise. In the afternoon Front Street was a solid phalanx of milling humanity that thronged stores and shops to capacity. The evening was practically the same although the crowd perhaps was not as large as that of the afternoon.

Parcel-laden men, women and children slowly made their way along crowded thoroughfares. They milled in department store aisles and in spacious "fronts" of other shops. It was a spending parade that eclipsed all other days of the year, Christmas or otherwise.

A steady stream of vehicular traffic wound its way in and out of the city until well after midnight. Sedate farmers and their wives mingled with their city cousins in a spending orgy that bespoke one of the jolliest Christmases experienced here in many a year. From one community residents piled into a light truck, and with the weatherman in good humor, journeyed to the city in a manner reminiscent of the good old sleigh-riding days.

In the stores merchants worked in shirt sleeves in an effort to alleviate the pressure on staffs pressed to capacity. Near closing time tired salesladies slipped shoes from aching feet to seek a temporary respite.

Deliveries were hours behind schedule due to the congestion of traffic and rush of business. Provision store clerks worked in a maze of orders, telephonic and otherwise, that kept them toiling until a late hour.

Loth to leave, the crowds lingered until nearly midnight, well after the time that shops had closed their doors and weary staffs had gone home.

The heavy volume of business was due in no small part to the influx of out-of-town dwellers. The neighboring towns, villages and communities were well represented, and judging from the well-laden automobiles that slowly wound their way out of the city last night, the visitors not only were well satisfied with what Belleville offered them in Christmas merchandise, but substantiated their satisfaction with large purchases.

And they were no respecter of shops, that is to say, they did not confine their shopping activities to one particular line of stores. Butcher shops, drug-stores, department stores, book-shops and others that go to make this city one of the most up-to-date shopping centres between Toronto and Montreal, received their share of the "visiting" business.

According to eleven o'clock appearances of provision shops, many a Christmas turkey was taken on its last journey Saturday. A treat for the eyes in the morning and early afternoon with their displays of succulent turkey, geese and chickens, shop windows showed evidences of shopping raids during the afternoon and evening. Only a few straggling gobblers and ganders showed themselves, evidence of the eagerness of residents of the city and district to celebrate the holiday in traditional style.

And two more shopping days to Christmas.

GUNFIRE EXCHANGED ACROSS THAI BORDER

Bangkok, Thailand, Dec. 23 (AP) —An exchange of heavy gunfire between Thai (Siamese) and French Indo-China batteries was reported today by the Thai High Command.

French artillery, anti-aircraft batteries, machine guns and rifles, it said, opened fire yesterday on the Thai town of Nakonpanom from Thakek, across the Indo-China border. It said the French sent over 100 shells, but "there were no casualties on our side."

Thai guns "retaliated promptly and vigorously and silenced the enemy guns," it said, "and it is believed that most of the French gun emplacements were destroyed or damaged."

4 MILLION BUS. IN ELEVATOR

Owen Sound, Ont., Dec. 23 (CP)— With 4,000,000 bushels of grain in its bins, the Great Lakes elevator here is "filled to the roof," Superintendent N. E. Heels said today. He said that another 1,600,000 bushels is stored in the holds of vessels in harbor here for the winter.

Police Blotter

District highways were free from motor accidents over the week end, according to reports from the Motorcycle Patrol Division today. In the city two minor crashes occurred over the week end with no personal injuries being sustained.

On Sunday afternoon the trailer portion of a transport driven by Y. W. Luke, Toronto, swerved as the driver applied the brakes of his vehicle on Dundas Street. The trailer portion struck a parked automobile owned by Henry Johnson, 62 James Street resulting in fender and radiator damage to the lighter vehicle.

Later in the afternoon a motor car driven south on Front Street by Miss Doris A. Mann of Trenton, was in collision with another automobile, that was being backed out of the west curb and driven by William G. Ross, 52 North Park Street. The tail-light of Mr. Ross' car punctured the fender of Miss Mann's car. The matter was amicably settled after Detective Fred Isard investigated.

Allan Wright, of 34 Hillside street, brought a pair of skates and boots, which he found on Dundas Street, to the police station. Pedestrians told Wright the skates had fallen out of a passing motor car.

Three inebriates found themselves in the clutches of the law on Saturday night after having imbibed too freely of intoxicants. Two paid fines in police court today, while the third reluctantly admitted he wasn't flush with funds and would therefore have to spend the 1940 Christmas in the jailhouse.

Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Charlton Celebrate Sixtieth Anniversary of Marriage

Congratulatory messages and felicitations for many more happy years of wedded life together were received by Mr. and Mrs. William A. Charlton of 112 Front Street, Belleville, on Sunday, December 22, as they celebrated the sixtieth anniversary of their marriage. Surrounded by members of their immediate family, their grandchildren and great grandchildren, the anniversary was marked by a happy family gathering at the home of their granddaughter, Mrs. J. W. Bray at 15 Brassey Street, where the happy couple were feted at a surprise dinner party in honor of their sixtieth anniversary.

Retired from active life for fifteen years, the couple have been residents of this city for the past 22 years, where for several years Mr. Charlton carried on his trade as a baker. Both Mr. and Mrs. Charlton claim Harrowsmith as their birthplace, being married at Sydenham, in Frontenac County, by the Rev. Lidstone of the Methodist Church on the 22nd of December, back in the year 1880. Prior to her marriage, Mrs. Charlton was Lenora Jane Caverley. Attendants at the wedding solemnized at Sydenham 60 years ago were Miss Sarah Stanford and Mr. George Barristow, childhood friends of the bride and groom from their native village at Harrowsmith.

U. E. L. Stock

Mr. Charlton is of traditional United Empire Loyalist stock and is proud of the fact that his grandfather, then a young man of only 18 years, emigrated from New England in 1818 to take up residence in Canada where he homesteaded near Harrowsmith. Mr. Charlton was engaged in farming on the old homestead until he came to Belleville 22 years ago where he became established in the baking business.

All Children Living

Six children were born to bless the union of 60 years ago, and so kind has good Fortune been to the hardy family that their ranks still remain unbroken. Four of the six children live in the Belleville district where they are a constant comfort to the happy old couple. The children residing locally are: Mr. Bert Charlton of Point Anne; Mr. Fred Charlton of Belleville; Mrs. R. L. Johnston, (Pearl), of Belleville and Mrs. E. W. Windover, (Emma) of Belleville. Two other sons, Mr. Harry Charlton and Mr. Alfred Charlton live in Western Ontario, the former at Port Colborne and the latter at Oshawa. There are eleven grandchildren and four great grandchildren. The entire family, with the exception of Alfred and Harry and their children, were present at the family gathering on Sunday to pay homage to the bride and groom of sixty years.

Although now having attained the age of 83 and 82 years respectively, both Mr. and Mrs. Charlton are still surprisingly active. They maintain their own home and still look after their own household duties at their Front St. apartment where pleasing personalities, so characteristic of the popular old couple, extend a hearty welcome to friends and acquaintances.

TWELVE KILLED IN ACCIDENTS DURING WEEKEND

Two Deaths Probably Caused by Hit-and-Run Drivers

CAR HIT BY TRAIN

(By The Canadian Press)

A diversity of causes, including an airplane crash and two cases of suspected hit-and-run tactics, brought a week-end death toll of at least 12 to Ontario.

In the Toronto area two members of the Royal Canadian Air Force, Lac. C. R. Dickie of Canning, N.S., and Temporary Sgt. R. T. Jewitt of Bondhead, Ont., suffered fatal injuries when their training plane collided with another a short distance above the ground at Malton training centre and crashed.

Dickie died soon after he was taken from the plane Saturday. Jewett died in hospital in Toronto Sunday. The propellor was broken from their plane when it struck one in which Lac. E. Freeman and Instructor C. S. Peene, both of Toronto, were attempting to land. The second plane was not seriously damaged and the occupants were unhurt.

Mrs. Jose Rozwalka, 29, of Kirkland Lake suffered fatal injuries when struck by a car. Later police arrested Edgar Walter Ryan, 28, of Kirkland Lake on charges of reckless driving and failing to remain at the scene of an accident.

Struck By Car.

Archie Smith, 40, of St. Williams, Ont., suffered fatal injuries late Saturday when he was struck by a car near Simcoe. His body was found early Sunday and police said they believed he had been victim of a hit-and-run driver.

At Camp Chippewa, near Niagara Falls, Lt. J. W. Osborne of Hamilton, a member of the Argyle and Sutherland Highlanders, was shot and killed accidentally while cleaning his revolver. No inquest will be held.

Another fatality occurred in the vicinity of Kirkland Lake when Percy Brown, 37-year-old provincial highways employee from Matheson, Ont., was caught under a snowplough. Police said Brown was explaining the mechanism to another person and the plough for some unexplained reason moved over him.

Ralph Henry, 66, Ottawa district dairy farmer was killed on a level crossing near the capital Saturday when his car was struck by a New York Central train. Icy roads were believed to have caused the car to skid in the path of the train.

Packing Case Falls On Man.

Another Ottawa fatality occurred when Hercule Bureau, 37, of Ottawa suffered fatal injuries as a result of having a heavy packing case fall on him while he was at work. He died in hospital Sunday.

Mrs. Hannah Holmes, widow of Walter Holmes, one-time police chief of Ingersoll, died Sunday of injuries received two weeks ago in a fall in her Ingersoll home.

In Port Dalhousie the body of John O. Merritt, 63, was found in his smouldering bed when firemen broke into his smoke-filled cottage Saturday. His death was attributed to suffocation.

The body of 65-year-old Norman Jackson was found hanging in the basement of his Windsor home Saturday. Police said he had complained a few hours before that he had been robbed of $75 by a woman.

In Kitchener the infant son of Mr. and Mrs. Eugene Packman was strangled in his crib Saturday. It was believed an automatic fastener on his pyamas caused the death.

Admiralty Announces Loss of Submarine

London, Dec. 23—(CP)—Loss of the submarine Swordfish was announced by the Admiralty, which said she was long overdue.

The Swordfish was credited with having torpedoed and sunk a German torpeo boat off the French coast last October.

Submarines of her type usually carry a complement of forty men and mount one 3-inch gun and six 21-inch torpedo tubes as their chief armaments. The Swordfish class was the forerunner of the successful Shark class.

The Admiralty announcement said:

"The Board of Admiralty regrets to announce that H.M. submarine Swordfish (Lieutenant M. A. Langley, D.S.C., R.N.) is overdue and must be considered lost.

"The next of kin have been informed."

The Swordfish was one of four submarines built at Chatham and completed in 1932.

The Swordfish cost about $1,000,000. In February, 1937, she struck bottom making a deep dive off Portland and lost an important piece of secret mechanism later retrieved by divers.

Lieut. Langley, while commanding the submarine H-49 last September, directed a torpedo attack on a convoy of eight supply vessels and about two weeks ago received the Distinguished Service Order for "courage, enterprise and resource during successful patrols by His Majesty's submarines."

The Swordfish is the twenty-third British submarine to be lost since the war began.

Picton and District

Picton, Dec. 23 — On Thursday, Dec. 19, twenty-one members of the P.C.V.I. Glee Club, under the direction of Miss Caughey, enjoyed a visit with the folk at the County Home for about an hour immediately after the evening meal. Seven Christmas carols were sung by the club and an organ selection was rendered by Ruth Kelson and a vocal solo by Helen Yarwood. The occasion proved to be a very happy one for both the visitors and the residents of the home.

The students and staff of the P. C. V. I. contributed this month the sum of $22, which was sent to the Navy League of Canada. This sum will be used to assist the league with its war services to the sailors and especially to provide a happy Christmas for the men who are on duty Christmas eve.

The Junior Red Cross is sending twenty pounds of mixed nuts to assist the men at the local Bombing and Gunnery School celebrate Christmas Day.

A medal forwarded by the Department of National Defence Cadet Services and made available through the Strathcona Trust was presented Friday to Charles Spencer who was the best scorer in rifle shooting for the past year in the P.C.V.I. cadet corps. He obtained an average of over 79 on the year's shooting.

The following students have become members of the 75 per cent club at the Collegiate by virtue of their high standing on the fall term examinations:

Grade IX. A—Maxcile Bongard.

Grade IX. B—Dorothy Knapman.

Grade IX. C—Glendon Vancott, Jack Walmsley, Roberta Williams, Jean Matthie.

Grade X. M — Eric Scott, Mary Garvin, Jean Saunders, Rebecca Brittain, Jean Hubbs.

TWO SPIES SHOT TO SMASH PLOT

Also Revealed in Rome Twenty-Two Others, Including Two Women, Imprisoned

Rome, Dec. 23 (AP).—The execution of two men as spies and the imprisonment of twenty-two others, two of them women, revealed Italian efforts to smash an alleged "network of informers" which some observers thought today might have been related to the damaging British raid on Taranto naval base Nov. 11.

Aurelio Cocozza, described as an impostor traveling salesman of Taranto, and Francesco Ghezzi, a naval officer, were shot by a firing squad at dawn yesterday, only a few hours after they were condemned and before any official announcement of the trial was made.

In another week-end development, Virginio Gayda, Fascist editorial voice, suggested the possibility of "complications" with the Rome-Berlin-Tokyo axis should the United States permit belligerents' merchant ships now refuged in her harbors to fall into British hands.

Acted For Foreign Power Claim.

"It could not be imagined that these more or less clandestine North American interventions in the war would continue in the long run without complications with reference to the three power pact of Berlin," Gayda wrote in the newspaper La Voce d'Italia.

Those who stood trial for spying were "members of a network of informers which acted in our country in the interest of a foreign power," the government said. Only three of the 27 persons tried were acquitted.

Another naval officer, the employee of a naval construction firm and the latter's wife were sentenced to prison for life. The others convicted were given shorter terms.

The Italian magazine Rassegna Italiana expressed belief yesterday that the Vichy government is plotting with Gen. Charles de Gaulle, leader of Free French forces, to reunite French African territories for resistance to "any eventual foreign intervention".

S. T. H. Cheese Factory Receives $26,232.99 From Sale of Cheese

Sidney Town Hall Cheese Company benefited to the extent of $2,288.74 in bonus money on high grade cheese during the 1940 season it was revealed to patrons at their annual meeting held last Friday. Bonus money paid to patrons amounted to 2 1-4 cents for every pound of butter fat sent to the factory.

The financial statement issued by the factory officials shows that the total milk processed for the season was 2,382,291 pounds, from which was manufactured 195,270 pounds of cheese, showing that an average of 12.02 pounds of milk was required to make one pound of cheese. Total money received from sales of cheese amounted to $26,232.99, while money paid patrons totalled $22,291.22, axeraging $30.22 per standard of milk shipped.

The average price received for cheese was 13.53 cents per pound and the average price for butter was 20.02 cents. The average test for the factory was 3.24.

Mr. William Holmes was re-elected president and Clem H. Ketcheson as Secretary-Treasurer for the 1941 season.

BRITAIN BATTLES FOR INTERNATIONAL GOODWILL

The Christmas festival draws near. In Canadian homes there will be all the elements which contribute to the celebration of the season which marks the birthday of Christ whose influence has moulded history as no other event has done. This influence is founded on truth, the moral law, and it will continue to mould life to better the human race. On Wednesday the spontaneous joy of the children will touch their elders and this child spirit is a foretaste, an index, it is so earnestly hoped by man, of the better society and world of the future.

But people cannot forget at this time that war rages. The British peoples are fighting to destroy the power of the two dictators and their governments which have broken the peace of the world for Nazism and Fascism are the very opposite of the goodwill which the Christmas anniversary proclaims as the ideal of life and humanity. Canadians are pleased that they are part of the British race which battles for the high ideals against the forces of darkness represented by the two dictators. Canadians can rejoice too in the knowledge that the British with their Allies are carrying out the principle of goodwill among men and that they have given Christmas its due place in life. They do not forget that Canadian boys and men are serving in the armies of the Empire and the thought of these brave men will ever be in the hearts of those who celebrate in Canada on Christmas Day. Canadians are proud that Canada has taken her part to make possible the victory which will assure liberty and the continuance of sacred institutions. On this day the thought will be of gratitude that the outlook is one of firm confidence and of assurance of victory of Britain and the Allies over the agents of evil and destruction.

The prayers of Canadian families will be with the men abroad. The stout people of England will be remembered on this day as they stand ready to defend all the treasures of the civilization they developed and possess Britons grateful for Christmas though their celebration is restricted from what it would be under conditions of peace. Canadians know as Britishers know the righteousness of the cause for which the Empire is fighting is their justification and know that after the struggle, the forces of darkness will be removed. In the knowledge that their hearts are right and just, they carry on and celebrate Christmas in the army, in the navy and in the air force, in the retreats in the country and in the shelters and tubes. They hold firm to their institutions and the Christmas heritage in the presence of war, though the celebration is restrained by war's influence. Observance of Christmas in these strained days with the underlying thought of war makes the realization more intense that right must prevail and will prevail through the devotion of a great people.

The festival of Christmas will strengthen the hearts of the people, its gladness will intensify their resolve to preserve all those things they hold most dear.

BRITISH PLANE PRODUCTION GROWS

British production of warplanes proceeds with an accelerating pace, Lord Beaverbrook stated the other day. In spite of German raids and the attempts to bomb airplane factories and to break down the working population of England the factories go on with their work and the workers are not terrorized. This is the fine achievement of the people that more planes were turned out in November than in October, more in the first week in December than in the last week of November, more in the second week of December than in the first, and so on. The British have triumphed and are triumphing over difficulties.

This is one of the facts standing out clearly after the efforts the Huns have made. Another is the sublime self-possession of the British people.

SHIPS OF ROYAL NAVY IN ADRIATIC

Not an Italian warship was seen to contest the British fleet's entry into the Adriatic Sea last week. Through the Strait of Otranto the British passed and dealt a terrific blow at the Albanian port of Valona in a bombardment with nearly one hundred tons of bombs.

The Adriatic is vital to Italy in this war of her picking with Greece but the signs are clear that Mussolini's machinery of war is weakening and that her communications are in very bad shape. The situation of the Italians in Albania will be watched with interest for communications are essential for the maintenance of an army.

Italy's Fascists have made in the past few years much noise with their claims of the Mediterranean as "Our Sea." But the Adriatic is also essential to Italy for a large share of her coastline is on this sea and it is her eastern boundary.

Britain, unchallenged in the Mediterranean, is now also unchallenged in the lower Adriatic at least.

The course of events since Mussolini decided to invade Greece has been a series of the most effective blows by both Greeks and by British. Britain has effected a powerful striking force which is shattering Italy's effectiveness. The crushing defeats of Mussolini in Egypt and their repetition in eastern Libya show how effectively Britain has used her various services for a united effect against the dictator's army, navy and air force. Coordination of the British has been perfect.

The battle of the Mediterranean is one of the great events of the war. This is being waged with outstanding success by Britain even though she has to keep watch at home and on the ocean.

The effectiveness of the blows against Italy have changed and are changing the course of the war, particularly as regards the Near East.

SONG FOR THE GERMAN PEOPLE

A. P. Herbert, in London Daily Graphic

"Our Fuehrer first acquired the Czechs:
They hang like chains about our necks,
Our Fuehrer then destroys the Poles;
May God have mercy on our souls!
Our Fuehrer next annexed the Danes;
And he is still collecting chains.
Our Fuehrer has subdued the Dutch:
But that does not delight us much.
We have the Belgians, too; but then,
We have the hate of God and men.
The French, they say, are in retreat;
But we have not enough to eat.
He can make Europe, if he please
A continent of refugees.
But still with every forward stride,
He digs our grave more deep and wide."

Invasion Threat Holds No Terror For the British

(By KIRKE L. SIMPSON.)

Washington, Dec. 23.—Winter has come astronomically for Europe and with it phophecies from London that a triple-fronted German attempt to finish off Britain will be launched—and defeated — before spring burgeons.

Prime Minister Churchill has supported that prediction. He told Parliament that to offset waning German-Italian Axis war fortunes Hitler "must do something now, or at any rate within two months."

It seems fantastic to assume that Hitler's High Command could assent to a winter invasion schedule except in desperation. The risks are great, the seasonal advantages few.

The longest night of the year is that of Dec. 21-22. From now on the nights will slowly shorten and the days lengthen until June.

Long nights admittedly permit bombing with minimized losses for the attackers; but also with greatly increased bombing inaccuracy. Britain has endured months of night attack with no hint of weakening.

Surprise Not Likely

A winter sea invasion by the Germans, unless bombing had already smashed British morale, would hold less terror for Britain than did the invasion threats of last summer and fall. British Channel scouting in three dimensions, air, surface and sub-surface, has been perfected to a fine art by six months of practice. That a barge-carried Nazi army could land in substantial force without detection by night or day seems wholly improbable.

Churchill warned that breathing spells for London or the rest of Britain from heavy Nazi night bombing raids might be merely in prepartion for a greater air assault. That is possible.

It is also possible that the breathing spells are due to present Nazi difficulties of supplying fuel oil and gasoline for U-boat and air fleets and at the same time storing reserves at French, Netherland, Belgian and Norwegian attack bases. Those difficulties will increase, not lessen, in the month just ahead.

The Danube's 1,750-mile waterway that threads East and West Europe together is Germany's main route for transportation of Rumanian oil. In winter it is iced and closed for many weeks the same weeks when by British forecast it would be most vitally needed to sustain a Nazi all-out attack on Britain.

Transportation Dangerous

Concentrated bombing of Nazi air and U-boat bases on the invasion coast and of critically important rail junctions deep into Germany has marked British strategy. To what extent Nazi oil supplies have been hampered can only be conjectured, but beyond doubt it has done some damage.

In December, January, February and March the North Sea and English Channel are normally turbulent. Crossing them to England with thousands of troops and heavy war gear jammed into low, freeboard, open barges would be difficult, even unopposed.

There is an odd perhaps significant parallel between the forecasts of a Nazi winter-spring offensive now and the last winter of the first Great War. Then, in late 1917, the cables from Europe hummed for months with forecasts of a final German break-through attempt in France in the spring.

It came on March 18, 1918, against the British Fifth Army, the hinge of the Franco-British battle line. It stabbed deeply, wringing a backs-to-the-wall order from the British commander, Earl Haig, before it was halted.

Eight months later Germany surrendered.

The Galley Fleets

(By FRANK C. BOWEN)

In the names of Galley Quay in the Pool of London—Galley Dock has long since disappeared — and Galley Hill at Greenhithe survive memories of the annual visits of Italian galley fleets with wine and other commodities which were once a feature of London River.

Wine and other luxuries from Italy reached London during the Roman occupation but later the trade almost disappeared. Such small amount as survived the evacuation in the fifth century came overland for many years. It was too small to be of serious consequence until the enterprise of the maritime republics started the galley trade. From both the commercial and sociological viewpoint the trade was of great importance.

Both Genoa and Venice sent their galleys to London, but the Venetian Fleet was by far the more prominent. Venice was founded among practically impenetrable lagoons by refugees from Adriatic pirates, and the prosperity of the republic developed but slowly until it was able to hire its galley fleet for trooping services to the Crusades. The Venetians were accused of gross profiteering for this service but through it they were able to establish sound commercial relations with Northern Europe. In the year 1202 Venice agreed with Baldwin, Count of Flanders, to replace the caravan which crossed Europe by an annual fleet of galleys via the Straits of Gibraltar. Soon afterwards these Flanders galleys became the Venetian State Fleet, controlled by the Doge and the Council of Ten, with every shrewd precaution taken to prevent individual members of the Council using the ships for private gain. The first division to London was in or about the year 1317.

The trading ships were more roomy than the purely fighting galleys of the time and as their length ran up to something like 200 feet they had to be very carefully built. Some of the Venetian galleys were constructed in the historic arsenal in the city under the same supervision as the fighting galleys, savage punishments being inflicted for skimped work. The craft built at Genoa were famous for their strength and long life, due not only to the workmanship but also to the study by the Genoese of the right time and the right circumstances for cutting the timber—a practice laughed at as mere superstition until only a few years ago.

The Mediterranean trading galleys all seem to have been carvedbuilt. Although the steering-oar was a traditional fitting in a galley, those coming to London seem to have been given big rudders fastened right under the keel, which were far more suitable for the passage across the Bay of Biscay. Oars were the principal means of propulsion; but all the galleys appear to have been rigged with three masts, each carrying a big lateen sail. The details of these changed; in the earlier types the masts were of decreasing size, the tallest one forward. Later the small after mast was moved forward and the galleys had the same arrangement as the normal sailing ship, the tallest mast being amidships.

The Galley Fleet was led by a Commodore or Admiral of the Fleet, who in the Venetian venture was under the very strict control of the Council of Ten. He was often the recipient of magnificent gifts from the foreign sovereigns and merchants with whom he came into contact, but as soon as the Fleet reached home all had to be surrendered to the Council, to be sold for the common weal. Each galley carried a supercargo, or magnifico as he was called, a lawyer, a writer, a surgeon and a priest. One of the principal officers was the pilot and there was a considerable body of archers as a guard. Tumblers and musicians were always included, not only for the amusement of the crew, but to attract attention in foreign ports. All the youths of good family in the Venetian Republic had to serve an apprenticeship in the galleys.

All the rowers in the trading fleet would appear to have been free men, not slaves, although to secure slaves for their fighting galleys the Italians were just as ready to raid Arab territory as the Mohammedans raided Christian. The bigger vessels would carry nearly 200 rowers apiece. There were no puzzling banks of oars, even the biggest galley had only one row with a big apostis or outrigger outside the hull.

The regular voyage to the North would last more than a year, for the magnificos carried out operations all round the Mediterranean coasts on the way out, so that by the time London was reached a large proportion of the Venetian products had been exchanged for currants, sugar, spices, silks, confectionery and other products of the Mediterranean. Amongst the highly valued goods traded in exchange was West Country cloth, but prosperity ruined the producers and the cloth lost its reputation.

The routine was for the fleet to make its landfall at Rye on the borders of Kent and Sussex, where one galley was sent inshore to anchor and bring off the latest information to the flagship. The Flanders section parted company and the remainder sailed according to the advices received. The Commodore generally brought the main part of the fleet to London.

Vasco da Gama's discovery of the Cape route to the East, with its possibility of bringing spices to Europe in colossal quantity, immediately ruined the galleys' principal business. The Genoese straightway took to the galleasse, a hybrid type which attempted to retain the advantages of the galley while making the most of the seaworthiness and carrying capacity of the sailing vessel. After trying hard to retain the old system for some years, Venice attempted to follow suit. It was too late; by the new route the deep-sea English sailors could do their own carrying and the last Venetian fleet completed its voyage in the summer of 1532.

It cannot be pretended that the galley men were popular in London, although they were not hated as bitterly as were the Germans who maintained an almost independent State in the Hanseatic headquarters in the Steelyard. They were too inclined to take liberties with the womenfolk, were very ready with the knife, and had their own peculiar methods of gambling. Galley Quay and Galley Dock were in the heart of the City of London, so that brawls between the Londoners and the galley crews were brought right under the noses of the authorities. That caused the Council of Ten to pass a law that they should not go further upstream than Greenhithe, where the name Galley Hill still perpetuates the order. The excuse was that the men would be saved the temptations of London, but the reason was rather to prevent their unpopularity affecting their employers' trade. Deprived of its original business, Galley Quay was one of the first of the legal quays established in Queen Elizabeth's day. —P. L. A. Monthly.

'Mr. H. Is Only Piling Up the Bill'

The following letter to a Montreal doctor, from a British colleague who was a comrade-in-arms in 1914-18, speaks volumes of how the civilians of Britain are standing the burdens of blitzkrieg:

Addlestone, 17th November.

My dear—:

We are told to post early so I hope that I am in time for this to reach you by the festive (?) season and that you and yours may have as jolly a time as is possible these days and that 1941 may bring to us all better and happier days. Excuse the size of the paper, but you will see how careful we are being! I wish they were as careful in other things.

I am not going to say anything about the war generally for you know from the wireless and the press as much really as I do, as I am almost an hermit now, seeing very few people and doing nothing but trying to keep my little home going. For the first year of the war I tried hard to get a job, but at last got tired. The same reply: "Too old over 60." Even the Home Guard would not have me, so I have given up hope and am a looker on, my contribution being "To pay and try and make a penny do a shilling's job."

We have a lot to be thankful for, however, we are well, still in the land of the living, and have a roof over our heads. What more can one want. But we have had some exciting times and probably still have many more in front of us. This little shack is only 20 miles from Hyde Park Corner and we seem to be on a thoroughfare of Mr. Jerry's, although we are supposed to be a safe area. We have some five or six alarms per diem as a rule, and regular nightly visitors, some 50-odd bombs having found their mark in our little village, but so far not a casualty and the nearest to us about 300 yards. A few cottages have been damaged.

We stand right on the top of a hill with a wide view all round, and at nights it is a wonderful sight and reminds me very vividly of the old Western Front when a straff was on. The canopy of searchlights, the flares, bursting shells and bombs on poor old London and in the neighborhood if it was not for its tragedy would be a wonderful sight, and we stand and watch it for long periods. We have had exciting moments, too, with dogfights right over us, and once or twice I have been anxious about the chimney pots.

Jack-in-the-Box Existence Scorned

We have no dugout or funk hole. What is the use of them here? Unless one lived in them it would be a sort of a jack-in-the-box existence if one went to ground every time the warning goes, and the attacks by dive bombers etc., come so suddenly, and are over so suddenly, one hasn't time to take shelter. So we just go out onto our stoop and watch the fun, and it is exciting.

A warning is sounding now at this moment as I type—our nightly visitors in the offing. One can almost set one's watch by them. Yes, (I stopped for a moment to listen) there is the familiar drone and he sounds a bit low too. On his way to the old city, but that is about all the notice one takes.

Life goes on just the same, and if Mr. H thinks he is going to win the war by this kind of warfare—well, he has made the biggest mistake in his life. It is only making the old Lion a bit more angry and the settlement all the more severe. I have been up to London three or four times of late (I go again tomorrow) and no doubt the poor old city is being knocked about a bit. But London still stands. The crowds go about their daily tasks in the same old way, traffic jams, etc., and in a casual way you would see little change. But of course you do come across complete blocks simply a charred mass, churches flat, squares — well, they were once, but now rubbish heaps. And if you look carefully you will find few houses with complete windows. My brother's flat got it and every window smashed. But if you stand at the end of Bond Street or Piccadilly, or any of those main thoroughfares, and look down them the view is as one has always known.

One of the peculiarities is the way some houses have been completely cut out as if it were from the adjacent house just as if a builder had removed it, the wall or 'party wall' of the houses on either side being untouched, the fronts and back being blown out it seems. Of course I have only seen those parts I know best and they are not the worst. City wards and the East End have had it worst, streets in places having disappeared. But everyone is smiling, and it will take a good deal more to break the Britisher. Mr. H. is only piling up the bill.

My wife has been the busy one in my family. From the word go she has done the clock round daily almost with evacuation and billeting in this area. I hardly ever see her. Out day and night in all weathers, but she is better in health than I have ever known her. No time to think of ailments!

I expect that you are a busy man these days—not that you were not before, but this grand work Canada is doing is beyond all praise and we all thank you from the bottom of our hearts. I only wish we were fighting side by side again, you and I, I mean.—Montreal Gazette.

THAT BODY OF YOURS

How Stomach and Duodenal Ulcer Can be Prevented

A couple of years ago a man 60 years of age suffered with severe bleeding from a stomach ulcer. He was rushed to hospital and after three blood transfusions he recovered sufficiently to return to his home. He faithfully followed a prescribed diet and at the end of a couple of months looked and felt so well that the surgeon stated that he thought he would operate in another couple of months.

The patient was astonished that operation should be advised as he had never felt better in his life and had never before been up to the correct weight for his height and build.

"Why should I undergo operation when I am so well?" The surgeon explained to him that practically all stomach ulcer patients would at some time be where they could not obtain the ulcer diet, would eat some irritating food and hemorrhage (bleeding) would occur.

"Well, couldn't I get another couple of transfusions and come around all right?"

The surgeon explained further that after the age of 60, patients did not respond very well to transfusions and another hemorrhage would likely cost him his life.

"If I follow the diet will I be safe?"

"If you follow the diet, and avoid emotional upsets, you should not require operation".

It is now over two years since the patient began following the diet, has never varied from it once, lives a quiet life that keep him busy but does not call for any severe mental or physical effort.

In other words, this man with a tendency to grow stomach ulcers, prevents any growth of ulcer and any chance of hemorrhage by faithfully following instructions.

Dr. Samuel Morein, Providence, R.I., in Medical World, gives some very helpful advice to those with a tendency to ulcer. The patient should be warned that neglect to follow instructions will not only bring a return of the ulcer but may cause dangerous complications. He must avoid mental and physical strain, infections, overeating and any chance in the prescribed diet. He should bear in mind the importance of a peaceful mind and rested body to good digestion.

The thought, then, for those with a tendency to ulcer, is that they can avoid ulcer and prevent operation by following these simple instructions.

What is The Guess?

Sir Evelyn and Lady Wrench, according to a dispatch from Portland, Oregon, are engaged in a good-natured guessing contest as to when the present war will end. Sir Evelyn, publisher of The London Spectator, has predicted that hostilities will be concluded by Easter 1943. He is a man who has been in a position to observe a great deal of Britain's war effort and, therefore, his prediction deserves serious consideration.

However, his wife disagrees with him, and predicts that the war will be over by this time next year. On the surface, one might conclude that Lady Wrench was simply disagreeing with her husband for the fun of an argument, but when it is realised that Lady Wrench is the sister of Sir Alan Brooke, commander-in-chief of Great Britain's Home Forces, it puts a far different complexion on her guess.

If anyone else would like to enter this interesting competition, the way is now clear. Step right up and write your predictions on the calendar.—Whig Standard.

The Story They Tell

(London Spectator)

How far the average German believes his own newspapers is a question there is means of answering. It is not unimportant, because national morale in Germany must depend to some extent on current beliefs about the situation in Great Britain. Take, in that connection, this from the Munich Neueste Nachrichten, which was once a perfectly respectable paper:

> Telephonic communication between London and the provinces is prohibited. Children are running distraught about the streets searching for their parents, a spectacle which recalls the worst period of the Bolshevist revolution. All cinemas have been shut since September. Epidemics are raging, the severe weather making it impossible to check them.

If that were true Germans might well be forgiven for thinking victory was just round the corner and supporting their Government as unreservedly as ever. And if they really believe it true, that comes to much the same thing. It is hard, moreover, to see how the Ministry of Information or anyone else can get the truth into Germany. Conceivably Americans might help.

"Noises and Faces"

By Garry Cleveland Myers, Ph.D.

"Dear Dr. Myers: I wish you could advise me in regard to my son. He is twelve years old and makes at times the most peculiar noises and faces. I have been scolding him for years to stop doing these things but it doesn't help. . . .

"What would you advise me is the reason that he makes these noises and faces?"

My reply:

"It is easy to see that you have been annoyed by the 'noises and faces' your boy makes. Did it ever occur to you how much he has been annoyed by you? I am not scolding you, Mrs. ——. I'm just trying to help you understand your child's problem. Bless you, he does not do these things to vex you. He does them because he is a very nervous child, a sick child. If you consult your doctor, he will doubtless tell you so.

"You see, the more you are irritated at his nervous expressions the more nervous he becomes. Think how discouraged he must feel as you nag at him for doing what he is sure he can't keep from doing.

Discipline Yourself

"In order to quit harming your boy and turn to helping him, you will first have to change yourself. You will have to discipline yourself to show no emotion whatsoever over his 'noises and faces'. You will be able to do this best as you learn to put yourself in your imagination into your boy's place and feel a little as he feels. It may take you some weeks to arrive at such self-mastery.

"Once you do you not only will say nothing to him about his 'noises and faces', you also will say nothing with your hands, feet, body, face or breathing organs. Instead, you will, in his presence, assume an air of all is well. To this end you will rest more and have more relaxation, letting many things about the house go if necessary. A week or two away from home may be required for you to regain complete composure. With your self-mastering should come similar self-mastery from other members of the family and relatives and close friends. When serene yourself and alone with him, put your arm around him and show him some affection.

Program of Relaxation

"The second part of your campaign should centre on deriving a program of more relaxation for the boy. Hold him rigidly to regular hours of sleep. During the summer he should lie down and be quiet for 1 1-2 hours each afternoon. You might help calm him then by reading some to him. Also he should play out of doors but never to the point of excessive fatigue. A few weeks in a summer camp might help him.

"Until you see marked improvement, keep him from the movies entirely. Forbid his listening to exciting radio programs indefinitely".

Advice to the Lovelorn

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

Husband Plays up to Other Girls

Dear Miss Fairfax:

I am 23 years old, married and have two children. My husband is a year older than I am. But I'm not very happy, for every girl he meets he plays-up to. He has been going to the movies every week. Three or four times in the past couple of years he has taken me with him, but the rest of the time I stay at home with the children.

My own mother lives only a few miles away, but I've been to see her only three times since I've been married. His mother lives near us and whenever I go out with my husband, she goes too, and always picks a quarrel. My husband takes her part, and then she asks me why I married him, and that I should be content to stay home with the children.

I don't want to tell my friends about my troubles, because they all advised me against marrying him in the first place. He's even ashamed to take his own child in his arms when another girl is around.

He and his mother are taking a trip and I have to stay at home. When I said I was afraid to stay alone, he said he would get my mother to stay with me. Also he's going to take his automobile which I seldom get a chance to use.

So Unhappy

It would be too unkind to tell this poor child that she married too young and that her husband is apparenly a spoiled boy with no knowledge of the responsibilities which come with being a husband and father. A woman in her position is always happier if she is able to earn a little money on the side which would make her feel more independent.

One of my correspondents wrote that she made a little money every week by darning and patching stockings and clothes.

Talk it over with your friends, whether or not they advised against marrying this man. Perhaps they may have some suggestions to make in regard to getting a job somewhere, if you can leave your children with your mother while you are at work.

Who Writes First?

Dear Miss Fairfax:

I spent a week-end with a friend of mine in another town. There I met a very nice young man who asked if I would correspond with him. I thought it would be nice to do so, but I'm wondering who must write the first letter. We're in the early twenties. He was very attentive to me.

Jane.

Since you were the one who visited, it would be all right if you wrote just a short note to the boy, thanking him for making your visit so pleasant. Then you might add a word or two about something in your home town. He'll probably answer; if he doesn't nothing further is necessary.

Dr. Dafoe's Column on the Quintuplets and the Care of Your Children

Boils

When I was a youngster I used to think that boils were more or less a mark of holiness. I guess I got the idea from the Biblical story of Job. But since I've grown up and became a practitioner of medicine I've found that a person doesn't have to be as holy as Job to suffer from a dandy crop of boils.

Boils are an infection of the skin or of the tissue underlying the skin and they are caused by pus organisms that are nearly always of the staphylococcic group. They have many causes such as uncleanliness, excess sweating, friction, dampness. Anemia will sometimes cause them, so will chronic alcoholism, diabetes or dyspepsia. Often the nature of a person's work tends to induce boils in some individuals. I know this is true of people who work in tar and oil factories.

Boils are usually much more painful than they are serious. Still a man can get into pretty bad shape if he has a couple of clusters of boils, particularly if they happen to be situated in such a place that he can't sit down, or move about without hurting them. They are serious only when a person attempts to doctor a boil, squeezes it out under unsterile circumstances, and causes infection to set in; or where a crop of boils indicates a basic disorder such as diabetes.

Af course, the last thing you should do is attempt to squeeze out a boil yourself. Even worse is to attempt to lance it or let out the pus with a pin or a needle. That is just asking for trouble in the form of infection. In fact, scientists believe today that when boils or pimples about the nose or upper lip become infected, they often lead to meningitis or brain abcess.

About the best home relief I know for boils is hot wet compresses of boric acid, or epsom salts. The heat relieves the pain, and the moisture with the heat softens the point of the boil so it can break and drain itself out.

I know there are many home remedies for boils such as soap and sugar poultices. I remember one man who had a spectacular way of draining a boil. He would fill a bottle with steam, driving out most of the air, then he would clamp the bottle over the boil and wait for the bottle to cool. As it did, a vacuum was induced in the bottle and literally pulled the boil out by the roots. The risks of infection in such a treatment as this are too obvious to need any discussion.

Thick salves or ointments shouldn't be spread on a boil. They only hinder healing by interfering with the proper drainage of the infected area.

If you have a bad boil, see your doctor. He will advise you on what treatment to give it, and when it has come to a head, he will make an incision and remove the diseased and dead tissue. If you are bothered by a series of boils, then the doctor will inquire into the cause. He may change your mode of living so as to remove the cause of the boils. He certainly will advocate adequate rest, exercise, frequent bathing, fresh air, a regular routine of eating and sleeping, perhaps a tonic. Often the use of vaccines is effective in combatting a plague of boils.

GOOD MANNERS

MRS. CORNELIUS BEECKMAN

DINNER PROBLEMS

Dear Mrs. Beeckman

These questions I am asking may seem idiotic, I am sure, but I need help and you seem so friendly and understanding about it all. Will you help me, please?

1.—Who sits in the arm chair at the dinner table, the mother or the father?

2.—When a meal is served from the dinner table, does the host begin by serving the meat first, or does the hostess begin the serving from her end of the table?

3.—Who sits at the head of the table—the man or the woman?

4.—When you have only coffee should the coffee be served with the main dinner or with the dessert?

S.

1.—Usually, if there are arm chairs at all in the dining-room set of chairs, there are two, one for hostess and one for the host. If there is only one, it probably would be assigned to the hostess. But there is no rule about this, and if she doesn't like an arm chair at table, she may assign it to "Father". It's really a question of choice.

2.—The host begins the serving, by carving and serving the meat at his end of the table. Then, if the vegetables, and so forth, are at his end of the table, he serves these next. If they are to be served at the hostess' end of the table, he passes the plate with the meat on it, and the hostess adds the other food items of the course. The idea to remember is that, in serving, we serve the food items of a course in the order of their importance to the course: first, the meat, then the vegetables, and then any accessories, such as mint jelly for lamb, and last the bread or toast.

3.—The hostess sits at the "head" of the table, and the host opposite her, at the "foot".

4.—Coffee is served according to the preference of the household. At an informal family dinner it may be served during the main course, if that is the family's choice, or with or after the dessert. The more gracious table-service is for the hostess to bring in or have brought in, the coffee service, placed either before her place at table, or on a serving-table on her right, and served from there.

Best of all, most charming, leisurely and appropriate for informal and for formal service, is the serving of the after-dinner coffee in the living-room. It's no trouble at all, and is a gracious gesture. The tray, complete with the coffee pot, sugar bowl, cream pitcher (if you wish to serve cream) and after dinner coffee cups, is brought in, placed on the coffee-table or any other convenient table, and the hostess pours the coffee and passes the cups to the guests. A member of the family may pass the cups of coffee. With life so hurried these days, it is the wise hostess who captures and capitalizes this leisurely and gracious hour.

GRACIOUS GESTURE

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

I am to be married next month and there are a few details I need help with.

1. Should shower gifts be acknowledged as well as wedding gifts?

2. If so, is ordinary correspondence paper correct, or should I get smaller cards?

3. If the person is present at more than one shower, should that person receive two thank you notes?

W.

1. Yes, the gracious bride-to-be writes a note of thanks to each friend who gives her a gift at a shower. Since she will, of course, express her thanks at the shower when she opens the gifts, these follow-up thank-you notes needn't be long, but they must be enthusiastic, appreciative.

2. You may use your regular letter-paper for these notes. Or, if you are planning to buy special note-paper, I suggest that you supply yourself with semi-note paper, the half size, double-sheeted paper that is so especially convenient for using for just this kind of notes. This is better than using cards.

3. Yes. She gave you two or more presents and should, therefore, receive a thank-you note for each present.

Courtesy Tip

When you sign a check, don't use a title—Mrs., Mr. or Miss—before your name.

2,000 Blood Donors Weekly Objective of Red Cross Society

'Blood Bank' Will be Sufficient to Provide for 20,000 Casualties

WILL STORE BLOOD

Ottawa, Dec. 23 (CP)—The Canadian Red Cross Society soon will appeal for 2,000 blood donors weekly to build up a store of human blood for transfusion to war casualties.

Pensions Minister Mackenzie announced last night that his department has arranged a program for building up a "blood bank" with sufficient supplies to provide for 20,000 casualties.

"It is not doubted that the required number of Canadians will be found willing and eager to make this notable contribution towards saving the lives of Canadian and British soldiers and civilians wounded by enemy action," Mr. Mackenzie's statement said.

The minister said the plan was made possible by improved blood-storing methods "developed by Canadian scientists." The research was initiated by the National Research Council's Associate Committee on Medical Research.

Treatment and storage would be carried out at Connaught Laboratories of the University of Toronto. Professor C. H. Best, "foremost in this work in Canada," would remain in charge of the blood bank already operating there on a small scale.

Dried to Powder Form

The storage solution found by Canadian scientists is based upon separating the blood cells and drying the plasma or serum, sometimes both, to powder form, Mr. Mackenzie said. The powder keeps indefinitely in vacuum glass flasks.

The Canadian Red Cross Society has already initiated "on a small scale" a blood storage plan in Toronto and vicinity, to help build up a quantity of the dried product for the National Defense Department.

"For the needs of the Defence Department, 500 donors weekly are required," the minister said. "For the broader needs of providing a store of the dried serum or plasma for used in Canada and Great Britain, it is estimated that 2,000 donors (instead of 500) weekly will be required."

Mr. Mackenzie's statement said the Red Cross Society had undertaken to organize the blood donors for the new program.

Gov't to Pay for Equipment

The Dominion Government will pay for the needed equipment by a grant to the University of Toronto. Funds also will be provided to meet operation and maintenance expenses involved in processing blood "for distribution by the Department of Pensions and National Health for air raid precautions among civilians in Canada and overseas."

The Red Cross has indicated its willingness to appropriate $25,000 of its funds to organize donor services "all across Canada."

Carols Sung in City Churches, Candle-Light Services Held

A devout Belleville laid aside temporarily the exigencies of business and other temporal things on Sunday and large congregations crowded the churches of the city in commemoration of the Birth of our Saviour.

The majestic thunder of mighty organs augmented sweet choral voices in the beautiful music of Christmas carols and anthems at both morning and evening services.

Singularly impressive were the candle-light services held in many of the churches. The glow of tapers reaching high into the auditoriums provided a perfect setting for the Christmas devotions.

Bridge Street United Church

Two largely attended candle-light services were held in Bridge Street United Church on Sunday evening, the first the regular service and the second beginning at eight-thirty in aid of the Red Cross fund, forty dollars being the amount of the collection. Rev. Dr. Semple presided. Appropriately arranged candles created an impressive scene as Mr. Alec Gordon at the organ played the "Hansel and Gretel" prelude, the choir sang as from afar "Silent Night" and Mr. Bankier rendered a passage from "The Messiah." The processional carol "I Saw Three Ships" was sung as the choir directed by Miss Leona Riggs proceeded up the aisles each chorister carrying a lighted candle. Carols of great variety were sung effectively. The offertory number was "March of the Magi". The men's choir sang "Holy Night" and the ladies' choir rendered the prayer from "Hansel and Gretel" and "E'er the World." The congregation sang Christmas hymns. Then after the recessional the organ played "Fanfare in D" by Bridge.

At the morning service Mrs. G. H. Stobie sang a solo very effectively.

Tabernacle Church

Melodic violin solos by Dr. A. C. Locke featured the candle-light service at Tabernacle Church, while solos by Messrs. George Wishart, Belleville and Grant Maiden, Trenton, augmented a beautiful musical worship. The sermons at both morning and evening services were preached by the Rev. D. T. McClintock.

Emmanuel Church

The tuneful chanting of white-robed choir boys was heard as they applied lights to tapers arranged along the aisles. Appropriate poems were read by the minister during the lighting of the candles while a special musical feature was the rendition of the junior choir of "Silent Night." The minister preached a short but forceful sermon on "Christmas."

Victoria Avenue Baptist Church

The glorious voice of John Deacon, heard in Van De Water's Christmas song "Night of Nights" featured impressive Yuletide services at Victoria Avenue Baptist Church. A melody of Christmas carols featured the Christmas music especially arranged by Mr. and Mrs. Deacon. The Fox sisters, Jean, Verna, Georgina and Jessie were heard in a lovely quartette, "The First Noel," while beginners and primary class students added to the musical festival. The Rev. C. T. Olmstead preached at both services.

St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church

Again in this popular edifice, candlelight services at night featured the lovely music of Christmas. Choir and organist combined in a musical effort that was appropriate and befitting the festival of Christmas. Miss Dorothy Carr's lovely voice was heard in solo.

St. Thomas Church, Christ Church and other denominations of the city joined in the general Christmas worship although the Anglican Churches will start their regular Christmas services on Tuesday night.

Graziani Blames African Reverses To Lack of Motorized Equipment

By RICHARD G. MASSOCK
(Associated Press Staff Writer)

Rome, Dec. 23 (AP)—Marshal Graziani blames Italian reverses in Egypt and Libya on the failure of tanks and armored cars to reach him from Italy, thus preventing his forces from getting the jump on British defenders who turned on the Italians.

He refused, however, to concede defeat in North Africa.

The Fascist North African Commander, in a detailed report laid before Premier Mussolini yesterday, declared Italian troops under Gen. Annibale Bergonzoli at beleaguered Bardia were determined to fight to the end.

He attributed the Italian retreat from Egypt to the "crushing superiority" of British armored forces and added that his army was outnumbered.

(Other sources have estimated the strength of Italian forces in Egypt and Libya at 250,000, more than double the British strength.)

Tanks and other mechanized equipment were supposed to arrive from Italy early in December and the Fascist fighters were poised for an attack ordered by Il Duce, which was to have carried them, according to battle plans, past Matruh to the Nile and the Suez Canal.

The equipment, however, did not arrive, Graziani said.

(Since the African campaign began, a blockade of Italian communications lines across the Mediterranean has been maintained by the British Navy and the Royal Air Force.)

Cannot Forecast Developments

The Italians never gave up, Graziani asserted, so long as they had a cartridge to shoot.

(Earlier British reports said hundreds had surrendered with full equipment and many with loaded guns).

Graziani asserted it would "certainly be premature to forecast developments in the titantic fight" in Libya.

He said the Italian forces were not surprised by the British attack which began Dec. 9. Italian scouting planes had reported a massing of British troops and equipment east of Matruh from the beginning of October, he continued, and from prisoners captured the night of Dec. 7, it was learned the attack was to start in about ten days.

He had only the highest praise for his men and declared that if the numbers of prisoners taken by the British was high it was because the Italians held out "to the last spasm."

Graziani commented especially on the support given the British ground forces by the fleet and Air Force. Italian fliers brought down 42 British planes and possibly 20 more, he said.

BOMB LANDS IN CLOISTER COURT

Public Bills Office, Votes Office, in British Houses of Parliament Wrecked

(By Harold Fair)
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

London, Dec. 23.—(CP Cable)—A heap of twisted girders and masonry almost covers the centre of Cloister Court, one of the most beautiful and most ancient parts of the Houses of Parliament as the result of a Nazi bomb.

Landing in this small court, which is situated approximately in the centre of the buildings, the bomb destroyed the Public Bills office on the East side, the Votes office on the south side, and the Old Members' staircase leading to the Inner Lobby.

The pile of rubble containing broken bookcases and torn papers looks as if it had been poured down a chute from the nearby stately centre tower.

Single Direct Hit

This was the only part of the building to receive a direct hit in two recent Nazi raids but the members' cloakroom and secretaries' office were damaged and the Inner Lobby is regarded as unsafe due to the effects of the blast.

Windows had been broken in the House of Lords and historic Westminster Hall in an earlier attack.

Henry VIII's physician, John Chambers, built the Cloisters at his own expense, incorporating in them part of the ancient Cloisters of Richard II.

Small Oratory Remains Intact

The hoary greystone walls of the courtyard were scarred and dented by flying debris and some windows were broken. One of the most famous parts—a small oratory reputed to be the place where Charles I's death warrant was signed—remains intact.

A bomb narrowly missed Westminster Hall, which epitomizes English history almost from the time of the Norman Conquest. This is the site of the trial of Charles I and of the impeachment of Warren Hastings, and the place where the bodies of Edward VII, George V and Gladstone lay in state.

Evidence of the damage in the first raid is still visible. Twisted bits of iron window frame and broken glass are piled neatly around the wall and the vast window space is filled with iron scaffolding. Directly under a window stands a statue commemorating members who were killed in the last war. It stands headless and footless as a result of the Nazi violence.

REQUEST PUBLIC TENDERS

North Bay, Ont., Dec. 23 (CP) — Executive of the North Bay Liberal Association passed a resolution during a week-end meeting urging that henceforth all Federal Government contracts for works and supplies be awarded only after public tenders have been called for.

It was claimed that contracts have been awarded without the public having any knowledge of them, and several times contractors or business men in position to handle a job were not even aware of the contract until after it had been awarded.

Late Hope Township Lady Left Large Estate Died in House of Refuge

Late Catherine Smith Passed Away in December, 1938, in House of Refuge at Cobourg — Had $20,000 in Port Hope

The hearing of a motion by His Lordship Mr. Justice Makins, at the non-jury sittings of the Supreme Court at Cobourg this week to decide the rightful heirs of the late Mrs. Catherine Smith, of Hope Township, had all the essentials of a fairy tale.

It was brought out in evidence that Mrs. Smith was most secretive and peculiar in her habits, most untidy as to her appearance and so stingy she was never known to spend a cent. With no apparent means of support, she was admitted to the Counties Home at Cobourg in 1936. It was only after her death on December 16, 1938, that it was found she had left an estate valued at between twenty and twenty-five thousand dollars in debentures and securities in a safety deposit box in the office of the Midland Loan Comany at Port Hope. Coupons which would have provided her with means had not been clipped for years.

It was also found that she had made a will leaving small legacies to several relatives. However, at the time of her death these beneficiaries had passed away. The motion was brought before the court to decide who should inherit the residue of the estate.

His Lordship ruled that Mrs. Mary Ellen Palmer of Rochester, New York, and Mrs. Annie Irene Shafer, of Buffalo, New York, daughters of the late Thomas Elms, of Hope Township, a brother of Mrs. Smith, were the rightful heirs to the estate. It was also ruled that Margaret Grace Franks, Rosetta Howard and James Edward Franks, adopted children of Mrs. Smith's sister, were not eligible for a share of the estate.

In the original will, one John Hargie, of Battle Creek, Michigan, was mentioned as one of the beneficiaries. It was held however, that the John Hargie mentioned in the will was long since deceased as is his son. There is at present a John Hargie residing in Chicago, but His Lordship held he could not qualify as an heir.

W. E. Bonneville of Port Hope, acted for the executor of the will; D. H. Chisholm of Port Hope, for the next of kin; F. C. Richardson, of Cobourg, for John Hargie; W. B. Gordon of Peterboro, for the adopted children of Mrs. Smith's sister and A. C. H. Field, of Cobourg, for the Official Guardian of the province on behalf of the infant, John Hargie.— Port Hope Guide.

PILOT OFFICER'S BODY RECOVERED

Newcastle (Ont.) Airman in R.A.F. Previously Reported Missing is Now Reported Killed in Action

Newcastle, Ont., Dec. 23.—(CP)—The parents of Pilot Officer Murray Anderson Butler of the Royal Air Force said today they had received word that their son, previously reported missing, had been killed while participating in the bombing of the German battle cruiser Scharnhorst off the coast of Norway in June.

The British Air Ministry advised Mrs. Butler that her son's body was recovered on the shore at Madsvolstrand in Denmark and he was buried at Hjardemaal, Denmark.

Hon. Vincent Massey, Canadian High Commissioner in London, who used to live here, had made efforts to locate Butler through the International Red Cross.

In a letter to Mrs. Butler, Mrs. Massey wrote from London: "The courage and daring of men like your son, no word can describe. Their willingness to sacrifice all in the great cause for which they fight makes one stand in awe and reverence before them."

12 MINESWEEPERS ARE ORDERED BUILT IN CANADA

80-Million-Dollar Wartime Shipbuilding in Canada Includes 120 Naval Ships

PROGRESS OF WORK

Ottawa, Dec. 23 (CP)—The Munitions and Supply Department announced today the placing of a British Admiralty order for the building in Canada of 12 minesweepers, six to be built in yards in Vancouver and six in the Dufferin shipyards in Toronto.

With the placing of this British order, the $80,000,000 wartime shipbuilding program in the Dominion includes the following: 120 naval ships; 60 Royal Canadian Navy corvettes; 10 Royal Navy corvettes; 28 R.C.N. minesweepers; 10 R.C.N. Deidel minesweepers; and 12 R. N. minesweepers.

"Many of these ships of war are already in commission and on duty with the Canadian and Royal Navies," said the Munitions Department statement.

In Step With Launching Schedule

"By the end of this year about half of them will have slipped down the ways and the installation of machinery and equipment will have begun. Engine and boiler production is well up to schedule and is in step with the launching schedule."

The Department added that in addition to the corvette and minesweeper program, about 30 vessels of many types have been altered in Canadian yards to serve as naval vessels and these ships are all commissioned and on active service.

Shortly, the statement said, final details and specifications of 18 merchant vessels to be constructed for Great Britain will be completed and work will be begun in Pacific Coast and St. Lawrence River yards. These vessels are expected to be about 415 feet long and of

BRITISH COMMENT ON APPOINTMENT

Press Generally Approves Choice of Lord Halifax as Ambassador to U.S.

By HAROLD FAIR
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

London, Dec. 23 (CP Cable)—The press generally favored today the appointment of Viscount Halifax as Ambassador to the United States while roundly praising the return of Anthony Eden to the Foreign Office which he vacated in 1938 due to the disagreement with the Chamberlain appeasement policy.

Most commentators adopted a wait-and-see policy regarding Capt. David Margesson, appointed to succeed Mr. Eden as Secretary for War.

The tabloid Mirror, however, was dissatisfied with Lord Halifax, asserting that a "poverty of higher political or diplomatic talent in this country is revealed by this search for a man and this discovery of the man for America."

The paper praised his qualities and work in India but said his name was associated with appeasement and he was somewhat too lofty to inspire America. It admitted the latter may be remedied.

The Times considered it a moot point "whether a choice so unimpeachable for the embassy in Washington outweights a loss so serious to the Foreign Office and, through the Foreign Office, to the whole composition of the Government at home." It asserted it was "natural and proper" that Mr. Eden should replace him.

The Daily Herald confessed "some reserve" due to Lord Halifax's political past but said his speeches since the war had shown no lapse into the appeasement "quagmire". It declared Mr. Eden's return "will be the most widely approved" of the appointments.

The Daily Express topped its editorial with praise of Mr. Eden, whose apointment "will receive universal acclaim." It called the other appointments "admirable."

London, Dec. 23 (CP)—Viscount Halifax will rest for several days in the north of England before leaving to take up his post as Ambassador to the United States, it was disclosed today.

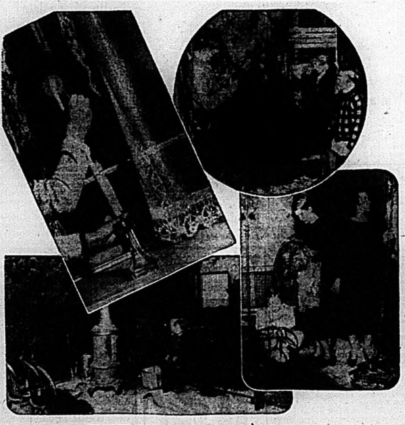
Lord Halifax will leave for Washington "early in the New Year," it was said.

Margesson Recently Private in Palace Company of Home Guard

London, Dec. 23—(CP) — Capt. David Margesson, who took the oath of office as Secretary of State for War today, until a few nights ago had paced the terrace at the Houses of Parliament as a private in the Palace of Westminster Company of the Home Guard.

Now, as Secretary for War, he has generals waiting on his doorstep.

In the House of Commons, too, he will find life changed. As Chief Whip, his oratory was confined to the brief but welcome, "I beg to move this House do now adjourn," at the close of each day's session. Now he has a real speaking part.



WATCH FIRE HAZARDS AT CHRISTMAS

New Photos support statistics of the Canadian Underwriters' Association which reveal that Christmas celebrations still expose adults and little ones to injury and death, still cause property risk and loss.

TOP LEFT—The Christmas Eve light in many a window still beckons the Christ Child, but many tragedies have been caused when a lighted candle in a draughty window set fire to near curtains and drapes.

TOP RIGHT—Three children mourn their presents. The tree caught fire when celluloid ornaments and paper decorations were touched off by a cigarette as "Santa" was at work. The room was badly damaged.

LOWER LEFT—More than 200 children spent a riotous Christmas Eve in this firetrap. The hot stove pipe and naked electric cord run through the bunting roof. Windows are hidden by Christmas trees. The floor is covered with wood shavings. And sole exits were two narrow doors. Several children were burned to death and others injured in this Christmas tragedy.

LOWER RIGHT—Candles, instead of standard-inspected electric lights, were used on this tree and fired it. The tot at lower left narrowly escaped burns when her dress ignited. Wall, floor, drapes and lamp shade ignited; carpet and furniture suffered water damage when firemen drowned this Yule festival.

Churchill Urges Italian People To Get Rid of Duce

London, Dec. 23 (CP).—Prime Minister Churchill broadcast an appeal to the Italian people tonight to rid themselves of Mussolini and threatened to rip their African empire "to shreds and tatters" if they continue the war.

War between Britain and Italy came about "because of one man" and the people of Italy and Italy's army never were consulted, Mr. Churchill declared.

"Surely the time has come when the Italian monarchy and the people who guard the sacred centre of Christendom should have a word to say upon those awe-inspiring issues," Mr. Churchill said.

"Surely the Italian army which has fought so bravely on many occasions past, but now evidently has no heart for the job, should take some care of the life and future of Italy."

Mr. Churchill said he spoke to the Italian people from London in "what diplomatists call words of great truth and respect."

"We are at war—that is a very strange and terrible thought," he said.

"Whoever imagined until the last few melancholy years that the British and Italian nations would be trying to destroy one another? We have always been friends . . . our fathers and our grandfathers longed to see Italy freed from the Austrian yoke and to see all minor barriers in Italy swept away so that the Italian people and their fair land might take their honored place as one of the leading powers upon the continent and as a brilliant gifted member of the family of Europe and of Christendom."

Telling the Italians that in the last war "against the barbarous huns", the British were the Italians' comrades, Mr. Churchill said:

"Now we are condemned to work each other's ruin.

"Your aviators have tried to cast their bombs upon London; our armies are tearing, and will tear, your African empire to shreds and tatters. . . . We are only now at the beginning of this sombre tale. Who can say where it will end? Presently we shall be forced to come to much closer grips. How has all this come about and what is it all for? . . .

Orders Abandonment Of Search for Missing Plane

Las Vegas, Nav. Dec. 23—(AP)—The mysterious disappearance of Pilot Bud Hussey and a North-American Aviation, Inc., combat training plane bound for the Royal Canadian Air Force apparently is a secret of the vast California desert.

The craft, due here Thursday morning on a routine delivery hop, was unreported since a few minutes after the takeoff from Palmdale, Calif. The flight should have required less than two hours.

Hussey's plane was one of sixteen being ferried to Montreal. North American's Chief Pilot, Paul Balfour, ordered an air search abandoned last night and the other 15 ships made ready to resume their journey today. All had been in the hunt constantly since Thursday, covering more than 20,000 square miles fan-shaped south and west of here.

Route Over 200 Miles

Last report of the missing craft came from another pilot, who said he and Hussey were together until they encountered a cloud bank over a mountain. He turned south around it, he added, and Hussey headed north.

The delivery route lies over some 250 miles of wasteland, most of it uninhabited, and three mountain ranges, with peaks as high as 8,600 feet. It is some distance north of the few towns which dot the desert. Virtually the only residents beneath its path are scattered prospectors.

A prospector reported he saw a low-flying plane and a few moments later heard an explosion.

Hussey's ship is the first reported missing of scores which have been ferried in recent months from Southern California factories to Canada for training purposes or delivery to the Royal Air Force in Britain.

The War Today

By GUY RHOADES
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Marshal Graziani's excuses to Mussolini for the at least temporary collapse of his African campaign read much as though the affair had been bungled from the beginning, perhaps partly due to the Duce's impatience.

According to the Marshal he planned to attack via Matruh from his advance post at Sidi Barrani, which he reached during September. It was necessary, however, to build a road first to bring up supplies from Fort Capuzza and a pipeline to bring up water.

Laboriously over the next few weeks the Italians hauled their supplies in readiness for an assault which was to have carried them to the railhead at Matruh from where apparently, they expected to ride to Alexandria, the Nile and Suez.

The Marshal says that the attempt was delayed because motorized equipment which should have arrived from Italy failed to do so and, while he was waiting, British forces which were entrenching some distance away, suddenly attacked him in what he called superior numbers

His men, woefully outnumbered, according to the Marshal, resisted with such fortitude that they were made prisoners in droves.

The Marshal's tale differs in its estimate of the opposing forces, placed elsewhere at about 250,000 Italians against 100,000 empire and allied forces. He does not suggest what delayed the arrival of the expected vehicles, whether it was the inability of Italian industry to supply them or the inability of the Italian Navy to escort ships carrying them through the British naval blockade.

Press Begins To Worry.

Evidence of nervousness appeared elsewhere in Italian circles, the press began to worry about France and the great French African colonial army, part of which has declared its loyalty to the Free French forces of Gen. Charles de Gaulle.

What, the Italians would like to know, is the meaning of the aerial shuttling of Vichy officials between their capital and North Africa? Is it true that Gen. Maxime Weygand, placed in his old North African command after the fall of France, refused to return to Vichy?

A suspicion seems to be creeping into the semi-official Italian mind that something is lurking in the shadows of the dark continent ready to spring on the Italian empire, unless it is watched very closely.

The Italian press notes with visible signs of uneasiness that a combination of the Free French forces with those of Weygand and those of the British Empire would create a good sized steam roller.

It seeks to remind France that, as far as she is concerned, the war is over and she should do what she is told and cease this talk of refusing to yield her colonial territory.

Leafs Slump Over Weekend Being Beaten and Tied by Red Dutton's Amazing Amerks

Collection of Rookies Garnered by Dutton Are Beginning to Show Results

BRUINS SPLIT

Canadiens Defeat Boston but Bruins Turn Tables on Red Wings—Hawks Win

By JACK MITCHELL
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

There is little of the door-mat tradition in the current edition of Manager Mervyn (Red) Dutton's New York Americans, apparently headed for their best season in several National Hockey League campaigns.

In other years, Dutton has been lord of a team composed in the main of castoffs and aging veterans but the red-haired manager always has turned in a comparatively good performance. This season, however, Dutton collected a promising group of recruits to work his "keep punching" tactics on and the results are beginning to show.

The Amerks, still unrecovered from a recent batch of injuries, climaxed their season to date during the week-end by gaining three of a possible four points in a series with the league-leading Toronto Maple Leafs. After holding the Leafs to a 2-2 draw before 12,740 fans in Toronto Saturday night, the Americans returned to New York to pin a 2-1 defeat on the leaders.

In Fifth-Place Tie

The results gave the Americans a record of two victories and two draws in their last four starts and moved them into a fifth-place tie with their intra-city rivals, the Rangers, who were beaten 3-1 by the Black Hawks in an overtime match in Chicago last night. The entire standing was tightened during the week-end as the last-place Canadiens whipped Boston Bruins, 3-1, and the Bruins followed with a 5-3 victory over the second-place Detroit Red Wings.

The Americans came within about four minutes of winning their first match with the Maple Leafs in Toronto Saturday. Leading 2-1 late in the final period, they were held to the tie when Sweeney Schriner scored for Leafs at 15:58 to force the game into a scoreless overtime session.

Centre Murray Armstrong tipped the puck by Goalie Turk Broda to give the Americans the victory in the return engagement before a crowd of 11,531 in New York. The goal came at 14:32 of the final frame and broke a 1-1 deadlock.

Black Hawks Win

The Black Hawks came from behind in the third period and then rallied for two goals in an overtime session to defeat the Rangers and stay in a third-place tie with Boston in the standing.

Boston gained an even break on their week-end by spotting the Red Wings a two-goal lead in Detroit and then coming from behind for the verdict.

The Bruins had been beaten Saturday night in Montreal when the Canadiens staged a battling performance that saw them break a 1-1 deadlock with two goals late in the final period.

GERARD COTE DOMINION'S NO. 1 MALE ATHLETE

Gerard Cote Given High Position in winning Two Big Races in Year

TOMMY IS SECOND

Ottawa Football Star and Spark Plug of Champions Given High Rating

By SYDNEY GRUSON
Canadian Press Staff Writer.

Toronto, Dec. 23 (CP)—A 27-year-old marathon runner, Gerard Cote of St. Hyacinthe, Que., was hailed today as the choice of Canadian Sports Writers as the Dominion's No. 1 male athlete of 1940, a position won with two smashing victories in the Boston run and the United States championship race at Yonkers, N.Y.

Asked to name the first three of the year in the annual Canadian Press poll, nine sports writers placed the little French-Canadian on top, one put him second and two third for a total of 31 points on a 3-2-1 valuation. No one was close to Cote, whose heart is almost as big as the rest of him.

Cote's case is one of a man, determined on what he wants, setting out to achieve his ambition by the only road available to a runner striking for the sport's pinnacle. A fine runner, even a great one, before 1940 he hit a new pace through sheer persistance to conquer the things that lirked him before.

The Boston race was a case in point. Cote had tried for this premier running prize before but the tortuous Newton Hills always had been his downfall. He was on the scene of the 1940 race a month before it was held. He picked out bigger and tougher hills than those at Newton and daily he plodded up and over them.

Took Hills in Stride

When the race came, Cote took the Newton barriers in his stride and smashed the record for the race. His only defeat of the year came in the Canadian championship at Toronto. Robert (Scotty) Rankine of Preston, Ont., the last marathoner to win the honor, in 1935, was forced to record time to beat Cote.

Cote never meant to be a runner. He wanted to be a boxer and to train for boxing he had to run. But after running five and 10 miles daily for a while, he decided he liked that better than boxing, and running and snowshoeing were the things he stuck to after that. He holds the world snowshoeing record for 1 miles.

The honor was won last year by Fritz Hanson, Winnipeg Blue bomber backfield star, and it was another footballer who ran second to Cote in the voting. Andy Tommy, who sparked Ottawa Rough Riders to the Interprovincial and Eastern Championships, got 16 points. Tommy was voted the Interprovincial Union's outstanding player this year.

Stan Leonard of Vancouver and Calgary, Canadian Professional Golfers' Association champion, was third with 14 points and Don McDiarmid of Ottawa, who won most of the major tennis tournaments including the Canadian, was fourth with 10.

The other 37 men given a point or more were strung out far behind. There was a representative of almost every sport among them.

Writers Select Bobby Feller As 'Player of Year'

By JUDSON BAILEY,
(Associated Press Sports Writer)

New York, Dec. 23—(AP)—Rapid Robert Feller, who swept all the pitching honors in the American League last season, has been selected by the New York baseball writers for their annual award to the "player of the year."

He'll get a fancy plaque at the chapter's big banquet Feb. 2, at the same time that another fireballer, old Bob Quinn, President of the Boston Bees, gets an award for meritorious service to baseball over a long period of years.

Feller richly deserved the recognition. He won more games last season than any other pitcher in the Major Leagues — 27 victories against 11 defeats for the Cleveland Indians.

He opened the season with the only no-hit, no-run game in the American eague. He had the lowest earned run average, 2.62, the most strikeouts, 261, appeared in the most games, 43, and labored through the most complete games, 31.

Greenberg was Feller's only rival for the honor this year.

Ottawa Senators Win and Draw Over Weekend

Montreal, Dec. 23—(CP)—Ottawa Senators, taking three of a possible four points with Montreal Canadiens in a pair of Quebec Senior Hockey League fixtures over the weekend, retained first place in the standings.

Sunday's 1-1 deadlock, coupled with Saturday night's 4-0 victory at the capital, left them with a one-point margin over the second-place Quebec Royal Rifles who outscored Montreal Concordia 7-3 at Quebec.

Senators, outplayed for the greater part of the game, had to come from behind to earn a tie with the fast-skating Canadian crew who took a one-point advantage midway through the first period on Conny Tudin's tally. With less than three minutes to go in the final period, Gordie Poirier, former Canadien star, punched home the tying marker.

Ottawa's star defensive combination of Jack Wilkinson and Stan Pratt were missing from the lineup as was Jack Brunning. They were sufferings from influenza.

Poirier, who is in the Canadian Active Service Force, was transferred to Ottawa a short time ago and became eligible to play with the Senators.

In the second half of the scheduled doubleheader, Montreal Royals rode to an easy 6-2 win over Cornwall Flyers and entrenched themselves more firmly in third place. Cornwall remained in fourth position.

Joe Desroches, with a pair of goals, paced the Royals attack while single markers were credited to Paul Raymond, Gerry Heffernan, Johnny Mahaffey and John Acheson. Farand Gillie and Henry Hayes were the Cornwall marksmen.

Raymond gave the home team the lead early in the opening period, then in the middle frame, Desroches tallied twice and Heffernan and Mahaffey once apiece before the visitors got their first goal. In the final stanza, each team scored once.

QUEBEC RIFLES BEAT CONCORDIAS

Team Raps in Five Goals in Last Period to Win 7-3

Quebec, Dec. 23 (CP)—Quebec Royal Rifles rapped in five goals in the last period Sunday to down Montreal Concordias 7-3 after the Quebec Senior Hockey League's last place club had held them to a 2-2 count in the first two frames.

Three of Quebec's tallies went to Stu Smith and he picked up an assist on another. The afternoon's work placed the speedy winger ahead of his linemate, centreman Theo Hamel, atop the loop's point getting lists.

Halfway through the opening stanza Defenceman Frank Currie put the second-place rifles up a point after a snappy passing exhibition with Bobby Lee and Gaudreault, but a pass from Brown helped Hebert knot the score a minute later.

Bellehumeur snapped a fast one to Carroll at the frame's three-quarter mark and Concordias climbed ahead again. They held the lead until 16:59 of the second period when Hamel beat Goalie Bouvrette on passes from Smith and McLelland.

The final frame was less than two minutes old when McClelland and Hamel set up Smith to start the Quebec Field Day Stahan scored at 9:31 and nine seconds later McClelland helped Smith pump in his second marker.

Pete Jotkus and Cormier broke through and the latter sandwiched a goal between Nicholson's tally at 13:45 and Smith's at 16:45.

Old Nick Altrock, the baseball wag.
(There's none so droll as he)
Went on a laugh-provoking jag
And climbed a grapefruit tree.
Now that's no way to play around
For a guy of sixty-three;
No wonder then, Nick tumbled down
And broke his blooming knee.

LOUIS TRUDEL PACING EAGLES IN THE A. H. L.

Former N.H.L. Star Will Soon be Back in the Big League

CAPITALS TIE BARONS

Cleveland, However, Well Out in Front of Western Division

(By The Canadian Press)

It will not take long for Louis Trudel, speedy winger farmed by Montreal Canadiens to New Haven Eagles, to get back into the National Hockey League at the rate he is travelling with the American League Eagles.

Trudel, a veteran N.H.L. performer, was sent down to New Haven about two weeks ago and celebrated his return by pacing the Eagles to victory with a pair of goals on his first night. He doubled that showing last night by tallying four times to spark the Eagles to a 9-2 triumph over Pittsburgh Hornets.

The victory lifted the Eagles into a first-place tie in the Eastern section with Eddie Shore's Springfield Indians, who were idle meanwhile. In other games, Cleveland Barons maintained their margin at the top of the Western Division by playing a 3-3 draw with Indianapolis Capitals, while Philadelphia downed Buffalo, 3-1, and Providence beat Hershey, 4-1.

Playing at New Haven, Trudel tallied a pair of goals in the initial period for the Eagles after Lloyd Roubel had opened the scoring for Pittsburgh. He started the second period with another counter and scored the Eagles final goal in the last frame.

Trudel also shared in two other goals, helping both Peggy O'Neil and playing-coach Earl Robinson beat Goalie McAtee. The other New Haven counters were scored by Allan Shields, Gus Mancuso and George Patterson, while Pete Kelly bagged Pittsburgh's second tally.

At Indianapolis, the Capitals stretched their unbeaten streak to five games by tying the leading Cleveland Barons of the Western Section.

Hershey Bears fell behind Cleveland in second place in the Western Section when they lost to the Reds in Providence.

At Buffalo, the cellar-dwelling Philadelphia Ramblers of the Eastern Section broke a seven-game losing streak against the Bisons.

In Saturday night's games, Springfield defeated Providence Reds, 4-3 on an overtime goal by Charlie Mason at Springfield; Joffre Desilets scored four goals at Cleveland to pace the Barons to an 8-5 triumph over Buffalo Bisons; Indianapolis Capitals beat Pittsburgh Hornets, 3-2, at Indianapolis on a third-period counter by Butch McDonald, and Red Hammill scored two goals for Hershey to help the Bears to a 4-3 victory over the Ramblers at Philadelphia.

Connie Mack Expects To Be Disappointed Again this Season

By TED MEIER
(Associated Press Sports Writer)

Philadelphia, Dec. 23 (AP).—Connie Mack is 78 years old today, but he isn't expecting any birthday present from his American League Athletics.

On the contrary the sage of Shibe Park, who last week acquired sole financial control of the A's, expects to be "disappointed again" in 1941.

A year ago Connie expressed the opinion his boys might be up there in 1941.

"But I expect to be disappointed again," he remarked wryly.

"It's the pitching," he explained. "It's taking longer than I thought to develop good pitchers. Otherwise I'm satisfied with my team except at shortstop."

Mr. Mack, long an idol of thousands of youngsters and grownup fans throughout the country, will be honored at a traditional birthday luncheon given by the Philadelphia baseball writers.

He will be presented with a gold lifetime pass from the Baseball Writers Association of America.

Mack, fully recovered from an illness that brought him close to death in 1939, set at rest reports he might retire after winning another pennant.

"I'm going to last as long as I can," he declared.

Who will win the American League pennant in 1941? Connie isn't venturing any prediction such as the one he made a year ago in forecasting the Yankees would finish third, which they did.

All he will say now is: "I think Cleveland and the Yanks have good chances, but our league is pretty evenly balanced. Anything may happen."

Broadway still talking about who won the Zivic-Jenkins fight. Brooklyn Eagle says: "Zivic lucky to get draw with Jenkins." New York Sun says: "Confused referee hampers Zivic-Fritzie seemed to have edge."

The Peterborough Seniors got in a pre-season practice game versus the Oshawa Juniors, Memorial Cup holders, on their home ice last week. The Shaw-led Generals had more condition and won 8 to 4. After playing at even terms in the initial frame, the Generals whipped five pucks past. Goalie Harding in the middle session. Oshawa then eased off and the Petes out-scored 'em three to two in the last stanza. The Petes dressed 16 players, giving their entire squad a piece of the game. The Petes had hoped to get in a couple more exhibition tilts before prying off the group lid on Jan. 3rd, but the current mild spell has wrought havoc in the ranks of the natural ice rinks of late. The Petes' line-up was as follows: Peterborough, Goal, Harding; defence, Gardner, Lalonde; centre, Kingdon; wings, Tompkins, Heal; alternates, Starr, Creighton, Murphy, Blewett, Jopling, Mortimer, Burton, Beggs, McNabb, Johnson.

Kingston Scribe Bill Walshe says there are several hockey players from the Ottawa Valley district already residing in Belleville and Willie expects to see considerable opposition tossed into the Senior "B" series of the O.H.A. by the Reliance sextette. Continuing his comment in the Kingston Press, Mister Walshe says: "Residence rules and inter-branch transfers in hockey have apparently been tossed out of the window with the definition of an amateur. Belleville has gathered in extra help for its Senior B team from Cornwall, which is in the Ottawa Valley or Quebec district, while there are reports of other late moves all over the province. Unless there is a ruling there may be trouble before play-off time with teams protesting some of the tourists and relying on the hockey constitution to back up their claims."

The team that wins the Eastern Ontario Senior "B" group championship goes into the provincial playoffs with the winners of five other sections. The Eastern group is No. 1. The No. 2 group is composed of Collingwood, Owen Sound, Camp Borden R.C.A.F. and Camp Borden No. 2 I.T.C. The Toronto Amateur Hockey Association winners will represent Group 3 and the Niagara Falls Industrial League represents Group 4 while the winners of the Northern Ontario Hockey Association will be the Group 5 entry and the Western Ontario teams, Galt, Waterloo, Kitchener, Stratford, St. Thomas R.C.A.F. and Brantford form Group 6.

Jim Hendy has done it again. His 1940-41 National Hockey and Winter Sports Guide is nothing short of a revelation and out-does anything the genial Jim has published in the past. The periodical should be included in every sports library. It is a small pocket size edition that can be carried around as "Hendy's Handy Reference Guide." Because of the increased interest in skiing, figure skating and other winter sports, the current edition includes such recreations. In previous seasons Jim Hendy's publication was devoted solely to hockey activities. This year's edition is a 192-page guide, including group pictures of practically all of last year's hockey champions on the North American continent, from the Oshawa Generals to the N.H.L. clubs. As is his custom, Mr. Hendy mailed us a copy and it is without hesitation we recommend this meaty edition, now on sale.

Do you remember when Jack Dempsey, fully aware of Negro Joe Louis' ability with his fists announced two years ago today he would conduct a "white hope" tourney among Canadian and United States boxers? Elimination bouts were held in both countries but no one was unearthed to challenge the Brown Bomber's supremacy.

The Philadelphia Athletics' batterymen will train at Carlsbad, Cal., for two weeks before joining the entire squad at Anaheim next spring, Coach Earle Brucker announced at San Diego, last week. "They won't see a baseball the whole two weeks at Carlsbad," Brucker said. He plans to take them on long walks after they have finished their daily setting-up exercises.

A sell-out of reserved seats for next year's opening game at Cincinnati by fans making purchases for Christmas gifts, was announced by the Reds, November 29. More than 25,000 reservations were received.

Not a single N.H.L. club picked up more than two points over the week-end. Toronto stumbled badly to tie the Americans at home and lose in New York 2-1, for the most drastic week-end of the present campaign. And incidentally they were exceedingly lucky to emerge with a win Saturday. Canadiens bowled over Boston and moved into a tie with the Americans for sixth place in the league standing. Then yesterday the Bruins gave the Red Wings a 5-3 going over, as the Black Hawks won 3-1 over the Rangers to make the N.H.L. a tight fit, with the exception of the pace-setting Leafs, who have won more games than any other two clubs in the entire loop.

SPORT SLANTS—Picton, Albert College and the Air Force were included in an intermediate O.B.A. cage league along with Cobourg, Port Hope and Peterboro. . . . It looks like skullduggery was afoot, as the Belleville "Y" quintette was all prepared to enter such a proposed loop. . . . F. F. Dufton of Cobourg was named convener and as the group schedule has not been released, as yet, maybe the local hoopsters could get their oar in — if they hustle. . . . Billy Southworth, Jr., son of manager Bill of the Cardinals, quit baseball to join the U.S.A. Air Corps. . . . Gerard Cole, Montreal distance runner, was named the top-ranking Canadian athlete for 1940, which is nice work, if you can get it.

The Big Seven

(By The Canadian Press)

Bill Cowley of Boston Bruins added three points to his lead among the National Hockey League's individual point-getters during the week-end by aiding in three Boston goals. Eddie Wiseman of the Bruins also gained three assists to jump into a second-place tie with Bryan Hextall of New York Rangers, who was held pointless, and Syl Apps of Toronto Maple Leafs, who picked up two assists. Syd Howe, Detroit, scored a goal to hold fifth place, while Gordie Drillon of the Maple Leafs picked up an assist to tie Phil Watson of the Rangers for the seventh berth.

Cowley, Boston	7	18	25

Apps, Toronto	7	10	17
Wiseman, Boston	7	10	17

Famous Airman Now at Trenton

Ken Tyler, of Cincinnati, Survivor of 144 Crashes, Now With R.C.A.F.

Trenton —(Special)— Veteran of the Spanish and China wars, daredevil Hollywood stunt flyer and aeroplane designer, Ken Tyler, President of the Teale Aircraft Corporation of Cincinnati, has signed up with the Royal Canadian Air Force and is now stationed at the Trenton Air Station.

Tyler has an exceptional record of flying adventures. Becoming interested in flying at the age of 14 he won his pilot's licence at the age of 15 and immediately launched on a career packed with thrills and narrow escapes.

His exceptional flying ability and steel nerves brought him to the attention of a distinguished Hollywood stunt flyer, Dick Grace, when he was 17 years of age. Tyler, after receiving instructions from Grace, joined the stunt-flying game himself.

For a number of years he travelled around the United States doing stunt work and taking part in air races and air shows.

With a record of 144 crashes under his belt, Tyler has only had one narrow escape according to himself and that was during an air race. Speeding close to the ground his plane faltered and crashed and he was seriously injured.

Tyler took part in the Spanish war on the Loyalist side and distinguished himself for his valor and daring.

Returning to America, he again established himself as a stunt flyer in Hollywood and did a number of scenes and crashes in pictures such as "Only Angels Have Wings," "20,000 Men a Year," and other pictures on aviation.

Tyler also took part in the Chinese war but did not remain long in order to return to America to take up a position as President of the Teale Aircraft Corporation.

After occupying this position for a year, he decided to look for further adventure and joined up with the Royal Canadian Air Force at Vancouver. He was transferred last week to Trenton where he is taking the civilian instructors' course.

Police Blotter

Sneak thieves worked with speed and precision when they stole a lady's purse from out of Dr. G. S. Cronk's parked automobile last night. Miss Harriet Cronk, daughter of Dr. and Mrs. Cronk, returned home from finishing school for the holiday season and was met at an incoming train by her family late Friday evening. Miss Cronk placed her purse in the glove compartment of the car and returned home, leaving the purse in the compartment. An hour later when she went to recover her purse it was gone. The car had been parked in the family driveway, Dr. Cronk told P. C. Arnott, who investigated.

George Maybee, of Harold, reported the theft of a gold watch to the police yesterday. The watch was stolen from his home some time this week, he said.

A lone inebriate and fifteen transients shared the cell block at the police station last night, as a rather quiet evening was spent in police circles.

Clayton Hagerman, local trucker, complained to Provincial Police his truck had been forced into the ditch on Highway No. 14 two miles north of Stirling yesterday. Mr. Hagerman informed the authorities a motor car approaching in the opposite direction had forced him to swerve his truck to avoid a head-on collision. The truck turned over twice in the ditch, but no injuries were sustained. The cab of the truck was damaged, police were told.

AT THE CAPITOL

"No Time for Comedy"

A film replete with sprightly dialogue, fine acting and delightfully humorous situations, "No Time for Comedy," opens at the Capitol Sunday midnight.

The picture stars two of movie-goers' most popular players, James Stewart and Rosalind Russell. Stewart plays the part of a country playwright who comes to the big town and startles everyone by writing so understandingly of the "Park Avenue crowd." Rosalind Russell, in the role of a successful stage actress who plays leads in Stewart's plays, learns of his formula for writing hit plays. He claims that people are fundamentally alike whether they come from Squeedunk or New York and that they would probably react the same in any situation. He gets out of his element however when he allows the wife of a millionaire, played by Genevieve Tobin, to persuade him to write a play about a world torn by strife and struggle.

"No Time for Comedy" was one of last season's greatest Broadway stage hits. The play was written by S. N. Behrman, whose long list of successful plays is unbeatable. Julius J. and Philip G. Epstein, two of the cleverest screen writers in Hollywood, captured all of its scintillating spirit when they adapted it to the screen.

Genevieve Tobin, Charles Ruggles, Allyn Joslyn, Clarence Kolb and Louise Beavers make up the talented array of supporting players. William Keighley directed "No Time for Comedy," the year's gayest comedy.

Short subjects include "Young America Flies," a timely and very explicitive short showing young pilots in the making.

"Unusual Occupations," filmed in technicolor, showing besides various other subjects, moviedom's popular cowboy star, Gene Autry, putting his thoroughbred through their paces.

Sweeney Schriner, Toronto, whose 11th goal of the season was the tying counter in the Maple Leafs' draw with Americans in Toronto.

Murray Armstrong, Americans, who scored the winning counter as the Americans whipped Toronto 2-1, in a return engagement in New York Sunday night.

Art Jackson, Boston, whose pair of tallies paced the Bruins to a 5-3 victory over the Red Wings in Detroit last night.

George Allen, Chicago, who scored the winning goal as the Black Hawks defeated New York Rangers, 3-1, with a two-goal overtime rally last night.

Neil Colville, Rangers, who was a standout defensively and bagged the Rangers' only goal in their loss to the Black Hawks in Chicago.

VISCOUNT HALIFAX

When British policy underwent its shift to so-called appeasement during the winter of 1937-1938, it was Lord Halifax who laid the ground work for a direct contact with Hitler.

Conferred With Hitler

In November, 1937, while Mr. Eden still was Foreign Secretary, Lord Halifax visited Germany. On Nov. 17 he conferred with Hitler at Berchtesgaden.

The press generally acclaimed the appointment of Lord Halifax to succeed the late Marquess of Lothian but there was a minor questioning note in The Daily Herald's comment that "on the score of his political past we confess to some reserve on the wisdom of this appointment...."

The Times said: "That Lord Halifax will be more than welcome in Washington there can be no doubt whatever."

The appointment of Capt. Margesson to succeed Mr. Eden at the War Office came as something of a surprise. He has been chief government whip since November, 1931.

May Have Assistance

The Daily Mail predicted that Sir Gerald Campbell; British Consul General in New York from 1931 to 1938 and since then High Commissioner in Canada, would be appointed Minister in Washington to relieve Lord Halifax of detail work.

The King raised Viscount Cranborne to the peerage in his own right to act as spokesman for the Foreign Office in the House of Lords. He will continue as Dominions Secretary. Until now Lord Cranborne has held only a courtesy title and sat in the Lower House.

He is the Marquess of Salisbury's heir.

German Comment.

Berlin, Dec. 23 (AP). — Nazi spokesmen, commenting on the British political changes, asserted it was "interesting to note how Churchill managed to rid himself of Halifax".

"Churchill has found in Eden a man who corresponds to his own policy of adventure," said one commentator who charged Mr. Eden with having been the chief factor in "rendering impossible all Hitler's efforts to come to an arrangement with England".

Look For Greater Co-operation.

Rome, Dec. 23 (AP).—Italian political circles said today they looked for "still more intimate collaboration" between the United States and Great Britain with Viscount Halifax as the new British ambassador in Washington.

The newspaper Il Piccolo viewed the appointment of Anthony Eden to replace Lord Halifax in British politics, who "are anxious to take" the place of Prime Minister Churchill.

"So the lean Lord Halifax has been put out of the government with the excuse of a mission to Washington," Piccolo said. "Thus the hope of a little group of young Conservatives is achieved and the Lord—known as the Holy Fox—this time lost out.

"With him disappears from the cabinet the last representative of that so-called Chamberlain mentality so much opposed in recent months."

DOG SHOOTS DOG

Cannelton, Ind., Dec. 23—(AP)—If a man bites a dog, that's news. If a dog shoots a dog, that's like what happened on Charles Goering's hunting trip. Goering, with two dogs following, started down a hill, his shotgun at his side. Both dogs dashed up from behind and slid down the gun barrel. A paw of the second tripped the trigger. The gun went off and killed the first dog.

AT THE BELLE

"Rangers of Fortune"

In the story of three gallant galoots with a leaning to larceny, "Rangers of Fortune," which is now on the Belle Theatre screen, Paramount has delivered an action epic that is a humdinger for adventure, romance and lusty laughs.

Director Sam Wood, turning away from the leisurely pace of "Goodbye, Mr. Chips" and "Our Town," has produced a picture that is distinguished for its slashing action and the power of its climax. A cast, notable for the presence of Fred MacMurray and Patricia Morison in the romantic leads, acts the picture with all the ingenuity and skill at its command.

The picture describes how three desert marauders, fugitives from a Mexican firing squad, happen in on a private feud between a heroic newspaper publisher and a land pirate in a small Texas town. They pitch in with the underdog, and by fair and foul means, manage to make his paper a success and unearth the scoundrels who are attempting to drive the legitimate settlers off the range.

In the trio composed of MacMurray, Albert Dekker and Gilbert Roland, Dekker is important for the originality of his performance of a punch-drunk cowboy who wreaks mayhem on gunmen with his bare fists. Joseph Schildkraut and Dick Foran are importantly cast in supporting roles, and Betty Brewer, a remarkable 13-year-old miss, takes an important part in the proceedings of "Rangers of Fortune."

Fun and Romance Film

With an opportunity to feast the eyes on an assemblage of some of the most beautiful girls in the world, and to hear merry music that would delight even a tin ear, one naturally doesn't want his view blocked, or the music dulled, with too much plot.

Happily, Paramount used discretion and wisdom when it filmed "A Night at Earl Carroll's" which is the companion feature attraction. The title should be enough to tell you there are gals aplenty in it—all hand-picked by the dean of beauty, appreciation and thankfully the producers have seen to it that the plot doesn't weigh like a milestone around those lovely necks and on one's patience, too.

There's just enough of it to provide ingenious excuses for Earl Carroll to present the lovelies, singing and dancing; winsome Rose Hobart and Ken Murray to carry on a gaggy romance; J. Carroll Naish to menace everybody, in his part of a rackets big-shot and last but not least those mad man-hunters—Brenda and Cobina, transported from radio to celluloid for their screen debut.

We'd like to go on talking—raving would be more accurate—about those gals but we did like many other things about the picture. Many of the acts showing their bright wares come from vaudeville and the musical comedy stage. If entertainment is what you're seeking "A Night at Earl Carroll's" should be your destination. The popular Belle Newsreel will also be exhibited.

AT THE McCARTHY

"Radio Ranch"

The western singing idol of millions of radio listeners and moviegoers, Gene Autry and popular Smiley Burnette head the cast of "Radio Ranch" current feature presentation at the McCarthy Theatre. Frankie Darro and Betsy King Ross, world champion trick rider, a score of cowboys and other featured players have prominent roles in support of Gene Autry, the program also includes the laugh-packed comedy feature "23½ Hours Leave" with James Ellison, Terry Walker and Arthur Lake, the famous Dagwood of all the "Blondie" pictures. Latest News Events is also now showing at the McCarthy.

"The Long Voyage Home"

Based on Eugene O'Neill's famous play, John Ford's four-star production, "The Long Voyage Home" will have a gala premiere opening at the McCarthy Theatre Christmas Day, through United Artists release, was filmed with outstanding screen personalities.

John Wayne, Thomas Mitchell and Ian Hunter appeared in the principal starring roles, while the featured cast includes Wilfred Lawson, Barry Fitzgerald, Arthur Shields, Mildred Natwick, Carmen Morales, Ward Bond, John Qualen and J. M. Kerrigan. John Ford, who is known for such brilliant screen achievements as "Stagecoach," "The Hurricane" and "Arrowsmith" produced and directed "The Long Voyage Home" which has been acclaimed "one of the greatest motion pictures of all times" rated four stars by New York Daily News and four stars by Roly Young in the Toronto Globe and Mail" the highest rating any motion picture can be given.

NSTALMENT 16

"It's the letter of a woman desperately — passionately in love."

Gwen had shut her eyes. "It isn't signed?" she said.

"It's signed just with an 'S' drawn in a heart."

"That isn't proof!" But even as she spoke she knew that it would be proof. Sheila's handwriting, the unmistakable sharp letters! Sheila not being able to deny it.

"An election is an important thing to these fellows, Gwen. Their whole future depends upon who goes to Washington."

"They are a crowd of crooks, Van."

"No; not crooks. Manipulators."

"Link despises them. He's shown them up. He's honestly beaten them. Van, you wouldn't let them win, after all? You wouldn't hurt him so horribly, and ruin her life! Van," Gwen asked, leaning forward. "You could stop this right here if you wanted to, couldn't you? Think — think what it means to us all — to me!"

"I don't know," he said. "I'm confused. Gwen, if I had had any idea—"

"No one else knows of it?"

"Not that I know of — no. It was years ago. It's only by the merest chance that I happened to know it. It might have been destroyed a thousand times. My mother's dead; I don't know who else would remember!"

"So you could stop it?" she pursued eagerly.

"Yes, I could stop it, Gwen."

"Ah, Van, you will then? For me. You've always said that you cared for me, that my happiness was important to you. Will you give me that note, and go back and tell Miller's crowd that you were mistaken — that you haven't any pressure to put on Link, or that it wasn't the right pressure?"

He looked at her for a long minute of silence.

"I throw my clients down," he observed, dryly.

"This once!"

"You say they aren't square-shooters, Gwen. This would be a pretty low trick to them."

"Not to blackmail a woman who never did anything against you, or hurt anyone else in her whole life?"

"She did hurt someone, of course. He was married."

Gwen was silent for a moment. "She was twenty," she said then, in a troubled voice.

"I know. But, Gwen", Van said, impatient and ashamed, "do you think I like the whole thing? If I do this for you, go back to them and tell them I can't do anything about it, will you marry me?" he asked flatly.

Gwen's eyes dilated; she stared at Bellamy in astonishment that was almost amusement.

"I'm engaged. I've promised to marry Dick Latimer," she said. "How could I possibly—No, I couldn't do that."

"Not for your sister?" Bellamy asked.

Gwen could hardly find her voice her mouth was dry. She was in deadly earnest now.

"Well—you couldn't — nobody could ask that," she stammered. "I—I—no girl could marry one man, loving another!"

"I'd make you the happiest woman in the world."

"No, you musn't talk like that. You musn't think like that. That's—out. That would only mean misery to us both. It wouldn't work. You know it wouldn't work!" she said quickly.

"It's a chance to save your sister. Marry me, Gwen, immediately, now, and we can forget the whole thing. Baker will be elected — he can't lose, as things are now. Your sister will be safe. The note will be burned and no one will ever know anything of this"

"If you knew it, someone else may! It—it brings it all back. She was so young; younger than I am now! She did love him, and we—we don't know anything more than that. It was a crush—a girl's crush on her office boss—"

Her voice faltered; she stopped speaking. It did not matter, after all, that the world would never know of Sheila's long-ago affair. What did matter was that Link would turn to her and ask her if the story was true. Gwen knew Sheila. She would make no attempt at denial. And something fine and secure and proud would die out of her soul that day.

"Remember, that, Gwen," Van was saying eagerly, as a lawyer sums up a case, "I stand ready to destroy that note, to be as loyal to your sister as you can possibly be, from the moment you promise to marry me. When you're thinking about it, think of that. The whole thing can be wiped out—forgotten—if you'll make that decision. You see, I can't live without you," he said, leaning toward her, his eyes burning. "I know what I can do for you. I know that I can make you the happiest woman in the world! You're half engaged to Dick Latimer. He's a fine boy, but how soon do you think he'll be able to support a wife? Not for years. Not for at least five years. You're mine.

"I didn't know until now," he went on in a quieter tone, "that I had this—this argument to offer you. Gwen, I'm on fire—I'm on fire with hope that you'll do this for your sister and her husband and the baby and us all! It means happiness for everyone—my darling, it means happiness for you, too. Can't you see that?"

Gwen spoke slowly, absently, as if she had hardly heard him:

"I'm thinking what I must do. Sheila gets home late tonight; I'll not talk to her tonight. But tomorrow—tomorrow's Saturday, and I'll be home all day. I'll talk to Sheila tomorrow—she'll know what to do. And then I'll—I'll write you. If your political feeling is all on that side, and you have this chance to put Link out of the running, perhaps it isn't fair to ask you to be generous to her, not to do the thing that would wreck her life. I don't know! But for the last time, Van, I ask you to do that."

"And I ask you to marry me. My life is over if you say no. I've been close to ending it all, Gwen. I think of you day and night. If I'm to have mercy on you, why can't you have mercy on me! I beg you. I put my whole life's security and happiness into your hands."

"I put mine into yours!" she countered passionately. "How can a woman who loves one man marry another? How can I write Dick — But no, it's not possible!"

Van was on his feet. "I have to go to my train," he said. "I'm coming down again on Sunday, Gwen. Shall I see you?"

"I'll be at home."

"And you'll decide by them?"

"There's nothing to decide, Van. I'll have to tell her, and see what she will do. She'll go straight to Link, and he'll—I suppose he'll withdraw. Heaven help me!" Gwen said, under her breath. "And of course, after this," she said nervously, when they were on the sidewalk, we needn't ever see each other again, you and I. I liked you — I thought you were—But it doesn't matter now."

"All's fair in love and war," the man reminded her. "This is both. If you'll be kind to me, I'll make you forgot this I'll blot it out with a thousand kindnesses to you; yes, and to everyone you love, too! Years from now you'll say to me: "You did it only because you loved me so deeply'"

Gwen turned from him and said no word of good-bye. She went home in a dazed dream of pain and fear, and throughout the evening of familiar kitchen activities had to rouse herself to realize what she was doing.

Poor Link, he would be generous about the thunderbolt so close to him, be kind about it, tell Sheila that he would be just as happy in the San Francisco law-office job, remind her that she would be nearer her mother and sister The Miller crowd triumphant; they and their corruption swept into office and power. Four days left before election; no time now to put up another candidate.

For however easily she might once have dismissed what Sheila had done as nobody's business but Sheila's and not within Link's rights of either inquiry or pronouncement, Gwen knew the matter was no longer a personal thing, to either herself or Sheila. She could visualize the devastating headlines, the newspaper references to that "love nest" of nearly nine years ago. It never would come to that, of course; Link couldn't let it, but they had it in their power to threaten that, and Sheila was therefore condemned to see all his political hopes blasted.

Gwen did not sleep that night. She heard Sheila and Link creep in at about one o'clock; heard Sheila tiptoe to her mother's room for the baby, heard her crooning low voice as she settled Fanny afresh in the crib. There were exchanged chuckles between the young parents, a low mumur of contented voices.

The next morning Sheila came down to breakfast as fresh as a rose. Late hours and long trips did not tire her, stimulated as he was, by the most potent of vintages; a share in the pre-election excitements of the candidate who is sure of success. Sheila had drunk deep of enthusiastic meetings, of the honest admiration as well as the flattery of Link's supporters; with gardenias pinned to her shoulder she had been hurried through cheering crowds to her place beside Link on the platforms; had sat proudly listening to him as he made dinner speeches; had known herself in all the various bureaus and headquarters outside of which the great "Baker for Congress" banners blew so gaily, an admired and watched and even envied figure.

"Link's forty fathoms deep asleep," said Sheila this morning, "and I think I'll let him sleep. We have to be in Sacramento for lunch tomorrow and two meetings, one in the afternoon and one in the evening but we won't start until about ten."

When Gwen found herself in idle conversation with Link and Sheila later in the day, she said, "Link, what happens if a candidate, at the very last minute, withdraws? Would it be considered such a serious thing?"

"You bet your life it'd be serious. Elections cost an awful lot of money, these days," Link said, with his attractive homely face very thoughtful. "It would be a pretty low trick to let things run along until close up to election and then drop out. That would let the party down in a way that would hurt it for a long time. You see, it wouldn't be merely a man declining to run. It'd mean that the whole campaign was thrown away; the effort they might have concentrated on another man would be wasted. As a matter of fact men have died right after taking office, and their successors haven't adhered to their policies. But I don't know," Link mused aloud, "that I ever heard of a candidate resigning within a week of election."

"You mean you couldn't resign because you've done so much about the Miller muckraking, Link?" Gwen asked.

"Well, I'm identified with it; I started it, in a way. At least they asked me to see what was going on, and the deeper I went into it the more I uncovered. Just before Sheila and I were married I had the honor to have a gun fired at me," Link said.

"It'll probably be a machine gun after Tuesday," Peter, junior, suggested. Gwen lost track of the desultory half-serious talk; she was watching Sheila. Sheila so beautiful in her faded cotton frock, and her hair tumbled up carelessly, and her eyes glowing with joy in her man and her child.

It was a gala time for the Washburton family. Gwen was probably going to make some money from her patent rights. Peter was definitely engaged to his plain nice Jan Willis. Dick Latimer was anxious to marry into the clan, and Sheila was home with a darling baby. Sheila's husband, finally, appeared to be on the point of shedding glory upon everyone concerned. The India-summer weather was perfection; everyone was well.

For all that long, happy Saturday Gwen saw the familiar scene as through a glass darkly. Everything was distorted; the more serenely beautiful the outward view, the more dreadful her knowledge of the cankerworm that was gnawing at the heart of it all.

Sheila went off with Link for a round of speeches. She came downstairs, looking lovely in an old brown velvet dress she had had before her marriage; her head bare, the lovely tawny hair brushed up into rings and waves.

"Gwen, you are such a darling to run that baby for me! I couldn't have any of this fun if you didn't do it."

"But Sheila, she's no trouble!"

"Oh, look here! I've had her days on end up at the mine, and I know exactly how little trouble a baby six months old is!"

To be continued.

FREIGHT TRAIN

ed and died two hours after being admitted to hospital in Hamilton.

Crew Member Gives Alarm.

Brakeman Ness suffered abrasions and a shoulder injury and was taken to hospital here where his condition was described as good.

The wreck occurred between Hagersville and Caledonia, about a mile and a half northwest of Willow Grove, in an uninhabited section of the Indian reserve.

Nothing was known of the accident until a member of the crew pounded on the door of Coomer McCauley's home late last night after trudging through dark, rough fields to find help. An alarm was sounded in the area and several men hurried to the scene of the accident where they found Willson, badly scalded, standing dazed in a field neighboring the right-of-way.

They carried him to the caboose of the train and obtained a stretcher, then conveyed him a mile across the fields to the highway where an ambulance picked him up and took him to hospital.

Rescue workers who arrived at the scene shortly after the wreck said the locomotive had been attached head-on to the string of cars carrying automobiles, soy beans and wheat.

Auxiliary Dispatched.

Two wrecking crews, dispatched from Hamilton, speeded to the scene of the wreck and worked feverishly with acetylene torches to shear away enough of the engine cab to remove the engineer's body. It was daylight before they succeeded.

They immediately began removing wreckage of the freight from the right-of-way but officials said it appeared likely that the route would be blocked until tonight. The roadbed was badly torn up where the engine and eight cars rolled down the embankment and the engine and tender "jacknifed" into the earth.

Mr. Laycock had been with the C.N.R. since 1913 and never had been injured on duty. He was a passenger on the flier which was wrecked at Dundas, Ont., five years ago on Chrisamas Day, but was uninjured. Fifteen persons were killed in that wreck.

Mr. Willson had been with the company since 1919.

Dressedweight—Barrie $10.85, Hull $10.60 plus transportation, Brantford $10.35 plus transportation, Stratford $10.25 plus transportation.

Butter Prices Steady; 750,000 lbs. to Be Imported by Canada

Toronto — Butter appeared to have reached a steady balance Saturday at a top-grade wholesale level of 37 cents and gave sign of settling down to relative normalcy for the rest of the holiday season.

Demand tapered off slightly. Offerings were not heavy and there was no pressure on brokers to sell. The market was quiet and steady in tone. First grade Ontario solids sold at 37 cents, unchanged from Friday.

A-large and A-medium eggs firmed slightly in the graded section of trading. Buying was on the quiet side, although supplies cleared easily. Dealers reported a fair out-of-town movement, and the general feeling of the market was improved from the early part of the week. In the graded section, A-large eggs sold at 31c, A-medium at 29c, A-pullet at 25c and 26c and grade C at 25c.

Montreal Butter, Eggs Up

Montreal, Dec. 23—Butter prices on the Canadian Commodity Exchange again moved higher during last week and spot closed with a net gain of 1 1-2 cents on the bid price. Futures were a cent to 1 1-4 cents higher but closing prices on Friday were slightly below the highs for the week. Trading was active with a total of 575 boxes changing hands on spot and 22 contracts, or 492,800 pounds, changing hands in the futures section.

A feature of the week's developments was the announcement that 750,000 pounds of Australian butter are being imported into Canada. Rather than having a weakening effect on the market, however, the news tended to strengthen the market even further due to the smallness of the amount involved. The shipment from Australia is being interpreted as indicating that such imports as may occur will be limited in quantity. Storage butter in Canada continued to be tightly held. The market was somewhat quieter toward the week's end as Christmas requirements had been filled, but the market retained a decidedly firm undertone.

MUST BE VICTORY OR NOTHING SAYS EDWIN JOHNSON

War Must be Fought to Finish and Full Power Must be Marshalled

Toronto, Dec. 23 (CP).—The war must be a fight to the finish and "we have no other duty and no other course than to marshal the full power of our strength" and strike against the enemy, says Edwin Johnson, former war correspondent with the Canadian troops in England and London superintendent of The Canadian Press.

"It must be victory or nothing," Mr. Johnson said last night, "and if we sincerely want victory we must be ready to work for it, fight for it and pay for it to the very limits of our human and material resources."

Speaking on the weekly "Let's face the facts" program arranged by G. H. Lash, director of public information, and broadcast over a national network of the Canadian Broadcasting Corporation, Mr. Johnson said there was no sense in underestimating the results of massed attacks and indiscriminate bombing by Nazi night raiders.

Britain has suffered very severe material damage and a considerable loss of life, he said, but he added he did not wish to imply Britain was being beaten to her knees by these "hammer blows". On the other hand it would be folly to minimize their significance and Canadian industry and labor should contemplate this fact before it was too late.

"I tell you frankly that unless aid is given now, fully and liberally, there is very real danger that the war may end in a stalemate," the former war correspondent said.

"I need not tell you what that would mean—postponement of the struggle to be fought out a little later on with even greater violence and frightfulness, a further era of feverish and expensive rearmament; the menace of economic bankruptcy for the axis and the empire. And probably, in the end, we would see 'Uncle' Joe Stalin perched securely on the European throne and wielding the sceptre of Communistic dictatorship."

Mr. Johnson told his audience that if they had seen London as he had, "bruised and battered, with dead and dying in its streets", they would be prepared to work and fight and to pay "so this evil thing which has caused this suffering and sorrow would be destroyed forever."

PLAN ASSAULT

Reports from the frontier said that while field and naval guns battered Bardia's defences from land and sea, fast mechanized units which have been the spearhead of the British counter-invasion struck off to the west once more.

How far these advance units penetrated toward Italian Marshal Graziani's next line of defence was not disclosed. It was said, however, that no sign was seen of an Italian "rescue" drive to save the troops at Bardia.

British observers assumed that Bardia's defenders had been assigned the role of a sacrifice garrison designed to hold up the British while Graziani strengthened new defences to the west, at Tobruk, Derna and Bengasi.

The Royal Air Force reported last night that 175 Italian planes had been destroyed with a loss of 14 British fighting planes in the fortnight since the army of the Nile turned the tables on Graziani's invasion army in Egypt.

Reuters News Agency reported that news of British victories in North Africa was spreading by "native telegraph" from village to village through Italian-held Ethiopia.

Four U.S. Sailors And Six Bus Passengers Die in Bus-Car Crash

San Diego, Calif., Dec. 23 (AP)—Four sailors from the U.S. cruiser Detroit were killed and six bus passengers injured slightly in a bus-automobile collision near Encinitas, 25 miles north of here, last night. The dead: D. S. Cook, Francis N. Lyster, K. Fullis and Don D. Kirsch.

'SHOOTING WORKS'

Other reports last night said one choice Fascist regiment had been cut to pieces by the latest fierce Greek assault near Tepeleni and that two whole battalions were surrounded.

"Our army is advancing steadily and securely," the spokesman said. "In the coastal sectors the enemy offered stiff resistance . . . and tried to maintain himself in strongly fortified positions protected by barbed wire entanglements, but has been unable to succeed.

Enemy Retreating

"The enemy has abandoned these positions and is retreating.

"Chimara is under absolute control of our artillery.

"In the Tepeleni-Klisura region enemy units consisting of choice troops offered strong resistance but have been unable to check our advance. The enemy suffered heavy losses and abandoned much material."

Of the Greek drives toward Elbasani and the Albanian capital, Tirana, from the northern wing of the battlefront the spokesman declared:—

"More northward, where Alpine units are fighting, our troops advanced and occupied heights and villages."

A communique issued today by the Greek High Command said two lieutenant colonels were among new prisoners taken by the Greeks, who reported they captured approximately 2,000 Italians in the last seven days despite extreme cold and heavy snow which hampered operations.

Weather over the weekend was improved.

An Associated Press correspondent with the Greek army on the southern front reported that the Greeks, strongly supporting their infantry advances with field artillery, seemed to be "shooting the works" in an effort to clinch a decisive victory in the drives toward Valona.

The Greeks and British Royal Air Force units operating with them reported shooting down at least 18 Italian planes and damaging two others badly.

Premier Hepburn Against Waste of Christmas Trees

St. Thomas, Ont., Dec. 23 (CP)—Premier M. F. Hepburn is critical of the annual waste of Christmas trees and it is quite possible that Queen's Park may take restrictive action to check the annual slaughter of trees, or at least limit it to prevent the cutting of vast quantities beyond the ability of the market to consume.

"The trees are propagated and distributed at the expense of the taxpayers of Ontario," said Mr. Hepburn. "We have built up one of the largest and best systems of tree nurseries in the world. I do not think we should permit the trees which have been supplied from our nurseries, to be cut down for Christmas tree purposes after they have attained a height of six or eight feet; I am definitely against the destruction that has been going on for years."

Many thoughtful people interested in conservation of tree growth are of the same opinion as Premier Hepburn. The St. Thomas Board of Education criticized the slaughter of trees at a meeting one month ago and Reeve H. G. Taylor has brought the matter to the attention of the County Council and other provincial organizations on many occasions.

The trees are propagated by the Forestry Department for woodlots and windbreaks only, not for future sale as Christmas trees or for ornamental decoration of home surroundings.

It is felt by many that the best method of control is through the nurseries by having applicants sign an agreement that the trees are not to be grown for sale as Christmas trees, and then by the licensing of dealers in trees, so that they can be forced to identify their source of supply. Premier Hepburn has intimated he will confer with the Forestry Department representatives on the subject, and also with the Cabinet so that some steps may be taken before another Christmas, to control cutting down of trees.

TRYING TO SEVER

One source said such raids were the Royal Air Force's part in a British land, sea and air effort to knock the Fascists out of the war quickly, thus releasing Britain's Mediterranean fleet for Atlantic convoy duty and to guard against the still-present threat of German invasion.

Pilots returning from the far-flung raids which cost only one plane told of inflicting heavy damage from Norway to the Adriatic.

Daylight Raids Made.

The most spectacular of the raids was a 1,600-mile round trip attack across the Alps to the head of the Adriatic, and daybreak bombardments of German naval bases at Wilhelmshaven, Germany, and Lorient and Brest, France.

The Air Ministry reported fires were started in a petroleum refinery and docks and factory buildings at Porto Marghera, near Venice, in a half-hour attack around Saturday midnight.

Fliers said they broke through heavy anti-aircraft fire along the Nazi-held coast of France, crossed the Alps flying at 17,500 feet in temperatures 30 degrees below zero, but could see the dark lines of the Venice canals distinctly as they neared their target.

(Italy reported no attack at Venice or Porto Marghera, but claimed Fiume was bombed. Fiume is 100 miles east of Venice and just across the frontier from the Yugoslav town of Susak. The Yugoslav government bombs fell in Susak injuring several persons and causing considerable damage. The government declared it would demand compensation from Britain.)

In the daybreak attacks yesterday, coastal command planes bombed important German docks at Wilhelmshaven and the Nazi bases at Lorient and Brest which are believed used by submarines and light naval units preying upon shipping in the Atlantic.

Norway Railway Bombed.
